RUSH TROOPS TO GARY; MANY FALL IN UNION BATTLE.

ENATE IS TOLD OF PLOTS TO SOVIETIZE STEEL MILLS

Tin Worker as Witness Before Strike Investigators Testifies to Conspiracy in Unions' War.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Investigation of the nation-wide steel strike was temporarily halted today by the Senate Labor Committee after it had heard several employees of the United States Steel Corporation who attacked sharply tactics of strikers and strike leaders. The inquiry will be resumed in the Pittsburgh district as soon as the treaty situation in the Senate makes it possible for the committee members to be absent from Washington for three days or more.

Four mill workers were heard today. T. J. Davies of Newcastle, Pa., said the strike involved the foreigners in the mills, that many of the participants believed the object was to give the workmen ownership of the mills and that it was being carried on with intimidation and violence.

With all of the other men heard, Davies supported statements of Judge Gary, chairman of the board of the Steel Corporation, that the mill executives always were ready to hear reasonable grievances and redress them and said union organization would not do the men any good.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Activities of union organizers in steel districts before the present strike was called had "all the elements of a conspiracy," T. J. Davies, a Newcastle (Pa.) tin worker, told the Senate committee investigating the strike today. Foreign workmen in some places, he said, expect it to result in soviet operation of the mills.

"These men moved mysteriously around the plant," declared Davies, who said he represented the sentiment of 5000 tin workers. "These foreigners, when we asked them, explained they were going to get the ownership.'

'President Wilson, President Gompers, they all say, are with us. Americans can't work here after. Nothing but union men. We'll get the check-off system.' said, 'and collect all the union

'Some of them explained to me: won't need bosses after this; will run mills.'"

Davies said some workers were because they "are told will be blown up and killed."

When the strike was called, Davies and other workmen who sought to get into the mills at Newcastle were attacked by pickets at the gate.

LOCAL MEN BEATEN.

"They whipped the city police, whipped the county police," Davies said, "and beat men trying to go to work. There were 500 foreigners around the mill gates, and armed soldiers took charge the situation there was a condition of fight."

Davies said his own earnings were a day as a roller. He added was a Y.M.C.A. worker in during the war.

He told the committee that mill employees had grievances could appeal to the foremen and if dissatisfied could go to the superintendent.

"I don't know of any labor union that has anything to offer us," Davies said. "Most of us have been members of unions. A union man is afraid of being called out whenever any agitator gets inflamed with Bolshevism, and has no redress for it."

Senator Kenyon asked him if he saw any evidence of Bolshevism in the strike.

"BOLSHEVISM AT CREST."

He developed the doctrine among them right here," he said. "This talk about committees, the terrorism and intimidation, the condition at Newcastle after they licked the police, the wrong education, the inflaming of these men, is Bolshevism at the crest."

"Don't you think the managers, the steel employers, have some responsibility in the situation?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"Sure they have," was the reply, "and the government should join with them, get the men out of the country; shoot them if necessary."

Davies discussed the union leaders.

"They won't fight back the rabid element or the mob spirit," he asserted, "for fear of losing their jobs."

"Mr. Gompers is a conservative force, but he has tried to hold back radicals and failed," he said.

AMERICANS BARRED.

"There has been an active campaign to get union members," he said. "They didn't let Americans in; told them to get out of the meetings and called them spies."

Smith said he had been a union member, but did not intend to affiliate again.

"There's no need for it," he said. "There is never any trouble about getting complaints up to the superintendent and getting reasonable redress. Working conditions have improved wonderfully during the last seven years."

Edward S. Lynch, McKeesport, and John Hickey, Homestead, also steel company employees, testified conditions in mills were satisfactory.

The committee adjourned to meet on call after the members present had voted to continue the inquiry at Pittsburgh at a date to be announced.

Joseph Smith, another roller from Homestead, Pa., said he made $22 to $24 a day.

BALTIC STATES WILL NEGOTIATE WITH REDS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REVAL, Oct. 2 (via Copenhagen, Oct. 4.)—Peace negotiations will be begun between three Baltic states—Esthonia, Letvia and Lithuania—and the Bolsheviks. This action was decided on last night at the conference in Dorpat. The provisional government of Northwestern Russia did not vote. The three Baltic states will act as a unit, according to the demand put to the Esthonians at the preliminary meeting with the Reds at Pskoff two weeks ago.

This action on the part of the Baltic states marks the first formal recognition of soviet Russia as a sovereign state.

Esthonia, Letvia and Lithuania will now select peace commissioners who will meet the Bolshevik commissioners at Dorpat at a date not yet fixed.

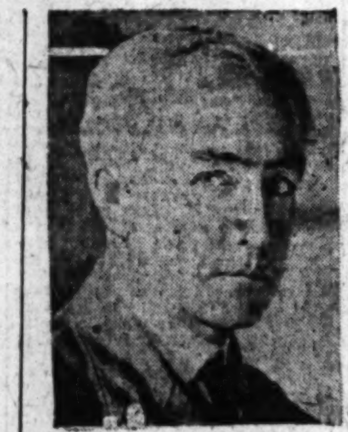
DEVELOPMENTS FAVOR LEAGUE.

Senator Hitchcock Interprets Senate Vote as Showing Decided Opposition to Any Textual Change in Peace Treaty.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Senator Hitchcock, who is leading the fight for ratification of the peace treaty and League of Nations in the Senate, declared in a statement issued today through the Washington bureau of the League to Enforce Peace that the developments of the past week in the Senate have been particularly satisfactory to those who want the treaty ratified without amendments or reservations. The statement follows:



Senator Hitchcock.

"The developments of the past week in the fight to ratify the treaty have been particularly favorable and satisfactory. As I interpret the vote Thursday on thirty-six amendments proposed by the Foreign Relations Committee, a very substantial majority of the Senate stand opposed to any textual amendment of the treaty. This opposition is not based altogether upon the character of the amendment, but is based on a determination not to do anything to the treaty which would result in sending it back.

RESULT OF AMENDMENTS.

"The majority of the Senate appreciates the fact that if the treaty is amended the amendment must be submitted not only to the nations associated with us in the war, but to Germany. Germany would not accept any amendments because Germany would like to see us left out of the treaty settlement. The nations associated with us would accept no amendments because they would endanger their contract with Germany.

"The result would be a failure on our part to participate in the treaty. That would make it necessary for us to have an unconditional peace with Germany or to negotiate a peace with Germany. In either case we would lose the enormous advantages in trade preparations and shipping which were exacted from Germany in the treaty, and which those nations which ratify the treaty will enjoy.

WILL BEAT OTHERS.

"I think the other amendments will be beaten when they are reached and then the contest will come over reservations or conditions which some Senators want to put in the resolution of ratification. I have great hopes that enough Senators who have opposed amendments will realize that a reservation, if it changes the terms of the treaty in any respect, is just as objectionable as an amendment and that for that reason no reservations will be adopted which will endanger the treaty.

"I am very sorry to say that in addition to this good news about the treaty we have some very bad news. In this I refer to the serious illness of the President. It is a terrible thing for the United States, and I believe for the other nations, that he should at this time be stretched upon a sick bed. Unquestionably he is exhausted because of his enormous labors in the cause of peace. He sacrificed his health and his strength in a great cause."

SHANTUNG AMENDMENTS UP MONDAY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The trend of developments today in the peace-treaty situation still was toward rapid progress on amendments and reservations.

The Senate was not in session, but leaders held numerous conferences. The Shantung amendments are to be taken up formally Monday and Republican leaders think it possible that all amendments will be disposed of and consideration of reservations begun in a week or ten days.

A movement to have a definite date fixed for the vote on the Shantung amendments was made today by Senator Kenyon, Republican, Iowa, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, which is investigating the strike. The committee wishes to visit the strike district next week and Senator Kenyon said he would try to arrange for a formal agreement to vote on the amendments Wednesday or Thursday.

When the Shantung amendments are disposed of, Republican leaders plan to take up the amendments of Senators Johnson, California, and Moses, New Hampshire, Republicans, bearing on equalizing the voting power of the League of Nations of the United States and Great Britain and her colonies. Senator Johnson, who is on the Pacific Coast, was advised today, some leaders said, to return here within a week. Other Republicans said they knew of no recall of the California Senator, but doubted whether he would fill dates in Washington and Oregon.

The Johnson amendment is to be discussed at length Monday by Senator McCumber, Republican, North Dakota, who has offered a reservation designed to cover the same ground as the Johnson amendment. Further conferences on reservations were held today by former President Taft with Republican Senators favoring so-called "mild reservations." It was said that a reservation on the Shantung provision would be offered if the amendment by Republican Leader Lodge relating to the Shantung award was rejected.

LOST AIRMEN SLAIN IN MEXICO?

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) Oct. 4.—Lieuts. Frederick Waterhouse and Cecil H. Connolly, American aviators lost in Mexico, were apparently murdered after landing near Los Animos Bay, Mexico, according to members of the San Francisco Geological Survey party, which arrived here from Los Animos Bay today with corroboration of the statement of Joseph Allen Richards, who claimed to have located the bodies of the American aviators.

J. Vandergrift and H. R. Crane of the Geological Survey party brought teeth taken from the skulls of the two bodies found by their party near Los Animos Bay. They were delivered to army dental surgeons for identification. They said one of the skulls was badly crushed and the body showed evidences of stab wounds on the arms.

The relaxed position of one of the bodies indicated that death had come while the men were asleep, while the other indicated by tensed muscles that a fight had preceded the murder of the two Americans, the geologists stated here. The airplane flown by the aviators was found twenty miles inland. It is believed the aviators were forced to land, abandoned their plane and walked to the seacoast in the hope of flagging a passing steamer when they were killed.

The War Department has requested the Navy Department to send a boat to Los Animos Bay, Mexico, to bring back the bodies of Lieuts. Connolly and Waterhouse, it was announced unofficially by military officials here today.

Joseph Allen Richards, an American railroad man, arrived here recently from the interior and stated he had located the bodies of the two aviators on Los Animos Bay. He is remaining here at the request of military authorities to assist in relocating the graves of the American aviators.

NO OFFICIAL NEWS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 4.—Up to a late hour tonight Col. Watson, commanding Rockwell Field, to which Lieuts. Waterhouse and Connolly were trying to fly when they were carried to Lower California, had received no official word regarding their fate. He said, however, that the theory of murder held by members of the party which went to Los Animos Bay would seem to be strengthened by the report that the two airmen had got only fifteen miles from their machine. If they had not been attacked, he said, they doubtless could have got much farther.

FLYER KILLED IN CRASH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MIDDLETOWN (N. Y.) Oct. 4.—Maj. Patrick Frissell was killed and Second Lieutenant G. E. Ballard seriously injured when an airplane in which they were flying crashed to the ground on Prospect Mountain a few miles from here today. Both officers were stationed at the army aviation field in Indianapolis and they were flying from Binghamton to Mineola to take part in the transcontinental air race next Wednesday. They were flying a De Haviland "blue bird" machine.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—D. M. Reynolds of Los Angeles who, for almost two years has been engaged in war work for the government and who has been assistant to John S. Cravens, Henry M. Robinson and, more lately, Director Clarkson of the United States Council of National Defense, together with Mrs. Reynolds and their children, is on his way to California. His resignation as assistant to the director of the council was effective October 1 and he returns to his home in Cali- the war. He expects to reach Los fornia to resume work given up for Angeles about Wednesday.

PRESIDENT IS GAINING.

Slight Progress is not Decisive.

Specialists Again are Called Into Consultation; Grayson Encouraged.

Physicians See Hopeful Sign in Mr. Wilson's Rallying Power; Chafes at Rest.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Continued improvement was recorded in Rear Admiral Grayson's night bulletin which declared President Wilson had passed a more encouraging day, although the improvement was not decisive.

The bulletin, issued at 10:20 p.m., was as follows:

"The President has passed a more encouraging day. The improvement is slight but not decisive."

Dr. Grayson indicated that he felt much encouraged by the day's progress. The day was oppressively hot and the fact that the President had more than held his own, despite his respiratory affliction resulting from influenza was taken as a hopeful sign.

Although not modifying his description of the President as a "very sick man," Dr. Grayson diagnosed the patient's condition today as "more favorable" and indicated that his recuperative powers now had the upper hand.

A good night's rest, one of the few Mr. Wilson has been able to enjoy since his illness began, was credited with aiding materially in restoring strength and cheerfulness. During the day the President was able to get additional rest, but he was kept in bed and was under almost continual observation by his physicians.

PHYSICIANS PLEASED.

The specialists called in by Dr. Grayson again made a thorough examination and consulted for an hour over the patient's condition. They made no announcement but indicated general satisfaction with the progress being made. The examination included a test of the President's eyes and it was said they were found to be unaffected by his nervous ailment.

With all of Mr. Wilson's immediate family at the White House, scores of other persons, including many officials and diplomatists, called at the executive offices to express their sympathy and their hope for a speedy recovery. Many messages of similar nature were received by wire, some of them coming from foreign countries.

No one except members of the family was permitted to see the President, however, and it was said that for a few days at least, the rule of absolute quiet would be enforced rigidly.

Hope virtually was abandoned that he would be able to take any active part in the industrial and labor conference during the coming week, but some White House officials thought he might be permitted, should his condition continue to improve, to give a few minutes a day to important legislative matters likely to be ready for his signature soon.

IMPORTANT BILLS.

Among the bills which may be sent to the White House by Congress during the coming week are those providing for prohibition enforcement, for restoration of the rate-making powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, for revision of the food control act and for continuation of work on the Alaskan railway. Although the measures automatically would become law ten days after final passage should the President fail to act, it is possible he may be permitted by Dr. Grayson to affix his signature to them.

In addition to Dr. Grayson, the physicians present at the consultation were Dr. F. X. Dercum, a Philadelphia expert on nervous ailments; Rear-Admiral E. R. Stitt of the naval hospital; Dr. Sterling Ruffin of Washington, and Dr. George Schweinitz, an eye specialist of Philadelphia. It was said the eye examination was made because impairment of the sight was a common reaction from nervous disorders and it was desired that the diagnosis be absolutely complete.

Again today the President's heart action was declared to be good and his mind keen, symptoms in which his physicians placed much reliance. His pulse was said to be normal and there was no fever.

Among messages received at the White House tonight was the following from Cardinal Gibbons at Baltimore:

"I beg to express my heartfelt sympathy for the President in his hour of illness and will pray for his early recovery."

ABANDONS ITINERARY

Decides Southwest is not His Field.

Oklahoma Egging and Cold Shoulder of Arizona is Too Much.

Fails to Offer Any Excuse for Cancelling All of His Speeches.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DENVER, Oct. 4.—Senator Reed is from Missouri and he has been shown.

He knows now that the Southwest wants none of his anti-treaty speeches. He has seen the light and tonight announced that he had cancelled all his engagements and would return at once to Washington.

The Senator's ardor was considerably dampened and his clothes much bespattered when the citizens of Ardmore, Okla., gave him a shower of ripe eggs and over-ripe vegetables last Wednesday night. He recovered sufficiently to go on to Tulsa and there was met with the news that Arizona, in which he was scheduled to speak in several cities, did not want him. Yesterday, he was more emphatically informed that not only did Arizona refuse to hear his sort of so-called Americanism, but that his own party leaders in Arizona washed their hands of any responsibility for his entering the State. Thomas Drennan, secretary of the Arizona Democratic Committee, warned Reed that he was not wanted and that no Democrat holding an official position would give him any aid or recognition.

LAST BLOW.

That was the last blow. Reed, egged on by the frantic appeals of Johnson, who had managed to get a lukewarm sort of reception from the pro-German and anti-Ally elements in California, came on to Denver, but there decided that he had better call it a day and go back to Washington, where there are no egg-throwing crowds.

In his speech here tonight in the Municipal Auditorium, which was only partly filled, Reed read from the earlier writings of President Wilson and presented a mass of statistical and quoted matter in support of his argument against the League of Nations covenant of the peace treaty.

Reed held his audience closely, despite one or two attempts at heckling which were soon suppressed.

His arguments were those he has been presenting throughout his present tour.

GOVERNOR INTERCEDES.

Gov. Shoup spoke briefly, referring to the utterances of the President in support of the League of Nations, about a fortnight ago. He said he believed no Colorado audience would be other than courteous and hoped all those present might learn something of the other side of the question.

Reed opened his address by saying that the audience was the best evidence of the interest American people take in public questions and elaborated the doctrine that power rests in the people.

"This is not a one-man country," he said, "but it is a 110,000,000 men country."

Persons in the crowd started to heckle the Senator with cries of "Put him out." Confusion ensued, but ended in laughter.

Referring to the Oklahoma incident, he said: "I never voted for suffrage, but at that meeting when 1000 women sat quiet while the lights were cut off I was brought to the conclusion that they were good enough to vote."

Reed said he denied that America entered the war either to regenerate or democratize the world, but that German acts of aggression drew it in.

BUDGET SYSTEM WAITS ON TREATY DISPOSAL.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Senator McCormick, chairman of a special Senate Budget Committee, announced today that his committee would not begin its investigation work into the merits of adopting a budget system for this country until after the League of Nations covenant and German peace treaty has been disposed of in the Senate.

MANY FALL IN BATTLE.

Hospitals are Filled with Injured.

Union Agitators Incite Mill Town Crowds to Bloody Violence on Streets.

Police Overwhelmed as Mob Attacks Car Bearing Non-Union Workmen.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 4.—Gov. Goodrich tonight ordered eleven companies of State militia to East Chicago and Gary, where rioting broke out today as a result of the strike of steel workers. The troops will have headquarters in East Chicago, where 800 of them are expected to arrive tomorrow. They will be under command of Adjt.-Gen. Harry B. Smith.

The Governor's action followed an appeal by Sheriff Barnes of Lake county and Mayor Hodges of Gary. The sheriff reported that agitators were inciting the striking steel workers to riot and that the situation was beyond his control on account of inability to obtain sufficient deputies. He also reported that trouble was developing between negroes and whites.

RIOT BEGINS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

GARY (Ind.) Oct. 4.—Serious rioting broke out late today when thousands of steel strikers and others, armed with rocks and stones, fought with the police, deputy sheriffs and city firemen, injuring probably scores. The local company of militia was notified by city officials to be in readiness for duty.

No shots were fired. The fighting spread virtually all over the south part of the city.

The local hospitals were soon filled with the injured and the city jail was filled with men arrested.

The fighting was of a fierce nature, between squads as well as between individuals, and spread rapidly.

The trouble started when strikers were leaving a union mass meeting. Several thousand strikers who were at the meeting and others in the streets were involved.

HOOT NONSTRIKERS.

The immediate cause of the rioting, the first serious disorder here since the strike was called on September 22, was the presence of a number of nonstrikers in a street car on their way to the steel mills to work.

The car was halted at Tenth avenue by a passing Michigan Central train. The strikers began to hoot and jeer the men in the car, according to the police, and soon sticks and stones began to fly.

After the motorman and conductor had fled from the car, a passenger attempted to pacify the crowd. His words were met by more missiles, it was reported.

A riot call was telephoned to the police. The police were overwhelmed.

Then a second riot call brought the remainder of the police force, about 100 men. These were followed by nearly 500 special policemen, the firemen and between 200 and 3000 special deputy sheriffs.

The fighting continued. Men with broken heads, cuts and other injuries were hurried away to the hospitals. Early in the fighting, it was said, twenty-five or thirty persons had been taken to hospitals.

As the rioting continued the police arrested more than 100 men.

In the meantime Mayor Hodges and Chief of Police Forbes notified officers of the local militia company to be in readiness for duty if needed.

The police finally got the upper hand after sending out two squads armed with riot guns. It was not necessary to fire a shot.

A light rain aided the authorities in quelling disturbances and the rioters finally dispersed and most of them went to their homes.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Mayor Hodges issued a statement announcing that the police had control of the situation. At that time fifteen men had been locked up. Twenty-five were taken into custody, according to the police, while others had been released and others were being questioned.

Incomplete reports to the police showed that forty or fifty persons had been injured, four of them policemen. None was fatally hurt.

KING IN FLIGHT OVER NEW YORK

Albert, Upon Alighting, Calls it Grand Spectacle.

Queen Visits Hospitals and the Museum of Art.

Boston to Serve Beans in Gold Pots to Visitors.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—King Albert of the Belgians flew over New York this morning in a navy hydroairplane. When the King alighted he said enthusiastically: "It was a grand spectacle."

In the meantime Queen Elizabeth, escorted by Mrs. Hylan, the Mayor's wife, visited a number of hospitals and the Rockfeller Institute.

Later in the morning the Queen visited the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The King went from the Woolworth Tower to the Stock Exchange, where trading was halted to welcome him and brokers from the floor cheered him. He also visited the Subtreasury.

VISITS THE BANKERS.

At noon he went to the Bankers' Club, where he was the honor guest of the commission for relief in Belgium at luncheon.

The royal party will depart for Boston tonight, arriving there tomorrow morning.

The King's decision to cancel engagements because of the illness of the President did not apply to the programmes arranged for him in Boston and Buffalo.

REVISED PLANS.

They will spend tomorrow in Boston, leaving tomorrow night for Buffalo, where they will remain until Monday evening when they depart for California. Until October 14, the party will remain at some place as yet unannounced and will not attend any formal affairs. On that date the Belgian ruler will be formally received by the city of San Francisco.

The change of plans eliminates visits to Moline, Ill.; Seattle, Spokane, Davenport, Iowa; Kansas City, St. Paul and Minneapolis. It is thought probable that some of these cities may be included in the itinerary on the return trip east.

BEANS IN BOSTON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—Beans, baked Boston style, and served in golden pots, will be on the menu of the luncheon to be tendered King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium here tomorrow. Two gold pots have been made for the occasion and will be presented to the royal visitors after the luncheon. They were fashioned after the ordinary bean pot and about six inches in height and eight inches in diameter.

EPISCOPALIANS WANT MODERNIZED RITUALS.

RADICAL CHANGES IN MARRIAGE AND BURIAL LITURGY IS PROPOSED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DETROIT, Oct. 4.—The proposed revision of the Book of Common Prayer of the Episcopal church, which is to come before the triennial convention, opening here October 8, embodies changes in the marriage service in recognition of "the new status of woman in the life of the world—that of political equality with man." It is proposed to eliminate the word "obey" from the woman's pledge in the marriage service, making the promises of man and woman the same, while the words, "With all my worldly goods I thee endow," in the man's pledge, would also be stricken out.

It is stated by church leaders that the proposed revision would not only enrich, but "modernize and humanize" the Book of Common Prayer.

It is proposed to eliminate from the burial office of the liturgy all expressions that tend to represent death and sickness and disaster as the direct acts of God.

The meetings of the 3000 delegates, the clergy the house of bishops and the various auxiliary organizations are to be held in half a dozen large churches of several denominations and in large halls.

The largest convention hall in the city has been engaged for the evening inspirational meetings, which will be addressed by leading churchmen and nationally-known figures.

Would Put in Action Society Which is on Paper Only.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

CHRISTIANIA, Friday, Oct. 3.—The Parliamentary committee appointed to discuss the entrance of Norway into the League of Nations has reported unanimously in favor of Norway's joining the league.

PARIS, Friday, Oct. 3.—Premier Clemenceau has written Col. E. M. House urging that a meeting of the League of Nations be held in Washington under the chairmanship of President Wilson early in November. The Premier's letter, officially published today, was written September 4, 1919, and follows in part:

"It seems to me that the first meeting of the society of nations in Washington under the presidency of Mr. Wilson should be urgently called at the earliest possible moment. Owing to the hopes this society has caused to be born and to facilitate the solution of international problems facing all nations, I would suggest the meeting be held the first week of the coming November and would propose the invitation of the greatest possible number of statesmen whose names were associated with the creation of the society of nations. Undoubtedly there would be only a small amount of current business to transact, but the programme would have this capital advantage: It would put in action the society, which still exists only on paper.

"Finally, don't you think it would be a great advantage for the ex-officio members of the society of nations to be enabled to exchange views on the general direction of the line to be pursued? No man is better qualified than President Wilson to remind the peoples at the opening of the first Assembly that the society of nations will have prestige and influence in times of peace only if it succeeds in maintaining and developing the feeling of international solidarity from which it was born during the war, at the call of Mr. Wilson. I myself shall be happy to second him in this task.

"GEORGES CLEMENCEAU.

"P. S.: I have written a similar letter to Premier Lloyd George."

BILL WOULD SECURE ALL SUGAR OF CUBA.

FAILURE TO BUY EARLIER MAY SEND RETAIL PRICE UP TO TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Senator McNary will offer at once a bill authorizing the purchase by the sugar equalization board of the remaining three-quarters of the Cuban sugar crop for 1920. Unless this crop is secured the price of sugar may go to 20 or even 25 cents retail.

This is the result of testimony before the subcommittee of the Committee on Agriculture, of which Senabe no more hearings. Chairman tor McNary is chairman. There will be no more hearings. Chairman Zabriskie of the sugar equalization board was the principal witness. Judge Glasgow, counsel for the Food Administration, was also examined.

PURCHASE NOT AUTHORIZED.

Reluctantly the witness said that failure to buy the 1920 crop was due to delay in getting authorization from President Wilson. Early in August, the witness testified, the board asked authority from the President to buy all the Cuban crop of sugar for 1920. Without such authority there was no legal power in the board for undertaking the purchase.

On September 22, the board again asked for authority from the President and on September 25, while without authority, the Cuban growers withdrew their offer and one-fourth of the crop has been sold abroad. What remains of the crop will cost 6 to 6½ cents and will probably cost the consumer 12 cents.

TWO MAIN CAUSES.

Two main causes for sugar shortage were disclosed. One, prohibition, second, world shortage. It was shown that the demand for sugar had increased tremendously with prohibition and our consumption of sugar per year has arisen from 84 to 92 pounds per person. In place of beer, workmen are craving and consuming vast quantities of candy and sugary edibles. The reaction of sugar in the alimentary canal takes the place of alcohol, to a great extent.

German and Austrian sugar beets formerly supplied France and England.

These are practically gone and all Europe is depending on Cuban and American sugar. Cuba's 1920 crop, if normal, would have supplier one-half of 4,000,000 tons of sugar consumed by the United States. The beet sugar of the West will only produce about 800,000 tons and the rest comes from Louisiana cane, Hawaii, and the Philippines.

WILSON'S GIFTS ARE OF BUT SMALL VALUE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Gifts received by President Wilson while in Europe were of "very insignificant" value, Secretary Tumulty said today in announcing that he would submit today an answer to the resolution of Representative Rodenburg, Republican, Illinois, asking as to reports that the gifts were valued at $1,000,000.

Mr. Tumulty said the President received no gifts, which would have required an act of Congress for him to accept and that in every case he consulted Secretary Lansing and the Attorney-General as to whether he could legally accept.

The most valuable present, Mr. Tumulty said, was a gold casket, which contained a certificate of citizenship from the city of London. The King of Italy presented the President two old guns and the King of England gave him a book.

FARMERS ASK STATUS DEFINED IN THE LAW.

REPRESENTATIVE FESS BRINGS ON RESENTMENT BY OPPOSING MEASURE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Representative Simeon D. Fess, chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, has aroused some resentment among farmers because of his opposition to a measure, which would specifically permit agriculture to engage in collective bargaining. Dr. Fess in a recent statement said he was opposed to exemption of all kinds and declared he would support no measure, which did not treat all alike.

Secretary Lyman of the National Board of Farm Organizations has addressed a letter to the Ohio law maker calling his attention to the oft-repeated statement of the organization that the farmers are not asking for exemptions or special privileges, but are simply insisting on a generally recognized right to collective bargaining. Dr Fess, Secretary Lyman said, would leave the farmers in an uncertain state before the law, whereas legislation now before Congress would clarify their status.

"The trouble with Dr. Fess is that he has failed to differentiate organization for mutual benefit from combination in restraint of trade," said Mr. Lyman. The farmers are not asking for special privileges or for exemption from penalties incurred through infraction of the law. They are merely asking that Section 6 of the Clayton law be so clarified that they will understand how to govern themselves under it.

"There is a conflict of judgment as to whether collective bargaining which does not restrain trade, restrict production or strifle competition is permitted under that section. If it is not permitted the section should be amended. If it is, the section should be made plainly to say so. That is all the farmers are asking."

SAYS A.E.F. DEMANDS LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

RECTOR DECLARES SPIRIT OF "OVER THERE" INSURES AMERICA'S PART.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, Oct. 4.—"No classes in Americanization were needed in the A.E.F.," said the Rev. George Craig Stewart, rector of St. Luke's Church, Evanston, Ill., addressing the thirty-fourth annual convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, in session at Detroit.

"Every march was a class," he continued. "Every battle was a course in patriotism. Men develop an intense, passionate love for a cause they are defending; patriotism thrives on sacrifice, and those who give most love most.

"To keep that spirit alive America must be worthy of it. She was a champion of the weak nations then; she had no stake other than the high ideal of service in the cause of freedom. The hearts of men leaped up to meet her call because it was a noble one.

"Today a supreme problem is whether she will substitute national selfishness for national service, national greed for human welfare, national isolation for national leadership.

"The spirit of 'over there' says 'No!' There was a League of Nations 'over there.' We were in it, fought in it, won with it and we are going to see that America stays in to guarantee the fruits of our sacrifice in world-wide freedom and world-wide peace.

"The League of Nations will be adopted because twentieth-century, Chateau Thierry, Argonne Forest Americans demand it."

"Our boys came back from France changed, but the change was not always for the better," said Maj. Henry R. Sanborn, chief of staff of the Sixteenth Brigade of the Eighth Division, in his address this evening. "They came back vastly better for their experiences, or indescribably worse, as the case might be."

WESTERN SUGAR WILL END CHICAGO FAMINE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Sugar in large quantities from the producing centers in Colorado and Utah will reach the Chicago market within the next week, Dist.-Atty. Clyne announced today, and will put an end to the famine that has threatened this section.

According to Mr. Clyne the sugar is being loaded and shipped for distribution under government supervision, and the supply will be sufficient to meet all present demands. The price to the consumer will be 12 cents a pound and probably will not drop below that figure, neither is there much chance of it going more than ½ cent higher.

CANAL PLANS KNOCKED OUT

Imperial Project Upset by Conference Changes.

Method of Financing Proves Serious Obstacle.

Kettner Bill Doomed, Say Valley Delegates.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, Oct. 4.—With the closing of the Mead conference at Berkeley the final chapter of the efforts of the Imperial Valley all-American canal adherents has probably been written.

Delegates, returning home this morning, told a different story than the wires ahead, and expressed their opinion that the passage of the two Mead resolutions as amendments to the Kettner bill killed any possible chance that the Kettner bill had of passing the House and Senate.

Judge Phil D. Swing, one of the delegates and the chief representative of the valley at Washington, recently expressed himself as follows:

"I'm afraid that the amendments recommended by the Mead conference will postpone the building of the all-American canal. They knock out the entire plans embodied in the Kettner bill for financing the all-American canal. The valley's delegation to Washington was advised to adopt the bond guarantee plan in preference to asking Congress for a direct appropriation, which latter plan was considered impossible owing to the present condition of the United States Treasury.

"The essence of the plan is to have the outside lands, which were to be benefited by the construction of the canal, organized into one or more districts, issue bonds for their share of the cost of the canal and put those bonds up with the government.

"Under the Mead conference amendments the sale of the outside lands is postponed until after the canal is completed. Hence, there can be no owners to the outside lands to organize a district or vote any bonds. Hence no bonds put up with the government. The result must be that either the Imperial irrigation district will have to vote the entire $30,000,000 and take its chances on getting some back from able proposition, or Congress must outside land, which is an unreasonable proportion, or Congress must make a direct appropriation to finance the all-American canal, which we are advised is unlikely.

"But the amendments go farther and eliminate the payment of $10 per acre on all public lands. This was meant as a generosity for soldiers, but if it delays the all-American canal it will be a poor service to them. The elimination of the $10 per acre kills the bond guarantee fund which was our best argument to get the government to underwrite our bonds. Not only this, but the bond guarantee fund was, under the Kettner bill, to furnish the means for providing storage for outside lands. Under the present plans no storage is provided unless Congress makes a direct appropriation for that purpose.

"I hope Dr. Mead and his friends can persuade Congress to make the necessary appropriation for the canal and storage, estimated at $50,000,000, but I have grave doubts of it being done."

PLANNING CONVENTION OF AMERICAN LEGION.

FIRST MEETING OF CALIFORNIA BRANCH IN SAN FRANCISCO OCTOBER 8 TO 10.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—The opening of the first State convention of the American Legion, which is to be held at the Palace Hotel from October 8 to 10, will find thousands of ex-service men from all parts of California on hand to attend the main business sessions and committee meetings. Edward Growley, chairman of the Convention Committee, has received word from seventy-two posts of the world war veterans' organization that large delegations will be sent to the San Francisco gathering.

It is announced that the total membership of the Legion in California has grown to 21,320. Approximately half of this membership has been enrolled since the intensive drive for recruits was launched recently coincidental with the visit of Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

Reports forwarded from all sections of the State indicate a record attendance at the convention, acattendance at the convention, according to Col. Henry G. Mathewson, State chairman of the organization. Col. Mathewson is taking an active part in the preparations for the gathering of California fighting men under the peace banner of the Legion. The convention will mark the first reunion of service men in this State.

In addition to the business session of the convention an elaborate entertainment programme is being planned. The festivities will be concluded with a ball at the Palace Hotel on the night of October 10. Sight-seeing trips and other features are being arranged for the visitors. The San Francisco convention and Tourists' League is co-operating in the work of preparing for the reception and entertainment of the service men, their families and friends. Many large excursion parties are to be run to this city from interior valley cities and towns.

The convention headquarters are humming with activity. A large staff of assistants has been gathered by Chairman Crowley to assist in the work of registering the names of delegates and assigning them to the various subcommittees.

Louis T. Grant, chairman of the advisory bureau operated in the Legion headquarters, reported that hundreds of cases pertaining to war risk insurance and other army matters have been handled within the past few days.

TAMPICO AMERICANS ASK FOR PROTECTION.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PREPARES PETITION TO GO TO WASHINGTON.

By W. D. Hornaday.
[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TAMPICO (Mex.) Sept. 27.—At a meeting of the American Chamber of Commerce of Tampico, the membership of which is largely composed of representatives of large oil corporations and other American concerns doing busniess here, steps were taken to make "proper representations to the United States government and public of that country in regard to undesirable conditions imposed upon Americans in Mexico and Tampico in particular, by improper procedure on the part of the United States government."

On motion of P. M. Longan a committee was appointed to compile data and gather information on the subject and formulate same in the shape of a document to be presented to the State Department at Washington, provided that, after it is drawn up, it meets with the unanimous approval of the membership of the Chamber of Commerce. This committee consists of Paul Adams, chairman; P. M. Longan, John I. Newell and Erby E. Swift.

It was suggested at the meeting that the following motto be adopted for the American Chamber of Commerce:

"The protection of its citizens is the surest mark of a nation's greatness. When the flag of a nation does not hold the persons of its citizens inviolable, it floats in vain."

It is stated that the particular object which the American Chamber of Commerce has in view is to secure protection of American citizens in the Tampico region from attacks by bandits.

SPECIAL RATES CANCELLED.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONTEREY (Mex.) Sept. 27.—An order was issued recently by the Department of Communications and Public Works of the Mexican government cancelling all special freight rates on the railroads of this country which had been granted to manufacturing and other industries.

During the regime of President Diaz the practice was established of encouraging the starting and development of industrial enterprises by granting them special rates on their shipments. It is asserted that the cancelling of these special rates will work a severe hardship upon many manufacturing plants. The American Chamber of Commerce in the City of Mexico has made formal protest against the order and an effort is being made to have it reconsidered.

STEEL BUYERS OBJECT TO PITTSBURGH BASE.

JUDGE GARY WARNS THAT PLURAL SYSTEM MEANS GREATEST SUIT IN HISTORY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Chicago and other Middle Western steel consuming concerns took a leading part before the Federal trade commission yesterday in the controversy between the steel producing industry and steel fabricating and manufacturing industries over abolition of the system of basing prices of raw steel throughout the United States upon a single basing point, at Pittsburgh.

The western consumers insist that other basing price points should be, at Chicago and Cleveland giving the steel consuming interests, the Western Association of Rolled Steel Consumers, the Birmingham Civic Association, the joint committee of civic organizations of Duluth, the Southern Association of Steel Fabricators and the State of Minnesota—have asked the Federal trade commission to assume jurisdiction and declare the single system in violation of the Clayton antitrust law and the Federal trade commission law as constituting illegal price discrimination and an "unfair method of competition in interstate commerce."

These interests have named as direct parties to the issue:

The United States Steel Corporation and four of its subsidiaries, the Illinois Steel Company, Carnegie Steel Company, Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, Minnesota Steel Company, the Inland Steel Company, the Interstate Iron and Steel Company, the Steel and Tube Company and the Gulf States Steel Company.

On request of the commission for expressions of opinion from all parties interested forty-three interests have submitted statements opposing the applications for abolition of the system, and thirty-six have answered favoring a change.

Should the commission decide to assume jurisdiction and adjudicate the long mooted question of a single or plural basing points, the case, according to Judge Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, would probably develop into "the greatest lawsuit in the history of the country."

Consumers in the Chicago producing district claim that the mills in that district produce steel cheaper than at any other point in the United States—cheaper than Pittsburgh—but that the consumers derive no benefit from this cheaper production cost because of the arbitrary adoption of the Pittsburgh price plus freight differential. One-fifth of all steel produced in the United States, they claim, is produced at Gary, Ind., Joliet, East Chicago and Indiana Harbor, none of which, they point out, is more than forty miles from Chicago, as against the 500-mile haul from Pittsburgh.

RAIL EARNINGS SHOW BIG LOSS.

August Net Receipts Lowest in Last Four Years.

Apparent Surplus will Disappear at Final Balancing.

Curtailment of Upkeep is Plan to Prevent Deficits.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The railroads in August, as shown by an advance forecast of the official returns, earned net $91,987,000, a loss of $36,000,000, as compared with last year, and the lowest August net since 1915.

The August net operating income for the past five years has been as follows:

1915, $82,200,000; 1916, $105,300,000; 1917, $101,400,000; 1918 $127,900,000; 1919, $91,987,000.

The government standard return for August is $86,918,000, so that, on the face of the returns, there is a surplus for the government of about $5,000,000 for the month.

But this apparent surplus, it is pointed out, will disappear when the year's accounts are finally balanced.

UPKEEP CURTAILED.

The Railroad Administration has been curtailing upkeep expenditures, rather than pile up a large monthly deficit. These expenditures will ultimately have to be made, either by the government or by the companies. If the government does not make up the deferred maintenance before the expiration of Federal control it is the understanding that the government will reimburse the companies in the final accounting.

The amount of deferred maintenance under government control has been estimated by railroad corporate engineers as high as $400,000,000.

PARCEL POST PROFITABLE.

Profits of the parcel post service will amount this year to $10,000,000, assistant Postmaster-General Koons reports to the House Post-office Expenditures Investigating Committee in reply to criticisms that have been made of the service.

He denies charges that patrons of the service had placed excessive valuations on packages shipped by parcel post in order to collect exorbitant damages for loss or destruction and claimed the percentage of loss and destruction claims had been relatively small for the express business. He also asserted that the government parcel post had been the only express business to stand up under war conditions without increased charges, the independent companies having lost money and refused business.

GEN. BLACK OPPOSES FOREIGNERS IN ARMY.

SAYS GERMANS LEARNED MILITARY SECRETS OF VALUE BEFORE THE WAR.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Germans got into the army some time before the outbreak of the war with Germany in order to learn the military secrets of the army, declared Gen. W. M. Black, chief of the Engineers Corps, yesterday, before the House Military Affairs Committee.

He said these Germans enlisted and were able to get some facts of value. They succeeded in getting back to Germany with their information. Others attempted it at the time the big army was being formed to fight Germany, but they were detected by the military authorities and were prevented from accomplishing their purpose.

Gen. Black recommended that no enlistments of aliens be permitted unless there accompanied such enlistment declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States and that coincident with such declaration steps be taken by the alien to put the declaration into effect.

Representative James of Michigan called attention to a letter received by Prof. Wm. Braum of the Columbia University from Col. T. J. Conrad of the American Army suggesting the service in the army for a period of German immigrants to this country that they might have the benefit of the education, experience and information such service would give. He asked Gen. Black whether he thought such aliens should be given the training proposed under plans suggested for universal military and vocational training. Gen. Black thought such aliens should be excluded from the benefits of this country's universal military training system if such should be adopted.

URGES PERMANENCY FOR SIGNAL CORPS.

GEN. SQUIERS OPPOSES WAR DEPARTMENT'S PLAN FOR SUBORDINATION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Because of the highly-technical character of its work and of the supreme importance of this work as demonstrated in the recent war the Signal Corps should be made a permanent corps of the army Maj.-Gen. George Squiers, Chief of the Signal Corps today told the House Military Affairs Committee.

He opposed the army reorganization plan of the War Department, which would subordinate the Signal Corps into a bureau, or eliminate it altogether. He claimed that the present plan of filling the Signal Corps by detail from other branches of the service was a failure.

"Had it not been for the number of fine experts in civil life whom we grabbed bodily at the start of the war with Germany and sent to France, Gen. Pershing would not have had the admittedly splendid telephone, telegraph and signal service that was set up and maintained for him," said Gen. Squiers.

RANK FOR ELIGIBLES.

Men who come into the Signal Corps, said Gen. Squiers, whether from the existing list of commissioned civilians who served in the recent war, or later, should be subject to an examination by a board of three officers chosen from the Signal Corps and this board should decide on rank as well as eligibility. He told of the splendid work done by weather experts selected from the weather bureau, and from the private telephone and telegraph companies who served with the army in France during the war.

"Our men were on the front line of battle, pressed against the barbed wire entanglements of the enemy," he said. "They fought as well as worked. Our casualties were second only to those of the infantry. Official figures show that we had casualties of fifty to the 1000, the infantry had 262 to the 1000."

SURVIVAL OF FITTEST.

Gen. Squiers favored a rigid elimination of unfit officers year by year, under some plan to be worked out by the committee, and then promotions by selection. He said that no army board could be obsolutely fair and just in making recommendations for promotion.

Favoring universal military service Gen. Squiers said that the period of training should be for six months. "It will take the boys called for the training from one to two months to recover from the mumps or measles, which they are bound to get on entering the camps," he said. "Under the six months period they will get only from four to five months actual experience."

CLAIM LOSS OF BEER IS CAUSE OF UNREST.

ANTI-PROHIBITIONISTS POINT TO OMAHA RIOT AND STRIKE IN STEEL INDUSTRY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—"It is our turn to be amused," says a statement issued by the anti-prohibitionists today on the war-time liquor ban issue.

"A few years ago in the United States Senate the Senior Senator of Illinois pointed to the awful example of East St. Louis, the direct result, he said, from the open saloon. Lawless men had entered the saloons, filled themselves with vile liquor and started out on a mission of destruction and murder. What does the Hon. Lawrence Y. Sherman say today? Last Sunday in Omaha we witnessed in even more violent form, a repetition of what took place in East St. Louis only on this occasion the mob took the Mayor of the city, almost murdered him and destroyed their magnificent Courthouse and Omaha is dry—bone dry—not only by Federal amendment but by action of the State Legislature. It has been dry for several years and if the mob which disgraced the name of Omaha was fed on vile whisky it was probably bootlegging whisky.

"If the anti-saloon league fears what conditions might have been in Pittsburgh and the steel cities under proper regulation let them go now to those cities and learn what is one of the great causes underlying this unrest. They will find that the men from the steel mills are talking more about the beer that the anti-saloon league has taken away from them than they are about any other grievance. If they wish further light on this subject let them read the editorial that recently appeared in the Chicago Tribune entitled 'Mike is Sore' which actually described conditions at Gary, Ind., and Waukegan, Ills. This dissatisfaction, due to the loss of beer, was so widespread that all of the Chicago papers, in fact, took notice of it."

ARMY SURPLUS CANDY TO THE EASTERN CITIES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4. — The Quartermaster-General has directed a partial distribution of the army surplus candy stock, about 1,300,000 pounds being distributed in the New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Atlanta zones to be sold in the army retail stores.

The prices at which the candies will be sold over the counter or delivered on mail order will be as follows:

Chocolates, assorted, half-pound packages, 15 cents; one-pound packages, 20 cents.

Caramels, assorted, half-pound packages, 15 cents; one-pound packages, 25 cents.

Stick, assorted, half-pound packages, 15 cents; pound packages, 25 cents.

Lemon drops, half-pound packages, 15 cents; pound packages, 25 cents.

The War Department says: "The department has additional stocks of these candies and if they sell readily in the stores to which they have been distributed the remaining surplus will be shipped promptly to the other retail stores maintained by the Quartermaster Corps throughout the country."

No One Remedy Is Applicable to Every Hair and Scalp Trouble

I base this statement on science and 6 years' study and research on conditions of the hair and scalp, says Prof. John H. Austin of Chicago, the country's most widely-known bacteriologist, hair and scalp specialist. Science has proved that different ailments of the hair and scalp require different treatments.

The particular trouble with which the hair or scalp is afflicted must be known before it can be intelligently treated. For example, one person may require an astringent, another a healing ointment, another an antiseptic for an itching scalp (which is caused by vegetable parasites), and another a treatment to relieve an excessively oily condition.

Prof. Austin says that using dandruff cures, tonics, mange cures, etc., without the proper advice, is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

With the aid of a powerful microscope Prof. Austin is able to quickly determine the exact cause of the trouble and will tell each one what they need to do in his or her particular case.

During the past 4 years Prof. Austin has made over 100,000 free microscopic examinations of the hair and scalp of Hamburger patrons, and has received hundreds of unsolicited testimonials.

Both men and women are invited to take advantage of a free microscopic examination of the hair and scalp. Women need not take down their hair. Office hours, 10 to 12 and 1 to 5. Private office. Second Floor, Hamburger's.—[Advertisement.

OIL PRODUCERS FILE PROTESTS.

Claim Acts of Carranza Violations of Law.

Show Rights to Their Property Incontestable.

Refuse to be Trapped Into a Confiscation Act.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—In formal representations filed with the State Department, the Association of Producers of Petroleum takes issue with recent declarations made in Mexico City by Leon Salinas, acting head of the Mexican Department of Industry and Commerce and chief of the oil bureau of that department, justifying the Carranza government's attitude on the confiscation question. Beside, refuting statements by Salinas, the petroleum producers again charge that the acts of the Carranza government, against which they complain, are in violation of the laws of Mexico itself and in contravention of the accepted laws of nations.

"It is admitted," says the statement, "that the question of proprietorship of coal lands in Mexico and the Spanish colonies was a subject of contention; but nowhere in the Spanish grants or subsequent ordinances of the Spanish Crown was petroleum treated as the King's patrimony or the property of the nation. If any contention did exist it was set at rest in Mexico by the mining law of 1884.

COMPLY WITH LAW.

"Before this date neither coal nor petroleum had been developed in Mexico at all; the law of 1884 simply cleared up a matter in question. From that time therefore, rights to coal and oil were acquired by Americans under this law and the laws to the same effect of 1892 and 1910. By the expenditure of vast amounts of money, American individuals and companies have given a value to these lands relying upon the laws of Mexico. Their tenure was never questioned; in fact, it was repeatedly ratified by acts of Mexican courts and the Mexican government has since 1912 continuously recognized rights so acquired under Mexican law by collecting taxes upon the lands and upon the product.

"The Mexican government's contention that a mere change in constitutional precept (appearing in a constitution which itself prohibits any retroactive legislation, which precept against retroactive effect was called to the attention of the Ambassador of the United States, with an assurance that no law or constitutional provision would take effect retroactively in advance of the presentation of his credentials in February, 1917,) may operate to divest foreigners of rights legally acquired, has been well answered by protests of your department. In harmony with such protests, the members of this association have taken a united stand and refused to be trapped by any of the exigencies of Mexican government decrees demanding the performance of acts, the effect of which would be to acquiesce in the confiscation and render the American protests nugatory.

STOPPED BY FORCE.

"Because we have refused to admit the loss of our properties, the Mexican government has seen fit to refuse us permission to drill on our lands until we perform such acts of acquiesence. The government has gone to the extent of sending armed forces to stop the drilling of a well on a property of a member of this association which member had, in harmony with your protests, refused to acquiesce in confiscation of his property. In other cases, the Mexican government has granted rights to third parties under mining claims provided for in decrees against which the American government has protested, and wells have been and are being drilled on such lands by such third parties.

"In reply to Secretary Salinas's statement we beg leave to call your attention to the fact that these acts, as is well known to you, are in open violation of the laws of Mexico under which our investment of time, money and energy was made, and violate the accepted laws of nations."

TIDAL WAVE AFFECTS OIL SHIPMENT PLANS.

ARANSAS PASS RAIL TERMINALS MUST ALL BE REHABILITATED NOW.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ARANSAS PASS (Tex.,) Sept. 27.—An inspection of the terminals and other property of the Aransas Harbor terminal Railway Company, which suffered heavy damage during the recent tropical storm, has just been made by L. S. Zimmerman of Baltimore, representing the home office of the company. Mr. Zimmerman will prepare and submit a complete report to the board of directors, showing what is necessary to be done to rehabilitate the terminals, wharves and docks of the company. Extensive preparations were being made to handle Mexican oil shipments through Port Aransas and Aransas Pass, but the storm will cause the carrying out of these plans to be deferred.

ALPINE, (Tex.,) Sept. 27.—It is planned by the War Department to lend financial assistance to the construction of an extension of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railroad from Alpine to the proposed crossing of the Rio Grande at a point five miles below Presidio. The proposed extension will be about eighty miles long and will be used primarily for military purposes, in transporting troops and supplies to that remote part of the Big Bend district, it is authoritatively stated. Engineers, representing the War Department and the railroad, are making a preliminary survey of the route.

The War Department also has under consideration the construction of a railroad from the river terminus of the proposed extension to Candelario, about fifty miles, and to Boquillas, about seventy-five miles. It is stated that the construction of the road from Alpine to the Rio Grande will be started as soon as the necessary building materials can be assembled.

REVIVE DEFUNCT GAS COMPANIES.

Promoters' Plans in Riverside County Approved.

State Board Also Dismisses Telephone Actions.

Commission Now Investigating State Wire Utilities.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—Resumption of gas service in the towns of Beaumont and Banning, Riverside county, was provided for by the State Railroad Commission here today when it approved plans of Joseph M. Berkeley to acquire properties of the defunct Riverside County Gas and Power Company, which had supplied these places. The properties are being held by the Union National Bank of Pasadena.

The new company will be known as the Twin Cities Gas Company and will have a capital stock of $25,000. It will issue $42,500 in bonds. All the stock and $15,000 of the bonds will go to the bank to release the Riverside properties. The bank will purchase the remainder of the bonds.

Dismissal of actions brought by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, Sacramento Valley Telephone Company, Home Telephone and Telegraph Company of Pasadena and the Ontario and Upland Telephone Company for an investigation of their rates under an order issued by Postmaster-General Burleson was announced by the State Railroad Commission here today.

Upon its own initiative the commission is investigating rates allowed wire utilities throughout the State by Postmaster-General Burleson and it was held that the actions referred to would be covered by this general investigation.

SEEKS GAS-RATE RISE.

A petition for increased rates, the amount of which was left to the commission, was filed with the State Railroad Commission here today by the Coast Valleys Gas and Electric Company, serving Salinas, Monterey, Pacific Grove and King City. The company said a rise in the manufacturing price of gas from 87 3-10 cents a thousand cubic feet in 1917 to $1.10 in 1919 necessitated the proposed increase.

BUILDING BIDS.

The International Harvester Company, through H. E. Daniels, local branch manager, is taking bids for additions to the building at Lawrence and Atlantic streets which will be occupied as the Los Angeles branch office. The building is 300 by 135 feet. The additions will be of steel and concrete construction.

HOTEL ADDITION.

John C. Austin, local architect, is preparing plans for an addition which will be built to the Virginia Hotel at Long Beach. It will be of reinforced concrete construction.

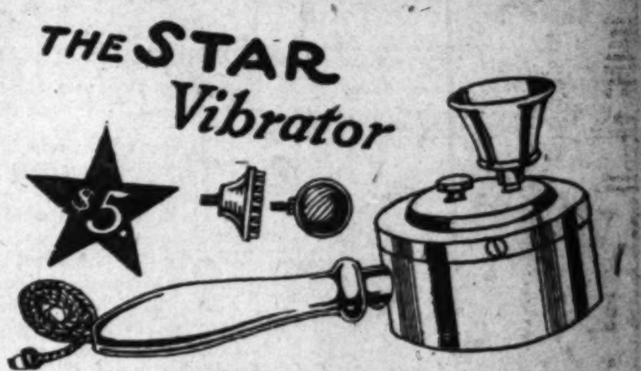
---an Extraordinary VIBRATOR at an Extraordinary Price

---Electrically Operated, Especially Designed for Use in the Home.



Heretofore the Vibrator for home use has been somewhat of a luxury, but now, with the introduction of this efficient STAR VIBRATOR at $5, every one can enjoy the advantages of this modern, scientific way to restore beauty and relieve pain. THE STAR VIBRATOR is a wonderfully well made instrument, easy to operate, definite in results and moderate in price. They are on sale at the Fourteen SUN DRUG CO. STORES.

Facial Massage

Everybody envies a woman with a clear complexion. It's not a gift—it can be acquired. For sallowness, wrinkles, flabby flesh, etc., there is nothing like exercise through vibration and massage. The use of the STAR VIBRATOR three or four times a week will produce marked improvement in a very short time.

Strengthens Tissue

The idea of a vibrator is localized exercise on the tissues and the skin. It stimulates the blood flow and goes below the surface, making the results natural and permanent. Excellent results have been obtained from the use of the STAR VIBRATOR to develop and strengthen tissues.

For Dandruff

Beautiful hair grows from a scalp that is healthy and free from dandruff. And the scalp must have exercise just as the rest of the body must have exercise to keep it healthy and in good condition. The STAR VIBRATOR increases the blood circulation and enables the pores of the skin to carry out their normal functions properly.

For the Nerves

How often we feel "keyed up" and would give anything if we could only relax and forget everything for a while. It is for just this feeling that the STAR VIBRATOR may be used. Sluggish circulation is stimulated and the tired muscles are exercised, and this allows the nerves to relax and the headache to disappear.

For Development

Some of us do not have the chance for much outdoor exercise. We all know that to develop the muscles of the body we must have it. This is just where we recommend the STAR VIBRATOR. Through vibratory massage you go below the surface and the increased circulation of the blood brings results that are natural and excellent for development.

For Indigestion

Indigestion is caused by the muscles of the stomach not performing their natural functions. It is to help these muscles and to help the blood circulate as it should that the STAR VIBRATOR may be used to excellent advantage.

For Rheumatism

Rheumatism will come and all of us have a taste of it once in a while. A vibratory massage with our STAR VIBRATOR is excellent to relieve the cramp and pain in those muscles all knotted up with rheumatism. It is exercise that keeps the body healthy and normal, and it is exercise that the STAR VIBRATOR supplies.

Corns Come Off Like Banana Peel

"Gets-It" Leaves Toe Smooth as Your Palm. Never Fails.

Ever peel off a banana skin? Well, that's the way "Gets-It" peels off any corn or callus. It's a picnic. Nothing else in the world will do it but "Gets-It" because of the new secret principle in the "Gets-It" formula. "Gets-It" does away forever with "contraptions," "wrappy" plasters, ointments that rub off, blood-letting knives and scissors that snip into the "quick." "Gets-It [illegible] the pain. It takes but a second or two to use "Gets-It." There's no [illegible] or trouble. It dries immediately. You put your stocking right back on again. Your corn will come off painlessly in one complete piece. That's common-sense. It never fails.

"2 Drops of 'Gets-It,' Good-bye Corns!"

"Gets-It," the only sure, guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, costs but a trifle at any drug store. M'f'd by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Cuticura Ointment Is So Good For The Skin

For eczemas, rashes, pimples, irritations, itchings, chafings, and dandruff on scalp, as well as for cuts, wounds, bruises and bites and stings of insects, Cuticura Ointment is truly wonderful. It is so soothing and healing, especially when assisted by Cuticura Soap. First bathe the affected parts with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Dry gently and anoint with Cuticura Ointment. This treatment is best on rising and retiring.

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c. Sold throughout the world. For sample each free address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. 24F, Malden, Mass." Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most, if not all, your dandruff will be gone, and three or four applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—[Advertisement.

Why Be Fat?

Become Slim This Summer

Have you heard about the new system for weight reduction?

You may eat and drink all you need. There is no tedious exercising. Take a little oil of korein at mealtimes and when retiring; also follow the simple, clear directions. A loss of weight, (en to sixty pounds (whatever you need to lose,) may be expected by this safe and pleasant system of fat reduction. At the druggist's get a small box of oil of korein capsules, and start at once. Be of normal size, with good figure and attractive appearance, agile, quick-witted, healthier and more efficient. By reducing weight now you are likely to avoid one or more diseases, heart weakness, sunstroke, apoplexy, etc., and to add years to your life. —[Advertisement.

Didn't Care What Happened

"I became a physical wreck from stomach trouble and was a fit subject only for the operating table or graveyard. Being discouraged, I gave way to drink, which made things worse. I got so I didn't care what happened, and wanted to die. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy has cured me of everything. Am now in fine condition and feel 25 years younger." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—[Advertisement.

To Have Curly, Wavy Hair Like 'Nature's Own'

Women who have trouble keeping their hair in curl, or of securing the desired wavy effect—and especially those who realise the harm that the hot iron does to the hair—will do well to try plain liquid silmerine. In no other way can they acquire such pretty waves and curls, having all the appearance of "Nature's own." And the hair, instead of being singed, ragged or dead looking, has such a lively lustre and wholesome beauty.

If one will get a bottle of liquid Silmerine at any drug store and follow the accompanying directions, she will be simply delighted with the result. This product is of course perfectly harmless and there is nothing sticky, greasy or unpleasant about it. The hair will be quite manageable, no matter in what fashion it is done up.—[Advertisement.

The Bright Outlook

SOBER second thought is assuming command of the fortress. The revised judgment of the American people is asserting itself.

There is a gradual welding of the elements that have heretofore made for social antagonism and class warfare.

Day by day the trend is toward a unification of the forces standing for national, industrial and moral progress.

The strike, the red flag, the seditious programme of the alien, are merely hazards to designate the course.

Looking from one narrow window the heavens seem overcast with clouds and the day discordant in its promises.

But throw up all the curtains and open wide the door and behold! God's pure air and warm sunshine stream in and refresh the uttermost corners of the house.

The gospel of the larger brotherhood is falling with amiable influence on the receptive mind of man.

It is not a brotherhood for upheaval and unrest, but one yielding frank and willing allegiance to the rule and reign of law—a brotherhood in which justice shall sit in the chief seat of the temple.

Through much tribulation men are attaining a better conception of one another—the employer is not a creature of horns and hoofs, neither is the employed a revolutionary firebrand.

As creeds are passing, so are lines of caste, of class, of service, until the forces which deny equality of opportunity are held completely in check.

There need be no barrier or curb for worthy ambition or helpful genius—even the selfish tenets of a labor union may not wholly suppress the natural initiative of the individual.

As men grow to more thoroughly understand one another so do they become more tolerant as well as more considerate—it becomes as easy to respect as to suspect.

In the industrial and commercial world the disposition of the toiler is to exact what he calls a living wage—that is, a wage in accordance with the advanced standards and cost of that living. This is to him the great problem.

On the part of the employer there has been a natural reluctance to accept the viewpoint of the other man without some argument or controversy. It meant chiefly another increase in the price of the product, another strain on the pocket—and, therefore, he had to be "shown."

But the hour of mutual understanding is near us. There is to be a co-operation in the larger and more magnanimous sense of the word. It is a co-operation which considers the desires and ambitions as well as the rights of others. There will be friendly counsel without either party carrying knife or torch.

In the full fruition of this idea it will not be necessary for men to fight or conspire to gain the comfort or luxuries which belong to well-directed labor. Neither will they be disposed to cudgel their brains for thought of fresh demands that might be made.

It will be the aim of the employer to make wages and conditions such as to attract and retain a contented, loyal and zealous group of employees. On his part the employee will indicate a wholesome interest in the prosperity and progress of the industry with which he is connected and in which he may expect to substantially share.

Even a soulless corporation will possess itself of the idea of determining not how little, but how much it can afford to give to those in its service. For their share the men will fulfill their tasks unshirkingly and by their suggestion and co-operation advance the methods and standards of the business. Sometimes an almost priceless idea is lost in the brain of a discontented employee.

The illness of the President may postpone or delay a conference which was pregnant with possibilities. It was at least an ambitious effort to bring representatives of labor and capital together under one hospitable roof. To some it seemed like a call to battle and to some it appeared that the representation did not in fact represent. But the plan was a worthy one and, as it develops, a clearer understanding between interests that are now disposed to hostility may be attained.

It must be accepted as a cardinal doctrine that every man is entitled to the disposal of the lawful labor of his own hands—that his right to remain out of a union is as assured as his right to go in and that he cannot be molested or threatened in the peaceful pursuit of a lawful livelihood. But he should be no more subject to force and influence to bring about his affiliation with a union than in joining a church. He should be the master of his own soul and of the service of his arms and brain.

These principles are accepted save by radicals and extremists. They are at least Americanisms, and as we take a larger place in the affairs of the world the more fixed and assured does our Americanism become. We are not afraid of great adventure and will carry our ideals far afield. Our government must be both a hope and an inspiration for the universe and to that end must reveal amity and co-operation in all the aisles of industry. There can be no class rule on the part of either capital or labor. It is a splendid omen that the voices which have urged class warfare are becoming stilled.

Acceptance of the great covenant is close at hand. Bickerings have been unfortunate, but sometimes illuminating. The American people have perhaps a better understanding of the scope and value of the document than they would otherwise have had. Now they are becoming decidedly insistent on its official ratification and the Senate is wearing itself down to a point where a vote can be taken. Of the form of that vote there is no longer serious doubt.

Adoption of the pact will ease the pathway of other great problems. America will be at once in position to command her full share of foreign trade and the status of her relations with Germany can be established. The situation in Mexico can be handled with authority and in such manner as to have the support and confidence of all other nations.

The world is still bearing arms, but is coming to parade rest. The forces that would destroy all government and violate all law are weakening. The processes of readjustment seem as sluggish as the movement of a glacier, but they are no less certain or irresistible.

God will yet give us a nice green earth on which men of hope and ambition will gain peace and control.

Cheer up, little children, Santa Claus is coming.

CIRCUS IS HERE TOMORROW

One big elephant and five gasoline engines now perform a job with the Carl Hagenbeck - Wallace show, which formerly required the services of seventy-five workmen. And the elephant and engines do the work in thirty minutes, while by the old method, one hour and twenty minutes was the average time consumed.

In this half hour the big canvas which forms the main tent of the show is unwound from its five "spools," spread on the ground, stakes driven and the canvas hoisted to position. Five gasoline engines pull in as many different directions, while old Zhum, the good-natured pachyderm, arrayed in heavy harness, draws the tall center poles to their places and leans his weight forward. The tent, with elephant power, rises slowly and majestically into place.

This is one of the sights which always attracts a crowd, and will be seen at Prager Park early tomorrow morning when the show arrives to give performances two days, Monday and Tuesday. In addition to his manual labor, Zhum is one of the cleverest actors of all the animals with the show.

A downtown ticket office has been established at the Barnes Music Company store, 231 South Broadway, where tickets may be purchased at the same prices as are charged at the show grounds.

CHANGE IN RAILROAD FARE IS IMMATERIAL.

TRAVEL TO SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA WILL NOT BE AFFECTED BY INCREASE.

The readjustment of railroad fares from the East to points in Southern California does not eliminate travel through the New Orleans gateway, according to a telegram received yesterday by F. J. Zeehandelar, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association from Edward Chambers of the Railroad Administration.

Railroad passenger fares are constructed on the basis of distance, Mr. Chambers stated in his telegram, making exceptions when required by the public interest. Following this rule fares between Chicago, St. Louis and other Ohio River cities, and territory from which fares naturally make over these gateways to California common points, will be higher through New Orleans than they will be over the direct route. But passengers may still purchase tickets by way of New Orleans at fares properly constructed.

A passenger from Chicago to Los Angeles via the shortline route travels 2212 miles, by way of New Orleans 2923 miles, and the administration is of the opinion that there is no reason to carry a passenger over the added 711 miles, at the short line fare. From the entire Atlantic seaboard and intermediate territory, in the southeast, short line fares will be applied via New Orleans. This means that short line fares will be applied in the future, as in the past, over the routes which carry the bulk of Southern California travel.

UNION LABOR IS DEFIANT OF LAW

Gompers Says His Men will Ignore Act of Congress.

Admits He Would Obey, but Would Give no Order.

Declares Anti-Strike Act will Breed Bolshevism.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—American workmen will not submit to compulsory arbitration or anti-strike laws even though held constitutional by the Supreme Court declared Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who appeared today before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee in opposition to inclusion of any such legislation in the railroad bill now being framed.

"I would obey such a law," said Gompers, when pressed for a personal statement on the subject. "But if asked by organized labor what to do in the matter I should remain silent—neither counseling obedience nor disobedience—advising only an appeal to the country."

"It is impossible to prevent men from quitting their work," continued Gompers. "Laws of such character tend to make lawbreakers. They breed defiance of law and Bolshevists."

NOT FOR PLUMB PLAN.

Mr. Gompers is not committed to the Plumb plan of sovietizing the railroads, but he asked the committee to excuse him from passing judgment on any plan connected with final disposition of the railroads. W. H. Doak, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, who appeared with Mr. Gompers before the committee also indicated lukewarmness for the Plumb plan by declaring that railroad union labor is not insisting on its adoption. He denied emphatically that union labor will strike to force through Congress the Plumb plan. He also stated there was general public misapprehension as to the amount of railroad labor wage increase during recent months, claiming it had been on the average about forty per cent.

WILL DEFY LAW.

Representative Webster of Washington forced from Mr. Gompers the statement that labor would not obey anti-strike laws against railroad employees or any other workers. Webster said he desired the information so as to know the position of the labor chief on constitutional law. For more than twenty minutes Mr. Gompers evaded answering directly the question of Mr. Webster as to what he would advise labor to do in case an anti-strike law was passed and held constitutional by the Supreme Court. Finally Mr. Gompers said:

"I think I should obey such a law but I am sure the workers would not, and you would have thousands of law breakers throughout the country."

"But you would as head of a great labor organization counsel them to obey such a law?" Mr. Webster persisted.

WOULD ADVISE APPEAL.

"No, sir," replied Mr. Gompers, "I would remain silent, counseling neither obedience nor diobedience, but would advise the American Federation of Labor to appeal to the country."

Asked what he meant by appealing to the country, the labor president said electing a Congress that would repeal the law. The questioning of Mr. Gompers by Mr. Webster grew heated at times, the former calling one question "unintelligible" and another "hypothetical" stating that he refused to consider the possibility of an anti-strike law.

After Mr. Gompers had answered several questions in his own way Mr. Webster said he was "still in the dark."

"Would you advise, encourage, or counsel men who look to you as their leader, to do an act in violation of the declared constitutional statute?" Mr. Webster asked.

"INVOLUNTARY SERVITUDE."

"I have said and do now repeat that it is impossible to prevent men from quitting their employment," was Mr. Gompers' answer this time. "No matter what law makes them lawbreakers, I can't conceive that the courts would declare a law constitutional that would make for involuntary servitude."

Mr. Webster explained that his questions were to determine the labor chief's attitude toward constitutional law and Mr. Gompers shot back that his work and his service was the answer.

Preceding the colloquy Mr. Gompers reiterated the statements of labor leaders that anti-strike and compulsory arbitration legislation breeds radicalism in labor circles.

"BREEDING BOLSHEVISM."

"Arbitration must be voluntary," he said, "and labor must always reserve its right to strike. Even discussion of such legislation is likely to bring serious consequences. You are breeding Bolshevism, that's what you are. You are giving the I.W.W. the means to undermine the regular, conservative element of the American Federation of Labor. Already the radicals are referring to this legislation nad saying to the workers 'that's what you get in return for your loyalty and patriotism.' The legislation is involuntary servitude and would be a reversion to the days before the Civil War.

"It is legislation intended to put the handcuffs on labor and tie them to their tasks by all the power of the Federal government. There must be voluntary arbitration or there shall be no arbitration at all."

AIR MESSENGER IN QUICK TRIP.

Flies to San Francisco and Back for Bank Here in the Same Day.

Emery H. Rogers, in a Curtiss Oriole airplane, with A. W. Vance as passenger, flew yesterday morning to San Francisco from Hollywood, delivered valuable securities to a steamship leaving for the Orient a few minutes before sailing time and then returned to Los Angeles, making the first one-day round trip between the two cities. The time for the nonstop flight to San Francisco was four hours and thirty-four minutes and four hours and eight minutes for the return trip, or a total of eight hours and forty-two minutes' flying time for the round trip.

Mr. Rogers carried a message from Mayor Snyder to Mayor Rolph. The trip was arranged by Vice-President Irving Hellman of the Hellman Bank, who communicated late on Friday with Mr. Rogers, who is manager of the Syd Chaplin Aircraft Corporation, when a cable was received from the Sumitomo Bank, Ltd., of Osaka, Japan, asking that securities be placed on the steamship leaving early Saturday. Mr. Rogers said he could make the trip and he started at daybreak yesterday.

COAST CITY MAYORS PLAN H.C.L. BOYCOTT.

WILL MEET IN SACRAMENTO TO TAKE ACTION TO REDUCE COST OF LIVING.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 4.—Mayors and leading officials of more than 100 Pacific Coast cities will meet in Sacramento and institute a general boycott against foods now selling at abnormal prices, if plans formulated today by Mayor Rolph of San Francisco and City Commissioner D. W. Carmichael of Sacramento materialize.

Rolph heartily indorsed Carmichael's plan for a housewives union here, but said that to be effective it should be Coast-wide.

The conference was held at the offices of Rolph in San Francisco and lasted for several hours during which plans were made to bring the heads of city governments together in a grand mass meeting to be held in the Assembly chamber of the Capitol Building here.

Mayor Baker of Portland has signified his desire to be a party to the boycott to reduce the high cost of living. Leading city officials in California, Oregon, Washington and possibly Arizona will be asked to attend the meeting here.

No date for the meeting at which the boycott will start has been set, but it will be published before the middle of the month.

PLANE KING'S SON IN WHIRLWIND ROMANCE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SEATTLE, Oct. 4.—He came, he saw, he conquered. W. E. Curtiss, who is the son of the famous airplane manufacturer and inventor and heir to a fortune said to be over $20,000,000, came to Seattle Wednesday. Thursday he saw Betty Wright, a chorus girl in the "Not Yet Marie" company. He was introduced to her the same day by Hazel Bayne, a member of the act. He conquered on Friday and the nuptials were celebrated by Rev. M. A. Matthews, at high noon. Within twenty-four hours of the time they had first met they were married. That's the story the couple and their friends tell.

Fast work, but, as members of the company point out, young Curtiss was an aviator in France with the Royal Flying Corps for thirty-seven months and used to quick action and Betty, who has been on the stage for five years, is a dainty dancer and quick on her feet. Curtiss, Sr., is a pioneer aviator inventor of the hydroplane and the foremost manufacturer of flying machines in the world. It was Curtiss, Sr., that built the NC-4, the monster airplane that was the first heavier-than-air craft to cross the Atlantic.

Young Curtiss, he is barely 21, was on his way to Los Angeles. Fate led him to the Northwest and Cupid directed him to the Orpheum.

The AMPICO may be obtained in the KNABE—"World's Best Piano"—in the artistic HAINES BROS. PIANO and in the sweet toned FRANKLIN at prices ranging from $775 up for uprights and $2000 to $3425 for grands. Terms. Your present piano or player will be accepted in exchange.

A Marvel of Science

—yet wonderfully HUMAN in its Qualities is the KNABE AMPICO Reproducing Piano.

TO attempt to describe in scientific or technical terms just what the AMPICO is, how it is constructed and what it does is like an attempt to reveal by dissection just how the mind of a genius functions, and how it evolves its masterpieces.

There is something in the KNABE AMPICO which transcends in its almost uncanny results the understanding even of the inventor whose genius gave it birth.

The KNABE AMPICO seems actually to possess a PERSONALITY—or, rather, a multitude of personalities—and to give forth not merely the notes struck by an artist in playing, but to impart his individuality in the minutest details of expression.

Combined within the KNABE AMPICO are the attributes of ALL the greatest artists of the age, whom you may hear in your own home even more perfectly than you could hear them on the concert stage.

Ampico Recitals Daily

We most cordially invite you to hear the KNABE AMPICO in our AMPICO room, that we may demonstrate how faithfully it duplicates the playing of the world's greatest artists.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash Poisons and Toxins from System Before Putting Food Into Stomach.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the alimentary canal before eating more food.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside bathing.—[Advertisement.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are even just a little hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength,) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone losing hearing or who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

REPORT WILSON LITTLE BETTER.

Slight Improvement Noted in White House Bulletin.

President Anxious to be at Work Chafes at Rest.

McAdoo on Way to New York, Daughters Remain.

President's condition." Mr. Wilson was in Washington yesterday.

"I was not summoned to the President's bedside," Mr. Wilson said. "I called up the White House and felt encouraged by what I was told. Of course, the President is very sick and one can not tell what the developments may be, but I am hoping that his recuperative powers will bring him through all right."

SPECIAL PRAYERS TODAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Bishop-Elect Charles S. Burch of the New York diocese of the Protestant Episcopal Church announced today that special prayers would be offered in all churches of the diocese tomorrow for the speedy recovery of President Wilson.

PROFESSES SYMPATHY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OXNARD, Oct. 4.—Sympathy for President Wilson in his illness was expressed today by Senator Johnson, who is en route to San Francisco from Los Angeles. Senator Johnson issued the following statement:

"I think I can understand the President's illness and I deeply sympathize with him. Few people realize the tremendous strain and the great fatigue of a trip such as he has recently taken. Even with every possible aid and comfort, it is a most difficult and nerve-wracking experience. The constant travel and continuous confinement from which, apparently, there is no escape; the receptions, meetings and the necessity for mental alertness and for the maintenance of complete equanimity in the face of any contingency, will generally break the nervous system of the very strongest.

"I can sincerely feel for the President in his present sickness and it is my hope that he may speedily and fully recover. He has, of course, in his illness the best wishes and the sympathy of all Americans."

PARIS DEEPLY CONCERNED.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Special prominence is given by all newspapers here to Washington dispatches relative to the illness of President Wilson.

The Echo de Paris says the President's illness "means the American Senate will be left to itself, which perhaps is a good thing, as the opposition, losing a counter-party, loses, if not some force, at least some of its violence."

"The eclipse of such a great factor," says the Journal, "is an event full of consequences, as no one can replace Mr. Wilson. His most intimate collaborators, Col. E. M. House and Secretary of State Robert Lansing, were in many points far from approving all the initiatives of their chief while in Paris."

McADOO LEAVES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—William McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, and son-in-law of the President, returned to New York this afternoon after having spent the night at the White House. He did not see the President until today and then only for a few minutes. Mrs. McAdoo will remain here as will the President's other daughters, Miss Margaret Wilson, and Mrs. Francis S. Sayre, who arrived here from Cambridge, Mass, last night.

Many more messages of regret and sympathy reached the White House today. There were also many callers, including members of the foreign diplomatic corps, Senators, and Representatives and public men including Associate Justice Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court.

Senators Smoot and King of Utah sent the President a letter inclosing copies of prayers for his recovery pronounced at the semiannual convention of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints in the Mormon Tabernacle at Salt Lake City.

FAVOR KEEPING VENTURA HEAD.

Friends Assert State School Needs Miss Morrison.

Resignation was Accepted After Investigation.

Disciplinary Action Against Girl Started Trouble.

A well-supported movement to bring about the reconsideration of the resignation of Miss Emily Morrison as the superintendent of the Ventura State School for Girls, and its acceptance by the board of trustees of that institution, has been started by Miss Morrison's friends in Southern California, it was learned here last night. Her resignation, and the details of events that led up to Miss Morrison's action, did not become generally known until Friday, when the various aspects of the situation were laid before the clubwomen interested in the school and the conditions there.

It was also learned by The Times yesterday, that the whole matter has been investigated by the State Board of Charities and Corrections. The board's report to the Governor may be placed in his hands in the next few days.

While none of the Los Angeles members of the board of trustees of the Ventura school could be reached yesterday, for their side of the matter, it was understood that Miss Morrison is still at the school and that some of the officials acquainted with the facts in the case have expressed their reluctance to lose her services. Miss Morrison took charge of the school following the resignation of Mrs. C. M. Weymann, and is said to have been instrumental in bringing about a number of reforms and improvements that met with hearty approval of the board of trustees and other State officials.

DISCIPLINED GIRL.

The resignation of Miss Morrison, it was learned yesterday, came about as the result of her action in disciplining an unruly girl who threatened to disrupt the school by screaming loudly and disturbing the other girls. A soft towel was used as a gag, it was charged. This method of control is said to be a violation of the State law.

That the girl told other girls she planned to "start something" and that Miss Morrison tried to control the girl by other means until she became unmanagable, were some of the claims made by the superintendant's friends. Her action, it is asserted, was made necessary by the fact that the "sound-proof" room, designed for just such emergencies, was not ready.

Miss Morrison's connection with the Ventura school was considered a fortunate thing for the institution, her appointment receiving an almost unanimous support of all officials and interested persons. Prior to coming to Ventura, Miss Morrison was the acting superintendent of the Sleighton Farm in Pennsylvania, and was widely known for her achievements in correctional institutions.

MAY GET NAVY BASE.

Daniels Now Able to Recommend Site Given by City Here.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Secretary Daniels of the Navy Department was much pleased today to receive a telegram from the Mayor of Los Angeles indicating that the city authorities had set in motion machinery to give the Federal government an additional fifty acres for the proposed submarine site. He advised Congressman Osborne that this action made it possible for him to make recommendations concerning Los Angeles in his annual report which must be completed by October 15.

After the conference with Secretary Daniels, Congressman Osborne expressed the opinion that the Los Angeles base would be recommended by the head of the Navy Department. Later he sent to Mayor Snyder and the president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce messages indicating that success is in sight.

MONKEY SKIN ROBES, CAT HATS, SAYS PARIS.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Monkey-skin robes and cat hats are the newest fad launched by leading dressmakers who are boosting the garment fashion for the coming winter.

Tremendous prices are asked for garments made of monkey skin and fashion creators are wondering where they will get monkeys to obtain the skins if the style becomes popular and there are big demands made for monkey skins. Leather-trimmed, tailor-made dresses, hats and coats were in evidence yesterday at the horse racing owing to cool weather.

Women who have purchased leather garments found trouble keeping them fresh, as they get dull and rusty looking after being worn automobiling. Consequently leading Rue de la Paix shops decided to open a sort of de luxe shining parlor, only instead of shining shoes, suits and coats will be cleaned for customers. Twenty dollars will be charged for cleaning skinned leather sets and $50 for coats.

At Biarritz chic males now wear monocles while bathing and strolling in beach bathing suits. Men who don't wear monocles at any other time put one in their eye during the bathing hour just before noon.

OPEN LIBRARY SCHOOL.

The Library School of the Los Angeles Public Library opens tomorrow. In honor of the event last year's class will entertain the new class at a tea from 3 to 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The faculty and heads of departments of the library have been invited.

MURDER SECRET TELLER SOUGHT.

May be Missing Husband of Younger McDonald Girl.

Police Learn He Left Home Here Three Weeks Ago.

Neighbors Tell of Hearing the Young Couple Quarrel.

William H. McNutt,
Slain Spokane capitalist.

Search for the mysterious informant, whose betrayal of the secrets of the murder of William H. McNutt, a wealthy Spokane real estate broker, caused the arrest of two sisters, Jewell Marie McDonald and Helen Fay McDonald-Wilkerson, in this city a few days ago and the arrest of their brother, Ted McDonald, in Fresno, yesterday, was continued by the Burns Detective Agency and officers from Central Police Station and the Sheriff's office yesterday. The police are also very eager to find William Wilkerson, husband of the younger sister, who, they believe, can furnish valuable information concerning the case and who may prove to be the unknown informant.

Information gathered by G. P. Pross, local manager of the Burns agency, shows that Wilkerson first married Jewell McDonald in 1912 and was divorced by her in 1916. Wilkerson is said to have married Helen Fay McDonald, the younger sister, in the same year.

From interviews with neighbors of the McDonald sisters, who lived in a little bungalow at 131B North Sichel street, it was learned yesterday that Wilkerson had not lived with his young wife for three weeks, though he visited the place several times after the separation. The mysterious informant first called the Burns Detective Agency by telephone a little more than two weeks ago. Before this time, the neighbors said, Wilkerson was heard quarreling with his young wife on numerous occasions.

McNutt was murdered in Spokane on the night of June 23, according to the Spokane police, and was buried on a ranch, forty-five miles from Spokane, early the next morning. The McDonalds moved into the Sichel-street bungalow on July 10, according to Mrs. James C. Keller, the landlady, who had a receipt for $15 signed by William Wilkerson.

Ten days after their occupancy of the house the older brother, Will, who is now being sought by the authorities, appeared at the house driving the big touring automobile which formerly belonged to McNutt. At that time the machine was put in a shed adjoining the house occupied by the McDonalds and aroused considerable comment among the neighbors, who could not understand why people in such circumstances as the McDonalds appeared to be could afford to keep a high-priced automobile. Will only appeared a few times. The younger brother, Ted McDonald, suddenly left the place about ten days ago, saying he was going to Arizona as he could not earn enough money at the Llewellyn Iron Works, where he was employed.

During their tenancy of the Sichel-street bungalow the two sisters appeared to the neighbors as quite religious girls. Several weeks ago, while a Pentecostal revival was being held in a tent on North Broadway, the two sisters attended the first meeting and were regular attendants thereafter, leading in singing and praying most devoutly. They also visited the home of Mrs. Keller almost daily to "borrow" her piano, which they played for several hours at a time, while they sang hymns. A woman missionary was also seen to visit the McDonald house several times.

On each occasion Jewell McDonald and Fay Wilkerson would reverently kneel and pray with the missionary in such a loud voice that neighbors could hear distinctly. Following these prayer meetings the younger sister would visit one of the neighbors to use the telephone and frequently emphasized her remarks with outbursts of profanity, it was said.

TED ARRESTED.

Ted McDonald, the younger brother, was arrested yesterday in Fresno at the Sperry Flour Mills by Inspector Greening, of that city. Walter William McDonald, a half-brother, who disappeared with Ted McDonald, was also taken into custody, but Chief of Police Truax stated that he is confident the half-brother has no connection with the case, as Walter stated he had worked at the Southern Pacific freight sheds in this city from last Christmas to July, and then went north and has not been in Spokane for a year and a half.

At the County Jail in Fresno, Ted McDonald admitted that he was at his sister's home in Spokane at the time the murder is said to have been committed. He denied having taken any part in the murder.

The local police believe that Ted McDonald was attempting to join his older brother, Will McDonald, who is now being sought. Chief of Police Truax of Fresno stated that a charge of murder had been placed against the prisoner, awaiting the arrival of an officer from Spokane, who is to take him north.

On motion of John L. Richardson, attorney for Jewell Marie McDonald and Helen Fay Wilkerson, a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of the defendants was continued yesterday by Judge Willis until 10 o'clock Thursday morning. The hearing of the two women was set for Wednesday in Justice Hinshaw's court, where they were arraigned on a fugitive complaint.

It is believed by Deputy District Attorney Becker and Mr. Richardson that the complaint for murder will arrive from Spokane by Thursday.

In the County Jail, where the women were taken they continued to regard their arrest as a joke, appearing in a cheerful and jovial mood at all times.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We Eat Too Much Meat Which Clogs Kidneys, Then the Back Hurts.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—[Advertisement.

SHOTS IN OAKLAND STRI

Efforts to Resume Car Service
Violence of Union Labor Mob.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OAKLAND, Oct. 4.—Three men have been shot, none fatally, and two more injured as the result of attempts to prevent the operation of a street car on the lines of the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways.

Two of the men were shot by Patrolman George Underwood, who fired into a crowd that had taken his riot club away from him and threatened to trample him to death. It is believed that the same bullet wounded both men. A. L. Kyle is the most seriously wounded, the bullet entering his back beneath his shoulder and coming out his throat. The bullet that struck F. B. Becker just penetrated the skin.

R. G. Theobald was seriously injured by a flying piece of gas pipe thrown at the armored car. Another man was treated for wounds inflicted by a club in the hands of a policeman.

The heavily armored car, filled with men armed with sawed-off shotguns and revolvers, made two trips from the Elmhurst car barn in an outlying district down Twelfth street to Broadway and then back Thirteenth street. The strike sympathizers placed autom

RIVERSIDE FAIR OPENS TUESDAY.

Entries Indicate Biggest Show of the Season.

Forty-two Acres of Canvas-Covered Pens.

Special Features Booked for Every Day.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, Oct. 4.—A canvas city covering forty-two acres, exclusive of space occupied by the race track and grand stand, has sprung up over night on the grounds of the Southern California Fair Association at Riverside, and the gates will open Tuesday morning on what promises to be the largest and most varied live-stock exhibit ever assembled in the south.

After doubling the space heretofore set aside for the live-stock exhibits, the management today found it necessary to rush more lumber to the grounds to provide additional stalls for the overflow.

With more than 300 entries, the goat show, it is conceded, will be the biggest ever held on earth. The live-stock sale, which will be in charge of an expert, opens Friday with an offering of the choicest stock to be found in California. Twenty-two head of Holsteins from the Corcoran ranch of George A. Smith & Son, and twenty-five head of Guernseys from Palo Alto are included in the exhibit and will be sold at auction.

Hogs, horses and goats will also be offered during the sale, which the management regards as the most valuable innovation so far introduced. The poultry show will be up to the standard of other years, and will share honors with the rabbit pens.

The general agricultural exhibit will be housed in a tent exceeding a city block in length. It will accommodate exhibits from three surrounding counties—San Bernardino, Orange and San Diego, which will compete for the liberal cash prize offered for county exhibits.

The truck and tractor show, auto show and art exhibit each require more space than ever before. Variety of interest is secured in such features as a naval exhibit from San Diego; forestry exhibit, showing methods of fighting fires and signalling by heliograph to distant mountain ranges; racing matinees, boxing bouts and one of the most extensive midways ever attached to an enterprise of this character.

A striking educational feature will be the demonstrations conducted by the farm bureau management, whose range of activities will include dairying, tree-pruning, and kindred work.

Tuesday, variously designated as March Field Day, Children's Day and Southern California Editorial Association Day, will be crowded full of events, the most spectacular of which will be two hours of aerial acrobatics by a half-dozen flyers. Tickets for more than 6000 school children have already been issued for the opening day.

San Bernardino will be represented in force on Wednesday, the Indian children from Sherman Institute will feature the events of Thursday, while Friday will be observed as Orange County Day. The big show will close Saturday night with what is confidently believed will be a record-breaking attendance. The products shown will afford the greatest variety that can be produced on any similar area on earth. They include cotton and dates, to say nothing of the wide variety of citrus and deciduous fruits and vegetables of every conceivable variety.

PREACHERS TALK ABOUT LEAGUES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EL CENTRO, Oct. 4.—Baseball vs. the League of Nations will be the main topics in El Centro churches Sunday evening.

Rev. Walter Reed, Baptist minister, White Sox fan, will preach a sermon on "Real Baseball or Who will Win."

Down the street, at the Methodist Church, Prof. Harry Warner will deliver a lecture on "The League of Nations."

Curious folks are wondering which will draw the largest audience.

STRIKE A FAILURE.

Fruit Workers Fail to Heed Mandate of Union.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Oct. 4.—Tulare county fruit packing-houses thus far have felt no effect from the strike order which was published by E. E. Bentley, the secretary of the Central California Fruit Workers' Union. Bentley issued a formal statement in which he declared that 500 men obeyed the order. Inquiry from packers now at work in Porterville, Lindsay and Exeter failed to show any defections from the forces of men engaged in any of those towns.

According to officials of the Packing-house Managers' Association they have already booked all the skilled labor that will be needed for the coming orange season. More packers are available than will be used, they say, and there are plenty of boxmakers and loaders.

REDLANDS CHEMIST IS HIGHLY HONORED.

WAR WORK RESULTED IN DISCOVERY OF GREATEST VALUE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Oct. 4.—Roger J. Williams, graduate of the University of Redlands, five years ago, received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the August convocation of the University of Chicago. His degree was taken in physiological chemistry and was awarded with magnum cum laude honor. This is the highest honor given in the department of chemistry.

Mr. Williams held the "Fleischmann" fellowship during the war and had the problem of finding how the yeast manufacturers could use the war cereals in the preparation of their product. The yeast plant did not take kindly to derivations from the orthodox barley malt diet. Williams found that one of the fundamental nutritional requirements of yeast was one of the little known "vitamines."

He discovered that yeast is remarkable indicator of the presence of vitamines, a discovery of the greatest importance to science.

How to Make a Gray Hair Remedy

Mrs. Mackie, the well-known New York actress, now a grandmother, and whose hair is still dark, recently made the following statement: "Gray, streaked or faded hair can be immediately turned black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by the use of the following simple remedy that you can make home:

"Merely get a box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in 4 oz. of distilled or rain water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for use come in each box. One box will last you for months.

"It is safe, does not rub off, is not sticky or greasy, and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray-haired person look many years younger."—[Advertisement.

DR. FOX WRITES NOVEL.

Dr. Daniel F. Fox, pastor of the First Congregational Church and one of the most popular ministers in Southern California, has returned from a long vacation, greatly improved in health. Dr. Fox spent most of his vacation at his summer home on Catalina Island, where he has been writing a novel. He completed the book just before his return, and will have it published under title of "The Monastery Man."

Dr. Fox is going to read part of his novel to his congregation and see what the church members think of it. The reading will begin at the First Congregational Church tomorrow evening, at the services beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The title of the first chapter, to be read tomorrow night, is "Quinn's Golden Text." The novel will be "continued" next Sunday evening.

GRIEF LEADS TO SUICIDE.

Brooding over the massacre by the Turks of his wife and two sons in Armenia and the rumors of further Turkish outrages against Armenians are believed by the relatives here of H. S. Pashgian, whose body was found in the ocean at Santa Monica yesterday, to have unbalanced his mind. His brother, M. S. Pashgian, a Pasadena merchant, went to Santa Monica today to make arrangements for the funeral. H. S. Pashgian had been in America about eight years. His family was massacred before he came to this country. He had lived alone in the northern part of the city for a number of years.

GETS TWO HOTELS.

W. X. Roach, a well-known Pasadena hotel man, more recently of Coronado, has bought the Pierpont Inn at Ventura and has leased the new Ojai Tavern at Ojai and will conduct both hotels, it was learned here today. Mr. Roach is planning to enlarge the Pierpont Inn. The tavern at Ojai is a new structure, now nearing completion. It will be opened November 1. Mr. Roach was formerly with the Linnard hotels and the Hotel del Coronado.

A large flock of turkey buzzards flew over Pasadena early this morning, coming from the north. They circled over the city and then flew off to the south. There were literally hundreds of the buzzards in the flock.

TO IMPROVE SERVICE.

Pacific Electric Announces Plan Effective in Sixty Days.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Oct. 4.—It will cost the Pacific Electric $25,000 to make the improvements planned in the line between this city and San Bernardino. The company plans to rebuild the line and remodel the car barns on Citrus avenue here so that the big trains from Los Angeles can be operated into and out of the city.

The company recently announced its intention of rebuilding the line so this could be done. Four of the eight trains that go to Los Angeles and come from there each day will be run direct into Redlands at the present time. Others will stop in San Bernardino and local cars will bring the passengers here.

It is understood that work on the improvements will be started at once and that in another sixty days the cars wil be operating on the new schedule.

USE WHITE LABOR.

Grape Growers Find Way to Rid Themselves of Japanese.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

DINUBA, Oct. 4.—An outstanding feature of the 1919 harvest of raisins, according to reports just made by the Valley Fruit Growers' Association, was the preponderance of white labor, the comparatively smaller number of Japanese employed, and the complete success of the organization in furnishing help and maintaining their free labor camps. A new early record for the association was made by placing all of the members' grapes on trays by September 15, despite heavy demand made for orchard labor to handle the very heavy peach crop. Through the housing arrangements which were made by the association and careful supervision of regional work, there was no shortage of labor at any time during the season, the report says.

COMMISSION TO HEAR CLAIMS OF COMPANY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, Oct. 4.—Petition of the Tulare Home Telephone and Telegraph Company for authority to raise their rates will be held before the Railroad Commission sitting here October 18, according to word from the official body to the corporation heads here. Messrs. Sanborn and Roehl of San Francisco will appear as the attorneys for the petitioners.

Manager G. C. Harris, who filed the petition, has based the request for a raise on the increase in wages of all employees, granted by the company voluntarily when the force remained on duty during the general telephone strike called on the Coast recently.

COMPANY TO BUILD NEW CANNING PLANT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Oct. 4.—Paul C. McAbee, head of the Porterville Canning Company, announced here that his company has secured a site for a plant which is to be placed in Reedley, that contracts had been signed for equipment and that a $100,000 plant will be ready for operation on the early peaches of next year. The property will be handled by the executive force of the local plant, with Hal Cousins, assistant here for the past year, as superintendent. The plant will have a capacity of 4000 to 5000 tons of fruit.

COUPLE RUN DOWN.

Ex-Policeman and Wife Hurled from Motorcycle by Auto Crash.

Struck from a tandem motorcycle at the intersection of the San Fernando Road and Lankershim boulevard, yesterday afternoon, by an automobile, believed to have been driven by F. W. Thomas of Chatsworth Park, David R. Camp, a former Los Angeles police officer, and his wife, of 1901 West Seventy-seventh street, were seriously injured and their motorcycle wrecked. Both were rushed in the Thomas automobile to a hospital in San Fernando.

According to the police who made an investigation of the accident, Camp was hurled from the front seat of the motorcycle a distance of twenty feet to the pavement and sustained injuries, which may prove fatal. He was treated for a fracture of the skull, a fractured jaw and a broken right knee. Mrs. Camp suffered several fractured ribs and possible internal injuries. No arrest was made.

HELD FOR KILLING.

Jury Finds Driver Was Speeding Auto When It Hit Woman.

Guy W. Wellbaum, of 1885 North El Molino avenue, Pasadena, driver of an automobile that struck and killed Miss Mildred Cox, 28 years of age, of Monrovia, near Sunset boulevard and North Broadway late Friday evening, was held responsible for the accident by a coroner's jury yesterday.

Wellbaum, according to the findings of the jury, was speeding at the time he struck the woman. He is being held in the City Jail on a charge of manslaughter. Police Detectives Leon and Williams are investigating the case. The inquest was held at the Bresee Brothers undertaking parlors.

SEEK MISSING GIRL.

A search of the city and near-by beach towns for Madeleine Rapellin, 16 years old, of 201 West Twenty-fourth street, missing from her home for the past week, was begun yesterday by detectives upon request of the girl's mother. According to Mrs. Rapellin the girl is weak minded and wandered away from home about a week ago. She was heard from at the home of a friend but again left before relatives could arrive.

WIFE IS RELEASED.

Court Rules Evidence Insufficient to Prove Murder Charge.

Mrs. Michelina Gentile, accused of the murder of her husband, Frank Gentile, was released yesterday by Judge Willis on a writ of habeas corpus, on the ground that the transcript of testimony as taken in justice court did not show a preponderance of evidence against her.

Gentile was killed at his home, 687 Moulton street, having been shot twice with a shotgun. Mrs. Gentile was held on circumstantial evidence, part of which was that her husband often accused her of trying to poison him.

CINCY COPS THIRD VICTORY.

Red Legs' Pitcher, Ring, is Too Crafty for White Sox Sluggers.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Cincinnati's red-hosed athletes put themselves one game nearer the world's championship today by trimming the White Sox, 2 to 0, in the fourth game of the world's greatest series. The Reds now have the advantage by a margin of three victories to one for the White Sox.

Absolute helplessness in the face of the stuff Jimmy Ring handed up to them was the cause of the downfall of the Gleasons. While everyone else is blaming Eddie Cicotte for losing the game because of his errors in the fifth inning it is fitting to call attention to the fact that Cicotte's pals could not have copped a victory in a thousand years because they were not hitting Ring.

PITCHES WELL.

Cicotte gave the lie to all the rumors that have had him relegated to the bushes because his arm was gone by pitching a sterling game which would have gone into extra innings if he had not gummed up the works himself by a pair of misplays in the fifth inning. Instead of being gone his arm was too good for [illegible] made a two-base wild throw that paved the way to his own defeat and followed it with a disastrous attempt to cut into a wild throw to the plate donating all the runs by which the Morans conquered.

It was unfortunate that Cicotte had to defeat himself but there was no chance for him to beat the Reds without a run and goodness knows how many innings it would have taken the Gleasons to count on Ring the way he was working them today.

IMPROVED NONE.

Cincinnati had just one chance to score off Cicotte and improved it by combing him for a couple of timely hits. The White Sox had four opportunities to count and improved none of them. The support that Ring got did not compare with that given his predecessors during this series except when the Gleasons threatened to score; then it was airtight. Cicotte's backing was perfect defensively.

Both hurlers were so completely masters of their opponents they required little assistance. The most of the swats were pop flies on both sides. Weaver pulled the best play for the Sox in the seventh inning when he stopped a nasty grounder from Duncan and pegged the runner out at first. Schalk closed the visitors' ninth with a brilliant capture of a foul fly, which he picked off the heads of the rooters in the front row of the boxes. The rest of the work done by the Gleasons defensively was routine stuff.

SOME CATCH.

Rath and Kopf made the two most difficult plays for the Reds and the former's capture of a Texas league fly by Weaver, back of first base cut some figure. Although Ring whiffed two members of the Sox-wrecking crew in that round Felsch peeled off a hit that would have scored Weaver if his tall fly had eluded Rath and the rest of the Reds who went after it.

Ring had the White Sox feeding out of his hands as the two hits and a scratch credited to them demonstrate. He was not as steady as Cicotte, giving three bases on balls and hitting two batsmen, while not a man of the visitors walked, but when he was in rough going, Ring was there or thereabouts every time.

SLUMP CONTINUES.

The Gleasons gave every indication of continuing the slump with which they were infected in Boston and up to date they have scored one run in four games by their own efforts. If they cannot recover the stride that carried them into the American League championship you may write your own ticket on their chances to cop four games in the post-season combat.

Outside of the fatal fifth inning three Reds reached first base and none of them went farther. The cards were stacked against Cicotte in the fifth and he failed to cut them. One was down when Duncan hit a sharp bounder, which squirted off Eddie's mitt a little way toward third. He recovered the ball in plenty of time to get his man, but nervously hurried the peg and shot it wide of first base. When Schalk recovered the stray pill Duncan was on second.

STOPPED AT THIRD.

Kopf hit a hard single to left. It was hit so sharply that Duncan had no chance to score, but stopped on third, when Jackson fielded the ball cleanly and winged it toward the plate. For some reason Cicotte tried to cut in on the play and with one hand merely deflected the ball just enough to keep Schalk from stopping it.

While they were chasing it Duncan scored and Kopf reached second. Neale then hit a medium boiled fly to left, which was good for two bases because Jackson was playing close in for him. Kopf raced home with the second run and the game was over. Capt. Collins disposed of the next two Reds with ease.

GANDIL POPPED.

The Sox ought to have counted in the second round. Jackson gave them a chance with a Texas league double to left before anybody was out. Felsch sacrificed, Mr. Joe to third and he was there when the side went out. Gandil popped a weak fly to Groh. Risberg walked and stole second and Schalk was passed intentionally filling the bases. Cicottee came within one ball of getting a pass, but was made to hit and rolled the side out.

Ring and Rath gave the Gleasons another chance in the third. The former hit Collins with one out and Weaver's roller advanced Eddie. Rath fumbled Jackson's bounder, but Felsch was soft for Groh in the pinch. Groh made a two base wild throw on an easy grounder from Leibold in the fifth. There was only one out when it happened, but there was nothing doing thereafter. They chased Nemo to death on Collins's grounder and Daubert disposed of Weaver without assistance. Schalk, first up in the seventh was hit by a pitched ball and was on first base when the side went out.

GRID RESULTS.

LONG BEACH, Oct. 4.—The University of Redlands eleven, conference football champions of 1918, were held to a 0-0 tie here this afternoon by the Keel Klub team of this city.

CLAREMONT, Oct. 4. — "Spud" Morrison's Santa High School lads held the Pomona College varsity to a 28-to-0 score on Alumni Field this afternoon. The Sage Hen touchdowns came mainly as the result of off-tackle bucks. Santa Ana put up a good scrap. The Blue and White warriors failed to show much, probably because U.S.C. and Occidental players were on the side-lines getting notes on the Hun formations.

Whittier State defeated San Bernardino High, 32 to 0 on the former's field yesterday afternoon. Paschal made two touchdowns and Tommy Combs three. The latter ran eighty yards from a fake formation for his first score and sixty-five for the second after receiving a forward pass.

The Occidental varsity staged a practice game with the "frosh" yesterday afternoon at Patterson Field, winning by a score of 16 to 6.

Pomona College beat the Santa Anas, 28 to 0.

Cicotte Fails in Second Attempt to Check National Champions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Cincinnati now needs but two more games to bring the world's championship flag to the banks of the Ohio. Chief Moran's red-legged National Leaguers today defeated the Chicago White Sox in the fourth game of the series, 2 to 0.

The path ahead of the American Leaguers is strewn with rocks and broken glass and sown with Canada thistles, in the view of followers of the game, for they must win four of the remaining games to win the bunting, and dare not lose two, and in the opinion of unprejudiced persons it ought to be very easy to drop a brace to a club going like the Reds have been.

SORE BLOW.

Today's defeat was a sore blow to the locals, for they had hoped that, as the Reds had won two straight games on their home grounds, the Sox would do likewise. The 3-to-0 win of the locals yesterday roused enthusiasm to a high pitch, and the attendance today, 34,363, heaviest of the series, attested the aspirations of the Chicagoans.

Eddie Cicotte, who was driven out of the box in the opening game at Cincinnati, where he suffered the most humiliating defeat of his career, elected to retrieve his renown today, but, while he held the Reds to five hits and issued no passes, two of these hits came in one inning, and he himself in that inning bunched two errors which proved costly.

The regular order of things brought Jim Ring into the pitcher's box for the Reds, but the fact that he allowed but three hits, which were as scattered as soda fountains in the Sahara, was somewhat marred by the fact that he passed three Sox batsmen on wide ones and hit two others.

The fielding back of him was nothing short of superb. Every Red was on tiptoe, vigorous, confident and aggressive. They brought down long, hard flies in a way to discourage all opposition, and fielded the ball with the greatest dash and brilliancy. This was particularly noticeable in the second and third innings, when it was a question whether the big right-hander would collide with the aviator who was performing above, or join the list of baseball idols which Garry Herrmann is offering his loyal following in Cincinnati. In the opinion of those who claim to be able to read the psychic reflexes of diamond athletes, that aviator will lead a lonesome life if he waits for J. Ring.

A COLD BLAST.

The day had been hot up to the very moment that the announcer announced with marked formality that Mister Nallin, Mister Quigley, Mister Evans and Mister Rigler would do the umpiring, but at that moment, as if someone had opened an ice box, there was a cold blast which remained throughout the rest of the day.

COAST LEAGUE'S BIGGEST SEASON

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

By all odds the most sensational season in the history of the Pacific Coast League will close this afternoon. The climax is in the form of a double-header between Los Angeles and Vernon, the clubs which have been locked so close for more than two months that hardly a razor edge of daylight could be seen between them.

Never before have two contending clubs battled each other into the last week and down to the last game of the season in this manner.

The history of the 1919 pennant race is the story on the one side of a team getting an unexpected lead early in the season while badly crippled, being overtaken but holding its own by sheer determination, and on the other side a club getting away to a bad start and gamely battling its way into a tie, then into the lead, only to drop back a few points, but through the wearing weeks remaining in position for the final thrust.

The steel of each club has been put to the test, albeit in different ways, and each has withstood the test, leaving those vagaries of baseball largely known as the "breaks" to decide the issue.

Elsewhere there were those disappointments which a certain percentage of the clubs in any league must experience every year. But the two southern clubs never faltered. There was one explosion after another as one or the other of the teams blew up, until the casualties totaled six, leaving the field to the Angels and Tigers.

FINE AT START.

Portland had a brilliant but inexperienced team at the start. It was weakened by desertions from the ranks. Seattle, the baby team of the league, experienced great travail while shedding its swaddling clothes. It was not expected to figure the first year.

San Francisco never stood out as a smooth-running machine, but a game, rough-and-tumble team. And, like Sacramento, the Seals suffered from periods of ineffectiveness in the box. The failure of Gardner and Prough automatically put Sacramento out of the race, although at the start the Solons shaped up as the best-balanced team in the league.

An injury to Hack Miller, retiring the big slugger for two-thirds of the season, proved a fatal blow to Oakland. Howard's young pitchers started with great promise, but could not keep the pace.

Salt Lake was a contender until a month ago, when the Bees stepped into a life-sized beating at the hands of Seattle. The Bees, a good ball team, did not have quite enough high-class pitching and as a whole seemed to lack cohesion.

Los Angeles, although without a regular third baseman, shortstop or second baseman, and with Boles, the first-string catcher, crippled, Bassler not having yet joined the club, piled up a big lead the first five months of the season.

Vernon, starting with only the framework of its present club, and opening in Salt Lake, where the early games are the next thing to death on visiting pitchers, got away to a losing start. The Tigers lost nine out of their first twelve games. When reinforcements began to arrive from the Quinn and Meusel deals the team took form and steadied and the real race started. The Angels held the lead for the first half of the season. Then the Tigers moved up alongside, and there they are today.

TWO GAMES ARE ON FOR TODAY.

The Angels and the Vernons will play two games this afternoon at Washington Park for the price of one admission. The first game will begin at 1:30 o'clock. Last night many Tiger rooters were already celebrating and hailing the Tigers as the pennant winners of 1919. They claim the race is all over but the shouting. Vernon needs but one of the two games to grab the flag.

TIGERS TAKE FIRST PLA

Final Battle for Coast League Penn on This Afternoon.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Vernon took another reef in the pennant, 3 to 1, yesterday, but the Angels are still hanging onto the edge of it by the skin of their teeth.

Therefore, no man can foretell what today will bring forth in addition to a large crowd, which is certain.

By winning yesterday the Tigers were rewarded for their long chase by going into first place. Two games remain of the 1919 season, and these will be played in one lump this afternoon. In order to cop the cheesecloth Los Angeles must win both games of this double-header, while the Tigers in order to nail the colors to the Vernon mast are required to win only one.

FAILURE TO HIT.

For the Angels it was another chapter in their thrilling serial entitled "Failure to Hit with Blokes on Bases." Time and again and ever and anon they had men on, with the exception of two innings, only to have some massive athlete evaporate at the plate. Not only did the Tigers outhit the Angels on general principles, but they outhit them with runners on, and in that way got them off.

While it is generally recognized that Los Angeles did not get its share of the breaks in the three games lost earlier, yesterday it was not a question of breaks, fractures, cuts or abrasions. Killefer's men received a straight licking. The Tigers simply took them out before 14,000 people and trounced them. Nobody left the park in doubt as to which team deserved to win. There was no cloud of doubt to fog up the intellects of those present.

VIC DID WELL.

Vic Aldridge pitched far from a shoddy game for the Angels, but nothing short of shutout pitching could have won for them yesterday.

Willie Mitchell blanked the Angels for six innings, but Essick's faith in the southpaw, which had been oozing out for some time, became a thing of the past when Ellis, first up in the seventh, stung him for a single. Rex Dawson, who had been warming up in the bull pen by degrees, went in and finished what Essick feared Mitchell couldn't do.

Vernon scored a run in the first, and won the game with two in the sixth. Los Angeles got its lonely in the eighth.

A TOUGH DAY.

Red Killefer had another tough day trying to figure out how to win a ball game, although he was not forced to overwork his hand waving pitchers to and from the box. This was well, as Red had been compelled to do so much waving that his hand was on the verge of a nervous breakdown due to overwork.

Mosquitos were again attracted to Red by the warm color of his hair, which gave off more heat due to friction caused by rapid thinking just under the roots. And while Red was thinking heavily the voracious insects were pecking away and trying to suck his brains out.

COMES EARLY.

The crowd began arriving early, and continued to flow in after the game started. The pressure on the grand stand was so great that it was necessary to close the hatches, and divert the flood of bugs into the bleachers. There was not an empty seat in the right-field bleachers. In fact, they were packed so tight that the pressure caused a negro fan to pop out of the bleachers into the field. With the pressure relieved, there were no more explosions of this sort.

Essick and Killefer and the two umps congregated around the home plate and held a conference just before the game. Their topic of conversation was not learned. Apparently they were not talking for publication. But two managers and a pair of umpires chewing the rag in front of a large concourse of bugs is an impressive sight. We suggest that these conferences be made a feature of all games.

RED BREAKS BAT.

Killefer opened the game by busting his bat on one of Mitchell's strong curves. The ball rolled to Beck so slowly after the bat broke that Killefer was able to beat it out. Red felt that the breaks at last were coming his way. Fabrique

COLLEGES MUST TRAIN OFFICERS

Baker Says They Only Can Provide War Leaders.

Tells of Government Plans for Future Instruction.

Will Develop Proficiency, not Militaristic Spirit.

President Scherer of Throop College of Technology has just received the authoritative statement of the Secretary of War regarding military training in the colleges as embodied in an address delivered by the secretary at Lehigh University. The secretary first reviews what he calls "the glorious part played by the colleges of this country in the recent struggle." He says that aside from the question of their resources their contribution in man power was one of the vital factors of the victory. He then adds:

"It is to the collegiate institutions of the nation that we must always turn to supply the material from which the commissioned officer personnel for our immense citizen armies must be developed. More than 50,000 of our army and navy officers in this war were drawn from 150 institutions of learning. And at the early training camps for officers there was evident one very striking fact, that the young men who had come from the schools, and colleges where military training had previously prevailed were the men who most quickly and readily become available for active and efficient service."

FUTURE TRAINING.

Turning to the future of military training in the nation at large, the secretary asserts that modern warfare demands of its officer-leaders a complex and scientific professional skill and a careful and thorough grounding in the fundamental principles upon which to build.

"As our armies will in all probability always be those of citizenry drawn to the colors when the emergency arises," he said, "it follows that the bulk of our officers must be also citizens who leave their civil pursuits and take up arms already trained in the habit of discipline and the principles of leadership. Discipline has been called the habit of quickness and precision in thought and action, combined with a regard for authority which enables one to play his part in the work of a team."

The Secretary declares without qualification that the nation must look to the colleges for men who are capable of development into officers to lead the citizen army.

In announcing the future policy of the War Department, Secretary Baker, after stating that the government will provide instructors and equipment to approved institutions, adds that students who attend the summer camps will in adition be provided with quarters and sustenance free of cost, and transportation from and to their homes.

NOW UNDER TRAINING.

There are today 265 institutions of all classes affiliated with the War Department, in which are enrolled approximately 100,000 students under military training. They are distributed over every State and Territory in the Union, except Alaska, but including Porto Rico and Hawaii. Throop College of Technology is one of the very few institutions having an engineer unit.

The Secretary is positive that such a system of military training for students will not develop a militaristic spirit in our people. He says:

"There is a wide gulf between military proficiency as typified by the American citizen trained to arms and confident of his proficiency, and that militaristic spirit which the Prussian system developed during the past four years."

He adds that "a college education which has left untouched the fitting of its subject for active service under his country's flag is and must be incomplete. In the R. O. T. C. the college finds this vital addition to its curriculum, and the student who pursues the training which it offers finds the opportunity for physical and mental development which completes his equipment for the battles of life."

NAVY EXAMINATIONS.

Civilians Offered Chance for Vacancies in Corps of Engineers.

Applications from engineers who are desirous of obtaining a commission in the United States Navy are being received by the Navy Department for examinations to be held in the near future, according to an official announcement received here yesterday. The examination is for the grade of assistant civil engineer, Corps of Civil Engineers, United States Navy, and those successfully passing the examination will be commissioned lieutenant, junior grade. It was stated that there are at least eighteen vacancies to be filled this year.

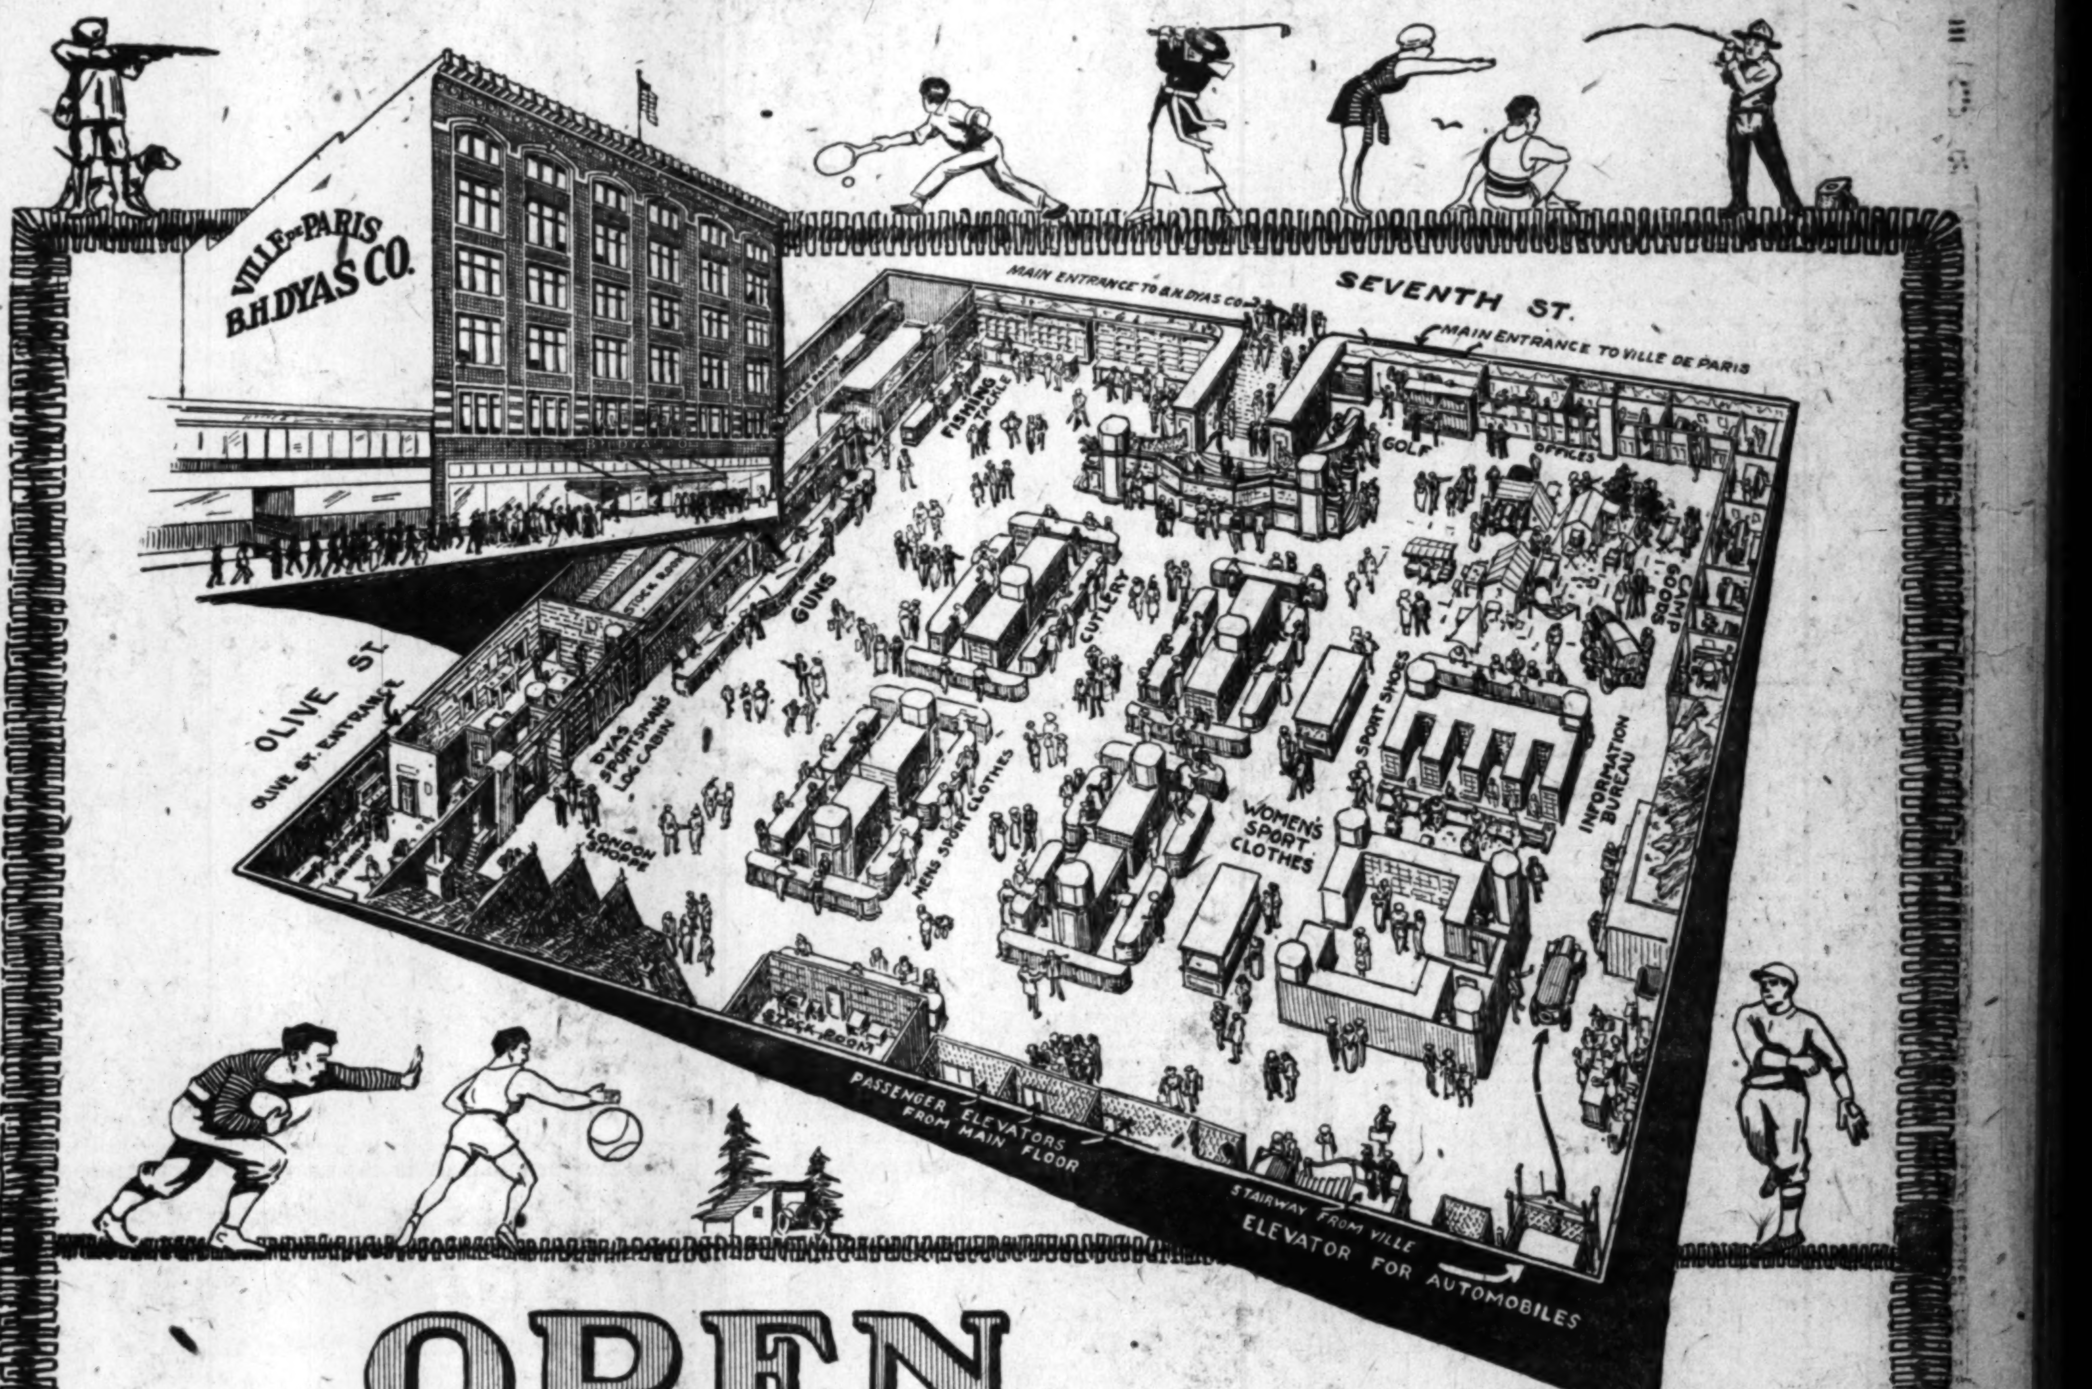
For the preliminary examination to determine a candidate's general fitness papers will be submitted direct to the bureau of yards and docks, Navy Department, examining board, Washington, D. C. Those candidates declared eligible after an examination of these papers will be ordered for final examination. Only those between the ages of 21 and 30 with college degrees and at least sixteen months professional experience in civil life are eligible. Age requirements and certain other points may be waived in favor of men who have served as officers in the navy during the war.

COMPEL JUSTICE TO SET DATE OF TRIAL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Oct. 4.—An affidavit mandamus in the Superior Court has been filed against Ralph F. Knotts, Justice of the Peace at Nipomo to compel him to proceed with the trial of Mike Mangin charged with a felony. The affidavit recites that Justice Knotts issued a warrant for the arrest of Mangin, and that on Mangin's motion the preliminary examination was indefinitely postponed and Margin was released on $500 bond.

The affidavit states that the prosecution is ready to proceed with the preliminary examination, and that the Justice has often been requested to set a time for the hearing, but that he has refused to do so.



OPEN
TOMORROW
October 6th
7th at Olive

This morning the sun will ascend for the last time over the old B. H. Dyas Co. store. Tomorrow its radiant rays will welcome you to the new store on 7th at Olive, and all the sunshine will not come from outside the walls

Meanwhile the new store is vibrant with life. Huge groups of men are working tirelessly to complete preparations for our welcoming all Los Angeles and Southern California tomorrow. Indeed, it is an inspiring picture. The atmosphere is radiant with enthusiastic co-operative endeavor.

Four separate entrances lead to this "most interesting store in all California." Two are inside—special elevators and a separate stairway—two street entrances, one on Seventh Street and one on Olive Street. Lets walk fourteen steps down Seventh and look around. As we go in, an immense aquarium, with many of the famous California Rainbow Trout swimming about, greets our vision. The many sizes and ages of the trout contained here make this display as interesting as it is attractive, for it enables one to note the development, markings and growth of this famous game fish through all the stages of its life.

We turn to the right and go through the greatly enlarged gun, fishing tackle and cutlery departments. We cannot help but pause to gaze at the wonderful collection of paintings and decorations of outdoor subjects that adorn the walls and pillars. A little further along a rustic log cabin entices us to investigate. Surrounding this rustic bit of nature we see many of California's famous game birds, animals and fish, mounted and arranged in a beautiful, realistic manner, and as we enter the cabin, we note many interesting, historical athletic relics, and a collection of sporting magazines and books that makes us want to stay awhile and enjoy the comforts of this attractive lodge. This log cabin will be used exclusively as a meeting and gathering place for the sporting fraternity. A stenographer will be in attendance at all times.

Over in one corner of the cabin we spy the entrance to the famous Dyas indoor rifle range.

Here the expert rifleman can keep in good shooting trim by shooting as often as he likes, and the beginner will be taught how to handle and take care of a gun.

We leave this interesting place and find ourselves in the Men's London Shoppe, a store within a store, where is kept the finest stock of men's imported outing apparel and furnishings in the West.

We find the Women's Sport Clothes department a beautiful and interesting place. Here we see arranged in attractive display the largest and most complete stock of women's sport and outing apparel in the West—an array of colors and styles the like of which we have never seen before.

Through the large Shoe department we come upon the Camp Goods department, which is arranged so that you may drive your automobile into it. Here your camping and outing equipment will be scientifically arranged and packed on to your machine by experts who know just how to prepare for an automobile outing. The Sportsmen's Information Bureau is a part of this department. Here you will be given information as to the best places to hunt and fish, how to get there and detailed data concerning accommodations. Pamphlets and road maps will be gladly given for the asking.

We have left no stones unturned, so that when we open our doors tomorrow we may offer service and not excuses, so that the many pleasant surprises awaiting the public here shall be mingled with as few disappointments as possible.

Strive as we may, something may be left undone during these busy days of preparation, but we feel confident in our friends' forbearance.

To all Los Angeles and Southern California we extend a hearty welcome to visit our new store. Tomorrow the time, Seventh at Olive the place. We the hosts—you the guests. COME.

RED CROSS WILL SHOW EXPENSES.

Central Committeeman Says Statement is Ready,

Activities in Devastated Area are Completed.

Plan Active Campaign Here Against Disease.

A detail statement showing how the American Red Cross Society spent the $400,000,000 contributed by the people of this country during the war will be issued within a short time, Dr. Livingston Ferrand, chairman of the Central Committee of the society, declared yesterday at a luncheon at the Alexandria Hotel. The statement is now on the press, he stated.

Dr. Ferrand gave a brief outline of what the society accomplished during the war, in Europe and the United States. He also discussed present and future plans. The work of assisting in the reconstruction of the devasated areas of France and Belgium, he said, is about completed, so far as the American society is concerned.

Poland and the Balkan countries have asked for further help, he stated, to safeguard the health of the population. The American commission in Paris is sending nurses, doctors and supplies to these countries, he said.

"A few weeks ago," Dr. Ferrand said, "Congress gave the Secretary of War authority to turn over to the Red Cross society in Paris, all the army surgical supplies in France, valued at $10,000,000. In addition to this the society already had supplies in France valued at $14,000,000, with the result we will only need $15,000,000 from the American people for the ensuing year, and this has been subscribed."

In the United States the society is making plans to conduct a fight against disease. This fight, which has been conducted in the past by local organizations, will now be carried on by the centralized Red Cross society. The national body and the local organizations will co-operate with the boards of health and other civic health societies.

"We are beginning to see that the activities of the Red Cross will help to this end," said Dr. Ferrand. "The biggest activity in this field which has already been undertaken is the nursing problem. The entire modern health movement depends upon the adequate development of the visiting nurse. We are doing the most important thing in taking that step first. We propose presently to take the next step, and then the next, and in every way in which it may be possible, to utilize the energy of our great organization to make our own country a better place to live in, and to save for future generations the benefits which our men fought and died to win."

Doctor Tells How to Detect Harmful Effects of Tobacco

Try These SIMPLE TESTS

New York: Dr. Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, says: Many men who smoke, chew or snuff incessantly and who are seemingly healthy are suffering from progressive organic ailments. Thousands of them would never have been afflicted had it not been for the use of tobacco, and thousands would soon get well if they would only stop the use of tobacco. The chief habit-forming principle of tobacco is nicotine, a deadly poison which, when absorbed by the sysem slowly affects the nerves, membranes, tissues and vital organs of the body. The harmful effect of tobacco varies and depends on circumstances. One will be afflicted with general debility, others with catarrh of the throat, indigestion, constipation, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of memory, lack of will power, mental confusion, etc. Others may suffer from heart disease, bronchial trouble, hardening of the arteries, tuberculosis, blindness or even cancer or the common affliction known as tobacco heart. If you use tobacco in any form you can easily detect the harmful effects by making the following simple tests: Read aloud one full page from a book. If, in the course of reading your voice becomes muffled, hoarse and indistinct, and you must frequently clear your throat, the chances are that your throat is affected by catarrh and it may be the beginning of more serious trouble. Next, in the morning before taking your usual smoke, walk up three flights of stairs at a regular pace, then stop. If you find that you are out of breath, your heart beat is forced, trembling or irregular, you may be a victim of functional or organic heart trouble. If you feel that you must smoke, chew or snuff to quiet your nerves, you are a slave to the tobacco habit, and are positively poisoning yourself with the deadly drug, nicotine. In either case you have just two alternatives—keep on with the self-poisoning process irrespective of the dangers and suffer the consequences, or give up the habit and escape the dangers. You can overcome the craving and stop the habit in a very short time by using the following inexpensive formula: Go to any drug store and ask for Nicotol tablets, take one tablet after each meal, and in a comparatively short time you will have no desire for tobacco, the craving will have left you. With the nicotine poison out of your system your general health will quickly improve.

Note—When asked about Nicotol tablets, one of our leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit; away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorised by the manufacturers to refund the money to every dissatisfied customer, and we would not permit the use of our name unless the remedy possessed unusual merit." Nicotol tablets are sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists, including all the Sun, the Logan and the Chambers drug stores.—[Advertisement.

ORPHANS' HOME ASKS CANNED FRUIT GIFTS.

WOMEN WORKERS START DRIVE FOR CONTRIBUTIONS IN AID OF LITTLE TOTS.

The directors of the Los Angeles Orphans' Home Society at El Centro and Waring streets have found that the supply of jelly, jam and canned vegetables contributed by friends of the tots last year has been eaten up and yesterday they issued an appeal for further contributions. Contributions will be received all day beginning at 9 o'clock on Monday and even the smallest are welcome.

The directors yesterday expressed their thanks to those who contributed in response to the last appeal and said that the children had thoroughly enjoyed the dainties provided by their friends. However, all that is left now is the empty jars and the home announces that these will be exchanged for full ones if anybody wishes to make that arrangement. Home-made canned fruit and vegetables are asked for particularly.

Mrs. Allan C. Balch is in charge of the drive and will be assisted on Monday by Mrs. Walter Lindley and Mrs. T. A. Eisen; on Tuesday by Mrs. Ernest A. Bryant, and Mrs. Eleanor Macauley; on Wednesday by Mrs. Perne Johnson and Mrs. Herman Kerckhoff; on Thursday by Mrs. Walter Fleet and Mrs. W. A. Kerckhoff; on Friday by Mrs. Charles Walton and Mrs. W. R. Hervey, and on Saturday by Mrs. J. W. Dawson and Mrs. Leona Montgomery.

URGES BRITISHERS TO BE AT RECEPTION.

ASKS ALL TO ATTEND WHEN VICTORIA CROSS HERO IS HONORED.

"The British organization of Southern California should get behind the movement to honor the holder of the Victoria Cross, Sergt. W. L. Rayfield," was the statement made yesterday by Attorney George S. Cooper, chairman of the committee that will handle the reception to be given Sergt. Rayfield on the night of November 8, at the Ebell Club House. Mr. Cooper leaves today for the East to interview witnesses in the Harry New murder case, but will return in time to make the address when the citation from King George is read by Consul C. White Mortimer.

"This is a time when all Britishers should get together to show their appreciation of a Los Angeles boy who has earned the highest honor which it is in the power of the British government to destow."

Ebell Club House will be draped with the flags of all the Allies and special prominence will be given to the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack. Judge Bledsoe and Marshall Stimson are to be invited as special representatives of America.

The Canadian Society, represented by H. Gearing, secretary, is to have charge of the decorations. The Sons of St. George, represented by H. White, will provide refreshments. Reginald B. Jones will represent the British Soldiers' Aid Society, Mrs. R. Gibson the Ulster Society and S. R. Mulford the Overseas Club.

BRIBE CASE WITNESS TO SERVE JAIL TERM.

NEGRO POLITICIAN LOSES HIS APPEAL FROM CONVICTION ON LIQUOR CHARGE.

George Brown, former negro politician, one of the star witnesses in the trial of Mayor Woodman, and now testifying in the trial of George Henderson, accused of offering a bribe for police protection, will have to serve a term of 180 days in the City Jail, according to a decision yesterday of Judge Craig, affirming judgment of the city Police Court.

Brown, who is accused jointly with Henderson, on the bribery charge, but was said to have been offered immunity, was convicted nearly a year ago for selling liquor illegally at 585 South Central avenue. He appealed the case, holding that a conflict in testimony did not justify a conviction. He was free on $1000 bail. According to the decision of Judge Craig he will now have to serve the 180 days in jail, no alternative of a fine being in the sentence.

equal to two spoonfuls of most other baking powders

Calumet Baking Powder has double the ordinary leavening strength. You use only one spoonful whereas you use two spoonfuls of most other brands. It is by far the most economical baking powder.

You pay about half the amount asked for high-priced brands. It goes twice as far as most other brands—so you save when you buy it—you save when you use it. But the most important economy of is in its superior quality. Regardless of price, Calumet is the highest grade baking powder made. It is absolutely pure in the can—in the baking. Leaves no harmful residue.

Calumet, wherever placed, always gives satisfaction. It is the largest selling brand of baking powder in the world and is made in the largest, cleanest, most up-to-date Baking Powder factory in existence.

The millions of housewives who use Calumet secure better bakings at a more economical cost than those who do not use it.

With all this evidence of superiority—with all this proof of better baking why should you be satisfied to stand the exorbitant expense of over priced powders or the faults and failings of cheap, inferior brands. You shouldn't—and you won't—after one Calumet bake-day trial.

Beware of This—

When you buy a pound can of Calumet, you get a full pound—16 ounces, no short weights. Some baking powders are now being put on the market in 12-ounce cans instead of pound cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it. Remember Calumet is not made by the Trust—not sold at Trust prices.

Valuable 72-Page Cook Book—Handsomely Illustrated In Colors

Every housewife should have it. The most comprehensive Cook Book ever issued. Hundreds of selected recipes formulated by eminent Chefs and Domestic Scientists. 276 Home Helps that show how to save work, time, money—how to have better things to eat at less cost. Send slip found in a can of Calumet and three 2-cent stamps to help cover expense of packing and mailing. No matter how many Cook Books you have, you need this valuable volume of household aids.

MAY TALK FROM HERE WITH MARS.

Local Conditions are Declared Exceptionally Favorable to Prof. Todd's Amazing Attempt to Heliograph the Dying Planet from Balloon Ten Miles High.

Los Angeles and southwestern astronomers and meteorologists are tremendously interested in balloon trip to be made 50,000 feet into the air, not improbably from this vicinity, by Prof. id Todd, the noted American astronomer, in order to signal to the planet Mars. Notable ex- ents and explorations of the upper air from balloons have been made here by the United Weather Bureau, when on July 30, 1913, it sent up from Avalon, Catalina Island, balloons recording instruments which reached the enormous and American record-breaking height of 643 meters or twenty and one-half miles. It was also at the famous Lowell Observatory at staff, Ariz., that the late Prof. Percival Lowell spent more than ten years solely studying the Mars, reaching his famous and much-debated conclusions that Mars is inhabited, that the ligent beings there are fighting for life, as their planet is a desert plain without oceans or other water bodies, all of which have evaporated.

habitants of Mars, which Prof. Lowell calls "a world a-thirst," have, therefore, the astronomer Lowell constructed a huge network of waterways or canals, connecting the centers of population north and with the polar caps, so that the melting snows will furnish the necessary water to crops and vege- to stave off the final drying up of the planet. Visiting astronomers to Mt. Wilson observatory, Pasa- have also taken photographs there of Mars from the sixty-inch telescope, and as soon as the new 100- telescope on Mt. Wilson is completely assembled and in working order it is expected that other spe- on Mars will visit Mt. Wilson and take other photographs and observations at this, the largest and equipped astronomical laboratory in the world. The staff of the observatory itself, though interested forms of astronomical research, are primarily concerned with studying the composition of the sun, and scientific world the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff has been considered the foremost Mars laboratory study of the most interesting of the world's planet neighbors. For though Mars is 35,000,000 miles away closest point, it has always possessed a great interest for astronomers, first, because the seasonal on Mars are not unlike those on the earth; second, because the planet, though one-fourth the size older than the earth, and this fact, says Prof. Lowell, would cause the "struggle for existence in planet's decreptitude and decay would tend to evolve intelligence to cope with circumstances growing rily more and more adverse."

E GREAT ATTEMPT.

Todd's attempt to commu- with Mars will take place , according to the announce- made by Leo Stevens, United balloon instructor at Fort , Neb. The balloon will be est ever made, and will be by Mr. Stevens, who is one pioneer balloonists of the Mr. Stevens says the bal- be divided into two com- , the upper one contain- gen gas and the lower one Prof. Todd, who has visited s of the world in order to Mars under the best possible , has, Mr. Stevens says, ed a special signalling ap- to use in his efforts to talk our own balloon experi- which we sent up balloons uments, but no passengers, , it was found that at a of ten miles from the earth a temperature recorded at below zero, and it may be in- that Prof. Todd at 50,000 feet experience a temperature of below zero. It is perfectly to stand this, however, in , with heating foods, etc. of course, grows thinner as upward, so that at the height lloons reached of twenty and miles we founded recorded, the balloons came down, a of air which might be poor vacuum. Therefore, at of 50,000 feet, Prof. Todd, as he of course knows and has planned, will need tanks of oxygen in order that he may breathe for any length of time.

"The experiment will be awaited with interest, and by making it Prof. Todd doubtless desires to escape the dust particles existing in the lower air; also reaching a region free of clouds and from radiation.

"These advantages, it must be remarked, are relatively of little importance compared to the limited facilities a balloon would afford for actual work of signalling. It would seem, all things considered, more practical to erect on the surface of the earth, where the air is free from moisture and dust (as, for example, in Southern California,) some sort of signalling apparatus of gigantic proportions. The public interest attending Prof. Todd's experiment will have a beneficial effect in that it will direct widespread attention to other worlds than ours."

WHAT MAY BE DONE.

What may the scientific world reasonably expect to result from the balloon trip of Prof. Todd? In the first place, the experiment indicates that Prof. Todd believes that there must be some foundation of truth for Dr. Lowell's long-derided belief that Mars was (and is) inhabited. In the second place, assuming the Martians, as Prof. Lowell did, to be more intelligent than the people of the earth, they would at once recognize regular and intelligently produced flashes as an attempt to say "Hello, Mars," and it is hoped, by astronomers, Mars will, with return flashes, likewise signal "Hello, earth." If such flashes do come they will be automatically received and observed at the Flagstaff (Ariz.) observatory, where Mars is always under observation and every change their registered and noted.

Prof. Lowell stated in lectures and book that the inhabitants of Mars were well worth knowing, because they are older, planetarily speaking, than we are, and, if one may carry out Prof. Lowell's conclusions, the inhabitants of Mars will certainly cry out for water when they signal back to the earth, for Mars is a desert, Prof. Lowell contended, and is slowly but surely drying up to the point where life will eventually be extinct—a fate, incidentally, which scientists also predict for the earth and other planets not already dead.

Speaking from the standpoint of an astronomer, Mars A. Baumgardt, in charge of the astronomical observatory of W. A. Clark, Jr., on West Adams street, said:

BY MIRRORS.

"I have read, with interest of Prof. Todd's balloon experiment, and I judge that he intends to attempt to signal to Mars by means of mirrors. Several years ago there was a report that signals or flashes had been received from Mars. Doubting not that such flashes had been actually seen, it was later generally believed that the flashes might have come from the reflection on large masses of ice or snow at the polar caps of Mars. I do not believe that Prof. Todd intends to try to do any actual telescopic studying of Mars, because he would gain nothing for this purpose by going 50,000 feet nearer Mars than the earth, and also, the instability of a swaying balloon would make any telescopic work impossible. A telescope such as Mr. Clark's six-

SANTA BARBARA WORSTS UNIONS.

San Francisco Laborite Bosses' Efforts to Shackle the Southern City, as an Indirect Blow at Free Los Angeles, Decisively Beaten.

The commercial interests of Santa Barbara, Montecito and all that section have just won a complete victory in their fight against efforts of San Francisco labor unions, represented by the San Francisco Building Trades Council, to force closed-shop rules upon the employers of the community.

The fight loomed up unexpectedly for the employers late in July, when a so-called Santa Barbara County Building Trades Council served notice that after August 15 closed-shop principles would be rigidly enforced. The notice came without any warning, industrial conditions in Santa Barbara and that locality having been peaceful for a long time. The employers investigated and discovered that San Francisco walking delegates and organizers had been there for some weeks attempting to stir up strife.

The employers called at meeting. Business men, representing every line of industry, attended. There were builders, grocers, clothiers, hotel men, automobile dealers, hardware merchants, dry goods merchants—in fact, every business in Santa Barbara had a representative at the meeting. They voted unanimously to organice all the employers of the community to meet the issue squarely.

NO SMALL ISSUE.

One of the leading merchants explained that it was not merely a question whether Santa Barbara carpenters and building trades employees were to force their respective employers to hire only union help, but also whether the employers of labor in general were to be used as instruments to coerce their nonunion men into unions; whether Santa Barbara was to permit the building up there of conditions similar to those which have for years made of San Francisco a hot-bed of strife, retarding its growth and robbing the citizens of privileges guaranteed them under the Constitution, or whether Santa Barbara should continue to follow the pathway to progress and large development blazed by Los Angeles.

Business men intimately acquainted with the conditions prevailing in each of these two centers of population gave a word-picture of the two cities, and those present went on record with almost unanimous vote in favor of the policies which mark Los Angeles as the great city of the Pacific Coast.

FIGHTING LOS ANGELES.

Employees, loyal to Santa Barbara, informed the employers that the fight, being centered upon Santa Barbara, by the San Francisco unions, headed by P. H. McCarty of the San Francisco Buildings Trades Council, was really only the first skirmish in a general attack against the freedom of the employers and the employees of Los Angeles. The announced union programme was:

"The unions propose to make Santa Barbara a closed-shop town and in that way dictate to the employer as to the materials he buys; we will refuse to handle any materials not bearing the union label. This will shut out Los Angeles materials, closing the Los Angeles market to Santa Barbara employers. When we capture Santa Barbara, we will move on to another community trading with Los Angeles, and so on, until Los Angeles will have no market for the disposal of what it manufactures. We propose to unionize the store clerks, the school teachers, the police; in fact, every line of activity."

ISSUE SQUARELY MET.

With such a warning in advance, the employers met his issue squarely. The closed shop was to go into effect August 15. On that date the employers notified the employees that thereafter the open-shop principle would prevail, and only those who were willing to work under the same rules that had formerly prevailed need return to their jobs.

Then Dr. Henry Pritchett and other prominent residents of Santa Barbara and Montecito invited both sides to the controversy into a mass meeting to explain their stands. The intense feeling which the closed shop demands has aroused caused the San Francisco union leaders to try to back-track. At the meeting union representatives read a statement in which they tried to make it appear that all they wanted was a so-called card shop, that they did not seek a closed shop at all. The employers' statement set forth their unswervering demand for an open shop, and made it clear that they would stand or fall on that issue.

The citizens' committee that arranged the mass meeting filed two weeks later a report which declared absolutely against the closed shop.

UNION AUTOCRACY.

"A more autocratic statement than that issued by the Building Trades Council it would be difficult to make," the report sets forth, and quotes: "'After August 15 the closed shop will be strictly enforced.' No government could issue a stricter command to its citizens than the mandate of the council to the citizens of Santa Barbara. The subsequent distinction that was drawn between a 'card town' and a 'closed

SPEEDING UP MOVEMENT FOR BIG CIVIC CENTER.

With Millions of Bonding Capacity Available, the City will Act This Week on Development Plan.

(See Illustration in Rotogravure Section.)

Acceleration of the movement for a definite civic center plan and steps toward acquiring at least the first units of the group of public buildings, of which Los Angeles is sadly in need, is the programme at the City Hall.

The Mayor recently sent to the City Council a message in which he urged the Council to create, by ordinance, a City Planning Commission, which body will have power to proceed, as speedily as is consistent with good judgment, in the selection of a general city plan, providing specifically for a Civic Center. Such a plan will then be submitted to the Council for adoption and thereafter the officials will determine what portion of the required buildings can be provided under the city's present bonding capacity. Later, the bond proposal therefor will be submitted to a vote of the people.

The Council's Public Welfare Committee at 1:30 p.m. next Thursday will consider this entire subject. It was taken up at the last committee meeting, but it was determined that all documents pertaining to the subject should be brought before the committee at the meeting next Thursday, when definite recommendations for the creation of the City Planning Commission will probably be adopted.

NEED PLAINLY SEEN.

With the old City Hall disintegrating, the public records at the mercy of fire and other elements of destruction, all city departments overcrowded in dismal quarters, and the city forced to rent rooms in outside buildings—with the war over and a disposition on all sides to return to normal conditions of building and expansion in all channels—city officials appear to be in full accord with the programme for advancement of the Civic Center idea. That this will meet with hearty support from the citizenship generally is a foregone conclusion. The lack of a Civic Center in Los Angeles has long been a sore spot. The disreputable municipal headquarters have been the cause of much chagrin among citizens who have done their utmost for the general advancement of the community. That San Francisco, which Los Angeles long ago outdistanced in population, has been able to provide a Civic Center that it may well be proud of, while Los Angeles has been forced to proceed with its old rookery as headquarters and without adequate Public Library quarters, police court and jail, and other municipal conveniences, is a subject which Los Angeles citizens have to discuss apologetically with visitors.

Mayor Snyder's plan is for immediate and concrete action. He believes a competent City Planning Commission, in view of the investigations conducted during a series of years, will be able to arrive at definite conclusions within a comparatively short time.

MAYOR'S VIEWS.

"The statement made to me by the City Auditor," said the Mayor yesterday, "shows that the city has an available bonding power for general purposes of $13,879,950. I believe a general city plan should be adopted as soon as practicable, and that we should use a good portion of this bonding capacity to provide for the first units of a Civic Center.

"Naturally, the buildings most immediately needed are a new City Hall, a police administrative building and City Jail and a municipal auditorium that will give us accommodations for large gatherings, superior to anything the city now possesses. I believe the citizens of Los Angeles are in a frame of mind such that they will indorse a programme of this sort and that it is high time it should be advanced."

Boyle Workman, president of the City Council, and chairman of the Public Welfare Committee, which will take up the subject next Thursday, said yesterday:

"I am in most hearty accord with the plan for immediate action to secure a Civic Center of which Los Angeles may be proud. I believe the city can afford to use a lood portion of its available bonding credit for this purpose, and I feel sure the other Councilmen are in sympathy with this plan."

While the city has $13,879,950 bonding capacity available for general purposes, it also has a bond capacity for revenue-producing public utilities of $32,295,597.46, so htat bonds issued for Civic Center purposes would not interfere with the issuance of bonds that might be required for desired public utility developments.

FORMER REPORT.

In view of the probability of action within a few days towards the creation of a City Planning Commission, it is interesting to recall the report made by the Civic Planning Committee appointed by former Mayor Woodman last year. This committee filed its report June 26. It says:

"The committee appointed by you to investigate and report on the matter of a location for a Civic Center for Los Angeles, after a series of sessions over a period of about four months, submits herewith its report:

"The Civic Center Committee, in undertaking the task for which it was appointed, developed the subject by calling upon the public to submit suggestions, for sites and arguments therefor.

"A series of meetings devoted entirely to the hearing of such plans were held in the work of this committee. The result was an accumulation of some fifteen or more plans or parts of plans that, from their nature, were readily grouped into three divisions:

"First, those centering around Temple Block.

"Second, those located at or near Pershing Square and Normal Hill Center.

"Third, those lying south of the present well-defined business district of the city.

PHASES ARE MANY.

"Consideration was also given to the matter of accessibility, as determined by the usual methods of transportation. So, too, was the question of available ground and valuations thereon. The matter of city and county consolidation was also borne in mind throughout our discussions, as was the matter of floor space required by the city departments, both present and future.

"Some discussion arose over the scope of the committee's work. Our report, in keeping with the consensus of opinion of the committee's members, is limited to consideration of the question of location. Details of arrangement, it is felt, should properly be left to some agency better equipped with time and funds necessary to a successful solution of the technical phase of the question. The recommendations of your committee, therefore, are as follows:

RECOMMENDATIONS.

"First. That the administration buildings, including a City Hall, a municipal utilities building, and possible a police administrative building should be located in that territory lying south of Temple street, east of Broadway and west of Main street, and to extend as far south as required to afford the necessary ground to accommodate such buildings and surroundings as will later be determined.

"Second: That the Public Library be located in accordance with the limits proposed by the library board, the particular site to be south of Fifth street, between Olive street and Grand avenue, the site to extend as far south on the block as is necessary and practical.

"Consideration was given the matter of a municipal auditorium, but no conclusions were reached."

CITY VOTE FOR NAVY LAND GIFT.

Special Election to be Held by Council on Proposed Base at Harbor.

It is probable that the City Council will call a special election late this month or the first part of November on the question of authorizing bonds for the purchase of fifty acres of land to be donated by the city to the Federal government as an addition to the proposed Submarine Base at the Los Angeles Harbor.

Mayor Snyder would like to have submitted to the people at the same time the matter of selecting a Board of Freeholders to frame a new city charter, but some of the members of the Council feel that no other issue should be submitted with the bond proposal, and the Mayor may have difficulty in winning the required number of votes in the Council to carry through his plans.

CIVIC CENTER IS URGED.

Urging that the members of the City Council take prompt action on the recommendation of Mayor Snyder, recently sent to the Council regarding the Civic Center, members of the special committee of the Drama League Center yesterday drafted resolutions which were forwarded to the president of the Council last night. These resolutions ask that the request or recommendation of the Mayor be given consideration at once.

Mrs. J. B. Stearns, who was in charge, declared that as soon as the City Council gives the Drama League an opportunity to go on record as favoring a particular site or a special plan, that this organization will be ready to act.

Those who were represented at the meeting yesterday besides the president were Mrs. B. C. Sutton, secretary; Dr. Walter Lindley, Dr. Allison Gaw, Charles Farwell Edson, Mrs. W. H. Anderson, and Mrs. Herman S. Darling.

Arrangements were made for holding the regular meeting of the Drama League center at the Little Theater on the evening of October 16. The league has secured the Little Theater for its regular meetings and yesterday committees were appointed for the ensuing year.

The chairmen of the several committees are Miss Evelyn Dowling, programme; Mrs. Gertrude F. Bagley, Drama League Players; Dr. Allison Gaw, study circle; Mrs. Eleanor B. Jones, education; Mrs. Rowena Blincoe, manuscript; Bert C. Smith, publicity; Miss Ella P. True, membership; Harry B. Crouch, finance; Mrs. B. C. Sutton, play-going; Mrs. Lillian B. Goldsmith, pageantry; Miss Caroline Abrams, volunteer plays announcements; Mrs. W. B. Burton, hospitality; Mrs. Fred S. Lang, clubs.

TO HOLD FOOD SHOW FOR RETAIL GROCERS.

DEMONSTRATION FOR TRADE PRODUCTS PLANNED THIS WEEK BY COMPANY.

For the purpose of acquainting the retail grocers of this city and the surrounding country with the merchandise that is manufactured and sold here the Los Angeles Grocery Company will hold a trade show at their assembly rooms, 1763 East Ninth street, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The exhibit will be in charge of C. R. Weber, the newly elected secretary of the company.

Th trade show, which in a sense is a small food show, for the benefit of the grocers, is being held for the purpose of demonstrating the advantages of the different food products. About twenty manufacturers have already retained booths and during the show will have experts on hand to explain the reason why their articles are better than any other made.

In addition to the food show an entertainment is being arranged for the grocers, and there will be several trade talks of general interest. The Boy Scouts will talk about rabbit culture on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

While the show is primarily intended for the grocers affiliated with the Unity Stores system, all grocers of Southern California are invited to attend.

Every druggist here, yes! your druggist and everybody's druggist has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist. A large family-sized bottle costs but a few cents and if you find it doesn't take the place of dangerous, salivating calomel, you have only to ask for your money back.

Take "Dodson's Liver Tone"

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable medicine, harmless to children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine, no sick headache, biliousness, ague, sour stomach or clogged bowels. Dodson's Liver Tone doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all next day like calomel.

Take a dose of calomel tonight and tomorrow you will feel sick, weak and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work!

Take "Dodson's Liver Tone"

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up with your head clear, your liver active, bowels clean, breath sweet and stomach regulated. You will feel cheerful and full of vigor and ready for a hard day's work.

You can eat anything afterwards without risk of salivating yourself or your children.

WILL TRY TO TALK WITH MARS BY SUN-FLASHES.

Remarkable Experiment of Prof. Todd May be Made from this District; Astronomers Much Interested.

inch glass on West Adams street was placed on an iron framework which rests on a concrete base deep in the ground, and no part of the frame touches the building on which it stands. The rumbling of wagons or cars in West Adams street would affect the stability of the telescope were it not so placed, so one may see from this that a moving balloon is impossible for any but signalling purposes."

Even those who decline to follow the conclusions of Prof. Lowell that his long observations of Mars proved the existence of intelligent life there, admit that the discoveries at Flagstaff aroused a lively interest among astronomers as to what is taking place on Mars, that interest taking its latest form in the balloon trip of Prof. Todd. The Encyclopedia Britannica declares that, apart from the soundness or unsoundness of his conclusions, the work of Prof. Lowell placed him at the head of all Mars authorities. Therefore, to the Flagstaff astronomer's views one must go for the latest information concerning Mars, with which Prof. Todd desires to make the first serious effort ever made from the earth to communicate with a planet, and to do which Prof. Todd will reach a point above the earth farther than man has gone up to this time.

THE DYING PLANET.

Based entirely on the facts he says he learned as the result of many years' study of Mars, Prof. Lowell gives a picture of life as it must be on that dying planet. The gravity there being three-eights of the earth, lead would weigh no more than a stone on the earth; falling bodies would sink with a graceful motion. Denizens of Mars, says Prof. Lowell, would be accustomed to this air, and, in fact, having known nothing else, would be able to get along very well, and perform feats of canal digging, for instance, which would be considered marvelous by earth dwellers.

Of the physical make-up of Mars itself, as presented by Prof. Lowell, the picture is a bleak one. He calls it a world-wide desert, a flat plain, all land, where fertile spots are the exception, and where water is everywhere scarce. He calls it a 'world athirst," where water is the one thing needful. But nature gives forth, so, says Prof. Lowell. "one line of salvation is open to it (Mars,) and that lies in the periodic unlocking of the remnant of water that each year gathers as snow and ice about the poles."

Prof. Lowell writes: "Thus, not only do the observations we have scanned lead us to the conclusion that at this moment Mars is inhabited, but they lead us to the further one that these denizens are of an order whose acquaintance would be worth the making. Whether we shall ever come to converse with them in any more instant way is a question upon which science at present has no data to decide. More important to us is the fact that they exist, made all the more interesting by their precedence of us in the path of evolution. Their presence certainly ousts us from any unique or self-centered position in the solar system, but so with the world did the Copernican system, the Ptolemaic, and the world survived this deposing change. So may man. To all who have a cosmoplanetary breadth of view it cannot but be pregnant to contemplate extra-mundane life and to realize that we have warrant for believing that such life now inhabits the planet Mars.

"A sadder interest attaches to such existence: that is, cosmically speaking, soon to pass away. To our eventual descendants life on Mars will no longer be something to scan and interpret. It will have lapsed beyond the hope of study or recall. Thus to us it takes on an added glamour from the fact that it has not long to last. For the process that brought it to its present pass must go on to the bitter end, until the last spark of Martian life goes out. The drying up of the planet is certain to proceed until its surface can support no life at all. Slowly, but surely time will snuff it out. When the last ember is extinguished the planet will roll a dead world through space, its evolutionary career forever ended."

MARS "CANALS."

The original discoveries of the long, regular straight lines on Mars were made in 1877 by the astronomer Schiaparelli, and the study of these markings taken up Prof. Lowell, who, after years of observation of them at his Arizona observatory declared in his book, "Mars as the Abode of Life" (MacMillan,) "there is nothing in the sky so profoundly impressive as these canals of Mars." He declares that they are absolutely straight, and some are 250 miles long, and one named the "Eumenides-Orcus" runs 3450 miles. As Mars is only 4220 miles through, a canal 3450 miles long, curves in its own plane, and thus may be likened to a straight line running from London, Eng., to Denver, Colo., or from Boston, Mass., to Bering Strait." Studying the bi-annual quickening and darkening of the lincsor canals, Prof. Lowell reached the point where he declared that the canals were filled with water from the melting polar snows, which, passing through the canals brought vegetation along the canals to life. Prof. Lowell also discovered immense double canals and oases or junctions. Canals to the number of 585 had been charted up to 1908.

Fighting for life as the inhabitants of Mars must be, according to Prof. Lowell and remembering that a ditch can be dug seven times easier on Mars than on earth, the construction of this immense network of canals was a task that could be and was accomplished. There were no mountains to dig through, and as an elephant on Mars could jump as easily as a gazelle, think what workers with intelligence could accomplish in their desperate fight for water! The oases are some seventy-five miles across, giving sufficient space for living and the means to live, and these may well be the cities of Mars.

PROF. TODD'S CAREER.

Prof. David Todd, who plans to make the balloon trip to study Mars has been director of the Amherst (Mass.) College observatory since 1881, and has been at various times in charge of government astronomical expeditions to Tripoli, Barbary, Hussia, and to the Andes to study eclipses, and was chief of the Mars expedition to the Andes in 1907. He is a member of all of the leading astronomical societies of the world, and is regarded as a sound conservative scientist, given only to publishing his discoveries and making no unsound conclusion therefrom. Prof. Percival Lowell was a brother of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, the astronomers of which university, incidentally, never agreed with Prof. Lowell's Mars conclusions. Prof. Lowell always declared that he made no surmises in stating that the lines he saw on Mars were the result of intelligent construction, but the facts themselves lead to no other conclusion than that Mars was inhabited. Prof. Lowell, who was a man of independent means, endowed his observatory at Flagstaff, and his Mars work is being carried on there by Dr. V. M. Slipher and other scientists who were Prof. Lowell's associates.

Birth Certificates Show it Holds Best Record in New Population.

The population of Los Angeles is increasing rapidly, according to figures given by Henry Sief, registrar of births and deaths, yesterday. They show that 807 birth certificates were filed in the local office during the month of September and more are expected in tomorrow's mail. This is the largest number of certificates ever filed in one month in the history of the office, the next highest month having been August, 1914, when a total of 761 certificates was filed.

While the births are so greatly exceeding records, the death list is less than 10 per cent. per thousand, figuring on a basis of a 600,000 population for this city.

KILLED BOY SHOOTING LOVER, WOMAN HELD.

When Concha Burruel shot four times at Francisco Mesa, her sweetheart, one of the bullets struck the man on the bridge of the nose and then hit Nicholas Rodriquez, a boy, on the side of the head and killed him, according to testimony yesterday in Justice Henshaw's court. The woman was held to answer for manslaughter, after Deputy District Attorney Randall introduced testimony to show that she feared her sweetheart and shot at him first. Mesa was only slightly hurt.

CONSTANT ERUPTION. The eruption of Mauna Loa in Hawaii is merely a curtain-raiser for the eruption of Johnson in California. The Johnson managers trust it will not be permitted to detract in any wise from the big show.

A MISNOMER. If the League for the Preservation of American Independence would turn its attention and energy toward the deportation of Russian agitators of Bolshevism instead of knocking the great covenant it would be living up more truly to its impressive title.

THERE IS A RAISIN. The raisin growers of California expect to receive about five million dollars more this season than they did for last year's crop. The announcement of what a handful of raisins would do to a bottle of near-beer or a jug of cider has made a bull market.

THE SHORN BARD. William Howard Taft amiably describes Gabriele D'Annunzio as "the madcap poet," but from recent pictures it doesn't seem possible for the Italian to be classed as a bard. How can there be an Italian poet with a dome as bald as a casaba?

SWEETNESS. With so many sweet things running around loose in this latitude it should be no hardship to reduce the sugar ration and take a slam at the profiteer. Sugar invites a lot of physical ailments, anyhow, and, according to some eminent gentlemen, the world would be the better off without it—not sweeter, but better.

A POOR DOCTOR. When you ask for People's Panacea and it happens to be out of stock any druggist will assure you that he has something just as good—and, b'gosh! he'll prove it. But what sort of a prescription does Dr. Hiram Johnson put up or offer to take the place of the great covenant? He says it is no good because there is too much sanguinarium Canadensis or something in it. But what does he furnish as a substitute? Will he let the patient die and then hold a post mortem?

FOR MORE HOMES. Timely is the action of the Chamber of Commerce in appointing a special committee to stimulate the "build-now" movement in Los Angeles. One of this city's immediate requirements is the construction of many more new homes to meet the demands of the constantly-growing population. During the war there was a practical cessation of home-building here, but the influx of newcomers from other parts of the United States did not stop. Nor is there any sign that it will fall off. On the contrary, railroad men and others are advising Los Angeles to expect an increased movement in this direction from beyond the Rockies this winter. This is a happy condition, but it entails a duty on the city, which is to provide more residences.

Investors who put their money into buildings in Los Angeles are sure of a good return. The Chamber of Commerce finds the demand for home accommodations here unprecedented. This is a happy state of affairs which will be made more delightful by bringing the supply up to the demand. As fast as homes are erected here new tenants can be found for them. But the residences are not going up as quickly as they should and therefore the chamber committee finds a field before it of specially valuable work.

THE COUNTRY FAIR. This is the time of the year when the county fair is in all its glory. Ventura, this county's rich and beautiful neighbor on the north, recently held its annual exhibition and now Orange county to the south is rejoicing in a similar display. Both counties have had good crops and the exhibitions afford wonderful proof of the fertility of the soil and the intelligent labor bestowed on its cultivation. If the I.W.W.'s, the Bolshevists and others who are urging the overturning of government had their way there would be none of these fairs, none of this friendly competition among neighbors, none of this display of the fruits of careful work. The anarchists are trying to make the people believe that they can live without work and enjoy the fruits of the soil without cultivating the ground. Their leaders, of course, know how ridiculous this doctrine is, but they have to spread it among the ignorant masses or else they would be unable to gain disciples who keep them supplied with money by paying fees and buying books and propagandist literature.

But the country fairs will be held long after I.W.W. doctrine is dead and buried. There is something eternally youthful about them; they change, but never die. They bring neighbors together in brotherly conference and friendly competition and, in this part of the world at any rate, are clean, wholesome exhibitions of undoubted educational and social value and with amusement features often attached which add to their attractiveness.

A TYPE OF MIND.

THIS man Foster, who was chosen by Samuel Gompers to organize and conduct the strike fiasco among the steel workers of America, may best be catalogued as "a type of mind."

He represents and is perhaps a concrete example of a type that has been immemorially existent in the human race. There were Fosters among the sons of Abraham; they were on the heels of Confucius and all the other great teachers; they stood in the market place of Athens and called Socrates a liar to his face.

They have always been in the world, and it is not to be expected that the world will ever be without them.

These Fosters have paraded under many names and many titles. But, they have undergone no change whatever when viewed collectively as a type of mind. As they shifted from one side of the world to the other, from one nation to another, they were called by whatever word it was that best fitted their actions and the doctrines they preached.

But the William Z. Foster of 6000 years ago in Mesopotamia was one and the same man, exactly, that the William Z. Foster, American, is today.

Even as some weapon common to all peoples over the whole face of the earth, like the arrow, for example, can be traced back against the most ancient and most impenetrable wall of history, so can the Foster type of mind be traced.

It is the type of mind of the irreconcilable—that warped and distorted type that is vicious by nature and that appears to have been permitted to exist for the same inscrutable reason that a viper is permitted to exist.

It is a mind that feeds on hate and envy, and that distorts the seven deadly sins into virtues. It has never spent an hour throughout all the countless ages of the world in creation or construction. On the contrary, its every effort has been aimed, always, at destruction.

It is, withal, a type of mind that has ever been impotent. It has never yet been able to retard one single step of the world's progress.

It is a type of mind not even to be feared so long as the world remains alert and awake.

II.

IN THESE times, the Foster type of mind parades under the title of "Syndicalism." Now, you will find many ponderous books written on this subject. You will find that many men whose brains have become tortured and twisted have produced arguments to prove that syndicalism is exactly the thing the world needs to make it ideal.

The men who wrote these books, as well as those who continue to write them, are of that species of insane genius to which belonged the unfortunate madman, Nietzsche. Not that Nietzsche bothered much about men's bodies, but he had the same distorted vision that the syndicalist has. Karl Marx was also of this species, and Haeckel and even Darwin.

And if you read the books that syndicalists write they are almost certain to confuse you unless you have been trained mentally to know the fundamentals of life, or you are blessed with an instinct that is equally strong to save you.

Fortunately, man has been blessed with an instinct that saves him from the fatal errors of syndicalism. It is the same as his instinct of self-preservation. And it is this that makes the Foster type of mind impotent.

The safety of society lies in the fact that no destructionist or group of destructionists has yet been able, since the beginning of time, to marshal followings sufficiently large to tear down that which had been builded; to destroy that which had been created.

The mad dream of a world in chaos has never appealed to any but madmen or to those who would use madmen for their own sinister ends.

The human race in its nature is but a reflection of the voiceless universe which God has created around the human race. That universe is builded and maintained primarily upon order. Order is its body and its soul. Before the mind of man the most impressive thing of all is always the law of order.

The syndicalist is absolutely opposed to order, although it is the thing that he preaches. Hence, the syndicalist and the I.W.W. and the plainly avowed anarchist are all of the same kidney.

They are the sinister and diabolical foes of human peace and happiness.

III.

LET anyone put to a man of the Foster type of mind the plain question: "What is it you desire to accomplish?" and he will receive an admirably plain and blunt answer.

This type of mind asserts that it is its desire to absolutely revolutionize society as it is at present constituted.

Nothing that exists now shall be permitted to continue. The rules and regulations that civilization has set up for its own preservation, and by means of which it has endured, and by the abandonment of which it would perish—these rules and regulations are to be abolished wholly and absolutely.

Property rights are to be wiped out; no man shall own even the roof over his head against any other man; there is to be no authority; every man shall be his own master to do as he pleases with whatever he sees; there shall be no marriage nor giving in marriage; children shall be the children not of parents but of whoever is willing to feed them; and God is to be driven out.

These are the broad and general principles laid down by the Foster type of mind in substitution for the principles that are at present in force.

And, of course, it is easy to see that the average man will balk at the proposition. And why does he balk?

The reasons are many; but fundamentally and primarily they are these: That Nature, or God, or whatever it be that anyone may care to call it, has implanted in the heart of man a single love for his own offspring; that every natural man will protect his offspring against all comers; that when he has acquired a shelter and a protection for himself and his brood he will defend it; that it is inherent in him to claim the fruits of his own labor and toil; that he will not share his harvest with the drone and the idler.

This is why the Foster type of mind has made no headway in the world through the ages. And it is why it never can make any headway.

IV.

IT IS difficult to believe in the sincerity of this Foster fellow and those of his type. If we could think them to be sincere we could render them a certain respect, misguided though we knew them to be.

But, it is inconceivable that a man born in America, who has breathed the air of America and who has been taught in its public schools, can be sincere in this propaganda of rot and drivel in which he is engaged.

No wonder that Foster and his ilk concentrate their efforts at organizing followings among the ignorant emigrants of Southern Europe—a spot on earth where the light of intelligence has been so inconceivably slow to penetrate.

Can you imagine for one minute that the average American, no matter how poor or how lowly he may be, would listen to the proposition that these syndicalists are making?

Their proposition is that all the industries of the country shall be taken over by the workers in those industries; that the locomotive engineers and firemen, the brakemen, switchmen, oilers, car-wipers and station agents of the railroads shall own and operate the railroads; that the banks shall be operated by the janitors; the foundries by the molders and peddlers; the ships by the sailors; the stores by the salespeople; the dog fights by the dogs.

Sit down and think for two minutes only as to what this arrangement would mean if put into effect.

Can anything that any imbecile has ever said be compared to it? Is it entitled to anywhere near the respect that one might give to the utterances of the inmates of insane asylums?

V.

CERTAINLY William Z. Foster is not sincere. Nor are they sincere who are associated with him in this crazy thing. Foster is a fakir; he is a bluffer. He is a walking delegate both by nature and by profession. His aim in life is to live without work, and this is the way he takes to achieve his aim.

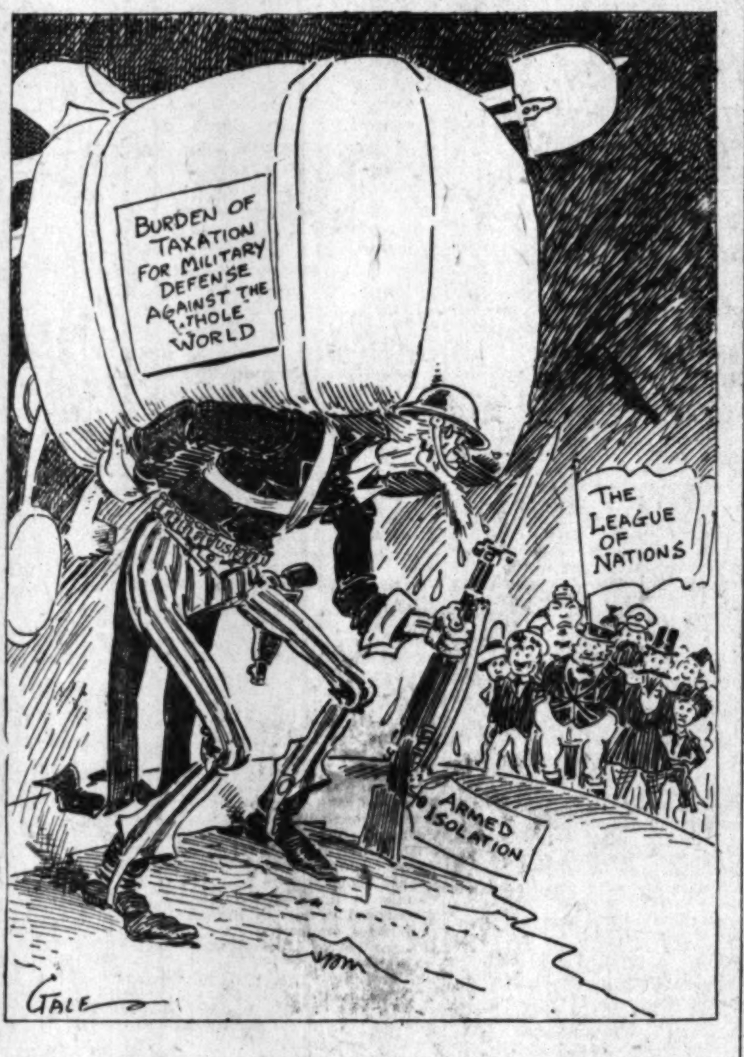
He knows very well that the proposition he makes stands no more chance to be accepted than a proposition to the average man to feed his children to the hogs would be accepted. Foster can read and write, and he can reason. He is no man's fool.

But, so long as he can organize ignorant aliens into mobs, get them shot down by the police and the militia; so long as he can create unrest and disorder, he is sure of a job at good pay and generous traveling expenses.

That's his type of mind, and there have always been men like him—men who could prosper and be happy if they would work, but who are constitutionally opposed to work.

And it is to this type of mind that Sam Gompers turns when he feels the necessity of a bulging membership for his American Federation of Labor. It is to these dangerous and conscienceless disturbers and mischief-makers that Gompers turns.

"America Must Stand Alone"
—Senator Johnson.



BURDEN OF TAXATION FOR MILITARY DEFENSE AGAINST THE WHOLE WORLD
THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS
ARMED ISOLATION
GALE

PROSPECTS FOR THE LEAGUE. Distinct progress towards ratification of the peace treaty by the Senate was made during the week that has just ended. The first real test of the strength of the opposing forces came with the vote on the Fall amendments, when every faction of the opposition had been propitiated in order that all the votes against the treaty or the League of Nations might be cast en bloc. But instead of securing the majority of which they had boasted the opposition forces were able to muster but thirty negative votes.

Taking this vote as a criterion, the treaty will be ratified by the Senate without amendment and with only interpretive reservations which will not necessitate resubmission to the Peace Conference. As predicted by The Times from the beginning many Senators who objected to some particular section of the treaty have reached the sound opinion that it is better to ratify and trust to future action of the League of Nations to remedy the alleged defects than to permit opposition to a part to defeat the whole.

It was a week of disaster for the "Battalion of Death." They have been hoping for the defeat of the entire treaty. Senators Reed and Johnson have taken the position that the covenant of the League of Nations and the peace treaty with Germany are so inextricably intermingled that the one cannot be rejected without destroying the other. They would reject the present treaty in toto and make a separate treaty in a conference with Germany, to which our allies would not be invited. Such a course meets with the enthusiastic approval of the Sinn Fein and pro-German elements in the country, but it fails to arouse even moderate enthusiasm among the unhyphenated Americans.

While many points of the opposition are cleverly camouflaged, the undeniable fact remains that, should the treaty be rejected as Reed, Knox and Johnson desire, every city in Germany would be illuminated and the rejoicing would be almost as great as over the successes of the first days of the German drive against the British forces in Flanders in the spring of 1918. The Sinn Feiners in this country and in Ireland would assert that it was beaten because there was no declaration for the independent Irish republic. The Bolsheviki would attribute its defeat to the growth of radicalism. Our country would find itself in opposition to our present allies and our only friends in Europe would be Germany and Russia. Such is the prospect that a defeat of the treaty offers, a prospect the opposition never paints but that, nevertheless, exists. That the heart of the great American republic is true to its blood brothers of the great war is clearly demonstrated by the fact that there are but seven members of the "Battalion of Death" in the Senate. The per cent. in the country at large is probably even less.

When Senator Reed ventured outside his own State to speak against the treaty he was greeted by a torrent, not of applause, but of over-ripe hen fruit. Senator Johnson spoke in San Francisco and Los Angeles to full houses; but it is doubtful if he won a single new convert to the opposition to the league. All the elements that are opposing the treaty from radical, pro-German and Sinn Fein motives attended his meetings and were noisy in their applause; but those who read the list of his reception committee printed in the public press were impressed most by the number of German names or names of those whose sympathies were pro-German during the was permeated with Teutonism. And, of Los Angeles from Max von Imbsen down was permeated with Teutonism. And, of course, these German friends of ours are opposed to the ratification of the treaty because they think it is too hard on Germany.

Mr. Taft said Friday that the opposition to the peace treaty, including the League of Nations covenant, has separated into small factions and that all danger of an amendment to the treaty has passed. He said that the amendments offered by Senator Johnson and others of the "Battalion of Death," as he calls the "irreconcilables," are plainly intended to defeat the treaty itself, that their adoption would have been equivalent to a national disaster, but that they are all certain of defeat. In referring to the effect of amendments Mr. Taft said:

> The majority of the Senate appreciates the fact that if the treaty is amended the amendment must be submitted not only to the nations associated with us in the war, but to Germany. And Germany would not accept any amendments, because Germany would like to see us left out of the treaty settlement. The nations associated with us would accept no amendments because they would endanger their contract with Germany. The result would be a failure on our part to participate in the treaty. That would make it necessary for us to have an unconditional peace with Germany or negotiate a peace with Germany. In either case we would lose the enormous advantage in trade reparations and shipping which were exacted from Germany in the treaty and which those nations which ratify the treaty will enjoy.

But while the "Battalion of Death" has been definitely disposed of, the conviction has grown that it will be impossible to secure enough votes to ratify the treaty without mild reservations. Mr. Taft says that such reservations will not be objectionable if due care is taken that none of the proposed reservations changes the terms of the treaty in any respect. A number of Democratic Senators notified Mr. Hitchcock during the week that he must not expect the ratification of the treaty without mild reservations. If the President should insist upon that he might precipitate a deadlock. While he may regard the treaty as written superior to one containing the reservations which the Republican leaders suggest, he, too, must remember that the best must not be permitted to become an enemy of the good.

Prospects for early ratification are growing brighter daily. Strong pressure is being brought upon the Senate by the business interests of the country to act upon the treaty without needless delay. There is a demand that speeches shall be limited and that all other Senate business shall be sidetracked until final action is taken. Unless a deadlock develops through the refusal of the administration to accept interpretive reservations the treaty should be ratified within a fortnight.

By a vote of more than seven to one the treaty was ratified by the lower house of the French chamber during the week. As there is no opposition in the French Senate formal ratification may be expected shortly by the French government. The action of France robs the opposition of the argument that Great Britain is the only country to whom the treaty is acceptable. The attitude of the "Battalion of Death" in this country is reflected by that of D'Annunzio and his followers in Fiume. Each party is seeking to stir national passions and national prejudice sufficient to break Allied unity.

Collective bargaining is sound in theory. But in practice it frequently fails. One reason for this is that it customarily leaves out of account the interests of the public, which is seldom a party to the bargain made. There is the further consideration that such bargains are usually binding only on the employers. There is no compulsion save that of honor upon the labor organization to keep the bargain.—[Minneapolis Journal.

THE LANCER.

Now we begin to realize the extent of the storm that has been raging underneath the cold, calm, somewhat satirical exterior of President Wilson.

Since the world began no man has staggered under such a weight of responsibility—and had so little sympathy for the cross that he bore.

With his critical illness it comes to some of us guiltily the realization of the emotions and the struggles that have been going on in his heart.

A man of the Roosevelt type who plans his fights after he gets into the ring, so to speak, could have enjoyed this crisis.

Roosevelt really enjoyed getting his plans through Congress. Most of the fun he had was fighting with Congress. He had the time of his life getting out the big stick and rough-housing his way down Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol.

Mr. Wilson is another type. In a private talk he once made to the newspaper correspondents in Washington he made it clear that he believes only the unselfish action of the United States can save civilization; that the world is quite likely as a result of this war to return to the dark ages when men will be beasts again and education will disappear. He feels that upon his shoulders rests the responsibility of saving the world from darkness.

In these circumstances you can imagine the effect upon his sensitive, high-strung nature to have dirty party politics thrown across the path he is struggling so hard to climb!

Personally, I am agin him. The only kind of President who would please my Celtic soul would be one who spent most of his time making faces at England. But I shall have to admit that I am glad that one of my kind of Presidents is not on the job at the present time.

There are seasons of the year when one has to take molasses and sulphur and other unpleasant concoctions. In this spirit I am prepared to take my dose of English brotherly love.

Even at that, you will have to hand the laurels to old England. If ever a country has stood the gaff without a whimper it is she.

I have a letter from Anita King McKnight, the former movie star, who was a city mother in Los Angeles and is familiar with organized charity work.

She says that the worst poverty in Europe is in England. The children are more poorly nourished than anywhere on the continent.

In Belgium, on the other hand, where they have been whining since the first shot of the war was fired, Mrs. McKnight says the children are well fed and well dressed. She says she visited the schools and examined the children on the street. She did not find one without shoes and stockings. Many of the little girls were wearing taffeta silk dresses. In Italy the children are living on thick black bread, but the conditions are not as bad as in England.

The only complaint I have heard out of England is against the American movies which are flooding the country.

A writer in one of the prominent British reviews lifts up his voice in a wail of sarcasm and protest against the invasion.

He particularly objects to the subtitles. He says that when a movie producer is dealing with a drama involving a great international struggle between the United States and Germany over Mexico, for instance, the message that comes from the Kaiser to his Ambassador is something like this:

"Stir up trouble between Mexico and the United States. Have plenty of guns and coffins ready."

The movies have at least one consolation: the speakies are somewhat worse. THE LANCER.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

DARK DAYS.

There is trouble everywhere, as the day's dispatches show, discontent is in the air, every fellow has his woe. From our home in Easy street we come charging forth, each day, asking, in the name of Pete, for all kinds of higher pay. In our gaudy cars we ride, up and down the crowded pike, roaring that we are denied luxuries enjoyed by Mike. In our silken shirts and socks we denounce the plutocrats, who have gathered in more rocks than we've hoarded in our flats. All this discontent in view is an after-war disease; it is like the Spanish flu, which but lately made us sneeze. And the flu, as you've been told, ran its course and fizzled out, giving place to ailments old, rheumatiz and mumps and gout. And the present ailment dire, which is scaring us today, raging like a house afire, soon will wilt and fade away. Soon we'll gather as of yore, chewing topics safe and sane, gather at the Blue Front store, talking of the need of rain; and we'll analyze the crops till the theme has made us hoarse, when this plague of crazy yawps, like the flu, has run its course.

Tommy Hodge, who had been apprenticed to Farmer Hicks, had not proved a conspicuous success and so, when old Mr. Hodge came around to see what progress Tommy was making the farmer looked dubious.

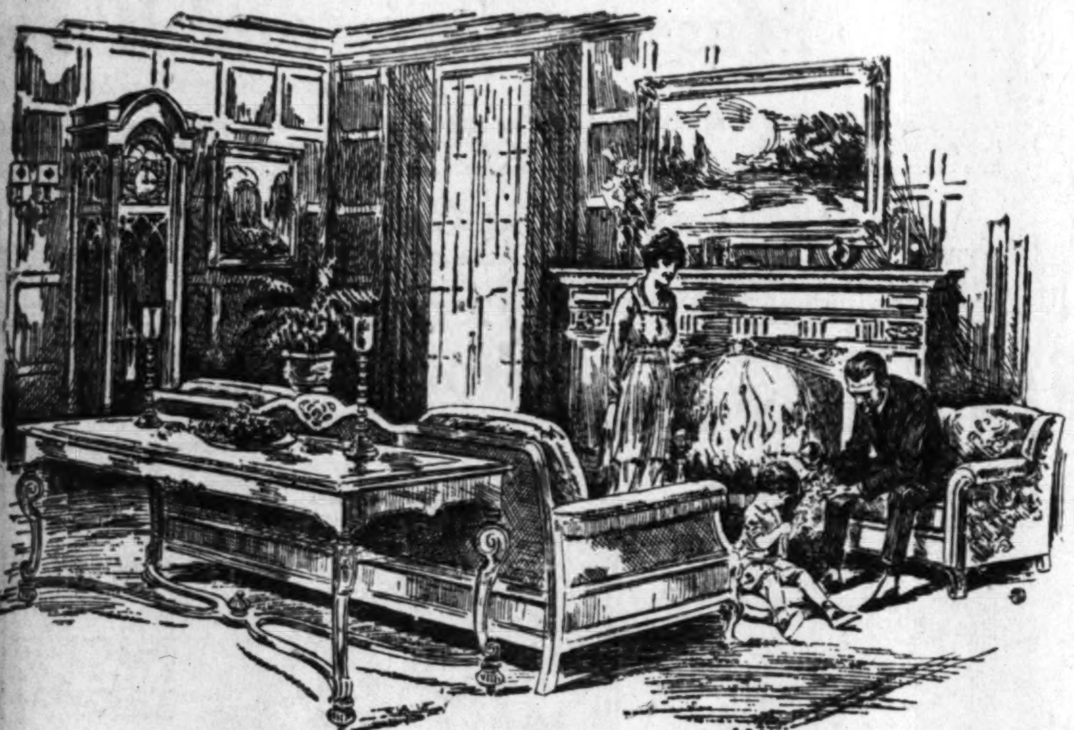
The Secret of a Successful Home—Its Achievement Set Forth in Three Chapters—"Comfort," "Convenience" and "Beauty"

Chapter I—"Comfort"



A SUBTLE charm of restfulness and serene contentment pervades the atmosphere of the Home whose appointments are in generous accord with the well-being of its occupants. This charm falls upon that household from the glowing warmth of Comfort as rays from softly shaded lights.

That the Success of the whole depends upon the perfection of its component parts—adds incentive to our endeavor to help you perfect, firstly, the primary essential—Comfort—in the making of your Successful Home. Convenience and Beauty, in no lesser degree of importance than Comfort, will follow in sequence in our "Successful Home" series—and all will bear intimately and vitally upon this momentous problem of the Home.

The theme, itself, opens a happy discourse of thought. From room to room of your home (or the home of your imagination) which you are planning for, you may travel with the propelling thought of adding comfort and myriad ways suggest themselves wherein this may be accomplished.

As a basis of Comfort, judgment and taste play big parts in the selection of your home furnishings and are the saving graces in maintaining consistent proportion wherein there is no jarring note, to disturb the visual or mental repose.

The big open fireplace in the living room—a vision of which you have in the sketch—would be cool in its hospitaltiy if it were not for the big soft davenport at comfortable angles with its glowing fire. And surely, no chair could be half as snug as this deeply and luxuriously upholstered easy chair.

The Dining room is no longer a place where the family and friends merely sojourn for daily meals, but in its refreshing cheerfulness, the comfort of it all causes them to linger over interesting topics and mealtime becomes one of the happiest functions of home-life.

In the Bed Room, which is Comfort's real sanctum, peace of mind finds pure intimacy in the daintiness and congeniality of this tranquil abode.

There are other rooms of the home, such as sun-parlors, breakfast rooms, sewing rooms and nurseries, which have true comfort for their mere purpose, and if they are lacking in this, then it is only attributable to the want of knowledge that there are so many comfortable furnishings for these particular rooms.

Comfort for those within the Home, begets sunshine of mind, solace and cheer, contentment and conviviality, congenial natures, cordial hospitality and all of these and their synonyms, in turn—success and happiness.

FOR years we have been doing everything possible to contribute to the contentment of our employees, not only that we might provide more than a living wage, but to make conditions such that work would be a real pleasure and greater happiness carried even into their homes.

In our incessant efforts we have tried many ideas and hundreds of suggestions. At a meeting yesterday of our thirteen hundred coworkers, we outlined a new organization plan which we believe is the best that has been thought out up to the present.

The adopted plan provides an opportunity for our employees to participate in the management and to share in the profits. It is our idea to thus add still more to their welfare. We are sure the result will not only be mutually beneficial, but that in this co-operative way we shall all be able to add to the helpfulness of our service and to the satisfaction of our customers.

Reed Furniture
in its frank informality

adds distinctive comfort to whatever environment it becomes a part of.

Almost singular in its adaptability in most any room, it is always pleasing in its attractiveness.

As the furnishing of a sun room it is probably most effective because of its closeness to nature, but whatever its relation in the home it is indispensable in some instances in the appointments.

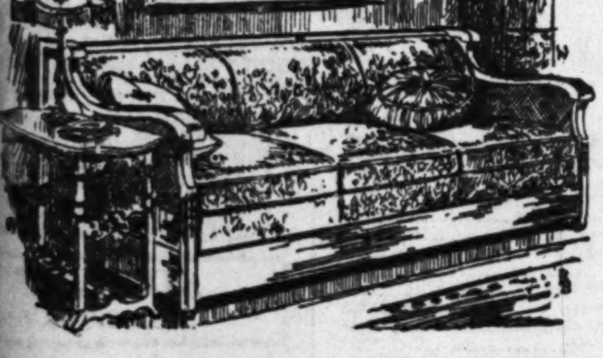
Ease and Luxury of Downy Pillows

How much more inviting and comfortable is a davenport or a big easy chair if it holds an enticing pillow:

—and with its pretty blending of color, beautiful effects have been brought into play.

Ofttimes it's the added touch of color which livens the entire setting, becoming intangibly a part of the scheme of beauty and comfort.

Floor cushions carry with them a sense of luxury and dainty refinement—and have become the "hobby" of many a feminine heart.



The Supreme Quality of the Bed Davenport is—

Comfort—in the sense of solace to the bewildered hostess who is at her wit's end to know just how to most comfortably accommodate her guests overnight, —in the sense of refreshing rest to tired out individuals.

Davenports were purposely designed to be more than decorative, especially Bed Davenports. Their principal attribute is one of utility—Comfort.

We have spared no effort in our diligent search of the world's markets to secure for you the davenports which most graciously combine utility and style.

Special covers may be had to conform with the other furnishings of the room in which you anticipate placing the coveted davenport.

Geo. L. Harding Gains 28 Pounds

Is Back On Job Working Every Day, Now.

Friends Surprised at Big Change in Him.

"There's Nothing Like Tanlac," He Declares.

"I have picked up so much in weight since I began taking this Tanlac," said George L. Harding of 914½ James street, Seattle, while in the Bartell drug store, recently, "that all my clothes are too small for me and my friends are surprised to see me looking so well." Mr. Harding has lived in and around Seattle for the past eighteen years and is well known.

"For the past two years, that is, until I got Tanlac," he continued, "I suffered terribly from indigestion and had such awful pains in my stomach and left side that I thought I was not going to be able to stand it much longer. I had no appetite and what little I did eat acted like poison with me. I would double up like a jack-knife with cramping pains in my stomach and just feel sick all over. I have always been used to hard work, but I got so I couldn't hit a lick of work for two and three days every week. I simply had to lay off and try to get rid of my terrible pain. I was badly constipated and suffered constantly with headaches and dizziness. I also had rheumatic pains in my hips and legs that bothered me in getting around and I was in such a bad shape that it hurt me to lift anytthing. I was just about 'all in,' and it was only by force of will that I worked at all. I could never get a good night's sleep and lost weight and strength rapidly.

"One night I was sitting in the Union hall, where I had gone to attend a meeting of the Longshoremen, all doubled up with cramps in my stomach, when one of the boys said, 'Go get yourself some Tanlac and see if it don't relieve you of that pain.' Well, I walked right out to the drug store and got a bottle and, sure enough, after a few doses I began to feel better. So from that time on my pains and cramps have bothered me no more and now I eat just anything I want and lots of it. I have actually gained twenty-eight pounds in weight and all my old-time strength and energy have come back to me. The rheumatism has also left me entirely and now I can work every day in the week without the least trouble. Why, I am so much stouter that I will not be able to wear a new suit which I had made until they put a piece in it to make it larger. To me there's nothing like Tanlac. It has put me on my feet in fine shape and I am more than glad to recommend it."

Tanlac is sold in Los Angeles, Pasadena and San Diego by The Owl Drug Co.—[Advertisement.

Another Southland City Ousts Union Bosses.

SANTA BARBARA BREAKS DRIVE TO SHACKLE HER.

Desperate Efforts of Labor Bosses to Force Closed Shop Beaten by Free, Loyal Citizens.

town' has no significance. Any organization which has the right and the power to determine who shall work and who shall not be allowed to work in the building trades of Santa Barbara will also have the power to say what material shall be used in those trades, and all experience shows that the organization having such power will not long hesitate to use it. The issue before the citizens of Santa Barbara is perfectly clear."

The report finds that "the assumption by any group of men having the power to dictate arbitrarily who may be permitted to work and who may not be permitted to work is, in the opinion of a majority of the citizens of Santa Barbara, an unwarranted exercise of power, inconsistent with the freedom guaranteed to all citizens under the Constitution."

The report says: "If one group of men may arbitrarily take over the power of regulation of the lives of the business of the community, they take over, in effect, the power of the government. In a little while another group of men will combine and also take over a part of the power of the government. This process cannot continue long before one or two things must happen: Either the government must face its duty to the whole people and resume once more the whole function of the government or else the government will break down and civilized life will be resolved into a series of struggling, antagonistic factions, all striving for power over their fellow-citizens. Freedom and prosperity for us American citizens without distinction of occupation can be had only when the powers of the nation and the control of its industries are left in the hands of the responsible government. An aggressive faction may temporarily take away these powers, but it will do so at fearful risk and in the certainty that, in the long run, somehow or other the legitimate powers of the government must come back to the people. The people act slowly, but the whole people are stronger than any group in the people, and in the long run the whole body of the people will govern the country."

The citizens' committee also cited an instance of how the closed shop operates at San Francisco. Employees refused to handle certain planed lumber which had come from a nonunion mill across the bay. The employer was compelled to have the planed lumber run through the machinery of a union mill before he could use it. In the process the lumber was not touched by the union planes, nor changed in any degree. Another San Francisco manufacturer at the request of his workmen removed his manufacturing establishment from San Francisco to Oakland, where he employs without discrimination union and nonunion men. "Such a situation in a free country is intolerable tyranny," says the report.

CIVIC BODIES ACT.

Backing this stand of the citizens of Santa Barbara were the civic organizations, the Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary Club, each adopting a strong stand. As the fight first loomed in the building trades, orders were given to shut down every mill and all building operations.

The walking delegates then attempted to work up a boycott of the merchants who became members of the Santa Barbara County Employers' Association and threatened to open a co-operative store. This was their last bluff, for, finding that they had tackled a united people, the labor representatives from San Francisco were ordered home and the well-paid mechanics of Santa Barbara finally agreed to return to their work, after they had lost five weeks' pay. They went back under the same conditions that prevailed when the walking delegates from San Francisco ordered them out, and today union and nonunion mechanic work side by side in peace, and Santa Barbara continues a free city, following in the progressive footsteps of Los Angeles.

The employers believe that in their victory they have opened wider than ever the doors of opportunity for all that section, for already large orders for building are being given, business has increased to a marked degree and the future is not clouded with the danger of implanting there the destructive conditions that prevail at San Francisco.

Had the fight been continued, there would have been a voluntary closing of business generally to weed out the malcontents, whose only purpose was to disrupt the friendly relations which have always existed between employer and employed in the Santa Barbara section.

PUBLIC UNITED.

In connection with the successful fight against the efforts of the San Francisco unions to force the closed shop down the throats of the people of Santa Barbara, it is pointed out that the commercial people of the community were solidly back of the Employers' Association, and that, through the citizens' committee, the other residents of the town were equally united, all who had the best interests of the community at heart being pledged never to surrender to the henchmen sent south by the Building Trades Council of San Francisco and others of the P. H. McCarty gang.

As an indication of the attitude of the public, including civic organizations, the following resolution adopted by the Rotary Club of Santa Barbara is cited:

"Resolved, that the board of directors of the Rotary Club of Santa Barbara is opposed to a demand for a closed shop for this city as being antagonistic to the spirit of individual liberty upon which American social, political and economic standards are founded, and particularly do we deplore any agitation which hinders the peaceful and constructive development of the city and the nation at this or any other time."

The resolution of the Santa Barbara County Chamber of Commerce was couched in similar vein, leaving no uncertainty as to where the people as a whole stood in the fight, which a few mechanics, influenced by the walking delegates from San Francisco, had started.

PLUMBERS REFUSE.

One of the features of the efforts of the McCarty gang to get a stranglehold on Santa Barbara was the refusal of the Plumbers' Union to join the Building Trades Council. The plumbers continued at work with their old employers, until the San Francisco Building Trades Council obtained from the headquarters of the Plumbers' Union an order commanding the plumbers in Santa Barbara to strike. They obeyed, but reluctantly.

Before the determined stand of the business interests and public of Santa Barbara the cause of the agitators quickly waned, and the citizens' committee was not long in bringing about a settlement, which was gladly signed by the representatives of the mechanics, and has not only brought industrial peace to Santa Barbara, but so completely discouraged the San Francisco agitators that danger of a resumption of their intriguing there has been entirely removed.

One employer, explaining the situation, stated that before the agitation broke out and while the influence of the northern unions was being felt, his workmen had come to so regulate their labor that they would intentionally accomplish about one-half less work each day than formerly. He had a contract that had to be hurried through, so he called in a friend and when the friend turned out an honest day's work, he was visited by a unionite with the declaration: "Here, you, the union rules are you turn out only four of those things an hour. Thirty-two's a day's work under the rules." The employer explains that sixty-four of the articles can easily be made during eight hours, and with time to spare, at that.

TOO MUCH TO STAND.

"It was simply a case," he said, "of whether Santa Barbara was to lag behind, the employers paying two-days' time for one day's work, having to pay a steward to see that his men were union members and kept their dues in the union paid, and dealing only with union employers. I don't think any employer with backbone would stand such a condition of unfairness, therefore we decided to follow the example of Los Angeles, and we have won."

The big body of mechanics is jubilant over the victory scored by the open shop, having no use for the walking delegate plan of conducting their business. "It's good for the walking delegate, the steward and the secretary," said a former officer of the Carpenters' Union, because they would receive $50 a week pay and an easy life, at that. But the mechanics by a big majority were with the merchants of Santa Barbara in the fight and hope that now the professional agitators who have found their way into some of the unions will be given their walking papers."

UNIONS' LAWYER OUSTS PICKETS.

While He Serves as Sailor Aboard Boycotted Ship.

Industrial Democracy will End Trouble, He Says.

While Strikes Only Inflate the Cost of Living.

Industrial democracy will solve labor trouble in America, rather than strikes and boycotts, which increase nonproduction and decrease the purchasing power of wages, in the opinion of Silas Blake Axtell, noted labor attorney of New York City, who has shipped on the steamer West Columb as an able seaman, to get actual sea experience.

Through sheer force of his argument Mr. Axtell silenced the pickets of striking longshoremen who attempted to delay the loading of the steamer. Weight was added to his argument by the fact that he is a union man himself and is obligated as such to serve as a sailor on the boycotted ship, although he is the chief counsel for the International Seamen's Union. He will quit the ship at New York to appear before the Supreme Court in an important labor case. Speaking of how he stopped the boycott on the ship, which was blacklisted because of the recent strike at the Los Angeles shipyard, and of his views on the labor situation in general, he said yesterday:

"One of my arguments with their leaders who are on picket duty to prevent their loading was that a boycott of a product is not only unlawful, but contrary to public interest.' The ship was bought and paid for, is now in operation by an innocent purchaser, Uncle Sam, and every day she lies idle costs all of us thousands of dollars.

DELAY MEANS COST.

"I asked them to stop picketing the ship in public interest and I am glad to report that they have done so.

"The stevedores are paid longshoremen union wages and no discrimination against a man is exercised because he is a union man. More men have applied for work and the cargo is coming aboard fast. The 9500 tons of flour lying on the docks and in the freight cars will soon be aboard ship and en route for destinations where it is badly needed. Every hour's unnecessary delay means increased cost to every customer in the United States.

"The right to collective bargaining is one that the majority of workers rightfully demand. Unfortunately, the only means of enforcing the demands under the present laws is the refusal to work, or the strike. Unfortunately, the strike always means nonproduction and that spells decreased purchasing power of wages. If the extreme reactionaries among the employers were removed from our industrial life altogether, the radical, the I.W.W. and the Bolsheviki would die a natural death. In other words, it is the determined opposition to the efforts of progressive leaders of labor made by the reactionary few among employers that causes the progressive leader to become too radical, so that he attempts to destroy rather than to build up.

"He says and does things 'in extremes' which he ordinarily would not think of. The valuable services of both extremes, the reactionary and the progressive, are lost to society, production is interrupted, the purchasing power of wages decreases as H.C.L. increases.

OUR OPPORTUNITY.

"America has today a wonderful opportunity to capture a large share of the world's trade. We have a normal producing capacity of foodstuffs and manufactures which is three times our consuming capacity. Other nations consume more than they can produce. France, Russia, South America, Africa and the Orient need our goods.

"Let both sides drop their difficulties, accept the proposition of collective bargaining and produce ships to carry these goods to foreign markets.

"The League of Nations is intended to furnish a means of settling international disputes without recourse to arms, but not to stifle international competition. We are still in the age of nationalism.

"I say to labor leaders and employers alike, the right to collective bargaining is a right inherent in laborers under present industrial conditions. It will stay with us until some other and better plan of securing to the worker a fair wage and fair living conditions has been evolved.

"There are two motives that impel men to work, fear and hope. Fear of losing a job. This motive is potent only when there is a surplus of labor. For some years there will be a shortage af labor. Therefore hope is the only motive to inspire service. Our whole industrial plan must be remodeled so as to permit the hope of the individual for self-betterment to find expression."

A Few of the Troubles of Miss Maud Stock Banks.

Motion pictures, poor relations and marmalade; fish boats, husbands and sawmills; clothespins, safety pins and pin-headed opinions, all these and more will be offered for your approval, at nothing less than bargain prices.

And if you don't believe it, ask Miss Maud Stock Banks, the woman who discovered the Salt Creek oil district in Wyoming. One Monday morning, The Times published an exclusive story about Miss Banks and her $1400 a day.

One Tuesday morning, Miss Banks awoke to the fact that she need not worry along on that small sum, for at her very hand, waiting, as it were, to fall in, was million upon million. She had but to invest a few paltry thousand here and there and receive a return far beyond the dreams of avarice.

HUNDREDS OF LETTERS.

Now Miss Banks has read and admired Elbert Hubbard. She is quite familiar with that line of his which says that advice is worth just what it cost. And, too, she has a very keen sense of humor. So, on the aforementioned Tuesday morning when she received and partially read 454 letters, she thought of Elbert Hubbard and laughed. She called in her friend, Miss Penrod Crawford, and asked her to become her secretary. Not knowing the job ahead, Miss Crawford accepted. Then the fun began. They read and tabulated all they had received.

When Miss Banks had finished, this is what she found: Magazine, 2; mining, 25; invitations, 6; accountants, 18; motion pictures, 100; motion-picture sites, 25; real estate, 86; charity, 55; oil promotion, 80; resorts, 5; loans, 12; stocks, 6; something to sell, 18; business managers, 18; press agents, 22; other jobs, 12; poor relations, 5, and husbands, 9. Total, 454.

The magazine men came at the head of the list. One man wanted $500 to start a weekly to fight the "Red Peril." Another wanted $1000 to start one to promote the "Red Peril." He said that the working classes had been held down long enough, and if she would give him the thousand, why it was very simple—he wouldn't be held down any longer.

The mining men were few in number compared with others. Miss Banks has hopes that she may receive a few hundred more offers to be "taken in" on the ground floor. As she is a wise woman, she believes them when they say she will be "taken in." One had a mine that had been worked, and he really thought that there was a lot more gold in it. Another had a mine that had never been worked. To be quite frank, a friend of his who knew a man that had been there, had told him about a humdinger place where gold could be picked up. A very few thousand would finance him easily. Others had propositions just as good that would bear the utmost investigation. One man offered as reference to his character one J. James. Miss Banks is under the impression that it is the well-known Jesse James.

She found, after investigation, that there was no need of sitting home these long winter evenings. For there upon the table lay six invitations. One for each day in the week. One was to a real select Bohemian joint. The writer stated that only those esthetic souls who were in full harmony with the finer things in life would be admitted. Crass commercialism was barred by these long-haired men and short-haired women. Miss Banks was not invited because of her wealth, they would have her know, but because they could read in her face that higher intelligence so necessary to true Bohemianism. The oil princess is looking for the writer of that one with a gun and they say that she is quite a shot.

One woman was giving a house party at the beach and would be very, very happy should Miss Banks grace her festive board. One gentleman suggested an auto ride to Long Beach, at which they could talk over business conditions and perhaps reach some agreement as to how much of the lady's wealth he really ought to have. He is the man who invented a pretzel-bending machine. He wants to manufacture wooden combs and canned soups.

There are several first-class accountants out of a job and all are willing to work at a figure surprisingly low.

Do you desire to become a star? Shall I write a story around your life? When do you wish to enter the picture business? These questions all follow beginnings that are identical in fifty of the hundred letters about motion pictures.

"I know that it is not customary to write in this manner without an introduction, but hope you will pardon the liberty, etc., etc.," is the way they start out. "I hope that you understand that personal motives have nothing to do with my offering you this wonderful opportunity, but it is for the good of the cause that I submit these facts to you" is the way they all end. Miss Banks is trying to determine to whose cause the good is to be done.

After reading the seventy-fifth letter, she issued a bulletin to the effect that had she ever considered pictures in the slightest degree, she would be discouraged by the mail concerning them. She said if all these men are out of a job and if the underlying fabric of the profession is so insecure, it is her opinion that it is a very good business to stay away from.

Following this came motion-picture sites. Then eighty-six real estate dealers, with the finest home sites in the country. One man had a location for a large estate in Antelope Valley. The other offers followed in sequence. Fifty-five appeals for charity and all were heart-rending.

Then Miss Banks, with Miss Crawford's help, arrived at the poor relations. People who were a little uncertain whether their name was Banks or not came to her apartment to see if they couldn't start a family row, and thereby prove the relationship. But to all these a deaf, very deaf, ear was turned. Miss Banks said that once upon a time she was a "poor relation" and no one was deeply interested in her. Now, she says that relations with all her less-fortunate relatives are as poor as formerly, as far as she is concerned.

But the husbands took the cake. That is, they tried to. Discarded sweethearts from far and wide came to the fore. One man wired from the East when he saw her picture in The Times. "Don't do anything rash until I get there," read the telegram. The next day he wired again, in an effort to get the money to come on.

And so each day the mail increases. Offers new and offers old are presented. Miss Banks and Miss Crawford bear the terrible affliction. Gray hairs creep in, they wear a far-away look, the girls have the far-away look, not the gray hairs. They jump when the 'phone rings. Miss Banks has left orders at the desk that she is not to be called by anyone. If an outsider desires to speak to her the message is repeated by the operator at the hotel. And always the reply comes, "Miss Banks is not in."

So all you who are considering money as your objective, pause a moment. Consider the consequences. And after this is done you will continue your pursuit of the almighty dollar and will be willing to take your chance on being annoyed.

STATE AWARDED BATTLE FLAGS.

War Department Decides the Engineers' Colors are California's Own.

Notification received yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce from the Adjutant-General's office in Washington assigns the regimental colors of the One Hundred and Seventeenth Engineers, which were carried by that group of California soldiers through the world war, to the State of California.

When the engineers were demobilized a regiment in the South received the colors, which action was protested by the Californians, and an appeal was made to the Chamber of Commerce, which took up the matter with the War Department, with the result that the colors will be a permanent possession of the State.

CAN WINERY WIN AS CANNERY?

Great Cucamonga Vineyard and Factory Converted into Huge Model Establishment for Preserving All Kinds of Fruit and Vegetables; More Money in It.

BY DOUGLAS CHURCHILL.

Before Bacchus, lord of wines and vineyards, was buried—in fact before he was known to be ailing, one man in this State who was close to the wine industry, felt his pulse and realized that the end was near. Instead of shaking his head sadly, this Californian began to hunt for some new personage to whom he could devote his attentions. Three problems confronted this man: How to make use of his 2000 acres and the winery and to turn these two investments into something profitable; how to make use of the prestige gained through sixty years of operation in the wine business; and to evolve a method to perpetuate the name of Charles Stern & Son. And Alfred Stern, head of the firm, found suitable answers to all three problems.

The answer was a cannery. Not an ordinary cannery, but one that lived up to his ideals. He wanted one where he would grow the majority of the fruit used. Suiting action to the thought he engaged an agriculturist and told him of his ideas. The expert analyzed the soil and found what plants would grow best there. These he planted in an experimental garden. Then, after three years of watching and waiting and more experimenting, he began the laying out of the ranch lands.

RE-PLANTS VINEYARDS.

The agriculturist was advised when he started that Mr. Stern wanted fruits and vegetables that would be ready for canning the year around. He wanted no conflicting crops, but wanted produce that would furnish employment during the winter as well as the summer. Seven varieties of peaches were planted. These were Tuscans, Libbys, Muirs, Lovells, Elbertas, Philips and Sims. Two hundred acres of Royal apricots were planted the first year. Tomatoes were planted between the rows so that the land would produce while the trees were maturing.

At the present time 750 acres have been planted and 800 is the figure set for the first of the year. A tractor is busy every day pulling out the bearing vines. Great piles of grape stumps are hauled away to make room for the newer business.

For years Californians have stood on the heights overlooking the vineyards and have seen nothing but grapes for miles. Today this part of the Cucamonga Valley is changing. Where vines grew before, young trees stand. The land that once was the dominion of Bacchus is now ruled by the hand of Pomona. Mr. Stern organized a new company. With him are Harry L. Harris, vice-president, and Berthold Baruch, secretary. Two other members of the family, Charles and Perkins Stern, are the New York representatives. These five men engaged engineers to lay out the plant in the most efficient manner. The experts adopted the unit system of which the present plant is a single part. Two others are to follow. The single unit is 200 by 490 feet. Before construction began, the officers decided what to can. Peaches, apricots, pears, apples, muscat grapes, olives, tomatoes and sweet potatoes were planned for the first year. All kinds of vegetables and fruits are to be utilized as soon as the entire plant is completed.

WINERY CONVERTED.

Then the conversion began. Presses were torn out, vats removed. The cooperage-house was transformed into a box factory. The fermenting house became the shipping-room and the aging house is now the main canning-room. One of the features of the cannery are the high ceilings. It is said that in other plants of the kind the ceilings as a rule are low. It was necessary in the winery to have a great deal of space to carry off the wine fumes, and this has made the cannery a very desirable place to work. One of the old cellars where the oldest bottled wine was formerly stored is now the stockroom for the labels for the cans.

What to do with the waste was one of the problems that the engineers had to solve. The cans are filled to overflowing to insure full weight when the product is shipped. When the can is sealed about a quarter of a pound of fruit is thrown on the floor. By the end of the day the accumulation amounts to considerable. A hog ranch was stocked at one corner of the ranch to take care of all this fruit. The pits from the peaches and apricots are sold. Apricot stones go to Europe to make extracts, while the peach pits are sold for fuel.

After planning the plant, the owners turned their attention to the housing and the welfare of their employees. They had already taken into consideration the problem of furnishing employment the year around. In this way they felt, they could get better workmen because steady employment was assured. The plant is a mile from Wineville and seven miles from either Riverside or Ontario so that the problem of housing is a serious one. Cottages were built for the families. The company encouraged the workers to move to the ranch. This year accommodations for 300 were provided and this number will be increased to 900 next year.

An ice plant was constructed for family use. Each house was provided with an ice box. Everything was made as comfortable as possible. A well-stocked grocery was opened in connection with a cafeteria that sells food at cost. Provisions are received each day from the neighboring towns and sold to the employees with no profit added. Fresh meats, bread, pastry, ice cream and all commodities common to the flat-dweller are at the hand of this small community.

GOOD PAY.

Acting upon the theory that the better you treat the employees, the better they treat you, the company instituted a wage scale that permits the slowest worker to earn the minimum wage set by the State with ordinary effort. Mr. Harris states that more than 90 per cnet. of the women more than double this pay.

A hospital and schools were built. At the hospital, women workers are permitted to go into the restroom at any time and rest. A trained nurse is in attendance to care for the sick and injured. A kindergarten is maintained for the benefit of the smaller children and they are instructed by a teacher employed by the company. A grade school is on one end of the ranch, where the older children attend. For the benefit of workers who have been denied the privileges of the home, an evening school has been instituted. In this housework and thrift are taught. The employees are instructed how to spend their money to the best advantage and how to employ their time so as to produce the most. As they are paid under the piece system, this increases their earning capacity to a great extent as well as increases the output of the company.

AMUSEMENTS.

Carrying out the welfare work still further, the company adopted the slogan, "Better surroundings; better results." They laid out beautiful gardens with lawns and shade trees. Fountains and benches were set in the shrubbery. A conservatory filled with choice plants was constructed. The experimental gardens in which the plans of the company materialized were transformed into a private park. A dance and amusement building was built. Dances are held at regular intervals when the residents from miles around come to participate. Showers for the women and the men are at several points on the place. A garage with expert mechanics was equipped and workers who own machines may have them repaired at cost. The employees are able to live better and at lower cost than if they were employed in the city and at the same time enjoy more of the community life.

When the factory is opened in the morning, the employees come into a sanitary, germless building. The entire structure is cleansed with steam each night. The boxes in which the fruit is brought are scalded after being emptied so that the freshly-picked fruit is handled with as great care as possible.

THE CANNING.

The produce is brought to the cannery by a fleet of trucks. It is weighed and carried to the conveyors. Such products as pears, which are shipped a great distance in a semi-ripe condition, are sorted and only the ripest canned. The other is put away until it is ready for use. The full boxes are placed upon conveyors and carried to the cutters. At this time there are about 350 women engaged in cutting for the season has passed its height. As fast as the pits are removed, the cut fruit is placed on belts and carried to a lye bath, where it is held for forty seconds to remove the skin. From there it passes into the steam blancher, where all evidences of lye are removed. The cut fruit again is placed upon the belt and carried to the grading machine. This machine has nine decks. Each one grades the fruit and carries the desired size to the canners. For the second and last time the fruit is touched by hands. Women place it in cans and it is conveyed to another sterilizer, where every possible contamination is removed.

The cans are then filled with syrup. Five grades are used. At one end of the plant are two enormous vats. Into these are emptied large quantities of sugar. Machinery mixes it with water until it is dissolved. It is then pumped to other vats near the roof of the building. Here it is divided into the five grades for the different sizes and grades of fruit. This varies from 10 to 50 per cent. sugar. One grade is packed in clear water.

After the cans are filled with sugar syrup they again pass through a steam sterilizer. At the conclusion of this process, they are capped and sealed. The fruit is then ready to be cooked. It passes into drums, in which there is steam of 200 deg. temperature. It is cooked in this for twenty minutes. The cans slowly revolve within the drum and the timing is automatic. The cookers turn out the fruit at the rate of fifty cans a minute. In the present unit of the factory, the six machines are producing 18,000 per hour. The whole plant has a storage capacity of 2,000,000 cans, which allows the shippers to take care of the 100,000 cans a day production.

After emerging from the cooker, the cans are cooled with water. They are then set in stacks so that the air may circulate about them. Here they stand for twenty-four hours to prevent fermenting. At the end of this period, they are taken to the storeroom, where they are held at an even temperature to reach their normal heat. In this way it is learned whether fermentation has taken place. Before the cans are taken from the room they are tested to see if they are in good condition. Each can is tested twice by different inspectors so that spoiled fruit cannot possibly get out of the plant. They then pass on to the labeling machine. Each of these appliances has a capacity of 1500 cases a day and all are electrically operated. The fruit then passes down a carrier and is boxed.

BIG FUTURE.

"The canning industry is yet in its infancy," said Mr. Harris, the vice-president, yesterday. "The whole world looks to California for its food. Before very long, I believe the canning industry will be the largest in this section of the State. Here in the Cucamonga Valley, this one cannery has proven to be an incentive for the growers. People who never thought of it before are planting orchards. When our three units are completed, I do not believe that we will be able to care for any but the fruit raised in this valley.

"There is no question but what this will replace the old business. We have contracted for 140,000 trees for the coming season. The fruit these trees will bear will furnish more employment than our 2000 acres of vines. Within a short time we will work into all the fruits and vegetables grown in this part of the country. We will provide living quarters for 900 people and will have a thriving city all our own.

"One of Mr. Stern's hobbies is the employment of service men. Whenever he can possibly make an opening, he hires an ex-soldier or sailor. We have a great number working in the plant now. In fact, I believe the majority of the men on the place are from the army."

Incidentally, Mr. Stern says there is more money in canning than in wine making.

POLITICS.

THE WATCHMAN.

CF POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

By the Sentry on His Beat.

They're having a monkey and time in the San Francisco campaign, and we can from the distance with calm ment; our troubles in this line emporarily settled. Up north d to tell which is the main the big circus, but the Rolph- section seems to get about attention as do all the oth-

E. Schmitz, about whose political history the Bay City are mercifully keeping silent, his campaign on the plat- of "being thoroughly versed in al affairs." I'll say he used at any rate.

the other evening, broke boxing show in the Mission got some one to introduce and announced that if he's Mayor he'll try to bring twenty-round game. the bunk," was the call that him. Funny, but the four- fighters got all stirred up, it as they feel that any box- for finish fights at this time may put a quietus on present boxing shows.

I note that one of the sponsors for Eugene Schmitz is the proprietor of the Hammam Baths; and another is Henry Warfield. Of the latter, the San Francisco Call recalls that on the day of the Preparedness parade, Warfield, in the exchange of the general building contractors, refused to stand when the band played the "Star Spangled Banner." His chair was pulled out from under him, and he lay on the floor, refusing to get up while the band played the national air, and directors of the exchange finally threw Warfield out, says the Call. Later, Warfield was arrested on charges involving seditious utterances, and later he was ordered out of the chambers of the Board of Supervisors and denied the privileges of the floor, "because he was not a good citizen," says the Call. Some sponsor!

Regarding Schmitz, the San Francisco Bulletin says, in discussing the Mayoralty: "San Francisco is forgiving, but she is not forgetful, and there are some things the memory of which makes the forgiveness of a re-election impossible. The charitable silence exercised by the press two years ago may not be preserved during the coming campaign. There is a new generation of voters, and it may be deemed necessary to recall the incidents which were the disgrace of our civic life between 1901 and 1909. We look to Rolph and prefer to look to the future, but if the other candidate mentioned compels us to recall the unpleasant past it will be his own fault, as well as his own misfortune."

The Suffrage Amendment.

A special session of the Colorado Legislature will convene on the 15th inst. to consider ratification of the suffrage amendment to the United States Constitution. Colorado women were among the first to receive the franchise, and the Legislature of that State may be counted on, without question, to give its indorsement to the amendment. A special session of the Utah Legislature, held the last of September, gave similar results. All indications point to the issuance of a call by Gov. Stephens for a special session of the California lawmaking body for the latter part of December.

The women of California are urging that Governors of various other States are awaiting the action of Gov. Stephens, and that the issuance of his call will result in like action in these States, so that the general movement may be carried along with sufficient momentum to give the women of the United States votes at the next Presidential election. Seventeen States out of the required thirty-six have indorsed the amendment.

From various sources come the reports that the Governor would gladly evade the issuance of the call for the special session, as, if one is called, immense pressure will be put upon him to include provision for the consideration of anti-Japanese legislation, and there's no telling just what this may lead to, in the face of the constant encroachments of the Japanese in California. The anti-Japanese sentiment continues to crop up all around. We had an example of this during the past week, when a whole neighborhood appeared in protest at the City Hall against the establishment of a Japanese orphanage out in the northwest hills and the certainty that such an institution would crowd the Micheltorena school with Japanese children.

They're Planning Ahead.

San Francisco politicians are never really happy unless they are mixed up in some imbroglio. Here's the latest:

James Rolph is standing for re-election to the Mayoralty. He also has a weather eye out for the United States Senatorship. It all depends, it is said, upon his success in the Mayoralty contest whether he will become a Senatorial candidate. Should he be defeated, that's something else again.

But it is said that candidates for the Board of Supervisors, who would have the naming of a successor to Mayor Rolph, should he be re-elected and then resign to make the Senatorial race, are being pledged by the union-labor leaders to support P. H. ("Pinhead") McCarthy for the Mayor's chair. On the other hand, the Civic League of Improvement Clubs will not stand for this programme, and it will put the Indian mark on every Supervisorial candidate who has given a pledge for McCarthy. The league will not demand that Supervisorial candidates agree to accept the recommendation of its members for a successor to Rolph, but it will insist that the Supervisorial candidates go into the campaign unpledged.

No Boston-like Programme.

And, strange as it may seem to outsiders, who have concluded that San Francisco politics is hopelessly in the hands of union labor elements, this Civic League of Improvement Clubs is attempting to have all candidates in the municipal campaign promise that they will oppose any unionizing of either the fire or police departments of the Bay City.

A. E. Joel of the league's Campaign Investigating Committee has issued a statement in which he very pertinently says:

"We can't have anything like the Boston situation developing in San Francisco. A policeman and a fireman take an oath to protect life and property. Each is a public servant who should not be left to choose his duty.

"I am not disposed to argue the merits of unionization in the clerical departments of city government. I take the position, however, that there would be a division of responsibility in those cases where policemen and firemen joined unions. We should have the spectacle of property being destroyed and the policemen turning their heads the other way if a fellow union man happened to be one of the law's offenders."

Why not Home Talent?

In the casting about by the Board of Education for a successor to Dr. Albert Shiels as superintendent of the city schools, it is to be hoped that they'll not overlook home talent. Does seem that a city of 630,000 inhabitants ought to be able to furnish a suitable person for superintendent of schools without having to import one from the East—and this is in no way a reflection on Dr. Shiels.

Among the local educators who are most frequently mentioned in this regard is Ernest J. Lickley, supervisor of compulsory education, and who has been connected with the Los Angeles school system for many years, having made a record of highly efficient work and a discreet avoidance of educational fads. Some of the strong educators of Los Angeles are urging that Mr. Lickley be selected for the superintendency.

Coulston for Congress?

Comes now the rumor that James B. Coulston, of Pasadena, may be a candidate for Congress in the Ninth District, in opposition to Charles H. Randall. Coulston is a Democrat, but he is popular with all classes of voters. He is president of the Pasadena National Bank, and was very active in the patriotic campaigns before he went to France for work with the United States Army. His vigorous work in ferreting out slackers during the bond campaigns will be well remembered.

Montaville Flowers, who also will be a candidate, got a good running start at the Union League luncheon one day last week. He made a vigorous speech on the welfare of the Republican party, and declared that the big issue in the next national campaign will be a conflict between the constructive nationalism and Americanism of the Republican party and the disintegrating Socialism and internationalism of the Democratic party.

Woodman Out of It.

Former Mayor Woodman has definitely announced that he has withdrawn from the field as a candidate for the appointment to fill the vacancy on the State Board of Equalization caused by the death of Phil D. Wilson. There are yet numerous candidates, including Jeff McElvaine, who was defeated for this office by Mr. Wilson; but Dr. Frederick C. Langdon appears, from what I can gather, to have the best chances for the appointment. Gov. Stephens will probably visit Los Angeles next week, and at that time he will take up the matter of making the appointment, it is said.

EXPERT WILL SPEAK ON FIRE PREVENTION.

TO TELL CHAMBER OF PLAN TO CHECK THE DESTRUCTION OF FOREST AREAS.

With the county, Chamber of Commerce and other organizations actively pushing the work of rehabilitating the miles of burned watersheds in Los Angeles county, general interest is keen over the coming of Franklin H. Wentworth, secretary of the National Fire Protection Association, who will be a guest of honor at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon at the Hotel Alexandria on Tuesday.

Mr. Wentworth is one of the leading authorities on fire prevention. When the government began suffering from incendiary fires during preparations for war, Mr. Wentworth was called upon to handle the situation. Special interest in his visit to Los Angeles has been aroused because he had part in the state-wide plans adopted by Idaho, Montana and Washington for prevention of forest fires.

The chamber is actively co-operating with the Board of Supervisors in having work started immediately on building check dams and reforesting the hillsides. County Forester Flintham, has been authorized to collect large quantities of mountain shrubbery seed for planting immediately in the devastated areas. It is hoped to obtain a sufficient growth of this cover crop this season to prevent bad erosion during the winter rains and the consequent filling up the check dams.

Mr. Wentworth will be the principal speaker at the luncheon and it is expected will have something of importance to say regarding the systematic plan for the protection of Los Angeles watersheds.

EXPERT TO LECTURE ON NATIONS' LEAGUE.

A course of lectures on the League of Nations is to be given at the University of Southern California on Wednesday afternoons and will be open to the public.

Dr. Roy Malcolm of the political science department, actively identified with the League to Enforce Peace and who attended several of the peace convention sessions, will be the principal speaker. The lectures will start at 4:15 p.m. and two hours' credit will be granted on university work.

The following topics will be discussed "The Historical Background of the League of Nations," "The Making of International Co-operation During the Great War," "Some Essentials of a League for Peace," "The League of Nations and the National State," "The League of Nations; Its Organization and Operation," "Labor in the Peace Treaty," "The Fredom of the Seas," "The Monroe Doctrine and the League of Nations."

This course has been arranged at an hour which will enable teachers to attend and is especially for those interested in the present discussion of the league.

Three Generations

"When grandmother was young she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some female illness and it helped her. My mother took it during the change of life and it did wonders for her. So when I got into a run down condition and suffered with periodic pains, backache, bearing down pains, I took it and it restored my health."

Thus writes a young woman of the third generation about this great remedy for woman's ills.

FAT MEN STEP TO THE FRONT.

They're Latest Rage in the Camera Realm.

New Companies Organized for Several of 'Em.

Maclyn Arbuckle's to Head Concern in Texas.

The fat comedian is coming into his kingdom. Of course, Roscoe Arbuckle has always been a favorite. He's a landmark in filmdom, in fact, and if he should grow thin or should decide to go and play "Hamlet" or something, it would be like taking the vote away from the American people. Aside from him however, fat comedians haven't been the vogue as stars in motion pictures, for some strange reason or other, notwithstanding fat on the human form is supposed to be one of the funniest things in the world, according to the cartoonist and the colored Sunday supplements.

Of late, it seems, due to some unknown cause, possibly the high cost of living, which naturally makes folks like to view well-fed appearing beings, fat comedians are greatly in demand. Walter Hiers, who remained stout more or less in vain for years has just been engaged to play a lead in a big Rex Beach picture, and now it seems that Maclyn Arbuckle, brother of the famous "Fatty" Roscoe, is going to give the latter a run for his money.

A company has just been formed to exploit the chubby charms and the comedy talents of Maclyn Arbuckle, and a studio is to be built for him near San Antonio, Tex. The company will be known as the San Antonio Pictures Corporation, and will doubtless have other stars later. For the present, however, they will concentrate on Mr. Arbuckle. L. D. Wharton will be in charge of the concern, and the comedian will start work at once.

No unknown authors are to write stories for the new comedy star, either. Those engaged are Irvin S. Cobb and George Barr McCutcheon, whose scenarios are to be designed to reveal the undisputed comedy talents of Mr. Arbuckle. Most of these stories will be westerns, and will not be slap stick comedy, but will have the humor for which Mr. Cobb is noted as a writer and Mr. Arbuckle as a player. Mr. Cobb and Mr. Arbuckle are old-time friends and neighbors in the South.

Mr. Arbuckle has been famous for a decade on the stage. In "The County Chairman," "The Round-up" and other plays, he achieved remarkable success.

Turpin in New One.

Ben Turpin, he of the careless eyes, will soon again grace Grauman's screen in a Mack Sennett travesty entitled "Salome vs. Shenandoah." Charlie Conklin, still suffering from a failing of the mustachios; Ford Sterling, with the mobile countenance, and the Mack Sennett beauty bevy, with naughty dimples, will be Turpin's accomplices in this comedy.

Dolled Up to See Picture.

A barefooted boy attracted the attention of Manager Hamburg the other day at a performance of Griffith's "Broken Blossoms" at Clune's Auditorium. He would have escaped unnoticed if he hadn't stopped to doll up for the momentous occasion. Mr. Hamburg spotted him first in the men's dressing-room. The boy thought he was alone, and he was, until Hamburg entered just as the youngster was withdrawing a dripping foot from a basin partly filled with murky water.

"What's up?" asked Hamburg.

"Nothing," spluttered the lad. "I'm going to see the show, and I wouldn't go in without first washing my feet."

"Got a ticket?" queried Hamburg, as the lad converted one of his overstock of papers into a towel.

"Y'r bet!" shot back the lad as he flashed a gallery seat.

He saw the picture, and his parents will see it, too, only they won't sit in the gallery!

A Warless Barrage.

Russell Simpson is one of the heaviest smokers of heavy cigars in the film colony.

In the offices of the studio the other day Russell was laying a heavy barrage with a cigar almost strong enough to walk, and the entire office force rising in protest declared that they would "hang" him with his own "rope" if he did not call a halt. One of the numerous clerks came to him and said, "For the love of Mike, Russ, cast that weed away and take this light Havana."

Simpson took the proffered cigar and after close scrutiny with his eyes and nasal organ prepared to light it. As he was delicately clipping the end, the clerk said, "Russell, I'm going to invent a substitute for tobacco. Every time you come in here you smoke us out." By this time Simpson had taken a puff or two on the cigar and suddenly removed it from his mouth and flung it across the room and boomed, "Substitute, bah, somebody has beat you to it."

Filming "The Peddler."

"The Peddler," the current Saturday Evening Post story, which is attracting so much attention, is being filmed by Universal under the direction of William C. Dowlan. Frank Mayo plays the title role, while Ora Carew is seen in a leading part. Ray Ripley and Dagmar Godowsky have prominent positions in the cast. The company, which at present is shooting some scenes at Balboa, will leave soon for Santa Barbara.

Completing Japanese Play.

The closing scenes are being shot on Tsuru Aoki's first Universal feature, "The Breath of the Gods," from the book by Randall Parrish. Director Rollin Sturgeon has taken pains to provide the true Japanese atmosphere, and has surrounded the little Universal star with a capable coterie of film luminaries, such as Barney Sherry, Arthur Carew, Ethel Shannon and Pat O'Malley.

Plays Roles in Original.

Rodolph Valentino, former leading man for Mae Murray and Carmel Myers, in his scenes in "Ambition," Dorothy Phillips's new Universal starring vehicle, speaks all of his lines in Italian.

Born in Italy and having lived there the greater part of his life, Valentino, who plays opposite Miss Phillips and portrays the part of a young Italian nobleman, finds the characterization easier to enact when he lives the part, which explains the Italian speech.

In playing foreign characters, Valentino, who converses in five different languages, speaks the part in the native tongue.

"Out of the Dust."

"Out of the Dust," the McCarthy Picture Productions' first feature is to be given a pre-view at the California Theater Tuesday at 11:30 p.m.

In the nine-reel form the picture will have at its premiere exhibition are concenrated production activities extending over a period of three months, the result of the entrance into the motion picture field of a group of Los Angeles capitalists, headed by John F. Powers, owner of the Los Angeles Baseball Club. Arrangements are being made, it is stated, to establish permanent studio accomodations for future productions of the organization.

"Out of the Dust," is said to combine a dramatic theme with many scenes of vivid picturesqueness strikingly similar to the work of Frederick Remington. Glimpses of frontier soldier life, and bits of action on the plains, are declared to be Remingtonesque in their treatment.

The cast includes Russell Simpson, Doras Matthews, Robert McKim, Master Pat Moore, Bert Sprotte and Mickey Moore. Credit for the photography is given to Victor Milner.

Donkey Likes Scenarios.

There are many donkeys in the motion-picture industry, but the record for interference is held by one small burro encountered near Universal City recently by Florence Turner.

The popular star-director was engaged in filming "The Health Farm," one of her fun-filled Universal comedies, and with Theodore Joos, her co-director, took her Universal producing unit to the little desert town of Calabasas.

As the work of filming progressed Joos left his script-board on a chair and went elsewhere. When he returned he found that the valuable continuity of the embryo photodrama was no more. Beside the chair stood an unnaturally fat little burro with a wisp of the scenario hanging from his mouth. It was the one scene required.

Joos made a valiant jump at the little animal and tried to tear the valuable document from his teeth. With a rapidity that would make a cat look phlegmatic, the burro wheeled around and favored Joos with a view of his heels. Joos persisted. Losing all patience, the burro swallowed the remaining script and flattened out Joos like unto a pancake.

While Joos recuperated on a couch in the farmhouse, Miss Turner telephoned Universal City and had another copy of the script rushed to Calabassas by automobile.

Salisbury's Pantomime.

Monroe Salisbury, the Universal star now appearing in "Sundown Trail" at the Superba Theater, learned that he had ability for the silent drama quite by accident.

Several years before he entered the

LEWIS STONE GOES OFF TO GLACIER PARK.

WILL TAKE PART IN FILMING OF "BOB HAMPTON OF PLACER."

Lewis S. Stone, who has been engaged by Marshall Neilan for the titular role in the forthcoming production of "Bob Hampton of Placer," will leave today via motor for the Glacier National Park, where the greater part of the action of the story transpires.

Every effort was made to induce Mr. Stone to go to New York City with "Danger" upon the termination of the local engagement, but the call of the silver sheet proved too alluring, despite the fact that the play seems a particularly safe bet for a metropolitan success.

David M. Hartford, whose stage direction of recent Majestic Theater productions has been favorably commenetd on, is in receipt of several film offers, one of which came from the Canadian Photoplays, Ltd., requesting that he proceed at once to the snow country of Northern Canada and direct another big outdoor production for the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

Hartford recently jumped into upper strata of directorial prominence through his production of the James Oliver Curwood story, "Back to God's Country, which was released by the First National. The story was made north of the fifty-sixth parallel in a temperature of 60 deg. below zero. The cold was so intense that every particle of oil had to be wiped from the mechanism of the cameras to prevent obstruction in their movements.

Ronald Byron, a leading man with the organization, lost his life in a drift, the limbs of another member of the cast were frozen to the point of amputation, and the emulsion on the film frequently froze and cracked immediately upon coming in contact with the atmosphere of the lens chamber. This, added to the natural hazards and almost prohibitive rigors of the advanced northern position, resulted at times in conditions presenting almost unsurmountable barriers in the way of successful culminaton of the project.

HER TOES ASSETS.

Bessie Clayton Values Them at a High Figure.

Two big toes—one on the right foot and one on the left—have made Bessie Clayton, Orpheum star, a fortune. Just two big toes, but because they have a certain physical superiority over the common or garden variety found on the colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady, and because they have twinkled their owners' way into fame and fortune.

Toes, as a general thing, have no particularly great monetary value, but in the case of Bessie Clayton their value is such that she has insured them for $50,000 against irreparable damage. Ergo, there must be something rare about those toes. Righto, there is!

To begin with, physically they have few superiors. The usual great toe seems to be about as massive and husky as a pullet's wishbone. Miss Clayton's great toes, on the other hand look as if they could quite conveniently assume Atlas's burden without the least feeling it. Since childhood she has developed her toes, until now she can dance on their tips without the least discomfort.

Dedicated to Better Homes

Consider the Future

The furnishing of the home presents a responsibility which every thoughtful person should approach and assume with foresight and consideration.

How seldom do we consider, in the selection of a piece of furniture, the years, perhaps generations, of service that particular piece of furniture is going to render—how intimately it is going to influence our very lives, and the lives of our children, and maybe our children's children.

And yet how prone we are to allow our thoughts to be diverted from this important consideration by the influence of an imaginary saving of a few dollars.

When we approach home furnishing from the right angle, and with the right thought, we are bound to be more critical in our selections, for we realize that what we choose today will reflect the wisdom of our judgment through many years to come.

No matter how modest your home may be, nor how limited your resources the same principle holds good. To spend a few dollars less today and have cause to regret it through the years to come is extravagance rather than economy.

The "California" is intensely interested in the "Better Homes" idea. It is our mission to encourage foresight and care in the selection of all home furnishings. We endeavor to safeguard our patrons by confining all our offerings to such home furnishings as will prove their desirability in years of pleasant association and satisfactory service.

OF ART AND ARTISTS

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

A Sicilian Night.

Come, stand we here within this cactus-brake,
And let the leafy tangle cloak us round.
It is the spot whereof the Seer spake—
To nymph and faun a nightly trysting-ground.
How still the scene! No zephyr stirs to shake
The listening air. The trees are slumber-bound
In soft repose. There's not a bird awake
To witch the silence with a silver sound.

Now haply shall the vision trance our eyes,
By heedless mortals all too rarely scanned,
Of mystic maidens in immortal guise,
Who mingle shadowy hand with shadowy hand,
And moving o'er the lilies circle-wise,
Beat out with naked feet a saraband.

—[Andrew Lang.

Tenth Annual Exhibition.

The tenth annual exhibition of the California Art Club opened yesterday in the main gallery at Exposition Park, to continue through the month of October.

To the man who considers art a negligible quantity in any and all estimates of world progress—to the materialist who believes that we are living in the age of iron—the above announcement may not seem of much importance, the news may not be at all thrilling. Even when it is added that this exhibition is by far the best ever held by the California Art Club, he refuses to be impressed.

He may ask, what is art, anyhow?—and we may be unable to answer. If he had asked, what is truth? we should have found the same difficulty. Yet we know that the man who seeks to understand the meaning of art and the man who searches for truth will realize each as soon as it is found. He cannot see it with his eyes or touch it with his hands, but he knows that it is there. The soul knows when it has entered a new kingdom.

Small blame to the man in the street if his eyes are sealed and the house of his spirit is closed. He has looked long at iron—a thing most tangible and heavy—and therefore for him it is not easy to discover the intangible and the ethereal. He must acquire the new, the true vision, and he must do it by taking much thought. If he persists, and is properly humble, he will ultimately succeed. Many a hard-boiled business man has done this, and many others will follow. The age that lays a foundation of iron must fashion a beautiful superstructure—"that dome in air" which is known as art. Men cannot live on iron alone—they never have and they never will.

The tenth annual exhibition of the California Art Club, then, is a very important event in the history of Los Angeles—as important, if you will only believe it, as the erection of the tenth skyscraper on Seventh street. The new fifteen-story building is needed, no doubt, to accommodate our rapidly-expanding business, but it is not more needed than the new picture in the gallery, which was painted to accommodate our rapidly-expanding appreciation of beauty. The soul cannot live comfortably in cramped quarters, any more than the body can—indeed, the two travel together all the time, and both demand your constant attention if you don't want to dwarf the one at the expense of the other. This is the law of growth, and woe to the man or the community that disobeys it.

The tenth annual exhibition shows that the artists of Southern California are working in harmony with this great law of growth. The painters and sculptors who have sent one or more of their works to the exhibition, give us splendid evidence of being alive. They—all of them—are moving forward with long and swinging strides. We don't know where they're going, for the goal is out of sight—and always will be—but we know the place is one of ideal and immortal beauty. Are the business men of Los Angeles doing any better than that?

There are eighty-nine exhibits in the tenth annual showing, paintings and sculptures by fifty-nine different artists. They will be reviewed at length in Art and Artists next Sunday. The two Clarence A. Black prizes, $150 and $100, respectively, were won by William V. Cahill for his beautiful figure study, "Thoughts by the Sea," and by Jack Wilkinson Smith for his equally fine study of sea and shore, "California Coast."

"Broken Blossoms."

The time is rapidly passing away—it has passed, indeed—when the painter of easel pictures can point the finger of scorn at the director of a motion picture and says: "I see the motion—plenty of it—too much sometimes—but where is the picture?"

In truth, the "picture" was not always apparent in the earlier products of the new art of the motion picture. There was little attempt at composition or arrangement, the photographer was content to "shoot" at anything that happened to be in focus—or out—and let it go at that. Nobody took the art very seriously—it was merely a new fad that was warranted to make a lot of money for the man who ran the reel.

Nobody considered it an art at all except one or two men with a vision. One of these far-seeing geniuses is David Wark Griffith, who has perhaps done more than any one other person to place the motion picture on the high pinnacle where it belongs.

There is so much beauty that is purely pictorial in his latest production, "Broken Blossoms," that the lover of pictures would do well to go to see it even if he is not interested in the drama. One picture after the other, scores of them, bring their poignant beauty to the spectator in quick succession, until he is almost overwhelmed by his largess. Here are refinements of tones and values that are beyond the brush of the most expert technician among painters—for that subtle maker of beauty, light, had it all his own way in their making.

I don't know how David Wark Griffith got his effects—I don't want to know—I am content to see, and enjoy unquestioningly, the fleeting gallery of exquisite pictures that he has given us. To inquire too curiously would be like tearing the petals of the rose to discover the secret of their scent.

Dan Sayre Groesbeck.

The exhibition of war-time sketches from Russia that Gunner Dan Sayre Groesbeck brought with him on his return, and that have been showing at the Kamp gallery for the past week, are about to be transferred to the Alexandria Hotel, where they will remain for some weeks.

It is one of the most remarkable collection of sketches ever brought to Los Angeles. Added interest comes from the fact that the artist was born and educated in Pasadena, and at one time, early in his career, was cartoonist on one of the Los Angeles newspapers.

The sketches are in pastel, crayon and charcoal, and their vitality and beauty place them on a level with the colored cartoons of Frank Brangwyn—whose work, indeed, they remind one of, though they are in no sense imitative.

Artistic Photographs.

An exhibition of forty-eight works in pictoral photography by Jane Reece of Dayton, O., has just closed in the small print gallery at Exposition Park. No finer collection of photographs from one hand has ever been shown in Los Angeles. Miss Reece is an imaginative poet, and the charm of some of her portraits, notably those that have haunting suggestions of beautiful old steel prints, is beyond praise.

"California Southland."

Several copies of California Southland, published and edited in Pasadena by Mabel Urmy Sears, lie on our desk. From the standpoints of literature, art and typography this publication is almost without a rival, and as an "appreciation" of Southern California it does work that is far-reaching and of tremendous importance. Its contributors, artists and writers, are among the most brilliant men and women in the West. California Southland is issued every two months.

Douglas Donaldson, famous exponent and worker in the art crafts, has just associated himself with the Otis Art Institute as instructor in design, metal work and jewelry. The Otis Art Institute is to be congratulated on an acquisition so brilliant.

Art Lecture.

On Friday, October 17, Francisco Cornejo will lecture before the Friday Morning Club, at the Woman's Club House, on the subject of "Azetc and Maya Civilization," showing a modern application of our American art.

Club Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the California Art Club was held last night at the club rooms, 623 Park View street. Business of importance was transacted. The meeting was at 8 o'clock. The board of control met at 7 o'clock.

Litigation over the estate of Nathaniel Gilman, of Waterville, Me., has lasted for more than fifty years. Mr. Gilman died in 1859 and will was filed for probate in October, 1860, and some form of litigation is still pending. One of the heir was missing for a while. Detectives traveled all over the globe and finally located her in London.

Michael Angelo lived to be 93 years of age, and died then from an accident. He is said to have attributed his unimpaired vitality to eating grapes and drinking wine.

Wilford G. Oakes, of Patton, Me., who is home after a remarkable record of service in the war with a Canadian artillery regiment, has brought with him a photograph of his own grave, with his name showing on the rude slab erected to mark his last resting place. He was shot several times and in one battle lost his identification tag. He has been cited for bravery and has received a medal of honor.

Abraham Goldstone's 4-year-old son, Jackie, of Presque Isle, Me., was mysteriously missing and the police and anxious parents and friends searched the town. He finally came walking home with a railroad tag marked "Stray Freight." The child had been playing in a box car near his home and the car had been picked up by a southbounr freight. Jackie was discovered at Mapleton, eight miles down the line, and sent back by next train.

Mme. Van Bevervoorde will remain here until December, when she will go to Pueblo, Colo., to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Dugan, and later will go to The Hague. She is writing a book of her experiences in East India.

Her husband was one of the bright figures in East Indian history and is called one of the great fighting men of his country. He was the chief figure in the pacification of the Island of Celebes; for this and other military exploits the Queen of Holland conferred upon him the highest decorations. The Holland nation is erecting a bronze statue of the brilliant young military genius in a square on the boulevard named for him in the city of Bandoeng, Java. Mme. Van Bevervoorde is an American girl brought up in Europe, and educated in Germany and Switzerland.

This evening Mrs. W. A. Moses is giving an evening tea for her and will have as guests Col. and Mrs. Seeley W. Mudd, Mr. and Mrs. C. Q. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Lou Dreyfus, Miss Dorothy Brain and Mrs. E. W. Moses.

By Mrs. Banning.

The country home of Mr. and Mrs. Hancock Banning at Wilmington was last evening the scene of a gay and brilliant gathering of young folk, assembled at a supper-dance in honor of Hancock Banning, Jr., and his bride-elect, Miss Florence Johnston.

It was a charming affair, and the half-century-old home, filled with rich furniture and hangings brought from old Virginia, the home of Mrs. Banning's forefathers, was never more lively, for this was the first big affair given there since the beginning of the war. Seventy-five guests, all members of the younger set, were there.

The wedding, which is to take place at St. John's Church on Wednesday evening, is to be one of the important happenings of the fall. Miss Johnston will have as matron of honor, her sister, Mrs. Eugene A. Hawkins Jr. (Margaret May Johnston,) one of the summer's brides. She came down from Berkeley, where Mr. Hawkins is taking his last year in law, to attend the wedding. Mrs. John Macfarland, sister of Mr. Banning, and Miss Byna Kincley, are to be the other bridesmaids.

Young George Hugh Banning will be his brother's best man, and the ushers are to be Chandler Ward, Joseph Brent Banning, Jr., Douglas Van Dyke, Eltinge Brown, John Macfarland and Eugene A. Hawkins, Jr. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Ainslee Kirckhoffer. Afterward there will be a small reception at the home of the bride-to-be's mother, Mrs. William T. Johnston, at which relatives of both families and members of the bridal party are to be the only guests.

Mr. Bullock's Wedding Plans.

The marriage of Mr. John Gillispie Bullock of this city and Mrs. Hugh Wallace of Detroit is one of the interesting affairs set for October 15. It will take place in Detroit, the home of Mrs. Wallace, who is prominent in social circles there. The ceremony will be conducted at 7 o'clock in the evening at Mrs. Wallace's handsome home in Virginia Park. Dr. Joseph Wilson Cochran of the Woodward-Avenue Presbyterian Church will officiate in the presence of members of the immediate families. At 8 o'clock there is to be a small reception.

Prominent Texans Here.

Prominent Texans who have just purchased a home at 1761 North Van Ness avenue, are Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Griffith of Dallas, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sawyer, and their small daughter, Nancy. The Griffiths plan to divide their time equally between Los Angeles and Texas. They have been spending their winters here the past ten years.

Mr. Griffith is a son of the late Gen Griffith of the Confederate Army and Mrs. Griffith is one of the most prominent society and club women of the Lone Star State. She was active in Red Cross and Liberty Loan work. She is vice-president of the Dallas Equal Suffrage Association, member of the Dallas Art Association Board, State chairman of the Kindergarten of Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, and member of the field committee on education for the Young Women's Christian Association, composed of the States of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas. She is a musician of ability also.

Mrs. Sawyer is one of the noted young beauties of the Lone Star State and is well known in New York, where she spent five years with her parents, studying violin with Victor Kuzdo, voice under Dudley Buck and the piano with Mme. Adele Lewing.

Told in Salt Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Blair of Salt Lake, former residents of Los Angeles, announce the engagement of their daughter, Francis Helen, to Mr. John C. Bristow of the legal department of the Standard Oil Company of Shanghai.

The wedding will take place in Shanghai, where the couple will make their home.

Weds New York Girl.

Miss Minnie Pauline Buechner, formerly of New York, became the bride of Carl A. Stine, a young architect of this city, on Wednesday evening at a ceremony performed by Rev. A. E. Michell. After a wedding trip they will reside in Hollywood.

Back in Town.

Mrs. E. K. Sibley and her sister, Miss Adelaide Weley, and her niece, Mrs. A. D. Herman, have returned from Oceanside, where they passed the summer at their beach cottage. Mrs. Sibley has sold her home at 611 South Ardmore street and is now residing at 643 South Serrano avenue.

Miss Crowell's Engagement Told.

A tea given by Mrs. W. Crowell of 902 South Alvarado street for Mrs. Stanley Tutton, who is leaving for her new ranch home near Fullerton, provided opportunity for announcement of the engagement of Miss Ethel Mae Crowell and Mr. Kurt Edel of Buffalo, N. Y.

The wedding is set for October 25. There were sixteen guests. Mrs. Walter Lacy (Florence Crowell,) a bride of a few months, assisted her mother and made known the news, bringing in a huge bouquet of orchids to which a beautiful diamond engagement ring was tied. This made explanations necessary.

For Mrs. Bissell.

Miss Averice Allen of Pasadena is to give a tea for Mrs. Lee T. Bissell (Beatrice Busch,) who has just returned from an extended honeymoon trip.

Mrs. Bryner.

Mrs. Richard Bryner is planning a tea for tomorrow afternoon.

Claire Woolwine Weds.

In Ashland, O., Claire Woolwine of this city, formerly deputy District Attorney under his cousin, Dist.-Atty. Thomas Lee Woolwine, was married yesterday to Miss Portia Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Clark of that city. Mr. and Mrs. Woods R. Woolwine of this city went East to attend the wedding. The bride is well known in social circles here, having visited here often. After a wedding trip Mr. Woolwine will bring his bride to Los Angeles.

From Bay City.

Miss Natalie Campbell, whose marriage to Mr. Frederick Wilson Prichett is to take place here on Friday, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday. With her were her uncle and aunt, Col. and Mrs. Sidney Cloman, and Miss Helen Garrett, who is to be her maid of honor. The party arrived from the Bay City by motor and is at the Alexandria.

Because the family is in mourning for Miss Campbell's brother, Frank Campbell, Mrs. E. Avery McCarthy has been obliged to cancel her tea for Wednesday planned in honor of Miss Campbell. The wedding will take place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Campbell.

Wedding Anniversary.

On the eve of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, Dr. and Mrs. James Walter Heustis of 418 South Normandie avenue entertained 300 guests at a brilliant reception. During the day friends sent in hundreds of flowers, which turned the entire house into a floral bower.

Dr. and Mrs. Heustis were assisted by Mrs. Emma Cole Brown, Mrs. Donald McDonald, Mrs. Theodore Roberts, Mrs. Kenneth McGaffey, Mrs. Margaret Hamm, Mme. Cornelia Rider Possart, Mrs. Louis D. Morton, Mrs. John L. Vallely, Mrs. Grove C. Fiske, Misses Charlotte Brooks, Mary Spellacy, Marcia Morton, Olive Waring, Effie Bailey and others.

Mrs. Heustis, who is an officer of the League of American Pen Women, recently organized an auxiliary at San Diego and the auxiliary sent a representative with its greetings. The Southern California Woman's Press Club also sent greetings and a handsome gift and the couple received telegrams of congratulations from all over the United States.

Here from Boston.

Mrs. Mark Keppel Dowling and her 10-year-old son, Mark Keppel Dowling, Jr., of Boston, have taken a house on Ardmore avenue for the winter. Mr. Dowling will join his family a little later. Transferred to Coast.

Friends of Mrs. John E. Hemphill, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Frederick A. Klamp of 1810 Vista street, Hollywood, most of the summer, will learn with pleasure that her husband, Col. Women's All-Silk Stockings —Stockings have always played a most important part in the history of dress since the good old days of the "doublet and silken hose." Then, as now, they were carefully made and considered.

—These of the well-known Black Agate brand, at Hamburger's, would rival those of the other days in color and texture. Heavy ingrain, all silk stockings and full fashioned, now 2.35 a pair, or 3 pairs for 6.00.

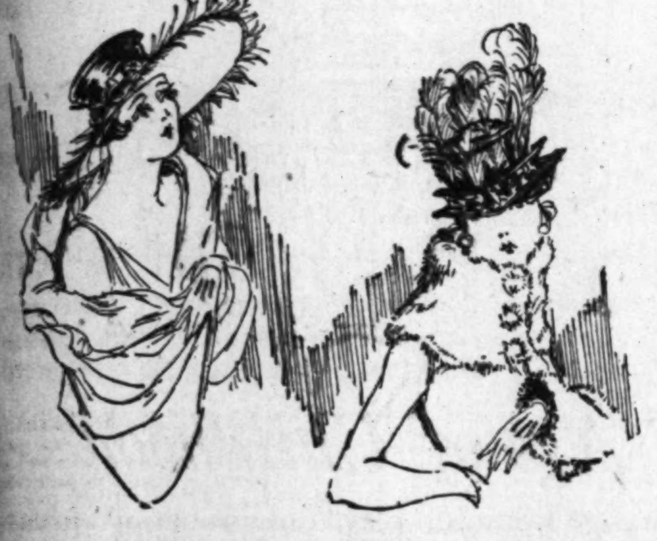
The Opening of the Social Season



Hamburger's Millinery of Distinction for the Social Affairs of Autumn and Winter!

—Designed to play an important part in the pretty frivols of social life, Hamburger's Millinery never have shown rarer charm. Some of the wide-dreaming hats of black seem to linger on the border-ground between vision and fancy, for they have that illusive beauty which show the master touch of artist designers. Their wide brims, for, of course, the fashionable evening hat is broad of brim, seems purposely created for the fashionable social occasions.

Evening Hats!

—The designers seemed to have been in a capricious mood when they evolved these hats of black velvet. The spectral luster of jet, fantastic monkey fur, the deep black of velvet, combined with a pink-tinted, silver-starred facing — and wide, of course—aptly describes the evening hat illustrated.

—Evening Hats range from 22.50 to 35.00.

Afternoon Hats

—For afternoon one may choose the most becoming hat, whether it is large, medium or small. Hats that flare in cloth of gold—drooping brims weighted with a tassel of jet or chenille—hats with soft velvet petals framing the face — all adaptations of leading New York and Paris designers. Priced 17.50 to 27.50.

Costume Hats

—What wondrous visions the designers had when they created these glowing costume hats. They took the colors of the nasturtium, the plumage of the pheasant, the coat of the ermine, beaver and squirrel and made hats that will transform the costume into a mode of beauty. Such a variety of colors and styles, too, 15.00 to 22.50.

Wool Jersey, a New Note In Fashion's Blouses

—Jersey is a never-ending source of delight to women—and now it has taken to forming blouses, practical and elaborate,—has taken the humble yarn, and the aristocratic silk and made embroidery of beautiful designs for trimmings. They come in the casaque style in the newest suit shades, 25.00.

Blouses of Georgette and Paulette, $25

—Beads, wool and silk embroidery play a leading role when it comes to the trimming of these blouses that are just now basking in Fashion's favor. They are so fascinating in their short and long-sleeved models that one offers a passing wish that they will continue forever in favor. Sizes 34 to 44.

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)

Fashion's Own Silhouette in Royal Regent Corsets

—It need not be a tragic time in a woman's life when the soft natural curves of her figure are lost. The new autumn modes of the Royal Regent will gently mold the figures into its former symmetry and charm.

—They combine comfort, perfection of design with beautiful materials—pink brocades, satins and durable coutils. These come in both the front and back lace models. Our competent corsetieres will fit you properly. Prices range from 2.50 to 15.00.

—One model, 787, made for the average figure, low bust and long hip, substantially boned and made of handsome brocade—sizes 23 to 30—price 5.00. (Hamburger's — Second Floor — Monday)

Women's Silk Tuxedo Coats

—Women would never dream that such adorable soft silken things could be so very practical and warm! It is because they are made of such fine quality silk woven so firmly as to give the greatest warmth.

—Just to say that they are pink, or green, turquoise, terra cotta, doesn't give you the full idea of their glorious coloring. Tan, navy, black and white are also here, all with sash. Plain and fancy stitches—in sizes 34 to 44—32.50.

(Hamburger's — Second Floor — Monday)

Petticoats of Silk Jersey

—Fashion has designed so many of these lovely petticoats in the most colorful accordian plaitings, deep ruffles and bands of embroidery in pretty contrasting shades. Most unusual values as you will note when you see these at 10.00!

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)

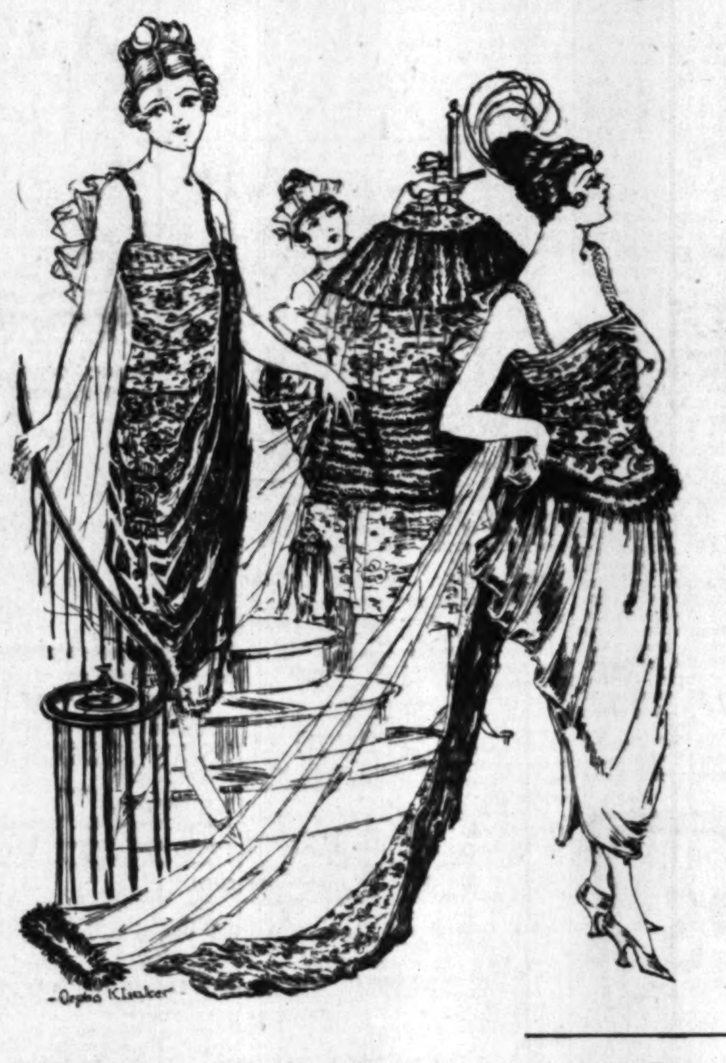
Women's Evening Footwear

—The accessories of the costumes are as important as the costume itself and should be chosen with as much care as to detail and fitness.

—Satin pumps and oxfords shown at Hamburger's have the cachet of Fashion this fall! They are dainty necessities for the soft afternoon frock. The long narrow toe vamp, fine quality satin and Louis XV heels are smart and pleasing to all women. Pumps, 8.00—Oxfords, 8.50.

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)

Evening and Afternoon Gowns and Fashion's Wraps of the New Mode!



—Instinctive with the beauty and glory of a never-ending fairy-tale, mystical with rippling whispers of airy tulle, and sparkling with iridescent crystals and sequins prismatic in hue, Hamburger's evening dance gowns meet with enthusiasm from maid and matron alike.

And no less appreciated are the evening gowns!

—These reflect stately beauty, rich with metallic brocades, which under the influence of the evening light take on a dream-like appearance. One is wondrous in draped velvet of deep peony red, and out of the peony velvet folds rises a bodice of pale gold. Another clings in the softness of emerald green satin with a brocaded bodice edged with fur, and not satisfied with one train, it takes two, one of brocade, the other of tulle weighed with fur.

Rich brocades, subtle fabrics, generous fur collars seek to make the wraps for fall most entrancing.

—Wherever women of discrimination foregather you will see wraps from Hamburger's. No more faultless wraps could be created by designers for they have fashioned something perfect, something beautiful when they made these. It would take one with a gift of a bard to describe these sumptuous wraps and do justice to their loveliness. Heavy brocades encrusted with silver and gold combined with deep bands of fur fashion some—duvetyne and embroidery make others beautiful—and gay, decorative linings add their charm to all.

Tailleur Suits for Autumn

—Just a word in passing about the tailleur suit—altho' it would take more than a word to describe this most valued part of a woman's wardrobe.

—Cut on lines that depict the chicness of the Parisienne Hamburger's suits show a varied wealth of styles and fabrics. The most glorious of weaves, tinseltone, peach bloom, duvet de laine and a host of others, woven in colors that blend with the softness of Autumn days—such are the suits at Hamburger's—35.00 to 250.00.

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)

The Charm of Soft, Luxurious Furs!

—Furs that will form the most effective barriers against the chills of wintertime. What more chivalrous use could the coat of the mole, squirrel, mink or Kolinsky be put to than this—to keep lovely woman warm?

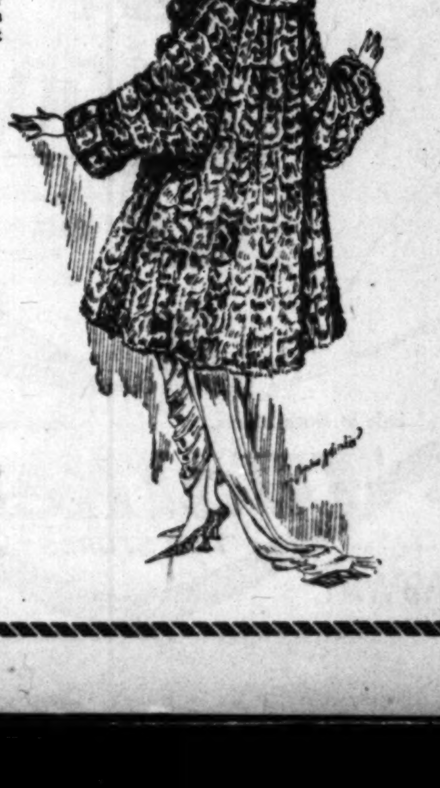
Hamburger's Fur Wraps

—The little moles that formed this sumptuous wrap pictured, turned their backs on one another and thus formed panels of fur, one pelt running this way, one that, so they created the most beautiful of coats for evening wear. The deep collar and wide kimono sleeves are new—priced 950.00.

Hamburger's Fur Scarfs

—These show coquettish ways, for they usually snug the chin. Of course, if one would rather, they may wear them hanging gracefully from the shoulders. But wherever and however these fox, lynx, ermine and mink scarfs from Hamburger's are worn they give an air of beauty—lend an air of elegance. (Hamburger's furs are popular because they are chosen with care by an expert as to proper curing and blending.)

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)



The Silks! The Velvets! The Fall Woolens!

—When one wanders down Hamburger's aisles of silks a-mornings, and sees them drenched in autumn sunlight, one conjures up visions of dazzling gardens enriched in the colors of heliotrope, camellias, peonies, roses and pansies, set off by the darker greens and browns of the foliage.

It does not take much imagery to visualize them into treasured Autumn frocks. And is doesn't require much perspective to see the velvets and woolens of Hamburger's fashioned into the most adored of suits and coats.

Satins that Embrace a Host of Dream-frocks

A nuptial announcement which created a ripple of surprise was that of Miss Luella Eaton and Ed Gastanau, which was solemnized at the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. A. T. Van Arnom, pastor of the Ontario Methodist Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Eaton of 250 East Sixth street, and is a popular member of the Loyal Philathea class of the First Methodist Church of this city. Both in church circles and socially, this class has long held the record as Cupid's favorite. Of late there have been various showers and prenuptial gatherings for class members. However, Miss Eaton gave no hint of her own appraoching nuptials. On Sunday the young people slipped quietly away to Ontario and though the absence of Miss Eaton from the class was noted, still there was no suspicion that she was being married. The bride wore a smartly tailored suit of blue with hat to match. Mr. Gastanau has been employed for some time in the offices of the Southern Counties Gas Company. Upon their return from a honeymoon trip the couple will reside on South Parcells street.

Not until announcement cards were received on Tuesday did it become known that the marriage of Miss Mildred Whipp and Robert Graf had been solemnized in Santa Barbara on July 28, Rev. Stansifer, pastor of the Santa Barbara Christian Church, officiating. The young people did not even take their relatives into their confidence, the bride not wanting to dissapoint her father, who had planned a long eastern trip for the two. Thus the marriage came first and then came the trip, and after the unsuspected bride not wanting to disappoint her ment was made. Mrs. Graf is the daughter of John F. Whipp. Both are graduates of Pomona High School in the class of 1912. The bride later attended a finishing school in Bethany, Kan., where she specialized in music and dramatic art. Mr. Graf is a graduate of the University of California, class of 1918. He was one of the star football players on the varsity team. Reich-Lievre
REICH AND LEE-A-VER

Bill Barnum said it

Exclusiveness, which is not exclusive, but which makes you pay more, is one important item not to be overlooked when buying furs.

This EIGHT store INSTITUTION, well known for its popular priced merchandise, its everlastingly BETTER VALUES, sells fine Furs in the same liberal and BETTER VALUE giving way as it does dresses, for instance.

There is no mystery in the Fur business, no more than there is in the selling of Evening Gowns. An expert who concentrates on the purchasing of the best skins in the market, in quantity lots to supply EIGHT stores, is constantly on the watch to give Reich and Lievre customers the best there is at lower prices.

Furs here are called by their right names. Furs here are guaranteed to be as represented. Furs here are guaranteed to be sold for less than anywhere else in town. Any woman can tell the quality of a piece of fur at a glance. Do not be deceived into believing that it takes an "exclusive" Fur store to give you a square deal. Compare BEFORE you buy.

Announcing October's Great Demonstration of "BETTER VALUES"

"Tell the women of Los Angeles about these SILKS and their prices and you'll find your store crowded with buyers"

—A big eastern merchant who was paying our store a visit last week was being shown the merchandise which we had made ready for this first Monday of the great October Demonstration of Better Values! He was enthusiastic about all of it—often commenting on the fact that it was ridiculous to see merchandise so cheap—but his interest seemed to focus on the silks—for, as he said—"Your sale prices are in many cases about what the manufacturers are asking today—

—We wish there was room to tell all the story of about the silks that are here but perhaps the few items we do print will do quite as well as a hundred—for these are but typical of the others—

More than a dozen shades in CREPE DE CHINE at $2.35

—Silks that you'll call "Better Values," when you have an opportunity to compare them with those about town!
—All of them are full 40 inches wide—

40-in. CREPE METEOR that is rich and heavy as can be at $3.35

—More than one woman has taken occasion to comment on the unusualness of this silk and the lowness of the price—
—There's a good range of colorings—

40-in. CHARMEUSE---and it will be a mighty surprise at $2.95

—Nearly every color that you could wish for, except navy, is included in this Better Value Offering—
—It will pay you to buy liberally—

Silk and wool make up a wonderful POPLIN at $2.35

—We know of no such silk as this in all Los Angeles! It's a good heavy weight, just right for winter frocks—
—Nearly a score of colorings included—

We've just nine pieces of 36-in. CHARMEUSE to go at $2.19

—Each piece is in a different shade so early comers will find a good range of colors to choose from——Late buyers are apt to be disappointed.

Shop where you will, you'll find no such TAFFETAS at $1.95

—While the quality cannot be emphasized too strongly still we want the fact that there are more than fifty shades to be impressed upon every woman who reads this!

You know SATIN DE LUXE and what you save at $2.75

—It should be marked much more than $2.75 according to today's cost, but we bought them on a contract entered into a year ago—so the price remains $2.75.

Have you dreamed of buying a 40-in black TAFFETA at $1.85

—It's a taffeta that you would have been glad to buy at $1.85 even in the days when silks were selling at the price of today's cottons.

27 & 32-in CORDUROYS are indeed Better Values at $1.35

—Included are rose, dark brown, navy, purple, lavender, taupe, turquoise and Havana—some in narrow—some in wide wales. Exceptional at $1.35.

Kerami Plushes are deserving of a headline at this price, $15.98

—Just two shades—a rich taupe and a mottled brown! Women who know Kerami Plushes and today's price will buy it liberally for coats and scarfs—

44-in. SUITING VELVET will attract attention Monday at $4.50

—A rich, luxurious fabric in the most wanted shades of brown, navy, black, green, Damson and mahogany! We think it will go flying at $4.50 yard.

42-in. CHIFFON VELVETS one of Monday's star items at $7.50

—Beautiful, non-crushable velvets that could 'most pull through a ring! The color range includes exposition purple, navy, nigger brown, taupe, overseas blue and wistaria.

Second Floor—Jacoby's

—This October Demonstration of Better Values is not a sale!

—It is an event of much greater import than what is commonly termed a sale—
—It has four important functions to perform—i. e.—

—To bring the best and newest merchandise from the four corners of the country—
—To bring savings in the way of special purchases—

—To emphasize the completeness of our regular stocks and the lowness of our regular prices—

—To put stress on what we are pleased to call the "homey" spirit of our store and the helpful service that is winning so many friends—

—This is not a one-day event!
—While it is true that many very sensational offerings will be offered Monday and probably sold out on that day—still there will be others a-plenty to take their place on the days that are to follow—

—Come Monday, if you can—but remember that every day during October will be mighty interesting from whatever standpoint you look at it—

"My Heart Stood Still, And Then--"

In love with a girl, fighting for that love through every vicissitude, misunderstood, maligned by enemies, despised by those I have cared for, I find myself at last, alone with the girl of my dreams. Where? In a seething, raging sea, with the waves rising high as mountains and the skies angrily flashing lightning! There, 'mid the wrath of a tempestuous sea, with the ship we had swam from just sinking from sight, a scant fifty yards away, we met again, face to face! There are moments in every one's life when all the past of eternity seems to rise up before one's eyes—there, before my eyes, the girl clung with death-like tenacity to a bit of wreckage. The fury of the elements was unleashed, with chaos reigning supreme! Then I thought of a wonderful day of a Spring not so many years before, and the tears rolled down my cheeks, mingling my anguish with that of the sea. Off in the dim distance I saw the faint outlines of a straggling coast line. Every few moments a flash of lighting would illumine all, and I would see the girl, still clinging to the bit of wreckage. Then I prayed, and with a wild cry of determination, swam toward the girl. I knew that never in my life had my heart glowed with as burning a love as at this supreme moment. I reached her, and just then saw a man swimming toward us. Then I saw the man's face. I knew what to expect, and in the twinkling of an eye, as the lightning flashed again—

Opening of New Tally Theater with "Hoodlum."

"Life Line," "Perfect Lover," "Other Half" on Bills.

It is difficult to select your pet picture among such an array of happy features as bedeck the gay Rialto this week. It looks like the reopening of the fall season all over again, with a number of shows registering as topliners.

The first attraction at T. L. Tally's newly acquired theater will be "The Hoodlum," in which Mary Pickford plays the star role.

Maurice Tourneer's exciting romantic melodrama, "The Life Line," is to show. Eugene O'Brien will be a bright special luminary in "A Perfect Lover," a far distant relative of "The Great Lover," no doubt.

A Brentwood production with Florence Vidor and ZaSu Pitts is billed in "The Other Half."

Alice Brady, Dustin Farnum, "Bill" Hart, Charlie Ray, Bessie Barriscale, Alice Joyce and Evelyn Nesbit are among the other bright lights of the week.

A new thriller, "Loot," is to make its appearance.

The holdovers will be "Broken Blossoms," the Griffith photoplay, now in its fourth week, and "Mothers of Men."

Tally's Kinema.

Mary Pickford has been selected to open Tally's Kinema Theater today in her second new play from her own studios, "The Hoodlum." This is a First National attraction taken from Julie M. Lippman's story "Burkses' Amy," scenario by Bernard McConville, and Miss Pickford in characterizing the role of Amy almost travels incognito.

The story has to do with the temperamental grand-daughter of Alexander Guthrie who loves her father better than anyone, and for whom she leaves her palatial home for a forsaken room in Craigen street, a locality not as much under the sun as it should be. Amy undergoes a complete metaphorsis and in order to learn to love the people of her surroundings becomes "one of them."

Putting a tight lid on French heels, sport models, six maids and two chauffeurs, she becomes a professoress of crap-shooting, the conductor of a hurdy-gurdy, a chambermaid for bums, an enemy to soap and water, and the undisputed champion of Craigen street.

The star is supported by Ralph Lewis, Kenneth Harlan, Melvin Messenger, Dwight Crittenden, Andrew Arbuckle, Max Davidson and others. Sidney Franklin directed.

The opening of Tally's Kinema is to be further enhanced by the prologue, for which special scenery and an entire new stage had to be constructed. The Kinema concert orchestra and Leonard Clark, organist, have planned the musical programme.

Grauman's.

Maurice Tourneur's production, "The Life Line," is to have its premier Monday at Grauman's. "The Life Line" is said to be an attractive love story unfolding against a sinister background of the slums of London, with a terrible shipwreck off Southampton coast as a feature. The cast includes Lew Cody, Pauline Starke, Jack Holt, Seena Owen, Wallace Beery and Tully Marshall.

Sid Grauman has speeded west from New York purposely to confer with Mr. Tourneur on presentation and to also direct the mammoth spectacle act, "Unveiling the Temple of Love," in collaboration with H. S. Linne, his art director. "Unveiling the Temple of Love" is to be the costliest and most spectacular act yet presented on Grauman's stage, it is stated. Thirty people are to appear, including dancers of the temple, water carriers, beggars, priests, musette players and other East Indian characters. The scene is a street in Delhi, India. The musical theme will be Rimsky-Korsakow's "Scherezade," used by the Diaghleiff Russian Ballet. Grauman's Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Arthur Kay, has prepared a medley overture for the general performance. C. Sharpe-Minor will play his own composition, "The Cuckoo," as well as "The Clock Shop." Other typical Grauman numbers will complete the programme.

Clune's Broadway.

"The Other Half" is the title of King Vidor's latest production, which will open at Clune's Broadway today.

The story is built largely on the old adage that half the world doesn't know how the other half lives. The plot derives its interest from two distinct and different sets of characters. There is not a single hint of hatred in the picture, but a heart grip, a suspicion of tears and a human sympathy.

The play was written and directed by King W. Vidor, creator of "The Turn of the Road," which achieved such phenomenal success. Florence Vidor returns to the screen after a year's absence, taking the leading role of Katherine Boone, the rich girl whose eyes are opened to the hard condition of the poor.

Zasu Pitts will portray Jennie Jones, more familiarly known in the picture as "The Jazz Kid," a laundry drudge. Others in the cast include Charles Meredith, David Butler and Thomas Jefferson. "The Other Half" is a Brentwood production.

Of especial interest is the last episode of the Houdini serial, "The Master Mystery." In this final chapter the identity of the Automaton will be solved. Houdini will be seen in new feats of self-liberation.

Superba.

"Loot," a new Universal feature, opens at the Superba Theater today. The story is adapted from the well-known Saturday Evening Post mystery story, written by Arthur Somers Roche.

The workings of New York's underworld are depicted by Director William C. Dowlan in a six-reel drama.

The Shadow, portrayed by Joseph Girard, is one of the big characters. He is known and feared throughout America as the master criminal brain, and he has surrounded himself with a daring and lawless band.

A young Englishman, Hildreth, played by Darrell Foss, is sent to America to receive the famous Arabin jewels. But the Shadow has planned otherwise, and it is his wish to blot out Hildreth's life. He very nearly accomplishes his purpose, but the strange fascination which Morn Light, the musical comedy actress, holds for Hildreth, guides the young Englishman to safety. Ora Carew portrays the role of Morn Light.

In addition to "Loot" the Superba will present the Rainbow Comedy, "An Oriental Romeo."

Victory.

Evelyn Nesbit, is the star of "A Fallen Idol," which opens today at the Victory Theater.

In this play Miss Nesbit departs somewhat from her previous roles. She appears as a Hawaiian princess in an elaborate tropical environment. The romantic story takes the beholder from the music studios of California to the primitive huts of a typical Hawaiian village.

Among the incidents are a fight on ship-board, the Princess' attempted suicide, and her sounding of the ship's siren to defeat the villain and his equally villainous crew.

Herbert Rawlinson appears in another detective adventure, written by Arthur B. Reeve.

Quinn's Rialto.

Many stories, thrillingly romantic have been written upon incidents of the time when the old Santa Fe trail was the only path to the land of the setting sun. It was a period when men and women led rugged lives with the thought that death might come to them at any moment. It is such a story in which William S. Hart will be seen at the Rialto starting today. "Wagon Tracks," by C. Gardner Sullivan, embraces the elements of an enthralling frontier narrative and the characters are exceptionally well chosen Another feature of the Rialto programme will be "Treating 'Em Rough," a Mack Sennett comedy. Louise Fanzenda and "Teddy," the great Dane, are the stars and others are Jack Akroyd, Pat Kelly, Baldy Belmont and Ed Kennedy.

Tally's Broadway.

Alice Brady in her latest success, "The World to Live In," will be seen at Tally's, starting tomorrow. In this, her latest picture, she is said to excel any of her photoplays since "Redhead." In the role of a "tinpanner," a girl who looks like real metal but rings hollow, who takes everything and gives nothing, Miss Brady has an acceptable role.

C. Percival Garratt, who plays the organ, and also wields the bation at Tally's, has arranged a musical programme of excellence.

Alhambra.

Dustin Farnum will be seen at the Alhambra, starting today, in his latest starring vehicle, "A Man's Fight." Spectacular scenes, together with a hitherto unscreened setting of the beautiful San Juan Capistrano Mission add to the attractiveness of the play. The cast includes J. Barney Sherry, Lois Wilson, Margaret Wallace and Bert Appling. Added attractions will be on the programme.

Symphony.

Bessie Barriscale will appear in "Her Purchase Price" today at the Symphony Theater.

In this feature she takes the role of an Oriental pearl of paradise who is bought by an English lord, later becomes his wife and is introduced into London aristrocracy.

When her husband loses his fortume in speculation, the pearl, in order to get the money to save him, offers to sell herself to a rich bachelor-duke. And the dramatic events of the story rest on this situation.

Bessie camouflages her golden tresses, with a black wig in this play and wears some novel dress creations.

Palace.

Alice Joyce, Vitagraph star, gives an interesting exhibition of womanly strength in one of the dramatic scenes of her latest picture, "The Winchester Woman," to show at the Palace Theater, beginning today.

The star's physical prowess, hitherto unsuspected, comes into play when she hurls from her a large-statured man who is attempting to make her a prisoner. She manages to overcome her assailant long enough to lock him in a room and escape.

Miss Joyce plays the role of Agatha Winchester, who has been tried and acquitted of murder in Nashville, Tenn., and who changes her name to Anne Wharton and starts a new life in a Long Island town.

Here she falls in love with and gains the affection of a fine, high-minded character, and is in a fair way to win happines when a creature who has known her in the past, appears and attempts to force his attentions upon her by means of the threat of exposure.

De Luxe.

Those who understand cards, and especially the national game of poker, are going to get a good laugh out of the hand which Charles Ray plays in his comedy, "Bill Henry," at the De Luxe today and tomorrow. Mr. Ray is seen as a country boy who is inveigled into a game by some "wise" traveling salesman. It develops that he isn't much a boob and when he lays down the winning hand he rakes in a jackpot big enough to let him do the thing he wants—buy the seemingly worthless piece of land owned by the girl he loves, who is in desperate straits for want of a chance to sell.

Clune's Auditorium.

With indications of making an attendance record, D. W. Griffith's "Broken Blossoms" will begin its fourth week at Clune's Auditorium tomorrow afternoon.

Those who have been seeking something in motion pictures that contained the merit of novelty have found it in "Broken Blossoms." Mr. Griffith has said that it is only a simple story, but the way he has told it on the screen has made sophisticated reviewers hunt new adjectives to extol its beauty and power.

Garden.

Due to requests from some of the prominent women's organizations, the management of the Garden Theater has decided to show "Mothers of Men" one more week, starting today. The suffrage appeal of the story is described as right in line with the campaign being waged by Mrs. Abbie Scott Baker, in which she hopes to bring about a special session of the Legislature to ratify the suffrage amendment giving the women the right to vote at the next Presidential election.

A special morning performance has been booked for the coming week.

Willis Robards, producer of this screen appeal, has promised to appear in person at the Garden and relate the circumstances and conditions which prompted the produc-

"Prince There Was" to Play Here this Week.

Runs of "Civilian Clothes" and "Danger" Continue.

Dancing, Comedy and Thrills at Vaudeville Houses.

A George Cohan show heads the roster of attractions along Playland Row this week. It arrives here, with the meed of New York and Chicago approval, as one of the best shows presented by the noted playmaker. It has the novelty of story and care-free comedy of lines, while the cast is said to be of an excellent standard.

The stock bills remain unchanged. "Civilian Clothes" enters its fifteenth week, and "Danger" its fourth.

The Orpheum bill is headed by a big variety dance act, while Pantages has several unique offerings, and the Hippodrome a mystery photoplay as an attraction. The Burbank cast includes severi new players.

Mason.

George M. Cohan's "A Prince There Was" will be presented at the Mason Operahouse tomorrow night.

"A Prince There Was" has had long runs in New York and Chicago. The idea of the piece was suggested by the novel, "Enchanted Hearts," written by Darragh Aldrich, and a unique fact comes to the front when it is stated that Mr. Cohan made this dramatization without ever having read the book. It all came about because an unsuccessful effort was made to put Miss Aldrich's story into play form and Mr. Cohan having been called on to give first aid to the wounded, sat down and wrote an entirely new play, using the story as a basis.

The plot of "A Prince There Was" tells of a young New York millionaire who has become so saturated with the life he has led as one of the idle rich that he has become thoroughly disgusted, not only with himself but the world in general. He seeks to gain forgetfulness of all his fancied ills in strong drink, and at the beginning of the play he is found in the more or less pleasant task of "alcoholicing" himself into an early grave.

A new light dawns upon his vision when a small girl visits him at his apartments in the Plaza Hotel in New York, who has somehow confounded him with one of the fairy princes of whom she has been reading in her story books. She is a diminutive drudge in a west side boarding house, and comes to him to secure his aid in rescuing a fairy princess in the person of one of the boarders, who is a magazine writer, but who is a victim of the unfeeling and unsympathetic prejudices of the book publishers. This sounds like an adventure to the prince, and he takes a chance on the girl's story, which brings on a number of amusing situations.

The company includes among its members James Gleason, Ena Lewis Wiley, William Slider, Josephine Williams, John Bedouin, Lucille Webster, John E. Sanders, Adelaide Wilson, James Bradbury, Jr., Marie Nelson, Joseph Oddo, Will I. Goodwin and Muriel Nelson.

Orpheum.

Bessie Clayton, favorite American dancer, will head the bill opening tomorrow afternoon at the Orpheum. She will present a group of Terpsichoreans beside herself, each previously a headliner. While Miss Clayton herself is a typical premiere in toe dancing and ballet work, the Cansinos, Elisa and Eduardo, are popular through their presentation of the dances of Spain. James Clemons, another member of the company, is a well-known eccentric dancer, while Arthur Gordon and Wilbert Dunn are experts at team dancing. Miss Clayton has embellished the act with special settings and costumes. The remainder of the bill includes Boyce Combe, the English comedian, the only holdover; Lydia Barry, in songs and stories; "Levitation," with Prof. J. Edmund Magee, a travesty; Will J. Ward, with his five symphony girls; the Moriarity Sisters, in a musical act; Vera Berliner, violiniste; Ray W. Snow, in "You Rock 'Em," with Narine Velmer, and the Royal Gascoignes, presenting Bertha the summersaulting dog.

Morosco.

The fifteenth week of "Civilian Clothes," the comedy by Thompson Buchanan, starts with today's matinee at the Morosco.

Although 170,000 persons within and about Los Angeles have already seen the play, the unprecedented demand continues, and Oliver Morosco has wired his local managers to withhold the fall and winter Morosco programme until this demand has abated.

There is no telling just how long this play will run. It had been planned to terminate the run at the end of the eleventh week, but there were so many calls for at least an additional week that the plans were changed, and "Civilian Clothes" was allowed to continue.

Majestic.

Formally introducing Miss Evelyn Varden in the leading role of Bayard Veiller's "Danger," the fourth week of the drama opens tonight at the Majestic Theater. Arthur Allard will be seen in the part of Templar, the district attorney; J. H. Elliot as Judge Westcott, and Morris Foster as Hartigan, the convict. The revised version of "Danger," the form in which A. H. Woods will present it in New York, will be presented.

As "Danger" is primarily a woman's play, for the leading role was written for Margaret Wycherly, Miss Varden has an opportunity to display her talents. Since her unheralded appearance in the part last Tuesday night, due to an emergency, Bayard Veiller has been visibly delighted with the typification she gives of Elizabeth Smith, the regenerated crook.

Edward J. Peil and George C. Pearce, in the profiteer roles; Harry Garrity, in the part of the Sing Sing warden, a delineation which GERMANS ANXIOUS TO SELL WAR MATERIALS.

NEWSPAPERS COMPLAIN THAT FARMERS ARE NOT GETTING BAGGAGE WAGONS.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN GERMANY, Aug. 22.—How to dispose of war material worth many millions of marks is a problem confronting German military authorities. Press reports from various parts of Germany indicate that great masses of guns and other war material are rusting on old drill grounds or are being sold for junk.

Illustrated papers recently published a photograph of an enormous stack of shell-damaged cannon which were to be broken up in Westphalia for the metal. Newspapers say that on the old artillery drill ground at Oldenburg there are more than 1000 wagons and guns in various stages of wreck, awaiting purchasers. Some of the editors have been demanding that something be done at once to get old baggage wagons and other former war vehicles into the hands of the farmers who are in need of wagons.

Article 169 of the peace treaty states that "within two months of the coming into force of the present treaty German arms, munitions and war material, including anti-aircraft material, existing in Germany in excess of the quantities allowed, must be surrendered to the governments of the principal Allied and associated powers, to be destroyed or rendered useless."

Germany newspapers say that vast stocks of wagons, field ranges and guns and other material are stored at military posts throughout the country and that the German officials are making no effort to dispose of them.

BRITON SEES IN "DRY" AMERICA A HARD RIVAL

ARCHDEACON SAYS PROHIBITION IS IMPROVING UNITED STATES COMMERCIALLY.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Britons are deeply interested in what is called the "American prohibition experiment," and every published statement concerning the situation and the attitude of the American public toward the new order is eagerly read.

The latest addition to such contributions is by the Archdeacon of Warrington, Canon Howson, who has just returned from New York, and who unqualifiedly endorsed the law. His impressions, concisely stated, are as follows:

Prohibition has come to stay in the States. Those most opposed to it accept the inevitable. Those who have paved the way for it are facing law enforcement. A very large majority, to judge by hearsay and eyesight, agree that it is the best thing for America. The threats of 'no beer, no work' and 'riot and revolution' are empty vaporings, and the work of the States and cities is going on unimpaired. Smuggling of liquor will go on for a time, but by January the government will have the situation well in hand. Prosperity is the result. Instead of saloons at the corners of the streets, banks are appearing. Happiness in the home, hitherto unknown, has apeared on every hand and children and young people are having their opportunity.

"A dry America will be a terrific rival to countries which are wet," says the Archdeacon. "All business men had better recognize this if they have not already done so. Dryness does not kill joy. I voyaged on a dry ship and a wet one and the experience was illuminating. I have realized the marvelous power of whole-hearted enthusiastic organization as never before.

"America," added the Archdeacon, "has no desire to thrust herself or her views on Great Britain. She has discovered a good thing. She only wants to tell the good news and if in any way she can help progress, she is there to render that help."

KEEPING THEM ON THE FARM.

It was feared in many quarters that farmer boys who had been in service in the army or navy would not return to the farm. Before the war the movement away from the farm had become one of our national problems. It looked as if the sudden and complete breakaway from farm work to military service covering a period anywhere from a few months' to two years' duration would make the farm even less attractive. Such is not the case, however, according to recent reports.

Col. Arthur Woods, assistant to the Secretary of War and head of the government's employment work for returned soldiers and sailors, has made some interesting statements on this subject. He says that 98.2 per cent. of service men brought up on the farms are returning to them immediately upon their discharge. Of the other 1.8 per cent. more than half and physically disabled and unfit for heavy outdoor work.

This does not alter the fact of the shortage in farm labor. There were not enough farm workers before the war. Today, with vastly increased need for food production, more labor than ever before is wanted on the farms. It would not be amiss for a large number of city-bred discharged service men to try farm work for a while. It would give them the outdoor life the army has made them crave and would help to solve a big production problem.—[St. Joseph Gazette.

has brought him considerable applause; Forrest Seabury, as the Japanese, and the others of the Wilkes players will be seen.

Pelton's Burbank.

Three new people will be added to the popular Burbank musical stock company in the new bill commencing today. James T. Kelly, the Irish comedian; Eddie Webber, the Yiddish funmaker, who recently was featured in one of the Aaron Hoffman acts, and Lillian Nassey, character comedienne will lend added strength to the company.

The new bill includes "Bringing up Father," a musical production, and "Thou Shalt Not Kill," with the leading roles in the hands of Harry Siebert Smith, Vida Raymon, Arline Levy and Fred B. Thomas. The chorus will sing many recent and tuneful song hits.

Hippodrome.

The Hippodrome management announces Dorothy Green in the World photoplay, "Forest Rivals," starting Sunday for a three-day engagement. The picture is said to have action, love interest, thrilling incidents, suspense and mystery.

The fantasie, "Dreamland," will headline the vaudeville. Others are: Alf Ripon, Scotland's ventriloquial comedian; George Lee and Teddie Bennett in their own talking skit, "I Love That Girl;" Charles King and Virginia Thornton in a comedy-drama sketch, "The Village Priest;" Helen Rinehart and Armine Duff, "The Girls of '61," and Bender and Herr, athletes.

FAT MEN STEP TO THE FRONT.

films Salisbury was with a barnstorming company in New Mexico. The trains were delayed by a washout and Salisbury decided to give a performance for the mission Indians. Because they did not speak English and because Salisbury, alone, in the company spoke Spanish, the entire performance was given in pantomime, not one word being spoken, the meaning of the play being conveyed through gestures.

So successful was his first silent presentation that he recalled the incident when he was asked to work for the motion picture camera.

Wins Hearts with Meal.

It has been said that the surest way to win a man's heart is through his stomach.

Sylvia Ashton, who is playing a role in a new Cecil B. de Mille production at the Lasky studio, is more up-to-date when it comes to proverbs. She established a new precedent. She won a director's heart through his stomach—not his sentimental heart, but his professional heart. It happened this way:

Some years ago, Sylvia, or "Mother" Ashton, as she is known at the studio, lost all her belongings, costumes and plans for a vaudeville tour in a hotel fire in San Francisco, and with a presentiment in her mind and $4 in her purse, took the boat for Los Angeles. On the boat she met and became friendly with a woman who was on her way to Los Angeles to cook a St. Patrick's Day dinner for prominent actors and officials of the Biograph studio, including D. W. Griffith, Mack Sennett, Fred Mace and others.

The woman got sick on the boat. Sylvia asked her for the job of cooking that feast. The boat arrived and Fred Mace met them at the dock. The cook introduced Sylvia as the substitute cook, telling Mace that she herself, was too ill to prepare the meal.

"Mother" Ashton arranged the meal and everybody ate heartily. Mack Sennett was in such a good humor that he told the substitute cook to come out to the studio next day and play a part. She did, and continued chasing fire engines and dodging pies, until she recently joined the Lasky forces.

Her Idea of a Riot.

"My idea of a grand riot," says Colleen Moore, star of the silver screen, "would be to cast all the great stars in one picture. And I'd like to be near when the filming was attempted. I've never had a fight in real life but I think I'd like to get into a 'shindy' once. Maybe because I'm Irish."

A Rabbit That Flew.

Director James W. Horne, Warner Oland, Assistant Director A. T. Dobson and Jack Mower, of "The Third Eye" company producing at the Astra studio have just returned to Glendale from a dove-hunting trip to Lake Elsinore.

Half a hundred doves fell to the party. Oland, who recently arrived from New York costar with Miss Percy in the H. H. Van Loan screen story, admitted his marksmanship was rusty but on the homeward route in the evening, espying the eyes of a rabbit peering at him from the brush, Oland stepped lightly to the running board of Director Horne's auto and took careful aim. Just as Oland was about to pull the trigger the creature rose in the air.

"My God! What was that?" cried Oland, discharging his gun.

"A flying rabbit," said Jimmie Horne solemnly.

"Never saw one before," stuttered Oland weakly, as he dropped back to his seat.

Of course by this time the celebrated player realized the joke was on him for the "flying rabbit" was nothing more nor less than a white owl.

PASADENA COMMUNITY PLAY.

The next production of the Pasadena Community Theater will be "The Rivals," by Sheridan. It is scheduled for the latter part of October.

SCOVELL IN RECITAL.

Ben Scovell, teacher of drama and expression, has been heard at various churches recently in war talks, and last Sunday evening he presented "Dodging Shrapnel" at the First Congregational Church. Mr. Scovell did extensive work over there as a Canadian Y.M.C.A. worker.

REOPENS DANCING SCHOOL.

Marion Shipp will reopen her school of esthetic dancing tomorrow at 615 South Virgil avenue. Miss Shipp has for several years been engaged in the teaching of the terpsichorean art in this city.

Garrick.

Babies have frequently played important parts in picture plays, but it is doubtful if ever before there has been a baby part so highly material to the development of a story as that in the latest Mary Miles Minter picture, "A Bachelor's Wife," which comes to the Garrick today.

Around the question of the parentage of this infant the author, Joseph Franklin Poland, has woven a comedy-drama that demands the child's presence in every reel, from first to fifth. And Emmett J. Flynn, who directed the picture, realized all the trials of a family photographer, getting the baby to pose. Hundreds of feet of film were spoiled by the child's sudden fits of "temperament." Patience and perseverence, however, finally won through to success, and many remarkable close-ups were secured which are certain to make screen audiences exclaim, "How cunning!" or "Some baby!"

As an added attraction for the week the Garrick has secured Fatty Arbuckle's "Back Stage."

PLAN PLAY PRODUCTIONS.

At the Playcrafters' meeting, at room 201 Blanchard Hall, Tuesday night, Isabella Ingalese will read a play, "What He Found." After the criticism of this play the committee on production will make its report and there will be a discussion of plans for the public performance, to be given November 6.

CAPT. PEACOCKE WITH SCHOOL.

Capt. Leslie T. Peacocke, motion-picture director and scenario editor, has joined the faculty of the Westlake Art School to coach the pupils in stage and film acting, and, it is announced, will employ the pupils in his next big film production, which he has already in preparation. Capt. Peacocke has also contracted to give personal lessons in scenario writing to a selected group of writers.

BY LADY MARY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Year in and year out there is one portion of my daily round that I never shirk—and this is carefully perusing the "personal" advertisements in the "Agony column" of the London Times. I dare say you have very much the same sort of thing in your own local press, but the personal in the Thunderer (as this old London paper used to be called) to me have a very special piquancy and attraction, and I turn to their own particular column every day just as regularly as I sip my tea before I feel the least like getting out of bed.

Today the Times is well worth a glance, if only for two advertisements. One appeals to the romantic senses, the other to those with sporting proclivities. No. 1 runs thus:

"WILL THE VISION IN PINK AND WHITE standing on Maidenhead platform last Friday as 4.50 express train went through station be so kind as to communicate with BOX 8 HOPEFUL, The Times."

It seems so easy to visualize the tantalizing damsel who appealed to the advertiser and whom it was impossible to do more than glimpse as his train passed through the station. One wonders if the "pink and white" vision will respond.

The other advertisement is as follows:

"LADY WITH A WEAKNESS FOR BACKING horses is badly in the soup through no one's fault but her own. Will some one with a fellow feeling LEND Two Hundred Pounds, repayable according to luck; minimum 5 pounds monthly; no security to offer. Reply V, Box P, THE TIMES."

Concerning such a case as this comment seems needless, but one wonders if someone with a "fellow feeling" will arrive and lend that despairing, and plaintive punter the requisite $1000?

HONORABLE IN TROUBLE.

I see that the Hon. Herbert Edward Eaton, younger son of Lord Cheylesmore, has been getting into trouble about his automobile. This is the ninth time within a year that the Honorable Herbert has been convicted of reckless driving, and now he has had his license suspended for six months. Young Eaton, who is about 24 years of age, and a subaltern in the Grenadier Guards, is in that pleasant and irresponsible set of youths known in Oxford and in London as "The Prince's lot." He is very popular and full of "go," and like the Prince of Wales, a daring and rather reckless motorist. This last exploit that seems to have put a stop upon his energies for a few months at any rate, appears to have been a little matter of running his Rolls-Royce along a country road at fifty miles an hour, and coming into contact with the off side front wheel of a motor lorry. Both vehicles were badly damaged, but no one was hurt. The motor-lorry driver said he was only going at twenty miles an hour, and that he was sounding his electric hooter before he arrived at the corner at which the collision took place. Mr. Eaton, he said, as soon as he picked himself out of the debris of his car, proceeded to insult him (the lorry driver) by telling him he was unfit to drive a perambulator. This seemed to affect the soldier's sense of right and wrong much more than the mere matter of impact. I was told that no sonner was young Eaton convicted than he sent telegrams to all his friends and a cable to His Royal Highness in Canada, announcing with no little pride that he had "done it again," and he was now "hung up" for the rest of the season.

Another rather amusing case in which a peer was involved was that of Lord Cunliffe, who had two men arrested for doing damage to his plum trees in his orchard at Epson. His Lordship said that the men were beating the tree and stealing the fruit, and that they had no business to be in the orchard, anyhow. The prisoners, on the other hand, declared that they had been invited by Lord Cunliffe to his residence on a certain day. As it rained on that occasion, however, they postponed their visit for a week, when they thought that an invitation to his house included the freedom of his orchard, and they considered themselves very hardly used by an accusation of stealing plums being made against them. They realized, however, now that they had spent a night in the cells, that they were presuming on his hospitality, and they hoped His Lordship would let them off.

STRANGE ENDING.

I heard the other day for the first time in several years something concerning Mrs. Brown Potter, the famous American actress and beauty, who has made England her home for more than a decade. The last time I saw Mrs. Potter she was living in a lovely old-fashioned house called Ye Olde Bridge House at Staines, and at that time she was taking a deep interest in all matters concerning Buddha and the religious beliefs of that sect. She wore strange oriental draperies and was seldon seen outside the boundary of her own house and grounds. At the beginning of the war, however, her mother, who had lived with her for twelve or fourteen years, died, and Mrs. Potter, who was most devotedly attached to this wonderful and interesting old lady, found she could no longer live in the home which was so closely associated with Mrs. Urquhart and her home life. She, therefore found an interesting and beautiful house in the Island of Guernsey which she has enriched with her rare talent for furnishing and equipping a residence.

She has now made her home permanently on this charming Channel island, and says that she will never leave it. Her house is near to that in which Victor Hugo lived and died, and she has a garden that is said to be one of the loveliest in the whole island. She has taken to playing the violin, recently, and I am told is quite a creditable performer. Her hair is now silvery white, and she says the last thing she ever wants to do is to enter a theater or live in a city again. Her only recreation is visiting the one hotel on the island where an admirable orchestra of Spanish musicians discourses the very latest music by Debussy, Stravinsky and other modern composers. She says she has no regrets or longings concerning the world.

It seems a strange ending to a life that was so full of amazing romance and adventure. Cora Brown Potter was at one time the most beautiful as well as the most talked-of woman of her day. She has always been a law unto herself and has pursued her own line of life. To think of her now in the autumn of her days living almost a solitary life in the midst of an island quite cut off from the everyday world of fashion and excitement seems almost an anomaly. But, like everything she does, it is picturesque, and just a little sensational.

LACKS THREE SENSES, NORMAL OTHERWISE.

Nothing more serious than mumps was the cause of a Canadian soldier being discovered who is claimed to be the most remarkable man in the world. This is an unquestionable conclusion to be drawn from a description of the extraordinary warrior given in the London Lancet.

The man was originally a Breton sailor. He emigrated to Canada eight years ago, and enlisted in the Canadian army. Later he developed mumps and was sent to a military hospital, where his remarkable qualities were discovered.

It was observed that the patient was a well-developed, powerful looking man of a very cheerful, even temperament, good natured and far removed from the neurotic or hysterical type. But he was found to be almost entirely devoid of sensation.

He is insensitive to pain and has undergone serious operations without any anaesthetic. His body is plentifully strewn with the scars and wounds and burns that he has inflicted on himself for bets or to astonish the onlookers. The author of the account in the Lancet tells of seeing him hold a burning match against the skin of his arm and then pick off the charred fiber. He has never suffered from headache, toothache or pain of any other description.

"The patient possesses no sense of touch. He cannot feel the ground with his feet, and has to control his movements by sight. He has a consequent difficulty in walking at night. There is a complete inability to recognize objects placed in his hand when his eyes are shut.

He cannot distinguish between heat or cold, whether in the temperature of food or of the weather, and fever and chills cause him to perspire or shiver, but without any sensation of cold or heat.

No sense of muscular position seems present and the man says that he cannot tell whether his arms or legs are moving or not. He has no sense of fatigue and the only way that he is made aware of failing strength after prolonged and violent effort is by his falling to the ground.

He is unable to find his nose without guiding his hands by sight and if he be moved about when his eyes are closed he is ignorant of the fact.

All notion of smell is absent. Even fuming nitric acid was ineffective when strongly inhaled.

The man is mentally sound and rather above than below the average of intelligence. As a child he appears to have had a slight sense of touch, and he dates its complete disappearance from the time when he had an attack of yellow fever in Sangal at the age of 17. His sight and hearing, however, seem to be normal.—[Milwaukee Sentinal.

"Doug" Backfires Cupid

By Grace Kingsley

Being the bride of a poet of the open road and a decorated soldier into the bargain does sound awful romatic, don't it, dearie! That's what Douglas Fairbanks says, but then, he says, just think of how sore your feet would get and the uncertainty about your laundry! That's how he consoles himself for putting the meter on Cupid and paging him around and kinda cramping his style as he feels he done. Though I say it was all just fate. Also Doug says there must be something awful fascinating about being a tramp and he's going to try it some time, though as for poetry he never did care for it and never will. He says the only poetry he ever was crazy about was Horatius Holding Up the Bridge, and then only on account of the pictures of Horatius roughhousing the whole gang at once and of a guy swimming with only one leg; also Paul Revere's Ride, which he used to act out with his pony when he was a kid, and got the whole village out one night, they thinking the dam above the town had bust, and old lady Hopkins, who was an invalid, being seen pushing a whole cart full of medicine, which spilled, and as it was the first time in years she had walked, she said Doug was a blessing, but what the other folks said he wouldn't repeat.

But, oh, dearie, just to think since last I saw you I met an honest-to-goodness poet that can make his feet track and everything, which heavens knows I can't do even in writing a inspired poem to Dick after a poetic evening with him on the midway in Venice, including the Bug House, where the mirrors is, and I will say if you can love a person after you seen 'em in them tall and short mirrors, nothing can never come between you twain again, nor shatter your ideal, even seeing egg on the chin of your loved one. Wait until I get this mescara on without putting out my eyes, and I'll tell you about it.

Ella the Extra Girl was adjusting a heavy tragedy make-up to her eye-lashes, doing it very carefully and slowly, and she paused a minute before resuming her talk to the New Girl. Having finally applied the last bit of "beading" to her long lashes with the end of a burned match, she went on.

As I was saying, dearie, it all came about following the evening I and Doug and Charlie Miller found the poet of the open road, as he calls hisself, when we gathered together to read the story of Doug's new picture. Charlie Miller is Doug's head cowboy, you know, and Doug gets more sub-titles off him than anybody on the lot, I guess.

You know when Doug Fairbanks sends out word that he wants a new leading woman—he don't really have to send out word, in fact, it seems to travel in the air like that there talcum powder off flowers. Why, gee, dearie, when that word gets out, I give you my word that lot looks like the way old Nat Goodwin used to describe one of his matinees—"Me and a Million Women." And that day Doug had interviewed 100 assorted young females with a preponderance of blonds, both sincere and self-made, Doug liking the sweet, feminine kind of women—the sort that thinks the ballot is some relation to the ballet when they think about it at all.

That morning we had taken one or two little scenes, with me playing a small, but important vampire scene in a banquet set, of which more anon, and then all the rest of the day Doug put in talking to would-be leading women. There was so many of 'em that some of 'em had to have a test at another studio, which is one thing that led up to what followed after what I'm going to tell—if you get me, dearie.

THE RED-HEADED SCRAPPER.

There was a red-headed jane scrapping because she said she coulda had the part if she'd been blond, she knew she could, and she could be blond, too, if they'd only wait until next week. And there was another dame making Doug miserable because he said her aunt knew an uncle of his by marriage and if you didn't stand by old friends, who would? Then there was another jane, kinda piebald from mail-ordering her hair so often. She said she was fear-proof and could ride horse back like anything, and what more did a he-man want of a leading woman, anyhow, and for her part she thanked her stars she wasn't one o' these here rag-doll janes, but a dame as could stand on her own two feet even bare back if necessary, and she meant the horse's back not hers.

But what Doug was principally worrying about was a certain type of happy-go-lucky ne'er-do-well for his picture, and he'd looked and looked, but couldn't find the type exactly. And that's where Larry comes in.

It was awful romantic the way it all happened. That night Doug called us all over, and asked us if we'd meet him in the office after supper to go over the story, and we said all right. So that night we met in the office—I and Doug and Frank Campau and Charlie Miller and Ted Reed, the scenario writer, and Billie Wickersham, the juvenile, and just as we got to the most interesting part of the story, where I get in my plain and fancy vamping on Doug, Charlie Miller interrupts by saying there's a light on the set, and why was that, with the night watchman off on a week's vacation?

"Probably one of the prop boys," said Doug, but anyhow we went out to investigate and the sight that met our eyes struck us speechless.

There at the table on the banquet set, sat a guy eating freely of the things which had been left by the prop boys for some re-takes the next day. Between bites he'd stop and spout poetry, and then take a puff at a cigar. His face was sideways toward us, and we saw he had bright, sort of laughing brown eyes and red cheeks, and he wore froway velveteen trousers and a hat set rakishly on his brown hair which was too long and curly to suit some folks, including Charlie Miller. But he was clean-looking, I'll say that for him. Charlie Miller was going to start after him, but there was something about the guy's laughing looks that appealed to Doug, I guess. Doug's eyes had a funny twinkle in 'em like when he's going to leap up to the peak of a castle and bend it down, spilling the villain off into the moat, and he called Charlie off.

And then suddenly we all stood transfixed, like for a still, dearie. For, even as we spoke, and even as the guy spouted his poetry, there stole up from beneath the tablecloth, what do you think? A human hand!

"My gawd!" Doug gasped. It was such a white little hand and it looked so like the hand of a spirit. It moved along slow, and you couldn't see what it belonged to, and all the while the poet guy kept on spouting, never seeing what was traveling toward him!

The hand just felt and felt along the edge of the table—glided and glided till it came to a knife, and the fingers closed over it! Closer and closer to the guy it came. Suddenly he looked down, started back, and then stooped over and caught the hand and knife in his grasp.

A faint scream came from beneath the table. He twisted the wrist till it dropped the knife, and then he pulled from under the table the scardest-looking little Jane you ever saw! She had blond hair and blue eyes and the whitest skin in the world (except mine,) and she was crying.

"What's the idea?" exclaimed the guy, and that seemed to make the Jane mad.

"Let go my hand!" she cried holding her head up high. "Did you think I was going to kill you? Well, I had a right to, I guess, after that poetry I heard,"—and then she broke down again. "Ple—please," she sobbed, "I only wanted the knife to cut the sau-sausage!" And she reached under the table and fetched out a long string of weiners. Then she went whiter than ever, and the guy caught her just as she was going to fall. He sprinkled her face with water, and pretty soon she opened her eyes and looked up at him. "Where am I?" she says, startled.

"Never mind that," he says, "you rest, while I get you something to eat."

He set her down tenderly, and as the light fell full on him from the electric bulb on the wall, we saw the flash on something that looked like a war decoration. That's what it turned out to be, too. He had seen two years' service at the front. He fixed her some food and she ate it, and then while he sat and gazed at her like he was going to break out in poetry again, she explained:

"We worked in this set today!" she said, "but we ain't to be paid till tomorrow—and I ain't really et for two whole days. I was on the banquet scene today but I was in the back row, and though the girls up front next the camera got chicken, us back there only got about half a weiner apiece. It wasn't enough—oh, it wasn't near enough! So I came back after everybody was gone, and hid under the table."

"POOR LITTLE KID."

Pretty soon her eyes began to close like a baby's and she fell fast asleep in her chair. The guy looked at her a minute, murmured, "Poor little kid," then he picked her up in his arms, and carried her over to my pink boudoir set, and laid her on the bed, pulled the pink satin counterpane over her, and she didn't wake up.

And then what do you think that guy did! Went and made himself a bed in the bathtub! Just grabbed a drape off the Babylonian set, wrapped hisself in it, and was about to fall asleep, I guess, when Doug went over and shook him.

"What's the idea?" Doug asked the poet, sternly. Doug don't never hardly get mad. He says fate hands out to everybody the same old toothaches and unpleasant things-in-law and income taxes, so why make life harder for our fellow creatures, and he wasn't mad now, only in earnest.

The poet guy rubbed his eyes and blinked a minute. Then he leaped up, made a grand bow and said, "Douglas Fairbanks, I believe!" as if he had just alighted off an Arabian steed instead of out of a humble bathtub. "I, sir, am known as Larry, the poet of the open road. I sometimes sell my poetry, too. But," he added, "I don't make enough money to worry Rockefeller."

"Oh, the poet bum or the bum poet!" grinned Doug.

Larry grinned back. "You said it!"

"Then why the drama?" asked Doug.

"Say, Mr. Fairbanks," the poet guy went on, "that's just a little fancy of mine. I lived like a tramp yesterday—but last night I was a transformed being! I found that beautiful bedroom yonder, and for several hours I lived like a King! Tonight I feasted—"

"Yeh, and if our property boys could just catch you!" interpolated Doug, "we'll have a fine lot of re-takes on that stuff! Aside from the fact, the place don't belong to you, it's a pretty little idea!"

"Sorry, sir," said Larry, so contritely, Doug just had to soften up. "Anyhow I've wrote a poem about you!"

"All right, all right!" said Doug hastily, him having no more use for poetry, as I said before, than a mermaid has for a button-hook, but I guess they ain't a soul in the world but would be flattered at having a poem wrote to him, whether he wanted to read it or not. And anyhow a thought suddenly struck Doug.

"Want to work," he asked the poet guy, "in pictures?"

"If she does!" answered Larry, pointing his finger over his shoulder at the girl, but not getting a bit excited at the idea of being an actor, like most guys would. "I claim I saw her first, and I ain't going to leave her around loose in no picture studio!" Doug looked a bit taken aback, and Charlie glared.

"Let's ask her!" said Doug.

It seems the girl had gotten awake with all the hubbub. We was all in the bathroom, and she got timidly out of bed and joined us, blushing furiously.

Doug went at the matter straight from the shoulder, as he always does.

"Did you have a test?" he asked her.

"A sort of one," she told him. But you know, dearie, as well as I do, there are tests and tests. This one, it seems, had been made by a guy in the other studio that took the overflow from Doug's place, and he had a Jane he wanted to get in with Doug. The girl said she hated to be one of them pikers that's always howling "Foul," but she couldn't help telling him, since he asked, that in the test she had been made to look as dark as the inside of an infidel, whereas she's as blond as blond!

So Doug says, "Well, it's late, and probably Larry better stay here, but you, miss, take this note over to Marjorie Daw at the Studio Club tonight, and I'll see you get a test bright and early tomorrow!"

LARRY A FASCINATOR.

The girl thanked Doug, but looked at Larry in a fascinated sort of a way. Larry has a way about him, no mistake.

To make things short, next day, dearie, both was on the lot, the girl got a test, and lo and behold she came out perfectly beautiful! We knew then fate had sent Doug his leading lady through strange and devious ways, including a string of wieners.

"What's your name?" he suddenly remembered to ask her.

"Janice Joy," she told him.

"Janice Joy, that's good—good wallop to it!" said Doug, and so the name of Janice Joy will go down to deathless fillum fame.

So Larry and Janice began work in Doug's new picture, with me doing their vampiring. Larry turned out to be a pretty good poet, and Doug liked his stuff pretty well, partly because it's got a wallop about the big outdoors, etc., and Larry writ one about Charlie Miller, which got Charlie so swelled up Doug had to tell him that wasn't nuthin'—that Larry wrote about every nut he met. So then Charlie settled down and consented to do some bull-doggin' once more.

You could see that Larry and Janice was getting awfully gone on each other, but as Doug rightly said, you just couldn't see Janice becoming a Dusty Delia or a Aimless Annie, and the poet that depends on the open road for his inspiration and puts up in barns, etc., would cramp his style awful to have to settle down, while as for Janice it would be too mean to imagine her washing Larry's pants in the creek whilst he hid under the hay, with her also getting dog-bit when asking for food at back doors, etc. So we wrinkled a lot over what fate held in store for 'em, us not liking to hear that same fate playing jazz music on the harp of life, as it were. Larry was so clean and used such good grammar, you forgot he was a bum, after all, and he was a perfects slave to Janice.

It was one bright summer morn that fate decided all for us—a day but that for the queerest thing in the world, might have cut short the careers of Doug, Janice and Larry, all three. We was going out on location to do the last scene in that picture—a fierce automobile stunt scene, and we was all calm and decomposed with never an idea of what was to happen to us. The location was a bluff overlooking the shining sea, which didn't look like it ever done any cruel deeds like knocking the Sennett comedians over and most drowning 'em, or ruining Sunshine Comedy girls' bathing suits, and Vic Fleming, the director, got us all set.

There was two cameras on the scene—and ah, one of 'em was to change the whole current of three of our lives, even if that does mix the metaphor. That camera was what is known to the trade as the "slow camera," though it's fast, only when you see the picture run off it's slow, and it belongs to some nut high-brow concern that went in for them painless educational films.

I had done a little fancy vamping, though without one o' them perfume lamps and a tiger skin, it don't seem to come natural to vamp, even to a person gifted like I, and gawd knows that even with them things a lot a janes couldn't even vamp a car conductor so's he'd stay vamped.

Yes, yes, dearie, I'll go on! Janice and Larry was to sit on the front seat of the auto, with Larry driving, while Doug sat in the back seat. They was to come down full tilt to the edge of the cliff, but not topple over, 'cause Doug was to jump over and grab the wheel and stop the car! Ticklish? Well, I'll tell the world it was! But Larry and Janice had perfect confidence in Doug. So down the hill they careened, when suddenly, blooey!—we saw something was wrong with the brakes! As the machine passed us going at least fifty, we only caught on awful flash of their white faces. Even Doug had his jaw set like lockjaw. Next minute he tried to climb over like he was scheduled to—and the coat caught! Doug's about fear-proof, but I guess that got his goat.

NOTHING FEAZES 'EM.

And all the while the cameras just ground and ground. Great guys those cameramen. If the world was to come to an end, there'd be a million of 'em on the job, looking for advertising in Mars, or some place.

Everybody acted like lightning. Larry grabbed Janice and within ten feet of the edge they leaped from the car. They landed in an awful heap and just rolled and rolled—right down to the edge! Our hearts stopped beating. The car stopped plumb on the edge of the precipice. But when we looked for Doug he had disappeared entirely. We didn't find out about him until a lot later—and then what mighta been a big William Fox tragedy turned into a joke. You see, we all rushed and bent over Janice to see if she was hurt, and we found she had fainted, and it looked like Larry had a broken leg. And just then up came Doug, quite unhurt and smiling as ever.

Everybody went home then, pretty much shook up, except that man Doug. I think he could come through the resurrection and ask was that all? We all imagined that Larry, rescuing Janice the way he did, would settle it between the two. Of course, there was a wonderful chance for her with Doug, it being luck to be Doug's leading woman, but when Cupid gives the high sign it's hard to stop a gell.

I, for one, though, couldn't see her leading a comic-opera life as a Meandering Mag with that fascinating wandering minstrel, as Doug calls him—though I don't know why the name of minstrel, Larry not owning no plug hat nor clawhammer coat.

But Larry is one o' them kind o' fascinating birds that makes you forget about such mundane things as rent and porterhouse steaks. I tremble to think, indeed, what woulda happened to Dick if Larry had taken a fancy to me instead of to Janice. Seems like us skirts all get our worst cases on no-count guys. Ain't it so, dearie?

We didn't now whether Larry and Janice was really engaged or whether they was just dreaming along the way young people do sometimes. But they would have been, anyhow, only for what happened afterward, and while Gawd knows it would be awful to have to look at motion-picture dramas done with a slow camera, still and all I will say it was like a dispensation this time. I did hear Larry telling Janice he always had money, only he liked trotting the open road, and that he had lived off "star voices" for a whole month. Doug saw Janice was infatuated, and yet he liked Larry himself. Hard situation for an outsider, I'll tell the world. Who was he, as he said, to put ice cream down Cupid's back?

That night when we gathered together in the projection room to see the stuff run off, we found Harry Thorp, the cameraman, chuckling. "Got a surprise for you," was all he would say. And when that accident stuff was thrown on the screen—well, it was a surprise, all right. Honest to Gawd, we all knew Doug was quick, but we didn't know he was so fast the camera couldn't keep up with him.

Well, Harry Thorpe ground out the film till he come to the accident. And when the accident stuff came along—why Doug just disappeared, that's all. Not a sign of what he had done. First time in all picture history a man had moved so fast the camera couldn't even register him. The stuff about Larry and Janice was there—but Doug just registered a streak—and then nothing!

Somebody called out in the darkness, "Is Bill McGan here?" Bill was the man with the slow camera. Bill was there, it seems, and had his film along, too. It was very impressive—like when the director tells you at last you got a good make-up on. First, there was the wild ride of Doug and Janice and Larry—and it looked so funny we all laughed. Then came the part on the edge of the cliff—and it took away our breaths.

For it showed it was Doug who had really saved all their lives, and not Larry. I'm sure even Larry himself thought he was the hero, and as Janice had fainted she only knew that when she opened her eyes she was in Larry's arms. Here's what the projection showed. Larry and Janice were in front, as before explained, with Doug in the back seat. When it was found the brakes weren't right, quick as a cat, Doug catapulted into the front seat, managed to loosen up the obstinate brakes, and jam 'em down while he hollered to Janice and Larry to jump, and then, with the car brought suddenly to a halt, he shot over so fast he made a streak of lightning look like a snail on an upgrade, landed on a rock just ahead of the car, and slammed it up under the wheels just as the machine was sliding over.

It was very weird and funny the way the slow camera leisurely unwound that exciting action. I found I had been pounding Billy Wickersham's knee black and blue in my excitement—anyhow, I suppose it was black and blue.

Nobody spoke for a minute. Then, Larry, I'll say for him, was the first to turn around to Doug and cry out, "Oh, you wonderful youth!" Janice didn't say anything, but you could see the tears sparkle on her eyelashes in the dimness. Her hand trembled as she put it on mine. Then she went over and touched Doug on the arm. "I didn't know," was all she said.

DOUG EMBARRASSED.

Doug was awfully embarrassed. "Queer thing! Queer thing!" he kept saying, like it was a freak of nature—a streak of trick lightning or something he didn't have anything to do with, and all the while he hopped around from one foot to the other.

Doug invited everybody to supper, and Janice seemed awfully thoughtful. By and by she and Larry went away together. She told me all about it afterward.

"We walked down the road," she told me "Larry and I. He was awfully quiet and dear—but he didn't like to ask me anything. Just said, cheerfully, 'Well, dear, you better run along back. I—I'm going to be on my way.' "

Janice said he looked so handsome in the moonlight there with his eyes looking dep into hers, she felt aw-

Don't be skeptical, it can be done —and without effort on your part, only your muscles exercise. You relax, take a nap if you like. It's as simple as that, is the Kellogg-Bergonie system of reducing and building up. It's the most logical, natural way in the world. You can change from a listless, tired body to a buoyant, radiant person, full of life and the love of it in just a few treatments. You know this system is used successfully at the Battle Creek Sanitarium, that's sufficient recommendation isn't it? Call at 301 Merritt Bldg., Eighth and Broadway, and Miss Powell will explain it to you.

Everyone is wild about ostrich feathers, did you ever see the like? They are used in every conceivable manner for trimmings of every description, but in no way are they more beautiful than when made up into fans. At the Cawston Ostrich Farm in South Pasadena, they are making some perfectly gorgeous fans, some huge ones, too, which match milady's gown or harmonize with her hair or eyes. If you would see the regal ostrich with all his funny ways, perfectly at home, be sure to visit the farm. Here they will remodel your marabout cape or scarf if you wish.

Superfluous hair permanently re-moved. Why be humiliated by this embarrassing afflication when you can have a permanent cure? Follicide destroys even the most stubborn growth. Best of references. Can be used successfully at home. We also dye the eyelashes and eyebrows permanently. Can be used at home. Harmless process. Mrs. L. M. Smidt's Follicide Shop, 833 W. 7th street, Los Angeles.

Nothing cheers up a rented home or apartment like a piano. "They're hard to find you say? Did you ever try the Smith Piano Co., Ninth and Grand? At Hudgen's Permanent Wave Shop they examine your hair and tell you before having the wave just how your hair will take the wave, what the cost will be, and guarantee not to injure the hair. They also wave gray hair without making it yellow. This is the largest wave shop west of New York and, as they have been waving in Los Angeles since 1912 and are doing on an average of 5000 curls per month, they should know how. Robinson Homecraft Evolves Distinctive Homes

A well-defined plan of decoration carefully carried out produces a harmonious interior.

Harmony there may be—and yet, a lack of Individual Character.

Originality in Home Furnishing lies in finding new arrangements within the fundamental laws of color and proportion.

Originality that oversteps the dictates of art ceases to be admirable and becomes mere eccentricity.

That final touch, that elusive something known as DISTINCTION — is found in homes of ROBINSON furnishing.

Our staff of trained decorators are at the service of all who are interested in securing Distinctive Homes.

Counsel and suggestions will be given and plans will be submitted without charge.

Satin Meteor attains the bouffant with draping and unique double flounces. A youthful sash finishes the slightly draped bodice.

Conventional designing is outlined with cut steel beads on this frock of midnight blue Tricotine. American Beauty Satin edges the neck and lines the double pockets, set in, in panel effect.

Black Meteor fashions this frock with generous panniers. The bodice is cleverly shaped to form a deep girdle across the back; while the neck is edged with gold-corded, black tulle.

Bark tones of Herringbone make this strictly tailored model. Harmonizing bone buttons and novel shaping give individuality. The coat lining is of Peau de Cygne.

Broadcloth in Faun shade is given youthful lines. Novel shaping is emphasized by self-cording. A novelty collar of unique shaping and soft blouse effect are features.

France blue Georgette forms an elaborately braided tunic. It is hung over harmonizing Crepe de Chine. The long sleeves are unusual as to shape and gracefulness.

Velour in Algierse tone makes this model with rippling hip lines. Black fur forms a wide band on the large shawl collar. The panel back is emphasized by harmonizing bone buttons.

Mannish mixture is adopted for this walking suit of tailored smartness. It buttons to the throat and the shawl collar is worn open or rolled high about the chin.

Here Are Suits and Frocks for $50—At Robinson's—Too!

The Frocks for $50

'Adown all the paths of Style that lead from France come many Frocks.

Some of them have been lured to stop by the way and they have been duplicated—and these are their doubles.

Others, whose entire presence was not so wanted, have sent a message of a widened silhouette, a rumor of a piquant pannier or drapery, or it may be, thrilling tales of glittering vivacity.

And those Paris originations find their way here.

So, Frocks there are, at Robinson's, countless as to number and indescribable as to charm.

But they have two things in common between them,—YOUTHFULNESS and the DIFFERENTNESS that marks all things from Robinson's.

Tricotine, Broadcloth, Meteor, Georgette are found in the group.

The strictly tailored model has an appeal for many. Feminine whispers say some favor it because it becomes them most.

Softly bloused coats, narrow belts and large collars that enfold the throat,—emphasize the grace of Youth.

And between the two extremes,—there are suits that embody the smartness of simplicity and the witchery of soft lines.

All of them have the CHARACTER of ROBINSON'S. All bespeak quality of fabric and high-grade tailoring.

Four styles are included in this selection in Broadcloth, Herring-bone, Mannish Mixtures and Wool Velours.

The favored Autumn browns that range from Faun to Java, are especially featured, as well as conservative blues and grays.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Four-Minute Addresses.

BY CARLOS S. HARDY, D.C.D.

NO. 1.

THE LEAGUE A NECESSITY.

The covenant of the League of Nations bears the same relation, in a way, to the nations of the earth, as the Constitution of the United States bore to the several States when it was first proposed by our forefathers. Each of the little thirteen States, in their individual way, was helpless to protect and defend itself against the other States, much less against the other nations. Many statesmen of that time opposed the Union and the Constitution, and had their advice been followed there would have been no United States of America, and could the little States have lived, at most they would have covered a very small part of this great country, and today all of America, except the small eastern region, would have belonged to foreign nations.

It is so with the League of Nations. No nation can long stand alone. The great war that we have just fought proved this. If there had not been a league of the Allied nations during the war, the world today would belong to Germany.

The one great question now involved in all the talk is, shall the rights of mankind be put ahead of the so-called political ambitions of individual states? Shall we have a union of nations, protecting mankind, or shall each nation go on shifting for itself, and damned be the weaker and less warlike ones! History shows that within the last 100 years fifty millions of young men have died in the wars that have been fought. Shall we try to put an end to such butchery of mankind, or shall the few politicians of the nation opposing the League of Nations hold mankind shackled to the Moloch—war?

If the League of Nations can save one-tenth of the lives of young men that war will take without it—is it not worth while? If our forty-eight States were not bound to enter in the Union how long would it be before there would be wars breaking out between the States? The League of Nations may not, probably will not, prevent all war, nor did the union of our States present it among ourselves, but it will lessen war, and that is worth while.

The covenant of the league may not be perfect, neither was the Constitution, for we have added many vital amendments to the latter, and so shall the nations amend the covenant of the League of Nations as the need becomes apparent.

NO. 2.

GERMANY'S HOPE.

In union there is strength. No nation appreciates this more than Germany. The few weeks that immediately preceded the outbreak of the war were made specially feverish by the efforts of Germany to secure from England and Russia, promises not to go to France's aid, but to keep out of the war. Germany had formed a perfect union with Austria and Turkey, a union which spoke as the Kaiser's mind, and Germany wanted to destroy the accord Entente between England, France and Russia. Her leaders boldly said that if England could be kept out, Russia would stay out and that France could be crushed quickly. So plans were made for the Kaiser's grand entry into Paris. But Germany failed in her efforts and the Entente stood solid, and when Germany attacked, England, France and Russia entered the war together.

Throughout the progress of the war Germany exerted every powerful influence which she possessed, to divide the Allies. She worked at this with her great diplomatic organization, militarily. She was near success with Russia when the collapse of that nation occurred. Perhaps it was Germany's intrigue which really caused Russia's collapse. And all the while she was at work in England, but the sturdy English had set their head and there was no turning back. Germany then began her famous drives for a wedge between the French and British armies. She made many campaigns with this purpose paramount, and more than once she came near accomplishing her purpose. Just before America got into the game, Germany was about to roll back the British onto the channel ports, as everyone knows, which would have meant the throwing of their armies into the sea, and then the Germans would have taken Calais and easily marched into Paris, and the war would have been won. The arrival of the Americans, and the forcing of a single Allied command into the hands of Foch foiled the game, but, even later, the efforts of the German command was ever to divide the Allies, and their supreme failure to win in this particular, ended the war in November.

In forming the terms of peace for the Germans the Allies were united. German diplomacy failed again, and only because the Allies were sensible enough to hold together.

Now, the peace treaty, which the countries united against Germany have framed, comes up for American ratification—and what is the result? Instead of promptly approving it, as England and Belgium have done, some of our Senators propose to reject it altogether, or to so amend it as to destroy it and make it necessary to negotiate a new treaty. And what will be the result if these Senators win? The Allies will be divided for the first time. America, and England and Belgium and France will be set at loggerheads. The Germans will have won finally and she will have a chance for new and easier terms.

Senator Knox, one of the leaders in this fight on the treaty, says that Germany has been dealt with too harshly and that America should see that the terms are made easier to her. So, the cat is out of the bag at last. Germany has been dealt with too harshly and the Allies are to be divided, and America is to come to the aid of her good friend, the Kaiser, and his warring nation. What! Shall we now renounce our high professions and say that we were wrong in fighting German piracy on the sea and German frightfulness on land? Are we to say that our sons who lie dead in France, 50,000 in number, were wrong and that they died in vain! Shall it be said that while Germany lost in arms she has at last won by dividing the free nations. The only hope of holding her military lords from carrying on their preparation for another and greater war ten years hence is the union of the peace-loving peoples in the League of Nations.

Shall America stand with her allies who whipped Germany and hold her forever in check, or shall America desert them and turn Germany free to go on with her preparations for her new world war?

Are we with England and France, or are we with Germany? Are we for peace, or are we for war?

The League of Nations is the world's only hope to save it from another German effort to murder it.

NO. 3.

OPPONENTS OF THE LEAGUE.

The opponents of the league see no good in it. They spend their energies in picking flaws in the plan. Of course the covenant of the League of Nations is not perfect—no document penned by man is perfect. And it would not be possible for the representatives of the nations to construct a plan for a League of Nations which would seem perfect to any one nation. If we of America were to draw the covenant perhaps it could be made to suit us, but if some other nation should help in the work it would not in its finality seem perfect to both nations. The plan agreed upon and the covenant of the League of Nations was constructed and agreed to by the representative statesmen of thirty-two nations. It is not thinkable that it can be held perfect by all of them. The greatest wonder of modern times is the fact that these gentlemen, leaders of so many nations, have agreed to the plans and covenant.

The opponents of the League of Nations are found belonging to one of four groups:

First, there are those who hate England; and everything that England approves, they disapprove. Every hater of England is against the League of Nations.

Second, every friend of Germany during the war, everyone who made excuses for Germany, every one who wanted America to help Germany—in short, every pro-German is against the League of Nations. These people want America to stay out of Europe, hoping that in a few short years Germany will be able to strike again and finally conquer England and France.

Third, every person who has stocks or bonds or other interests in munition and other war supply businesses is opposed to the League of Nations. There were a lot of people who made money out of the war; some of these people make money out of every war, and in fact, making war supplies is their business, and all of such are opposed to the League of Nations.

Fourth, every person who believes in war as an institution is opposed to the League of Nations. You do not have to go to Germany to find people who really believe in and favor the institution of war. They are in America and in every community in America. Most of these people are not as bold as the militarists of Germany, but none the less they maye always be depended upon to stand for the things that make for war. In America the class of persons who ridicule the idea of the League of Nations with the statement that "wars have always been and always will be" are militarists at heart and believe in the institution of war.

There probably are a few scattering opponents of the League of Nations who do not belong to either of the four groups named above, but if the truth is known, nine-tenths of the opponents of the league belong to one of the groups.

BITS OF VERSE.

In Church.

I go to church with Mother 'cause
She says she loves to have me there,
She says my eyes are big and round,
And that there's sunshine in my hair—
She says I make it twice as sweet,
And that I fill her heart with prayer.

The people sit so very still,
With sort of sleepy, stary eyes;
They rustle, yawn or look through books,
They look so stupid or so wise,
I wonder God delights in them
When He is looking from the skies.

But Mother's eyes have little lights
That make her different and dear;
She often smiles down just at me,
As if to say: "I'm glad you're here."
And takes my hand so warm and snug,
It makes my heart feel sort of queer.

And once I told her that my church
Was just the bit of bluest sky,
And dancing leaves the window shows
The little window we sit by—
I told her that I loved that best,
And she said, "Darling so do I!"
—[Amy E. Campbell in Toronto Globe.

An Old Timer.

I am an ancient anecdote, 3000 years of age.
They tacked me on to men of note when Xerxes was a page.
I was well known in Jericho, and cut a dash in Troy
And hobbed up every year or so when Caesar was a boy.

I am an ancient anecdote and I am going still.
I was in use when people wrote with stylus and with quill.
I was a joke that Shakespeare knew and also Genghis Khan
And now I s'pose they'll hitch me to some yearling Congressman.
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Our National Flower.

What shall our national flower be?
Well, folks, if you're leaving the question to me—
Since we own half the cars in the world, egad,
I'll say the "car-nation" would not be so bad.
—[Cartoons Magazine.

A Southern Garden.

Over the wall the bougainvillea vine
Droops in the languid breeze,
As purple as ethereal twilight wine
In crystal chalices.

Above, where palms and pointed cedars tower,
The cardinals wing along,
Like petals of the red hibiscus flower
Dowered with the gift of song.

After the chill of life, its moil, its stress,
How wrapt in rest it seems—!
Here in the garden of forgetfulness;
Here is the bourn of dreams!
—[Clinton Scollard.

ful—and when the light fell on that war decoration she could have cried, only something kept her common sense on the job. She said it came over her all at once, she and Larry were doing the best for both of them. But she did venture a timid inquiry—"Then you won't stay and work?" She knew that was the test. "It would only be for a little while if I did. It—the call of the road—it's stronger than I am, Janice."

Then Larry held out his hand, and Janice cried a little, and Larry, squared his shoulders and went away whistling in the moonlight. Janice said she had to run to keep from breaking down and following him and telling him it was the open road for hers, too. She turned and looked afetr him once more, and he had stopped whistling, and his shoulders were all slouchy and dejected.

There was a light in the office window when she came back. Doug and Bill McGan were in there. Doug looked up surprised to see Janice alone. Then he went over to her, but all he said—and Janice was awful grateful for that—was, "I got an engagement as leading lady in my next picture, if you want it, Janice."

Janice said there was a little choke in her throat, and she said: "Behold, your leading woman!"

"I—I'm glad," said Doug quietly.

But all the same, they both walked away over to the door and looked away off down the road the way Larry had gone—and didnt say another word.

On Fair Weather Friends.

I wouldn't care a bit if I was you, no'm.

Yes'm, I know its mighty bad to have your friends do you thataway. But yet and still, you got to remember that they ain't able to see it that way. You got to make allowances for their nearsightedness, yes'M.

Well, I know just what you mean. But law child, entertainin' and invitin' people ain't nothing but kinder sayin'; "I'll give you something, now you give me something." . . .

Yes'm, I can remember when I had a good deal more than what I've got now and when we was all raised together and every one of us thought the same way.

Well, then when I begun not having so much and the others had more they didn't know it, but they sort of sized me up different. They got to having that "poor thing" way with me and they got to leaving me out of important entertainments and asking me just to come over any time.

Well, it looked like to me that they felt like they was real kind to let me come and I didn't like their patronizin' ways—

No'm, pleat it don't gether it. Well, and they didn't think nothing of atelling me that they was agoing to have a dinner or a picnic or they had had one and didn't ask me.

Well, I was hurt first and then I was mad as a hornet. But my land.' It always puts you in a wrong position to show it. You know what they say is? "Melia is so sensitive. Now you got to be mighty careful."

They would then try to git me in a good humor and chirk me up by giving me something or asking me to come over when they want any other company there or doing something what they called "kind."

My land.' I know just how you feel. No'm, they don't seem to think you got the same right to resent things because they rate you and everybody and mighty near the future of their souls alookin' at things through the dollar mark.

But they ain't always conscious of it. All they think of is that its worth while to invite So—and So—for their first best; and that you ort to be satisfied with the next best. Well—

Ma'm? No'm, I wouldn't say a word, unless they git after you about not coming oftener, which of course you won't do. Then you just take the reins yourself and keep 'em. And you just tell 'em that you've been running around a lot and having a good time and been busy and you haven't noticed them making no special effort. But my land! Just act sort of casual like and most tell 'em that you are sorry you forgot about them; you'll try to do better.

Now that always makes them kind of sore, but they got more respect for you than if you let them know you are hurt and missing them. It looks like to me that its human nature to want something you can't get easy.

Well, now you got to be sure you always do your part toward them, too, yes'm. You must not be alooking for them things; because its natural to do that if you've already been hurt onct or twice.

Well, there was Georgie Lampton what was a real sweet woman and is now and I like her too; but makes me madder than most anybudy. .

Ma'm? Because she is always planning for us to go places together and then if somebudy she thinks is more up and coming and worth whiler, account of their money, than I am, why she don't think nothing of just calmly forgettin' all about me and goes off with 'em. . . .

Yes'm, I'm still friendly with her because you got to think of folks good qualities, and let the others go, I've found out.

Course I don't never ask her to go anywheres with me and I go off with somebody else whenever I choose, and she don't get mad always. If she does I just remind her that she did it first. And old friends have got to look over things.

Oh I know them things stick. It makes you mad to think they have got the insolence.

Well, we've got established pretty well, me and them kind of friends. I like 'em still. Yet and still, if I'm ever at a place to have money to spend again, I reckon I'm human being enough to turn the tables. I reckon most of my invitations will be to new people and I'll just ask them to drop in any time. 'Course that'll bring 'em around. . . .

Yes,'m, I got a right good forgiver. But they ain't many folks what get more than one chanct to snub me. I'll be friendly with them and make allowances for them not understanding that they would feel things just the same as I do if they was in the same position; but I expect I won't never give them the same affection as I would have if they had of had fineness enough to appreciate that I, mebbe, could give 'em something what money couldn't buy. . . .

Yes'm, I tell you what you do. It looks like to me that mebbe away off fuller skirts are acoming.

You make a right fairly full tunic. You better pleat it like I told you. Well, box plaits are good. If you want a regular Redingote effect—all right. But I'd have the all round tunic with a real wide hem in it. Then I'd have a little drop sham skirt just as narrow as you want it.

Well, if the fuller skirts do come all you got to do is to turn up the hem of the drop skirt or take it out entirely. And then you let out the hem in the tunic and you got a full skirt. I remember when long tunics come in before I did that and I didn't have no trouble at all when the skirts changed in the fall.

I remember it was the year that we had little sort of pannier draperies in the spring and then long tunics and my land by winter we had full skirts. I mean that the fullness was right at the bottom.

It's going to be a pretty dress, that taupe brownish satin with the Chinese blue facings. You put that on and get mebbe a Tam or cute turn up hat and you will make 'em sorry they didn't ask you. . . .

Ma'm? Oh yes'm, they are always glad to get ideas from me. If I have on something pretty I've made myself (and they know I had to do it to have it) they are mighty anxious to git holt of it, though land! 'Course they don't think its as good as what a rich person would buy out of the store even if it is better lookin; though course its "good enough for 'Melia."

Well, I've stopped atelling them where and how I git things. And I've stopped letting them give me things and then trying to make it up to them in doin' work for them. Now you must stop that too.

No'm, don't you mix business and pleasure. If they want you to do any work you just charge them the top knot. And then don't take none of their old clothes and things.

It's too bad! It looks like to me that it is sensible for them to give you something, mebbe, and for you to accept it. But it can't be done without them looking down on you a little it seems. They can't help it because the dollar mark is so much more important to them that what it is to you.

Lonny says (that's my husband) "Don't you take nothing from them folks for to help dress Isabel Pearl. You and Isabel Pearl (that's my daughter) will always think of it when you are around them and they will always tell it when you are not around them."

Well, thats so. You keep your distance and you will keep your friends.

FAMILY FASHIONS.

Bishop Hendrix said at a luncheon in Kansas City: "There are two types of marriage—the old-fashioned type, with its household of merry children, and the new-fashioned one, with its frequent divorces. An old-fashioned child said one day: 'We've got another new baby at our house.' 'Pooh! That's nothing,' a new-fashioned child answered, 'We've got another new papa at ours.' "—[Unidentified.

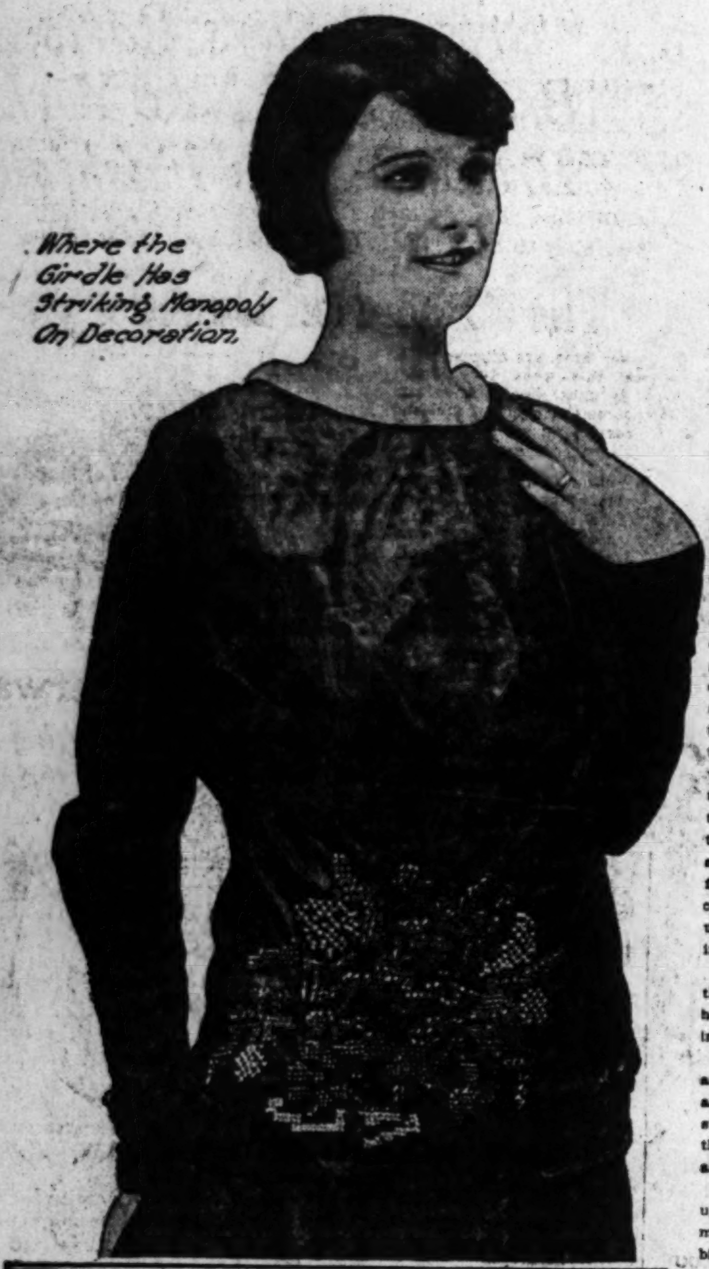
A CROSS-STITCH IDEA FOR THAT NEW FROCK



Where the Girdle Has Striking Monopoly On Decoration

LAST winter twas war relief; this winter 'tis cross-stitch relief. Facetious, yet true. Last year every one saved and stinted and saved again! This year the boys are back as "returned heroes." And that is why girls are resolved to be their prettiest this season. There is no reason why they shouldn't.

Walk thru the shops and you behold the most astounding new frocks. The note in all strikes one at once. They are more colorful, more trimmed.

Trimmings are contesting among themselves to see which can outdo the other in elaboration—and price. Tho, there is no ethical reason why girls shouldn't be their prettiest, most stylish selves this year, inevitably there looms up the practical reason why they can't have those trimmings or those ready-to-wear frocks which are trimmed conservatively and tastefully. They cannot afford them!

To the girl of average means cross-stitch relief will come as a great relief. She can spend little and yet be admitted into the ranks of the well-dressed.

Suppose you have a frock of black satin. A cross-stitch girdle of generous proportions worked in one of the popular new nasturtium shades would increase the style value of that gown about 50 per cent.

You might be planning your serge dress now. You know serge really has climbed to position among fabrics for best wear, and is surely going to keep its position for several seasons to come. It lends itself to either dressy or tailored treatment. There is a smart medium for some hand work also. Observe the frock with the bands of trimming extending from shouder to bottom of the apron tunic. A navy serge worked in antique blue or just the right shade of henna would be stunning.

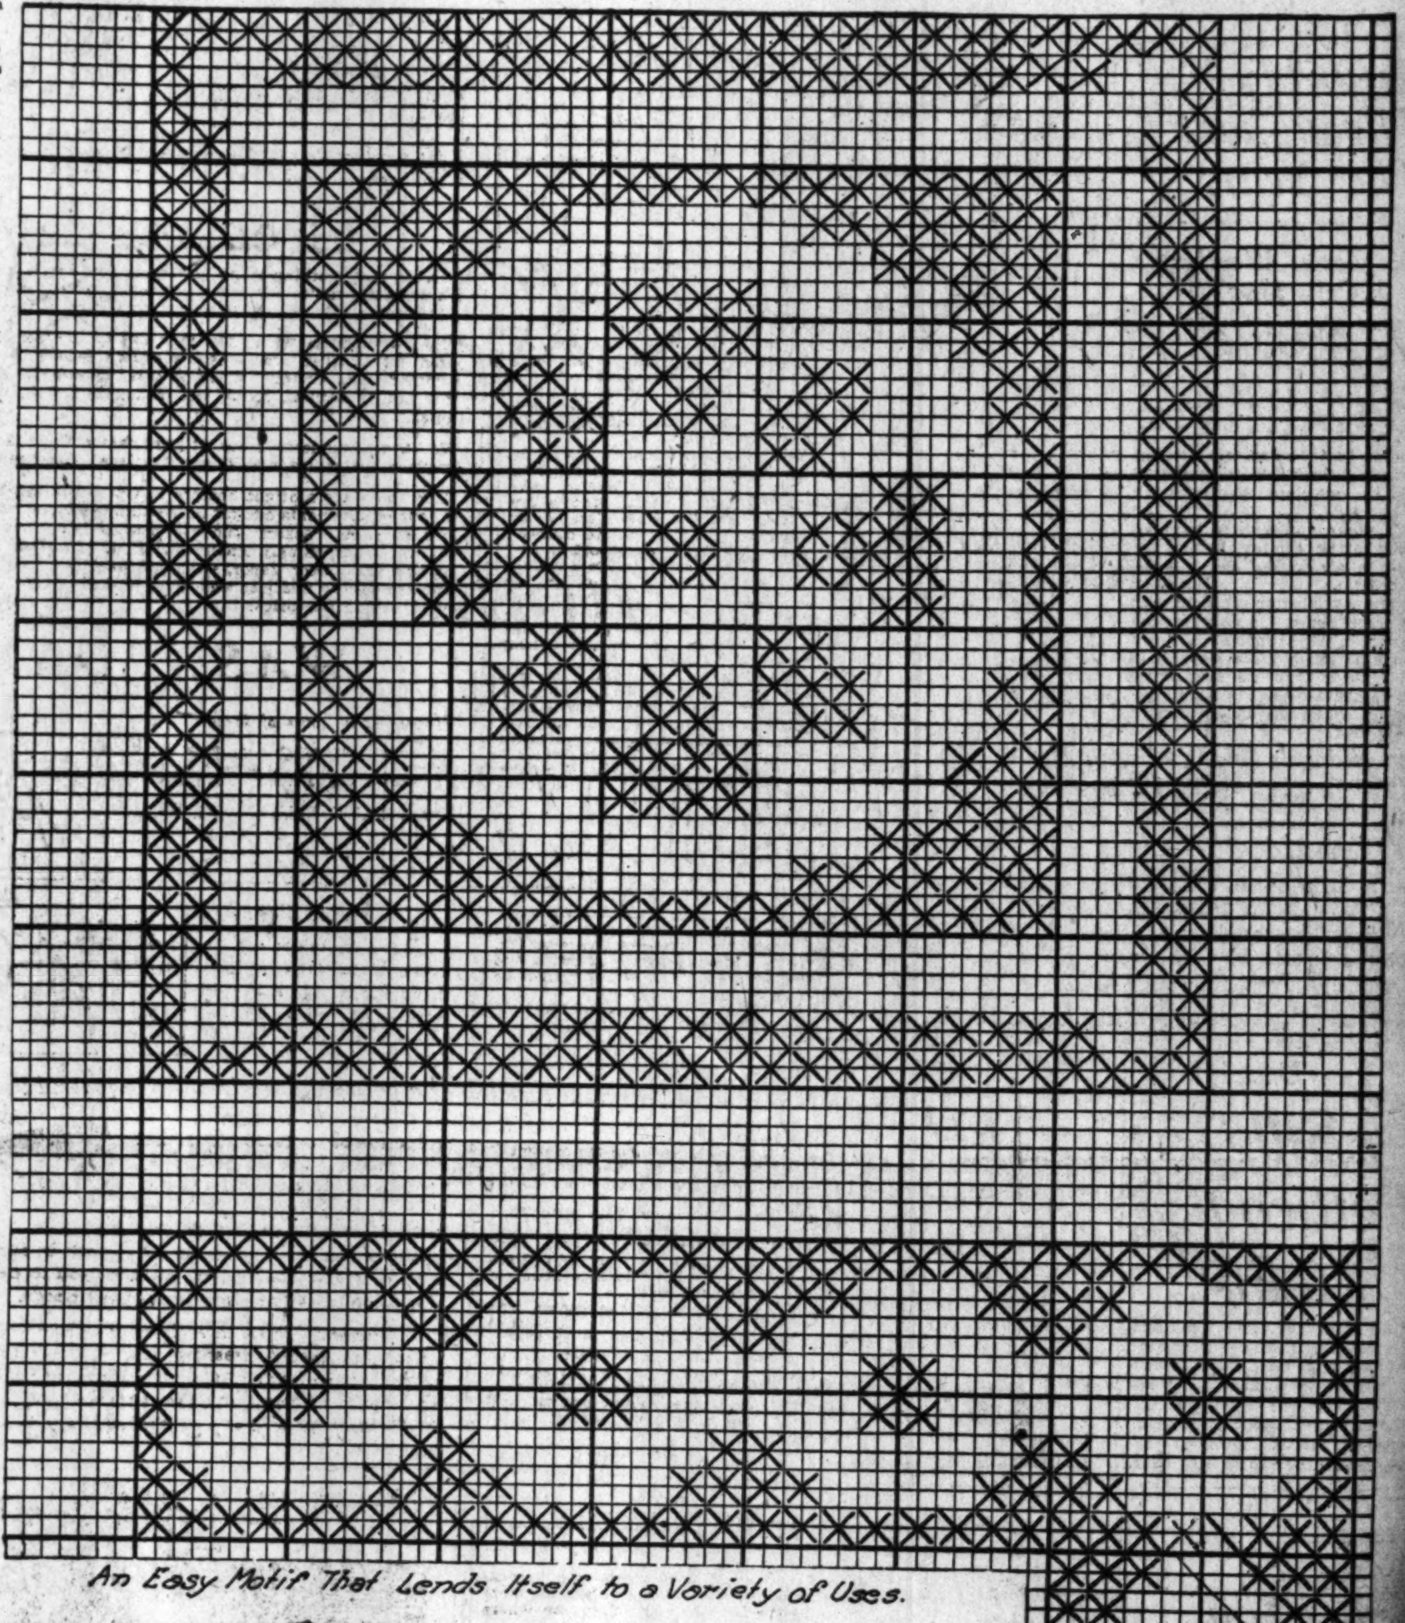
The border may be repeated to the length desired, and the block design featured with it is easily repeated to make whatever design you wish. The frock suggestions as to the use of both will prove invaluable.

The frock with the two bands of cross stitch extending half way down the blouse, with the block repeated to make the border about the bottom of the overskirt, could be worked out very well with a combination of materials. The skirt proper might be of brown satin of deep tone (browns are to be very good this winter) and the waist and overskirt of georgette crepe. The cross stitch would be worked on a satin band to weight and finish the overskirt, and the narrow pieces of trimming on the waist could be used as an insert. Note the use of a section of the border on the sash ends and sleeves. Similarly this frock might be developed in navy serge and satin, the latter being used for the blouse and overskirt and the cross-stitch pattern worked directly upon the material instead of applied as in the former suggestion.

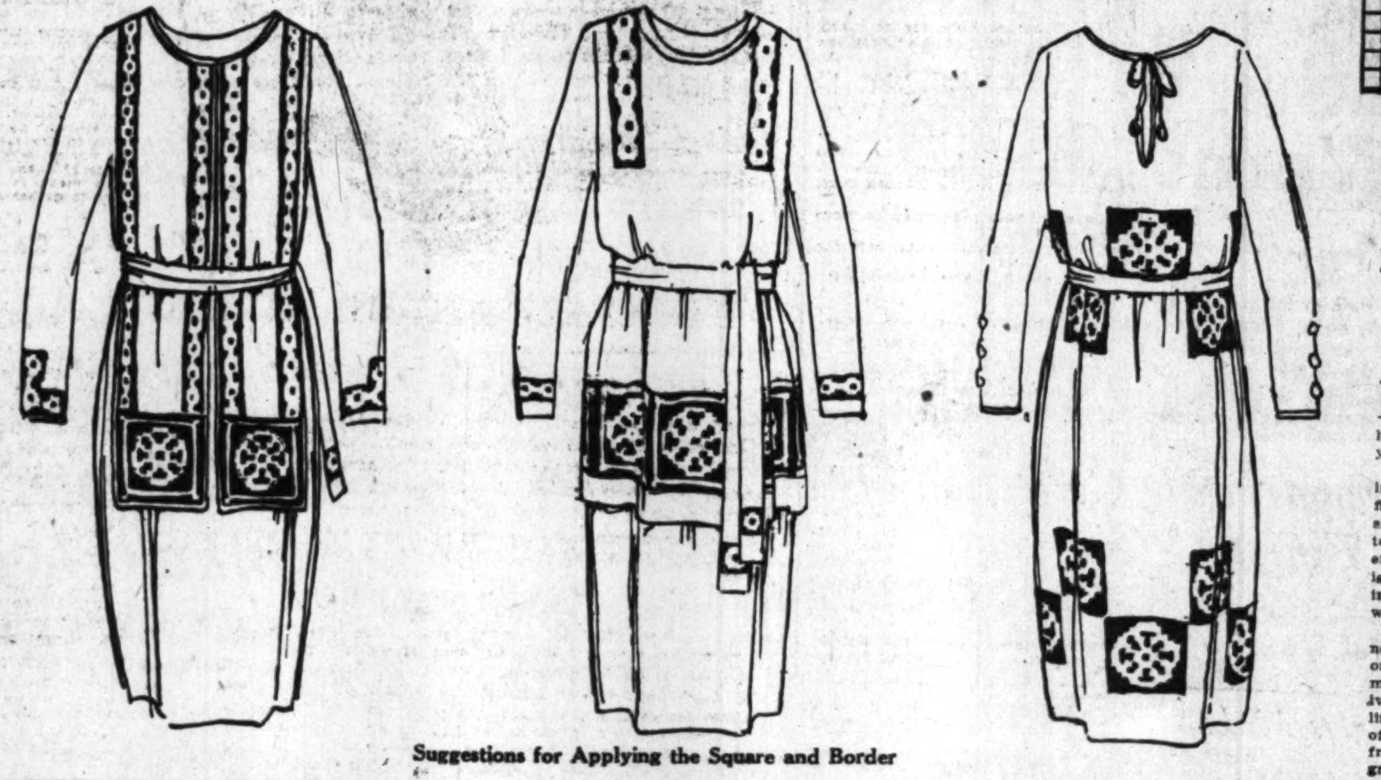
The other suggestion for the use of the block and border pattern offered here could very effectively be developed in either navy, black or brown satin. The arrangement of the block effects a triangular design about the waist line and bottom of the skirt. The cross stitch would be worked directly upon the dress here, of course, and not separately and afterward applied.

All of them could be worked directly upon the frocks. In the case of the middle frock, however, if satin is combined with some other material, then it would look better to make a trimming use of the design rather than an embroidery one, and thus you would cross-stitch the satin and apply it in the form of bands of trimming.

The design is a simple one. Work it on canvas of the usual ten-stitches-to-an-inch size, but halving the number of your stitches in this case so that they will be bold, like all up-to-date cross-stitch dress trimming. The effectiveness of the design lies in the manner in which it is assembled, as you have guessed. It leaves spaces for the material to appear between cross-stitched areas, thus bringing the latter strongly into relief. No simpler or more telling way could be selected to adorn your best cold-weather frock.



An Easy Motif That Lends Itself to a Variety of Uses.



Suggestions for Applying the Square and Border

TO ASSURE THE SUCCESS OF YOUR BLOUSE

Take a trip thru the expensive blouse section tomorrow and see if that extra $10 bill doesn't go for hand-work. There are miles and miles of embroidery on every up-to-the-minute article of feminine raiment, from the undies out to the suit-coat. It is just three-fourths the beauty of a garment as well as three-fourths the expense. However, if you know anything about embroidery at all, and if you make sure to get this page next Sunday, you have absolutely no blouse worries.

The Role of Needlework in the Fashion Play of 1919

RECENTLY some one said that "needlework was a thing of the past as far as the fashionably dressed woman was concerned." The sentiment that person really meant to express was that needlework was not a fashion asset to the fashionably dressed woman's clothes.

Just because some women spend a great deal of time embroidering their clothes and achieve results which would never pass the fashion censor, it is not a justified conclusion that embroidery never adds but rather detracts from the smartness of clothes.

The needlewoman should keep abreast of the times in the way in which she uses her embroidery or other hand-work upon her clothes. What folks embroidered and the way they embroidered that particular article of clothing several seasons ago was not any more guaranteed as to perpetuity than are fashions in any other phase of woman's wear.

Here are some strictly up-to-date hints for the woman who trims her clothing with her own hands. Indeed, some of these hints are in advance of the up-to-date!

If you bead a dress for the next season, string the beads out in straight lines. In a collection of recent importations there were a number of garments which were trimmed with bead strings in twisted clusters. Frocks of georgette are most stylishly trimmed when they have parallel rows of beads strung either vertically or horizontally in straight lines upon the waist and skirt.

Ribbons are to be used very extensively for trimming. Shirrings of narrow ribbons are attractively used for edgings on self-collars and cuffs of net waists. Frocks which close down the back might have a row of ribbon loops instead of buttons arranged closely together. These loops should be made of self-color ribbon of about inch width and should be about an inch and a half in length. They are most stylish when made of either metal, two-tone, or grosgrain ribbon.

A heavy chain-stitch may be used in bright colors to trace out a gipsy pattern upon a taupe blouse of chiffon or georgette. The object is to get a result which will resemble all-over embroidery.

The newest embroidery designs for waists have birds or dragons as their motifs. Birds placed at random upon a waist of organdie are very charming.

Bulgarian embroidery will be good on suits. You may use a variety of colors if you like, but use them advisedly and in harmonizing tones of rather subdued colors.

The round collar is to be favored again. Therefore, get busy, little needle woman, and make some. They may be blanket-stitched, buttonholed or picoted about the edge. Insets of net on the long collars are favored.

In these various ways, needlework plays an important role in the Fashion Play of 1919!

POSSIBILITIES OF THE DARK ROOM

IS THERE a room in your apartment or house that is not attractive? Or is there a dark, cheerless room in your house that you unconsciously avoid? But do you realize that it may be largely responsible for a certain depressed feeling that possesses you whenever you spend time in it? However, in any case, there are several ways of brightening a dark room.

First, if it be out of the question to add extra windows to your dark room, make the best of the windows you already have. See that they are always clean—clean windows make more difference than one might think. In winter always remove the screens—screens shut out much light. White or yellow shades are preferable to dark green ones. Curtains of simple, thin material that can be easily slid back on the rods are best. In some rooms side draperies, about one foot wide, of dainty cretonne are pretty substitutes for curtains.

Second, if you can afford a little carpenter work, probably the windows are the first thing to change. A north room, particularly, is improved with the addition of a number of large windows, and any room with extra light gains a spaciousness and cheerfulness that makes it pleasant to occupy. The window seat or bay also makes a cosy place for either plants, or a seat and cushions. One of these window seats may be built in at a cost of $35 up.

Repainting woodwork that is dark, to either cream or white, will often work wonders in a dark room.

If a heavy, dark carpet can be banished, the floor may be treated in several ways. The most attractive flooring is, of course, hardwood or maple, but sometimes a well-stained floor is almost as effective. Small braided or rag rugs look well on a bare floor. If it is desired to retain a square of carpeting, or use a large rug, a stained border will serve. Light tan, gray are shades that may be chosen for a painted edge. But if expense is a consideration there are other ways of brightening up the dark room.

There is a chance to make most any room cosy with an open fire, if there be a fireplace. Brass andirons, and if there is a mantel, brass candlesticks are attractive additions. During summer months, a jardiniere of flowers may be given a place between the andirons.

Most flowers and plants are brightening touches, but there are a few examples that are best avoided. Coleous, for example, adds dreariness to a room. Boston ferns, placed in a window sill, seem to be a light green that radiates cheerfulness. For first choice, yellow or white flowers are best to brighten up a room.

Heavily framed pictures on the wall or dark pictures should not be hung in a cheerless room. If you have artistic magazine pictures a pretty way to frame them is to place each between a piece of glass and a piece of cardboard, the same size as the picture, and bind the edges together with black, white, brown or green passepartout binding. On the whole, it is better to have too few pictures than too many. A mirror, no matter how poorly framed, will help dispel gloom.

Sometimes a bough or branch, from what seems very ordinary outdoors, will look charming in the house.

And the new gay furniture, with little flowers painted on it will add much charm to a dark room also.

A Stunning Trimming for Your Satin Frock

IF YOU are one of the fortunate people who are going to have a black satin frock for the next season, here is a novel way to trim it with your own needle.

Cut the satin into a number of half-inch squares. Then with embroidery floss in one of the new nasturtium shades, Cuban red or jasper green, buttonhole about the edge. A less solid effect and perhaps a more desirable one is secured by using a blanket-stitch instead of a buttonhole. Certainly it will be less work.

These squares are strung by one corner to a small black cord if you like, or applied by one corner directly to the material. They make a very attractive trimming for collars, collarless neck lines, cuffs and girdles. A unique touch of this sort may convert the plainest frock into one with a considerable degree of distinction.

This Pin Tray You Will Like

FOLKS used to make more pincushions for dressers than they do now. If the needlewoman has grown tired of them she will not be left comfortless, for in this day of substitutes one is not lacking for the long roll of a pincushion which used to adorn every dresser. Or, if you still like these pincushions which are in many cases very attractive, you will be glad to use the substitute for a complement to the pincushion! It may be made to match.

Take a four-inch embroidery hoop and bind it with ribbon. Embroider a circular piece of linen with whatever design you wish. Of course, it must be of the same dimensions as the embroidery hoop. Stretch the linen over the hoop and tack it into place. Finish the tray with a band of ribbon tied around the outside and add very small full bows on either side.

HOW [illegible]W YORK SUFFERS.

A Populatio[illegible]ained to Stand Almost Anything.

BY TOM MASSON,
Editor of "Life."

Before the war, when a man went [illegible] Monte Carlo, [illegible]e, they took him into a privat[illegible]om and gave him enough cash [illegible]get home.

In New York, [illegible] a man goes into a restauran[illegible]get enough to eat to keep tog[illegible] his body and what soul he [illegible]have left, they take all his m[illegible] and he walks home.

And he can afford to walk home because [illegible]wears out shoe leather.

You can ge[illegible]new pair of soles put on your o[illegible]oes for three dollars.

Every time [illegible]y do it the shoes are a little s[illegible]er. But as people are constantl[illegible]owing thinner, the shoes always [illegible] It's a great system. And New Y[illegible] cobblers are doing a land offic[illegible] business. A man showed me a new pair of shoes the other day that are now retailing in New York at $18.00. He bought them at the factory.

"How much did I pay for them?" he said. "$5.25."

So there you are!

I bought a suit of clothes last year for $95.00. The same suit is now worth—or costs—$140.00. I have worried about $45.00 out of it in wear and tear so it is still worth what I paid for it.

Two people can get a room over night in New York at a fairly first-class hotel for from $6.00 to $8.00 with bath, by ordering it days in advance. If you get the $6.00 room, it is so small that you have to put your feet out of the window to get your trousers on.

Twenty-four hours in New York for two people, including four meals, lodging, tips, transportation, theater and movies, costs from $35.00 to $40.00—unless you sleep in a park and eat at a dog wagon.

I paid $40.00 the other night for a diner for six people, and was ashamed to look the waiter in the eye because we had had so little. Besides, looking the waiter in the eye is expensive—all the way from one to five dollars.

You can't sit down anywhere in New York without paying for it.

A three-piece suit for a lady which cost $175.00 in 1914 can now be purchased for $300.00.

The proprietor of a leading hotel said to me:

"Don't write anything against us. We are up against it as much as you are. I had a profit of $2000 a day from my bar, and even then I wasn't getting rich. How am I to make that up? By covert charges. We are the only people not making money."

It takes about two weeks in New York for a visitor to get the most food for the least money. By that time he has no money left.

When you are in New York, if you want to go anywhere else from where you are, when you have gone you wish you had stayed where you were. But if you do stay where you are, then you are sorry you didn't go somewhere else, so that you could wish you hadn't gone. The principal occupation of New Yorkers is getting up, going out, and coming back.

I like to write about New York because I can say anything I like about it, and New York doesn't care. I once wrote an article about Paterson, N. J., and they threatened to sue for libel. Here are some of the things that every New Yorker knows—if he knows anything.

One-half of New York doesn't live here. The other half can't get away.

The women of New York cannot gossip about their neighbors because they don't know them. Therefore they go away from New York at stated periods in order to know enough people to gossip about.

No New Yorker knows anything about New York. If he did, he would be on a visit.

You can now lead a New York rounder to water, but you can't make him think.

With the exception of St. Louis, Kansas City, Boston, Chicago, New Orleans, Louisville, Omaha, San Francisco and Detroit, and a few other places, the New York newspapers are the best in the country.

Here is a true story told me by one of New York's most distinguished artists, who during the war was in charge of the government poster work. At a dinner given in 1918 to encourage artists to do this work, a tactless government official came on to assist. He said:

"Gentlemen, I am glad that you have come here this evening to volunteer your services. But I particularly wish to emphasize the fact that this work must not be local. It must be a broad, national cooperative work, and not confined to you New Yorkers."

Then turning to my friend, who presided, he said:

"Mr. Chairman, I hope you will sympathize and appreciate the point I make. We want New York artists of course, but we want others besides from all over the country."

My friend, knowing the temperament of his co-workers, experienced a moment of intense embarrassment. He felt that this was, indeed, a fine way to arouse enthusiasm. Then he rose to his feet and said:

"All those from California hold up their hands."

Two hands went up.

"How many from Illinois?"

Three held up their hands.

He rapidly canvassed the crowd and for nearly every State in the Union there was one, or more. Then he paused and said:

"Is there a New Yorker present?"

There was. One lone man sheepishly raised his hand and was greeted with a howl.

The only free thing in New York is that lonesome feeling.

When a New Yorker goes away and comes back he never says "I am going home," but "Back to little old New York for me!"

The patience of the people who inhabit New York is incredible. They—the New York public—are the only ones who never go out on strike. Yet all they would have to do would be to refuse to buy anything for three days, just sit still and the profiteers would come to time.

Why do people live in New York?

(1.) Because they can look at so many other people they don't know.

(2.) Because they think they can make enough money to pay one-half more than they would have to pay elsewhere for things they don't want.

(3.) Because they can forget themselves temporarily in more ways for 50 cents than anywhere else

(4.) Because there are so many other people worse off than they are that they can see.

(5.) Because there are a few people they think are better off that they can't see, but can read about.

I went down to Washington not long ago and met Senator Knute Nelson from Minnesota. There was a man from Kansas with me. A friend, turning to the Kansas man, said:

"Senator, this gentleman is from Kansas."

"I am glad to meet you," said the Senator.

My friend urged me forward.

"And this young man," he said, referring to me, "is from New York." And he added, "suppose, Senator, you sometimes meet people from New York."

The Senator thought a moment and said with a smile:

"I sometimes have to."

There is nothing more interesting than personality. Great problems can be explained more easily by what certain people do than in any other way. Is the servant problem in New York acute? It is. Is the labor problem in New York acute? It is. Do the two things go together? They do. An instance.

I employed a colored lady who had previously been working in a factory for $10 a week. I offered her $11, with board and lodging during those periods when she wasn't visiting. She worked for six weeks and got $66. What did she do with the money? She went out and bought silk underwear with it, and then said she'd like to hang it out on the line with that of the rest of the family.

If that isn't making the world reasonably safe for democracy, what is?

And still we suffer.

At the Right Time.

The other night at a local picture show an egotistical young man was giving a very shy, diffident person some advice, which interested the people around them. He told elaborately of his own success and then ended: "What you have to do now is to talk a little bit more about yourself and the things you do. If a fellow doesn't advertise himself who will, I want to know?"

Just then a subtitle was flashed on the screen and every one around the two young men laughed heartily. It read: "A whale never gets into trouble until he begins to blow."—[Indianapolis News.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE.

A Weekly News Letter from London.

BY T. P. O'CONNOR.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Sept. 27—Whenever Lloyd George enters the House of Commons to make a big speech he is always followed by a short pale-faced reserved-looking man who sits immediately behind him with bundles of papers which he hands to his chief whenever asked to do so.

To see how quiet, self-restrained and almost furtive this man is you would scarcely realize that he is regarded today as the biggest power behind the Lloyd George throne. For this is Sir William Sutherland, Lloyd George's political secretary.

Sutherland was born in Glasgow thirty-nine years ago. He came of a family of strong radicals and an uncle of his was at one time a member of Parliament and a leader of the Scotch crofters in a movement somewhat similar to that in Ireland under Davitt and Parnell for liberation from the intolerable oppression under rackrents and eviction. When he succeeded in winning for his clients the big land act reforms he subsided in the position of a public official to superintend the working of the act. William, his nephew, a distinguished student at Glasgow University, took his degree of master of arts and then entered into national competition for places in the civil service. He came out near the top and thus gained one of the best-paid clerkships.

LLOYD GEORGE LIKED HIM.

He was a young clerk with already noticeable gifts when Lloyd George became president of the Board of Trade. Lloyd George took a fancy to him, employed his nimble brain, his extraordinary industry and mastery of detail in helping him through the drudgery of several of his most important measures. It was Sutherland who mastered all the complicated details of insurance when Lloyd George produced his old age pension scheme. It was Sutherland again who supplied Lloyd George with all the details for starting that big new land campaign for reforming the English land system in which Lloyd George was deeply engaged just before the war.

Lloyd George supplied the rhetoric, brilliant rancorous, which aroused popular enthusiasm on one side and infuriated criticism among all the squirearchical class. It was Lloyd George who spoke of the eldest son of a peer, who, by our law of primogeniture, inherited all the land property of the family, as "the first in the litter," and used other epithets that made people foam and rendered historical a speech delivered at Limehouse, one of London's roughest quarters, until "Limehouse" became a substitute in the political controversy for the old word "billingsgate."

But behind the rhetoric was this plodding, untiring young Scotchman who supplied his chief, more gifted with powers in rhetorical generalization than drudging details, with the ammunition of facts and figures which were necessary to fill up Lloyd George's brilliant, passionate indictment. Thus Sutherland became essentially necessary to Lloyd George, and wherever Lloyd George went Sutherland was bound to follow.

The war brought to Sutherland new and more important duties than ever and he was gradually transformed from a mere civil service clerk to the potent, though unseen and often unsuspected, political manager.

It now is known that underneath an apparently united front and imposing face the Asquith ministry for years was being undermined from without and within. The full story of that deadly struggle will not be told till the memoirs appear a century hence. But this is a general outline: All the Tories inside and outside the Cabinet distrusted Asquith's power to carry the war to a successful end, basing their opinion on his good-natured refusal to dismiss even incompetents at home and on foreign battlefields, the case of Lord Kitchener being the most vital. Several members of the Cabinet were convinced that Kitchener was messing his department, especially in the supplying of munitions. Sir Edward Carson with his grim tenacity and direct, though somewhat shallow, mind, was so convinced of this that he resigned, and so bitter did he feel about Kitchener that he refused to say a single word in the full dress ceremonies and not very genuine funeral services in the House of Commons.

NORTHCLIFFE AN ALLY.

Lloyd George joined this movement, and there came to his assistance a formidable ally in Lord Northcliffe. Northcliffe indeed did more to destroy the Asquith government than any other man. He ran immense risks, even that of arrest, and he used to constantly say to his friends during the fierce struggle that he might have to go to jail, but he was ready to go in defense of his views as to the dangers to the country.

Sutherland here stepped in as an important link between his chief and Northcliffe, and it was this association which finally brought Asquith down and put Lloyd George in his place. The last attempt to find a compromise between Asquith and Lloyd George was to establish a war committee cabinet with Lloyd George as the head and Asquith outside. Asquith was disposed to assent, but Reginald McKenna and other violent Asquithites argued him out of it, and an article in the Times, which revealed something of what was going on, almost forced Asquith in self-defense to refuse the compromise and so to seal his official death warrant.

The hand of Sutherland was undoubtedly in most of this complicated story of rival personal forces as well as the hand of another. Whether Sutherland directly influenced the publication of that article it is not yet possible to say, but I feel pretty confident that he was not wholly foreign to it. Thus Sutherland becomes directly one of the creators of the premiership of Lloyd George.

The rewards to himself were important though not extraordinary. He became a member for a Scotch county and a knight, but he has no higher position than a parliamentary secretary to his chief, with a small salary, and his salary as a member of Parliament—altogether less than $6000 a year. He can any day do better if he likes, for several big businesses have offered him large salaries and a large block of shares, the directors of Lord Rothermere's string of papers he has refused all such offers.

MAKES A GOOD SPEECH.

He has spoken only once or twice since his return to Parliament, though he can make a good speech. He has given up all his hours and attention to the service of Lloyd George. He is at 10 Downing street night as well as day. With him Lloyd George, when absent, always keeps in touch. He sends his instructions on all important things and Sutherland has had some big and delicate missions and some difficult messages to deliver, sometimes to kings even, when those mighty personages do or omit to do things deemed essential by the ever watchful, prompt and authoritative Prime Minister. A department now and then writhes under this unsparing agent of the minister, who never lets a telephone drop out of his hand till he has found the right official and got the right thing done. Say a riot breaks out in a city and the local authorities ask for troops. Sutherland is at once on the telephone. He rings up the war office. Churchill is not there, for that restless gentleman is airplaining or visiting a barrack or running over to the continent. Then the next one is called; it is Sunday perhaps, and he is weekending in the country, and the next is also away, for officials, like all Englishmen, will have their vacations though the heavens fall. But Sutherland keeps on till somebody is found and the troops start by the next train.

Similarly, in the House of Commons, though Sutherland is not much in evidence he is everywhere that the interests of his chief require, exploring House of Commons opinion above all in the smokeroom, where the members speak most freely. He writes daily to Lloyd George when he is absent, telling him all the gossip and events in his office. Nearly everything comes to him first, from the sending of troops to the appointment of new bishops in the established church.

HAS FEW INTIMATES.

He is accessible to all, but he has few intimates, most of them Irishmen, for he is a Highland Celt by blood. He pays a visit toward 11 o'clock or midnight to the National Liberal Club when his long day's work is done and where again you can find out a great deal of what politicians are thinking, for that club is the headquarters of all the Liberals in the United Kingdom. He has no pleasures beyond a good cigar and lives in a modest flat with three rooms at $500 a year rental. He is hated and feared by all the enemies of Lloyd George, but much liked by his intimates, even those who neither like or trust his chief. He is cynical yet quietly enthusiastic. He has met too many men playing their own game for office, for money and for titles to take a very lofty view of human nature, but he is very indulgent and serviceable to those he loves. He is a keen, able politician, and on Ireland is much wiser and more sympathetic than his chief.

Such is the power behind Lloyd George's throne.

Girl Rivals "Old Put."

Miss Rosa Mary Bowers, 16 years old, of Richmond, recently earned $18 in a way that was unusual, but she will probably set no fashion for other 16-year-old girls to follow. While out walking Miss Bowers saw a young wolf at the entrance of a den and after going for her grandfather's help crawled into the den, capturing single handed the mother wolf and five little ones.—[Richmond Missourian.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws its beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

The hot days of July and August, while piling work for the weather man in replacing his old statistics with brand-new figures, brought little discomfort to the soldiers at Takoma Park, D. C. All during the long hours when the sun beat his rays upon the shriveling earth with unremitting fury, the convalescent war hero of Walter Reed General Hospital splashed about in the refreshing waters of the delightful swimming pool recently constructed and laughed Old Sol to scorn as the cool diversion made him forget entirely the season of the year.

The pool is a gift from Mrs. Henry Rea of Pittsburgh, who is field director of the Department of Military Relief, Potomac Division, American Red Cross. It is 85 feet long and 33 feet wide and four feet deep at one end, sloping to eight feet at the other. The walls are of concrete, about nine inches thick, reinforced with half-inch steel rods running horizontally. Post at short intervals along the side mark the varying depths.

The Hooper Rescue Home for Animals at 201 Demontigny Street Montreal, P. Q., has been presented to the S. P. C. A. of that city by Lieut.-Col. Georges Hooper. For two years past Col. Hooper has loaned the property to the society, of which he is the president, so the work of the institution has been established already.

The home fills a great need in Montreal as to it are brought all injured small animals picked up on the streets. It contains a public pound to which stray dogs, cats, rabbits, goats, etc., are taken and where they are kept for three days to give the owners a chance to claim them. Three to four hundred dogs and cats are received each month. There are kennels for sixty dogs. There is also a chicken run for hens that are brought into the city improperly crated. These crates of fowls are seized and the birds released in the run until the owners provide proper crates. A staff of three is in attendance at the home with a veterinary available when wanted.

"If lumbermen of the Northwest had provided their loggers with good reading matter fifteen years ago, instead of allowing the 'Reds' to furnish the major part of the literature found in the camps, the I. W. W. and the Bolsheviki would never have gained an audience in the timber belts of Washington and Oregon."

So says Capt. John Anderson, who for the past three years has devoted his time to distribution of the better class of magazines among the woodsmen. The captain collects current magazines in Portland, Tacoma and Seattle, and ships them by the box to the widely scattered camps.

Captain Anderson gained his first experience with loggers as one of the partners in the Venersborg Lumber Company, in Clarke county, Washington. The company's headquarters was in Portland. One day the officers gathered up all the old magazines in their office and shipped them to the mill. The loggers read them with such avidity that the shipments were continued.

When the company exhausted its timber holdings in Clarke county, Capt. Anderson felt that he had amassed a competence. The mill was moved to new holdings but he sold his interest and set to work to ameliorate conditions among his former employees. In 1917 he furnished books and magazines to eighty camps. He increased the number to 182 in 1918 and estimated that 110,000 loggers benefited from his labors, wh

THE present stock of Obrikat-Meyer furs is notable not only for the many elaborate conceptions on display, but for the extensive showing of smaller fur pieces of lesser cost.

Women who know Los Angeles have learned that in the display rooms of Obrikat-Meyer may be found the complete fulfillment of their fur needs—whether those needs call for the most elaborate garments or those of more simple designs.

The big volume of our business—the extensive buying that is necessary to adequately stock our three large stores—enables us to obtain the finest pelts at the lowest possible figure. Thus we can afford to sell for less.

The smaller, less costly furs shown by this house embody that same high class of workmanship found in the larger pieces — the standard by which Obrikat-Meyer is known. You cannot obtain Obrikat-Meyer quality elsewhere at Obrikat-Meyer prices.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CRAMENTO, Oct. 3.—The … is faced by an unprecedented … an unexpected demand for …, according to State Treasurer …rdson. This condition is due … inability of the State to sell …ay bonds and to a $2,000,000 … in State aid to common …s. The State needs $5,000,000 … highway construction, and as …nds cannot be sold, the State treasury must finance construction.

Heretofore, the school apportionment has been about $3,000,000, but this year it will reach $5,000,000. This condition will make it necessary to call in a large amount of deposits in banks, all of which are now drawing from 3 to 4 per cent.

Richardson in an interview yesterday said: "The bond market is still a shade off, and 4½ highways cannot be sold. This has made it necessary for the Board of Control to buy the bonds from the surplus funds. The increase in appropriations to schools made by the last Legislature will make it necessary to pay out more than $5,000,000 next month. If the bond market does not improve it will be necessary to call upon the banks holding State deposits for several million dollars."

The accusations of W. T. Ellis, Jr., of the State Reclamation Board, charging Melville Dozier, Jr., general manager of the board, with incompetency and wilful neglect of duty are characterized as "his miserable, nasty, little ways" in an answer filed to the Ellis report by the accused.

Branding the statements in the report of the former secretary of the board as "either untrue or so badly twisted that they do not reflect the facts," Dozier gave careful consideration to each charge made by Ellis, frequently citing "nasty" portions as being particularly indicative of the alleged personal animosity of his fellow board member.

The general manager of the board charges that Ellis has employed assistants and representatives of questionable character and infers that he has been forced to keep his private correspondence under double lock to safeguard it from the "hirelings' eyes."

The report denies that Dozier requested the salary increase from $7500 to $10,000, which was granted him by the board.

Dozier replied to the charge that he had neglected the duties of his office for personal affairs with the declaration that he averaged twelve hours a day for the State during the period in question. He also terms as utterly untrue the statement that "the general manager has a private stenographer who receives a salary of $1500."

The general manager quoted at length to show that the clearing of brush along the Feather River was done well and within the estimated cost. He further stated that the plan suggested by Ellis to bandle the timber proved an absolute failure when put into practice.

Ellis has announced his intention of answering the Dozier report.

Although the number of corporations assessed by the State decreased in number from 18,575 for the fiscal year 1918-1919, to 18,095 for 1919-1920, collections of taxes as reported by State Controller Chambers are slightly ahead of the collections for the same period last year. The total assessment for the present year was $19,581,528.22, against $17,698,842.80 for the preceding year.

Collections under the 1919-1920 assessment up to the delinquent date in August were $10,153,070.89, 51.9 per cent. of the levy. Up to the same date last year the collections were $9,114,522.14, or 51.5 per cent. of the levy.

Among twelve applicants for retirement salaries favored by the State Board of Education in the granting of pensions this week, George Lee Leslie was the only Los Angeles teacher mentioned. He was granted $500 per year. The quarterly pay roll of the Board of Education is now $75,000.

The appointment of State agents who, as deputies of the Superintendent of Public Instruction will organize and supervise Americanization work in the schools of California, is recommended in a report submitted by a committee of educators to Will C. Wood, State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The report was referred to the State Board of Control and will be carried out by the members of that board.

The funds for the salaries and expenses of these agents will come from the Commission of Immigration and Housing, which, with the State department of education and the University of California, will have joint charge of the work.

Teacher training, in the report, is declared to be the first and most important work to be taken up by the agents. The appointment of home teachers, nurses, recreational and school directors to promote Americanization outside the schools, is suggested, and that citizenship be added to the civic courses in intermediate and high schools.

Mr. Wood, who will have direct supervision of the work of the agents, said: "There are probably not less than 100,000 illiterates in California, most of them immigrants. Practically all of the non-English-speaking foreigners in our country will become excellent Americans if they are given proper encouragement and education."

The State is faced by many problems which seem to make it impossible to start work on the additions and annexes to the Capitol Building.

State Librarian Ferguson, who is one of the active forces in the Capitol Extension Committee, has reported that it will be practically impossible to sell the $2,000,000 worth of bonds necessary to start actual construction on the new buildings.

The inability of the State to sell highway bonds at 4½ per cent. is cited by Ferguson as sufficient proof that a buyer for the annex bonds will be hard to find. The Capitol bonds bear only 4 per cent. interest.

Payments of State money for the support of elementary and high schools during the present fiscal year will total $7,555,885, according to figures which have been made public by State Controller Chambers.

Of that sum $6,495,160 goes to elementary schools, whose per capita appropriation has been increased from $15 to $17.50, and whose pupils have risen in number from 350,586 in 1918 to 371,152 in 1919, an increase of 20,566. The elementary schools received for the last fiscal year $5,258,520, $1,236,640 less than for the present year.

The increase for high schools, in apportionment, is $90,585, this year's total being $1,060,725. Attendance gained 6039, being 70,715 by the last reports.

Enrollment at the State farm school at Davis this year for the fall course approximates 1000 students, Dean Van Norman has announced, following the close of registration.

More than 200 have enrolled for the course as freshmen, and the general attendance is twice that of last year.

Rehabilitation students numbering 220, 100 Australian soldiers and about 500 short-course students, are in attendance.

TOO EFFICIENT.

Professors Leave Teaching for Lucrative Outside Positions.

American colleges are victims of their own success, according to Dr. William T. Foster, president of Reed College, in Portland, Or., who is visiting here.

Dr. Foster said that colleges had trained their men so well that they are able to make three or four times as much outside as they would on the teaching staffs.

"Our chemists who have gone into munitions plants," he said, "have a new conception of what a fair salary is, and they feel that they can never return to the pay of a college professor. The same is true of physicists who have been drawn from our faculties."

He said that Prof. Pierce of Harvard had told him that electrical and telegraph companies were taking students faster than they could be trained, completing their instruction in their own laboratories and paying them high salaries.

Dr. Foster said that the love of teaching would keep certain professors at their jobs despite the outside financial lure. "At Harvard," he said, "I could name a few men who would be professors even if there were no salary at all attached to the position, and I can think of one man on the faculty who would teach even if he had to pay for the privilege. But the majority of professors are not as comfortable financially as these men I have in mind.

"Last week I found a teacher of engineering who had just resigned his assistant professorship at $3500 to accept an industrial position at $10,000. As Chancellor Elliott of the University of Montana said to me the other day, 'We are killing the goose that lays the golden egg.'"

GOT THE TERMS MIXED.

"Do you go this way to get to the Tin Plate?" was the question addressed to one of the clerks at the Deshler a day or two ago by a lady somewhat advanced in years. One not accustomed to the amusing mistakes of the public would probably have let the question go unanswered to the satisfaction of the inquirer, but fortunately the clerk at once grasped the situation and directed the lady how to go to the Union Station. It developed that she had in mind the Nickel Plate railroad, and said that she thought it was known as the Tin Plate.—[Coumbus Dispatch.

WATER SOUVENIR TO LAFAYETTE

Fluid from Lake Erie Used to Dedicate Erie Canal.

Distinguished Men Passengers on First Boat Through.

A "Chimerical Project" had Become a Fact.

[From the Christian Science Monitor.]

"On October 26, 1825, the first boat to make the trip through the finished Erie Canal left Buffalo, with Gov. Clinton, Stephen Van Rensselaer, Joshua Forman, Chancellor Livingston, William L. Stone and Thurlow Weed among those on board," we read in "Artificial Waterways and Commercial Development," by A. Barton Hepburn.

"The trip of the Seneca Chief, as the canal boat was named, was probably the most thoroughly celebrated event New York State has ever experienced. All along the route was a jubilant people, making it a continuous holiday parade; ringing of bells and booming of cannon greeted it everywhere and Clinton was the hero of the fortnight. On November 4, the boat escorted from Albany by a fleet of steamers arrived in New York City, where civic, military and naval parades followed, accompanied by the mast extravagant demonstrations of popular enthusiasm. A memorial medal was struck by the municipal authorities, the face of which was subsequently adopted as the seal of the canal department. Two kegs of water from Lake Erie had been brought along and one of these was taken to Sandy Hook and the water ceremoniously poured into the Atlantic Ocean.

"The contents of the other keg were bottled as mementos, and one of these bottles was presented to Lafayette, who had a short time before been the guest of the city. An esthusiastic citizen had procured bottles of water from the Nile, the Ganges, the Indus, the Thames, the Seine, the Rhine, the Mississippi, the Columbia, the Orinoco and the La Plata, all of which were also with proper ceremony emptied into the Atlantic, after those of the Erie had been mingled with its brine. This mingling of water typified the ambitious faith of the builders that the commerce of the canal system was bound to commingle with and be enlarged by the commerce of all portions of the world.

"The festivities lasted until the night of November 7, concluding with a grand ball. It is recorded that the news of the opening of the Grand Canal, as it was called for many years, was sent from Buffalo to Sandy Hook, over 500 miles, in eighty-one minutes, by means of booming cannon placed at proper distances along the line. Our forebears, rejoicing over this great achievement in transportation, sought to hasten the news of the canal's opening by booming cannon as fast as sound travels. They little dreamed that in less than a century Buffalo and New York would converse with the same ease and certainty as persons seated face to face.

"Thus 'Clinton's Ditch,' as his opponents in politics contemptuously called it, was a fixed act, notwithstanding ex-Governor (then Vice-President) Tompkins's declaration a short time before, that it was a 'chimerical project.'"

A Common Paradox.

"So you're still carrying a mortgage on your house, are you?"

"Yes, and strange to say, I'm carrying it because I cannot lift it."—[Boston Transcript.

MORE BIRDS THAN EVER IN ENGLAND.

BRITISH ISLES SWARMING WITH THEM AFTER YEAR OF ABSENCE.

One part of the population of the British Isles has increased out of all reckoning since the spring, says an English Exchange. When winter was over the birds were whittled down to the smallest company known since 1882. In some places a small bird was almost an event. The frosts had killed in multitudes both native birds and winter migrants.

Today the countryside swarms with native birds. The nesting season was ideal, and seldom, if ever, were so many big clutches successfully reared. Some birds had produced two families before the drouth broke, and are producing a third. This month many of the fledgelings are in full flutter and their secretive period is past, and they announce their multitude for all to notice.

There are fruit growers who were prophesying terrible plagues owing to the absence of birds, but are now saying that they wonder whether too many caterpillars are not a lesser evil than too many birds. It is hard, though you know the benefit is greater than the loss, to see your raspberries vanishing as they ripen.

A rather inexplicable fact may be noted in respect of some of the summer visitors. In general they have been very numerous, but there were exceptions, of which the most notable was the apparent absence of flycatchers. They have now unaccountably reappeared in many haunts where they had been missed. Was there a late migration or did the birds prove more than their usual skill in evading destructive frosts?—[Exchange.

NURSERY STOCK IN NORTHERN ARGENTINA

While the northern portion of Argentina possesses great forestal wealth, the greater part of the settled portion is almost devoid of trees, except such as the more progressive land owners have planted. Only about 8 per cent. of the area of Northern Argentina is cultivated, and nine-tenths of the cultivated area is included in the two Provinces of Santa Fe and Cordoba.

The most common of the planted trees is the eucalyptus, selected on account of its rapid growth. Chestnut, cherry, white acacia, and sycamore trees have also been planted to some extent both for ornament and shade, but even the settled portions of the district are backward in the cultivation of shade trees. Orchards are more prevalent. The summers are too hot for small fruit, and they require more care and labor than a tenant will bestow. Small orchards are scattered through Santa Fe, Corrientes, Tucuman, Salta, and Cordoba, peach trees being everywhere the most numerous. In Corrientes oranges are raised on a commercial scale, although the business is not organized nor highly developed.—[United States Consular Report.

THRUST AND PARRY.

Pangs of jealousy were in Miss Coldfoot's heart when she heard that her late admirer had been accepted by Miss Lovebird, and when she happened to run across her in the bargain rush could not resist giving a thrust.

"I hear you've accepted Jack," she gushed. "I suppose he never told you he once proposed to me."

"No," answered Jack's fiancee. "He once told me that there were a lot of things in his life he was ashamed of, but I didn't ask him what they were."—[Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

REFLECTIONS of a GRASS WIDOW

No. 3—Engagement.

BY JANE DIXON.

Proposal.

Decisive milestone in a girl's life.

Milestone set in a mossy bank fragrant with violets, trailing fingers of sweet-scented honeysuckle, anemones. Throbbing notes of nightingales thrilling lovesongs from swaying, leafy treetops.

Milestone set in rock cliff, surface-covered with flaming odorless poppies that wither into nothingness as you pluck them. From gnarled parasitically grown limbs parrots of brilliant plumage send raucous cries of ribald laughter to mock the fevered traveler.

Milestone.

The time has come for choosing.

Shall it be the poppies, or shall we wander on a ways in search of violets and the nightingale?

A difficult decision, surely.

Doubly difficult when seed of the poppy has been sown in the flesh.

Instinct warned me Mary Clanton could not trifle with fate much longer. Fate was growing restless. It was hungry for its price. The time was narrowing down to a matter of days. The moment was coming when I could no longer put off. Ray Williams with counterplay and camouflage.

Things were not so pleasant at home as they had been.

Mother was anxious. Fear was creeping upon her, fear the precious prize within my grasp might slip through my fingers.

HINTS GET ON HER NERVES.

Her constant hints and innuendos began to get on my nerves. She spoke with scorn of the girl who drifts on down the tide to become a "shriveled up old maid." The girls in my crowd who had made good matches were constant food for eulogy and citation.

"I saw Ruth on the street today," she informed me one evening. Ruth had married a poor but ambitious young lawyer who seemed to lack the faculty of getting on. It was a love marriage and the two of them had kept their happiness untarnished through all manner of misfortune.

"Yes?" I said, indifferently, knowing what was sure to follow.

"Yes," continued mother, "my, but she looks shabby! Wearing the same old blue suit. She used to be the best-dressed girl in your crowd. I wonder how long she'll stand for that stupid fellow. Serves her right for marrying a failure. Dishwashing certainly takes the romance out of her so-called love."

JANE DIXON

[illegible]

Mother knew how much I hated doing dishes. Her faculty for placing a finger on my weaknesses was positively uncanny.

Finally her anxiety reached the stage where she could restrain it no longer.

"Mary," she said to me one morning, "you were quite late last night. Haven't you anything to tell me?"

"What do you mean—anything?" I asked icily.

"I guess you know the meaning of anything," was the reply. "Of course, if Ray doesn't want you, it would be better to see a lot less of him or break it off entirely. I hate to see him make a fool of you, as every one thinks he is doing."

So that was the way things stood, eh?

Our friends were laughing at me. They thought I was the little wax doll to be tossed aside when the mood for play was over.

By what unkind trick of fate are we prone to do the small thing, the mean, the sordid, the ugly and useless thing?

Why is there in most of us that impulse to swank and swagger, to show people how smart we are, how clever how invincible?

The simple, the straightforward thing for me to have done would have been to stand on the truth. I should have answered, "I do not love Ray Williams. I prefer to be friend and nothing more."

But I did nothing of the sort. It would have meant another motherly "sick spell" of the violent kind, and I have grown to dread these displays of half-baked hysteria.

I am entering no brief against mother. In her heart of hearts she really thought she was doing what was the best for me. She believed I was a flighty young person not yet qualified to pass on my own happiness.

If only mothers would stop and realize what they are doing when they push their daughters headlong into a loveless marriage. A girl's life is given into their charge. A soul is theirs to make or break. The time comes when this soul must fly forth on its own wings.

Do they send it forth into the garden of love and simplicity and truth, where it may dip its wings in star dust?

Alas, too often they are ruled by selfishness, greed, the glitter of false glories.

They have outlived romance. Time has turned the wine in their cup of happiness flat. They have no patience with love's young dream. They drive the soul intrusted to their care out to beat its wings against the brazen wall of brass, to fall at length, battered and broken, in the mire of the moat.

HAS FORGOTTEN LOVE.

It is very difficult for a mother with ambition and a faded love story to understand why her daughter cannot be happier in a Rolls-Royce automobile with a man she likes than in a trolley car with the man she loves.

She has forgotten that love is greater than all the world, is over and above the world, is God-given.

Mothers, if you would avoid committing an unforgivable crime against the girl-child you bore, curb ambition. Halter the hiatus that a happy home is built on a bloated bank account.

So long as the mate of her choice is honorable, clear gazing, clean of mind and body, give your daughter a chance at life's great adventure. If adventure turns to tragedy, which is rare indeed when love is honest, you at least are not to blame. You have done your mother's part.

I am certain my mother had no idea she was toppling me over a cliff, where sooner or later I must bring up with a crash at the bottom. She was blinded by the dazzle of seeing her daughter in the enviable position of Mrs. Ray Williams.

How queer the cards of fate will run at times.

That evening, in a dressing-room where I was, for the moment, concealed by a screen, I overheard two girls I knew discussing my affairs with Ray.

"He'll never marry her," sneered one, a girl who pretended to be Ray's very best friend. "I've seen him that way before, dozens of times."

"Well, you must give her credit for trying," laughed the other, cattily. "It's going to be some jolt when he rides away."

STUPID WORDS CHANGE LIFE.

Such a senseless, such a stupid few words to change the whole course of a girl's life. Our future dangles on threads no thicker than a spider spins.

I left that dressing-room determined to quash such idle chatter. Vanity spread her peacock tail. I threw myself body and brain into the business of bringing out the proposal I had so long held in leash.

Ray was radiant. He could not believe his eyes, much less his ears.

Milestone!

A white silver moon hung like a lantern in the sky. Chilly moon.

"Mary," there was a drumming in my ears so I could scarcely hear Ray's voice. "I love you. For a long time I've wanted to ask you to be my wife. Tonight, for the first time, you make me believe I dare hope. Mary, I want you—more than I have ever wanted anything in my life. What do you say to the Little Church Around the Corner?"

There was a long silence. I felt numb all over, leaden.

"I say—yes."

A cloud scudded across the face of the white silver moon.

Cold moon!

After Strange Gods.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—[To the Editor of The Times:] As a former supporter of Hiram Johnson I want to enter my protest against his present attitude toward the League of Nations. Once a believer in him, my faith has been completely shattered. He has gone after strange gods and should be compelled to account to those who, by their votes, made his public life possible.

My first awakening came just before and after America's entrance into the war. He failed to contribute one sentence or one word or utter one syllable against the atrocities of Germany or which would help the morale of America. Beyond keeping his war record straight he did nothing. These things amazed me and set me to thinking.

His recent speaking tour has been likened to the debate in which Douglas engaged with Lincoln. I regret to state that this has not been a debate. Johnson has made no attempt to meet the clear, logical and masterful arguments of President Wilson. He has engaged only in bitter attacks and his campaign has been one of misrepresentation, as anybody who has read the covenant of the League of Nations knows.

Of course, he has been heard by large crowds and loudly cheered in Chicago and St. Louis. This shows nothing beyond the fact that there are a good many people who are still thoroughly un-American. Cheers are the cheapest thing in the world. It would not be difficult to find 20,000 people in any reasonably large city who would cheer Hindenberg, Ludendorf or the Kaiser himself if they felt it safe to do so.

Johnson objects to Great Britain having six delegates in the Assembly, and insists in alluding to them as six votes, when he knows that the Assembly doesn't vote. He would deny representation to Canada, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand, whose brave men were dying in Gallipoli and in Flanders, while Johnson was remaining quiescent and figuring how the votes were most likely to fall in the next Presidential election. If delegates are to be apportioned according to population, in the League of Nations, then China will outnumber the rest of us by a good many.

Yes, my faith has been completely shaken. The war has enabled many men to show themselves. In short, it has been a bringing forth of true colors both on the part of individuals and newspapers. Senator Johnson, on his record, stands forth purely as a job hunter. He has produced nothing, constructed nothing. The man who toils in the factory or tills the soil is of more value to the country than politicians of this sort.

If he would go to the heart of the treaty and the covenant, and discuss it honestly, instead of misrepresenting, I could give him credit for being honest, although misguided. Those who in this way oppose the league, with the result that the world is thrown into another great war, will be in the position of having bartered the blood of their brothers for a paltry office, for any office becomes paltry when a man can attain to it by these means.

Too many of Johnson's speeches read as though they might have been written by Brisbane, editorial writer for Hearst, friend of Bolo Pasha. There is striking similiarity.

Respectfully,
JAMES NEILL.

Let Him Rave.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—[To the Editor of TheTimes:] A few days ago a protest was raised by one of your readers against the publishing in The Times of the speeches of Senator Johnson. No doubt it is enough to make a good Californian or any other 100 per cent. American sick to hear or read the recent speeches of Senator Johnson. Nevertheless, we would certainly be a lot sicker later on if our misrepresentative in the Senate were not exposed in time for what he really is by his own mouth. It is some satisfaction, though a great disappointment at the same time, to discover the blasphemy of his so-called Americanism from his own lips, although he is not one who loudly and highly recommends himself and camouflaging in the folds of the American flag proclaims his un-Americanism as the only Simon Pure Americanism. An insistent claim of Americanism certainly obtains attention and the desired audience at any time. But the man who has the abominable crust to so befoul the name Americanism as to employ it as a disguise to conceal that hideous and loathsome thing which is nothing more than Hearstism, deserves nothing better than self-exposure.

Let every word of Senator Johnson, from now on, be placed on record, and let his own words convict him. Let him commit political suicide with the boomerang of his own tongue. Let him betray the fact himself, that he is singing the same tune as Hearst, namely: "When the Wild Irish Rose." Moreover, the mesmeric influence of his malignant persuasion upon certain elements, to whom he is evidently catering, when he insults all the mothers of our recent hero dead by accusing them, in his Minneapolis speech, of breeding Bolshevism in their hearts, reveals another thing which will make genuine Americans sick, but not so sick as would be the case if the revelation were so long delayed that the full consequences would be irremediable, namely, the assertiveness of what Americanism is by those who, through statesmen having been asleep at the switch, have been permitted to become citizens, which only they are, being all the American they would ever be before they ever crossed the sea.

There have been but two kinds of persuasion in this old earth ever since the processes of evolution adapted it as a habitation for the Spirit of Man, namely, the kind which endeavors, by submitting the absolute truth, to permit the independent judgment of man, and the kind which endeavors by the sinuous, serpentine evasion of certain facts and the confusion of others to induce conviction irrespective of judgment. The first is eternally exercised in the spirit of service and the other only for the self-advantage or credit of the persuader as witness the persuasion of Judas in behalf of the poor, and that of Johnson and Hearst.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS---

(Being the Confessions of The Seven-Hundreth Wife.)

By Helen Rowland.

Verily, the Punishment of Woman-dodger Shall Be to Dwell in Loneliness, All the Days of His Life, Because He Would not Take a Sporting Chance on Happiness.

MY DAUGHTER, a cautious man avoideth many pitfalls, but the true sportsman winneth all the prizes and enjoyeth all the thrills.

Now, in the Land of Nod there dwelt a certain rich man called Woman-Dodger.

And, because I am a married woman, he had no fear of me, but showed me all his gold trophies, and his loving cups, and his treasures of the chase, and gave me his confidences. And I perceived that he suffered much weariness of spirit and exceedingly great loneliness.

Then I advised him, saying:

"Wherefore, my son, dost thou not take unto thyself a wife—even one who would share thy possessions and rejoice in them? For thou art as a barge without a tug boat, a shoe without a mate, a train of cars without an engine. Yea, thou art as one that 'marketh time' on the path of happiness!"

But he answered me, saying:

"Nay, nay! For damsels are vain and widows are deceitful! And where shall I find a perfect woman—even a beauty to charm me, a fashion plate to advertise me, an angel to inspire me, a chum to amuse me, a housewife to minister unto me, and a nurse to comfort me? For nothing less shall satisfy me—and I fear to be stung!"

Then I pointed to his garage, saying:

"Behold, therein thou keepest a racing car for speed, and a touring car for comfort, a limousine for style, a runabout for amusement, and a flivver for general utility.

"Likewise, thou possesseth, peradventure, a suit of tweeds for daily use, a suit of white flannel for sportiness, a frock coat for dignity, a lounging robe for comfort, evening clothes for style, and many others for divers purposes.

"Moreover, thou keepest a chauffeur for thy garage, a cook for thy kitchen, a butler for thy dining-room, and a valet for thy wardrobe.

"Wherefore, then, and by what magic, dost you think to acquire all the attractions and virtues of seven women in one wife? Go to! Thou seekest not a mate, but a miracle! Not a woman, but a whole harem!"

But he shook his head and defied me, saying:

"Woman, woman! Thine argument is broken against thee! For, it is granted me to possess many servants, many garments and many motor cars. But what man hath more than one collar button, one tooth brush, and one wife—at a time?

"Therefore, until I find the complete and perfect combination which I seek, I shall continue to remain a single-footer and an artful dodger, and my middle name shall be 'Watch Your Step'!"

For I knew that he was a starving man that refuseth food, because it is not a seven-course dinner, a small boy that spurneth a lollipop because he cannot have a whole handful.

And his punishment shall be to dwell in loneliness all the days of his life, because he would not take a sporting chance on happiness.

For My Little Lady Of Two-to-Five Years

New Coats

—With all the charm and style that one could expect, even in coats for grown-ups.

—Fashion has been particular in its presentation of the new styles for autumn and The Broadway has been particular in choosing only coats of the most becoming styles and materials.

—Here are coats of velours, broadcloths and plush in the fashionable tans, blues and browns and the ever serviceable black.

—We note some in the straight lines, others with belt, while not a few of them have fur collars, some with plush collars. Prices range from $9.75 to $26.75. Second Floor.

Junior Coats

For Girls 6 to 18 Years

—We feel that this showing deserves much more space than we have given to it here, for this showing of coats is among the most important that we have presented.

—Fashionable to a marked degree and so becoming—no wonder the coat section is attracting so much attention.

—Here are coats of velvet, plush and broadcloth and the much demanded silvertone, as well as heavy serge and crystaltone.

—There is a choice of tan, blue, brown, green as well as black.

—Some are in the straight lines, others have the yoke effect in back with belt. Some have the straps and button trimmings, many show fur collars and cuffs; others of velour. Prices range from $13.95 to $35.

Juniors' Silk Dresses

For Girls 14 to 17

—Mothers will be interested in this remarkable display of new dresses for the growing miss. Just the very dresses that Fashion has set aside for the young girl. Choice of rose, blue, brown and green. Here and there are touches of embroidery or piping of harmonizing colors, and prices range from $24.75 to $45.

Silk and Velvet Dresses For the Miss Of 8 to 14 Years

"The New Trunk Store of Trunk Stores"

with its rare quota of Luggage and Motor Addenda now in Bullock's Hill Street Building South

WHICH designates the development as well as the direction of a Bullock Service

—devoting its attention in large and extensive scope to the needs of Traveler and Motorist—

—A Service that has engaged a New Hill Street Building with ground floor area of some 8000 square feet to better exploit the character and resources of what has been said to be the most varied and inclusive collection of Luggage in the West—

—A Service, too, that has created a delightful New Home in Los Angeles for the "Bullock Wardrobe Trunk," known to many as the "Trunk of Trunks," and considered by Bullock's to be the finest trunk of its kind on the market today.

—Perhaps no one individual factor is more responsible for the rapid growth of Bullock's Trunk Store than the Bullock Wardrobe Trunk itself—

—At the same time, however, the exceptional varieties of fine Bags and Cases and Trunks of other splendid sorts have undoubtedly done their good part to make this Luggage Expansion possible and the Ideal of Bullock's that underlies every Trunk, Suit Case and Bag.

—Fifty different styles of Bullock Wardrobes (in six distinct sizes) present somewhat a picture of the trunk resources of this Bullock Store.

—There are, however, so many individual devices of Trunk Efficiency; so many exclusive and essential features in the Bullock Wardrobe Trunk—that one should not purchase a Trunk before examining it in detail.

—Then there are the Bags and Cases; Club Bags, Oxford Bags, Kit Cases, Coat Cases, etc., of dependable leathers in black, brown and russets—an almost endless array of shapes and sizes.

—And in order to co-ordinate this service for travelers, whether by rail, water or motor—Bullock's Motor Specialty Section has taken position in this New Trunk Store of Bullock's.

—Its assemblage of Domestic and Imported Motor Robes is a notable specialization—with Leather Coats for man or woman; with Caps and Gloves and Goggles; with Thermos and Universal Bottles, Carafes, Lunch Kits; with Motor Restaurants, Flash Lights, etc.—forming a segregated and selective group of Motor addenda for the discriminating Motorist —And this word today may be considered in the light of an Introduction as well as an Invitation, that you may investigate at your leisure and realize how adequate it is possible for a Luggage specialization to be—

—Whether you contemplate the need of additional luggage, or whether your interests lie in the prospect of future acquisition, you may explore Bullock's New Trunk Store and learn facts, new and interesting luggage facts that have prompted many experienced Voyagers to pronounce it "The New Trunk Store of Trunk Stores" because of its surprising completeness and magnitude—

Bullock's Hill St. Bldg., South—

THE BULLOCK Wardrobe approaches the finesse of Cabinet making in its snug construction and rivals in finish the fine art of a charmingly decorated room.

—A Trunk that will travel with you as harmoniously around the world as it will travel with you on a friendly little jaunt to Catalina, Santa Barbara or Coronado.

—A Trunk that will fairly absorb your clothes (so generous and convenient is its capacity).

—A Trunk the possession of which makes its possessor glad—and after all doesn't this cover about all that a Trunk should be?

—Many models for women and for men at various pricings—

—In the new Trunk Store of Trunk Stores, Bullock's Hill Street Building, South.

MUSICAL.

COMMUNITY SINGING.

NEW GROWTH IS FORESEEN VIA PICTURE SCREEN.

Community singing, which has been subject to various fluctuations of growth, has lately been receiving a new boost. One of the most prominent factors in this development has been the motion-picture screen. The fact that the words of songs can be flashed on the silver sheet encourages many members of audiences to join their voices with the orchestral or organ renditions of popular numbers.

While this scheme of inducing popular voicing of melodies has been sporadically in vogue at the theaters in Los Angeles, it has recently come in for rather pronounced attention in New York. It seems that at the Hippodrome recently rather novel results were achieved by a pair of musicians who played melodies of the Civil War days, while the songs appeared on the screen.

The idea so impressed Frank Hayek, president of the Song Leaders' College of that city, that he made a study of the methods of these Hippodrome exponents of the community singing a requirement for graduation from his school. During the war Mr. Hayek was national director of the department of community singing for the War Camp Community Service, and, as head of the Song Leaders' College, is training community directors.

The two musicians at the big theater do not exhort their audiences to sing. They merely play the music, and when the people behold the words, they sing of their own accord. The result was a much more spontaneous outburst of melody.

Locally there promises to be greater activity than usual in community singing, especially the latter part of the musical season, when the weather becomes warmer, and the number of musical events falls off. There is already a municipal chorus, which, under the direction of Joseph Dupuy, has several times joined in the singing of popular compositions, and it is hoped later on to make this the nucleus of a larger organization. It is probable that the method of showing the words on the screen for the benefit of the public will be used when this project is carried out.

A Whistling Concert.

A whistling concert will be given in the palm room of Hotel Maryland on Thursday evening, October 9, by whistlers from the California School of Artistic Whistling, under Agnes Woodward's direction. There will be a whistling chorus, a quintette and a Gypsy dance, of Carrie Jacobs Bond's, in duet. There will be baritone and soprano solos. Branches of the school are to be opened in Pasadena and Long Beach this month.

—o—

Organist Home Again.

Newell Parker, organist, of Riverside, who has been overseas for two years, is again at Mission Inn, and will take charge today of the organ at the First Methodist Church. He will give a short recital at 7 p.m.

—o—

Wa-Wan Club Concert.

The opening concert of the Wa-Wan Club will take place at the Alexandria Hotel ballroom Wednesday, with a reception and programme, which will begin at 2:30 o'clcok. The musicians appearing are Anthony Carlson, basso; Elsie Fuhrer-Genter, 'cellist, and Marguerite Cooper-Powell, soprano; Hulda Dietz, mezzo soprano; Sylvia Harding, violinist, will appear in costume in "Songs of Yesterday."

Adolf Tandler,
Who returned last week from New York, where he engaged solo players for the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, and who will soon start rehearsals with that organization, as conductor.

—o—

University Boy with Pavlowa.

Hubert Stowitz, a Los Angeles youth, and graduate of the University of California in 1915, is dancing with Pavlowa at Buenos Aires, where he is much admired, according to press notices from "La Mbnana."

—o—

Dance Students Appear.

Students of the Norma Gould School for Dancing have been active early in the season on various programmes. Dorothy Harris and Vera Belle Chamberlain appeared at Eastern Star balls during the past week, and Dorothy Jacobson and Vera Belle Chamberlain assisted at a reception and elocution recital given by Mrs. Havens at the Hotel Stillwell for Lucile de Jersey, former student of Miss Gould, and recently returned from service overseas. Miss De Jersey read "Joan of Arc," by Ben Fields. Color prints and reproductions of famous paintings of Jean d'Arc were exhibited by Miss Gould, who has made a deep study of that character, having impersonated the Maid of Orleans in a dance drama of her own composition.

—o—

Dr. Bridge Plans Visit.

Dr. Norman Bridge has been named president emeritus of the Los Angeles Symphony Association, of which he formerly was president. Following the meeting in the East of Dr. Bridge, Mrs. Albert Sherman Hoyt, president of the Symphony, and Adolph Tandler, its conductor, Dr. Bridge stated that he expected, if possible, to return to Los Angeles for a visit this winter, and would time his trip in order that he might attend the opening concert of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra's twenty-third season, scheduled for November 21.

Conductor Adolf Tandler of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, who returned this week from an extended eastern trip, where he went in the interests of the association, is enthusiastic over the symphonic works and novelties which he was able to secure for this season's programme.

Among the scores which are available for the programmes is Hugo Riesenfeld's "Symphonic Epos," which will be given its first presentation in Los Angeles. It will also be played this season in New York by Damrosch's New York Symphony. Charles T. Griffes's "White Peacock," a symphonic poem of rare beauty will also be given its local premiere, while through the generosity of Stransky, leader of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, Mr. Tandler was able to secure Rubin Goldmark's "Requiem" (for Easter.)

The personnel of the orchestra has been enlarged to include a number of musicians of the East, like Alexander Saslavsky, the new concert master; Albert de Busscher, Leonard de Lorenzo, solo flutist; Gustave Statler, Wendell Hoss, William Trube, Jacob Grupp, Otto H. Pauer, all of whom have filled important posts in various orchestras.

—o—

Miss Hutchinson at Club.

Miss Ruth Hutchinson presented a programme at the opening meeting of the Woman's University Club at the Ebell Club House, yesterday. Her selections comprised songs ranging from the early Italian to the modern French and American composers. Miss Hutchinson is a pupil of Emma Porter Makinson and has attracted attention throughout the country as the prize winner of the student singers' contest of the National Federation of Woman's Clubs.

Returns from Dakota.

Fred A. Bacon, vocal teacher of Blanchard Hall, has recently returned from a two months' trip to North Dakota, where he visited his daughter, Mrs. A. L. Chaffee. At the urgent request of a number of his old students, Mr. Bacon devoted three days a week to teaching, and has now reopened his Blanchard Hall studio here. He will continue the informal studio and home musical evenings.

AROUND THE MUSIC WORLD.

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT.

Evidently the public is ready for the music that is to be showered upon it this year judging by the way the stage and everything was filled with people at the Geraldine Farrar concert last Thursday night. To be sure, Miss Farrar's celebrity will go a long ways toward explaining the size of that crowd, but still it remained an encouraging symbol of what the opening night of the season should be in anticipation of many other worth-while concerts and recitals. That the public is ready to lend support to the bigger features of this season is, further indicated in a very satisfactory demand for reservations.

It is an undoubted fact that Los Angeles will spend more money for music this year than any time in the past, even though there is no high-priced operatic organization in sight.

The usual amount is $400,000 to $500,000 for the season, according to estimates from authoriative sources, but the additional expenses incident to the orchestras, if these costs are offset to any extent by the receipts, will cause this sum to run nearly $200,000 higher. It can be rather safely predicted that unless unforseen events occur, the amount of money going into music this year should considerably exceed $500,000.

Farrars En Route.

The musical as well as the motion picture world locally is one whit less brighter than formerly, for its most celebrated star is no longer here. The private car carrying Geraldine Farrar, Lou Tellegen and Mr. and Mrs. Sid Farrar, father and mother of the operatic singer and picture star, left for San Francisco Firday night. Miss Farrar is to give one concert in that city. She will follow this with an appearance in Denver. But thirteen other recitals are scheduled prior to resumption of her singing at the Metropolitan.

Those Intimate Encores.

Quite the most engaging thing that Miss Farrar did at the concert she gave here the other evening was playing her own accompaniments at the piano for Nevin's "Mighty Lak a Rose" and other favorite numbers. These had all the informality of songs at home. She seemed to throw aside any feeling of reserve that the concert stage might induce. There was nothing on the programme, which quite won the applause of the public as this intimate part of her recital.

You may have wondered, too, while Miss Farrar was singing, why she held so closely clasped that old-fashioned bouquet. Well, the donor thereof was sitting in the right-hand upper box, if you should have been sitting far enough to the left to see him behind the curtains. And it was—naturally, friend husband.

—o—

An American Double Bell.

Reference to opera, reminds me that there is a little surprise in process of evolution. This is the possibility that Los Angeles may have a chance to hear a duo of American operas that have been played on the stage of the Metropolitan—none other than Cadman's "Shanewis" and Joseph Carl Briel's "The Legend." There is a very strong likelihood of these two productions being sent on the road, under the general auspices of the Metropolitan, which was responsible for their original presentation, when they formed part of a triple bill including John Adams Hugo's "Temple Dancer" last season. Cadman's "Shanewis" was of course a feature of the preceding year, but was included to make an all-American bill, and it is the strongest musically—and dramatically, too, for that matter. The music of "Shanewis" has already become popularized through being heard at local symphony concerts and in piano transcriptions, which will make it all the more a delight for local audiences to hear the opera itself. Personally, I found the opera very interesting, especially in the beauty of its music, and the orchestral color for which Cadman's name is well nigh synonymous. I understand that Anna Fitziu is to sing the feminine roles in the cast presenting the works.

—o—

A Change in Accent.

In the old days when baseball used to be a much more important thing in the Farrar family than opera singing, Sid Farrar who was a big league star in his time—used to rejoice in a rather different pronunciation of the family name than we are now accustomed to hear. Anybody who knew Sid in his baseball days will always refer to him as "Farr-er," with the accent on the first syllable. That is one respect in which fame in the baseball world differs from fame in the operatic world. Not so many eons ago, either Jerry was known as Miss "Farr-er."

—o—

Defends Home-Made Dance.

H. S. Linne, who is in charge of the terpsichorean entertainment at Grauman's Theater, expresses his conviction that we do not half recognize the importance and possibilities of developing the art of dancing right here in America, in general, and Los Angeles in particular. Mr. Linne is adopting a positive nonconformist attitude on the subject of dancing and he has a very excellent right to speak on the subject, because he has had much to do with the art professionally. Here is the way he expresses himself: "I fail to see any reason why we should pay $5 and $10 to see the Russian Diaghileff Ballet or the Ballet Intime, when we have material right here in Los Angeles, which has been developed by Ruth St. Denis, Ernest Belcher and others to a degree which makes possible an almost immediate formation of the American ballet."

In Linne's opinion the trouble has been and is that this art has not been patronized as it should have been and has been practically missing from the list America has aspired to cultivate. In his belief, America has overlooked one of the finest channels for the expression of the beautiful in not having properly exploited the ballet. He feels that what a young Russian or a young Austrian may do, an American can do. He believes that in ceasing to blindly worship Europe we will soon foster and cultivate many arts to a degree, which will undoubtedly mean another Renaissance—a new world Renaissance.

Mr. Linne has gained a very excellent reputation as a producer of dances, no less than as a musician, and what he says in regard to the patronage of dancing is in large part warranted. However it has always been my contention that there is nothing lacking in public appreciation of the dancing art in America and that we very much resemble the French in our enjoyment of this art. Operatic managers, outside of to realize this. There may be no Rabinoff, have too frequently failed specific monetary endowment of dancing, but the public approbation is not lacking.

OUTLOOK ELATES SINGERS.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

With prospect for the most complete music season Los Angeles has ever known, there is a stimulated interest in every circle of the art. The plans for the large chorus in conjunction with the Philharmonic Orchestra are developing, and the teachers of singing are considering students, to fill up the ranks of the singers.

There are also plans for the individual singers, and the singing clubs of the city, which surpass anything in seasons gone before. Interest in music is growing throughout the State, and, indeed, the entire Coast, as the result of post-war reaction.

It is probable that singers from the ranks of the clubs will join the new chorus, although the efforts of the clubs as individual organizations will continue not only unabated, but augmented. The Orpheus Club, under the direction of George Dupuy will have a full season, with additional voices, and Mr. Dupuy also announces growth in his chorus of community singing. The Ellis and Lyric clubs, for male and female voices, respectively, will work hard this year, in anticipation of a number of concerts, and J. P. Poulin will present novelties and compositions so well liked as to have become popularly standardized. The return from service of many of the Ellis Club singers will give a greater volume to this club, over last year, and the year previous.

The Matinee Musical Club is branching out this year as never before, with the assistance of a capable board, and a change in policy which cannot but work for the good of the club. It is decided to have none but members perform at the club, and to pay for all performances. Thus the club is receiving new applications from some of our best musicians who feel an opportunity for advancing themselves, through this medium, as well as an opportunity to give the club superior programmes. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Kelly provided the programme for the first concert of the club's year at the Ebell Club House, last Thursday afternoon, with unqualified success.

Estelle Heartt-Dreyfus, Mrs. Jones-Simmons and Madame Anna Sprotte announce classes, full to overflowing, and engagements in and out of the city for themselves. One of the chief musical advantages to accrue to the city from the promised music season, is the number of residents brought by the two orchestras, and the resultant increased number of students. The Middle West will now come here for winter study, where before they have gone East for the purpose of hearing good music, and above all, new music. In talking to individual singers I find everywhere new plans and enlarged hopes.

"I expect to branch out this year more than before," said Estelle Heartt-Dreyfus, whose views are expressive of the general attitude I encountered, "for I find people more interested in singing. I shall give my usual recital at Trinity Auditorium in the early winter, and my usual series of Miniature Musicales at Pasadena. But aside from local concerts I plan to sing in Santa Barbara in the spring, under the Herbert management, and also I have quite definite prospects of a tour on the Coast, northward, and also in Arizona and Texas this winter. There are indications that recital work will be welcomed in Arizona, and my plans are in process for the tour."

New Concertmaster.

Sylvain Noack, concertmaster of the new Philharmonic Orchestra, who arrived in Los Angeles last week, to begin rehearsals, is a man of few words, but when he expresses himself he gives very definite opinions which show a profound knowledge, not only of music, but of the other arts as well. He has been in America eleven years, Carl Muck having engaged him immediately upon his arrival. He has been soloist in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Hartford, San Francisco, indeed, all the big cities here as well as in Europe. He was born in Rotterdam, and studied in Amsterdam, and the following list of men under whom he has worked is a certificate of his excellence, Mengleberg, Nikisach, Mottl, Richter, Monteux, Rabaud, Strauss and Mahler. He has conducted the Municipal Orchestra in Aix-la-Chajelle and is still a young man.

Noack is enthusiastic over the prospect of working with Rothwell, who, he says, is not only an excellent technician, but a man of strongly poetic temperament. I asked him if he had ever had experience in building up an orchestra. "All the orchestras I have played with have been established organizations, but I have already met some of our material here and I think it promises excellently well. We have hard work before us, but with the men at hand this orchestra has as great promise as any I have ever known. Mr. Rothwell can be depended upon and I say this realizing that the conductor is responsible for the merit of the orchestra. It is he who welds us into a unit of expression, and this unit is absolutely necessary in all art works; there can not be a personality here and a different one there, for this would spoil the homogeniety of the whole.

Noack considers that modern music is different in aim from the classics, that there is a wider scope possible with modern methods and, indeed, that there is more to express now than there was then, but—"Beethoven, Mozart and Schubert, the giants of music, they will never be surpassed."

"In your experience with Strauss what impression did he make upon you?"

"I cannot always commend Strauss. I prefer Debussy as 'mood' and I like Ravel better than any of them, and Moussorgsky, he was the artistic father of Debussy, a great man."

Noack has the hand of a musician, and fingers only for the violin and he is a worker. I interrupted him at scoring parts when I called. Los Angeles can expect the best from so well-grounded an artist.

EGAN DANCER FOR BIG BROADWAY.

MOROSCO WIRES FOR CURTYNE ENGLAR TO APPEAR IN NEW SHOW.

The unusual distinction of being elected to make her debut as a dancer in a big Broadway show has just been conferred on Curtyne Englar, former pupil and now assistant teacher at Frank Egan's dramatic school, whose activities have heretofore been confined chiefly to the social and artistic world. Manager Morosco wired Mr. Egan last week that he wished to have Miss Englar appear in his production of "Linger Longer Letty," a descendant of the famous "So Long Letty," which received its original production on the local stage. Mr. Morosco also stated that if Mr. Egan had any other pupils whom he would personally recommend as being eligible he would endeavor to use their services in one or the other of the twelve new productions that he is putting on this year.

Mr. Egan is preparing for a large number of performances to enable his pupils to become accustomed to professional activities, including an operatic production. The first of the performances will be October [illegible]-three one-act plays, one a Chinese tragedy, "Dream Doors," by Olga Prinzlan; the second by a scenario writer of the Cecil de Mille staff, which will have its first public presentation; the third, "The Maker of Dreams," by Oliphant Downs. These will be given two different evenings. Practically all students in the school will have parts.

Mr. Egan has just leased his one-word play to William Gibson, who is now presenting the sketch, "Honeymooners." This so-called one-word play is a dramatic novelty—no character speaking more than one word at a time during the progress of the action. It has been translated into four foreign languages.

Hope-Rosenfeld Concert.

Two novelties of the programme to be presented by the Hope-Rosenfeld-Alter trio at their first concert October 16 at Blanchard Hall, will be the Wolf-Ferrari trio and a suite by Goldmark for piano and violin. Several new works will be introduced during the season of six concerts, by the ensemble organization. This is the third year for the trio, which was formed by May MacDonald Hope and which has had very unusual success.

The attractiveness of their programmes has grown chiefly from the intelligent interpretation given a variety of musical numbers representing the best schools in the art. Both Mr. Rosenfeld, the violinist, and Mrs. Hope, the pianist, have engaged in very extensive study abroad, and their work bears a very authoritative stamp. Mr. Alter is an excellent 'cellist who has devoted most of his life to the study of the higher branches of music, although professionally otherwise engaged.

Zoellner's First.

The first concert by the Zoellner Quartette will take place the 28th inst. They are to give a series of ten at the Ebell Club Auditorium, the first group of five running until the middle of December and the second group to start March 23. During the interim of three months the Zoellners will make a winter tour, covering the Middle West, and possibly even the eastern coast.

Their first series of ten concerts here was at the close of the past musical season, and the undertaking met with approval of those who were present at the events. There is every indication of large attendances at the coming concerts. The Zoellners have a repertoire which includes compositions of undisputed merit in modern ensemble literature, as well as classically established. The charm of their programmes has been the excellent way in which they were arranged to please and educate a higher musical taste.

Eastern Violinist.

Davol Sanders, formerly engaged in musical work in New York City and now head of the violin department of the college of music, University of Southern California, announces a programme to be given October 20 at Ebell Club House. Mr. Sanders was a dinner guest and soloist at the Gamut Club at the last monthly dinner, playing "Traumeri" (Wagner-Wilhelmj) and "Moto Perpetuo" (Ries.)

Defines "Cantillation."

Kelso Murdoch, who has specialized in instruction in readings with music, has been chosen to assume the direction of the dramatic department of the California School of Arts. Mr. Murdoch distinguishes between the expression, "musical recitation," and "cantillation," which latter is especially indicative of the method he supports. "'Cantillation' is a word coined some years ago by Isabelle Garghill Beecher," he said. "It is defined as a reading with musical setting. In order to overcome prejudice against the expression, "musical recitation," it was found necessary by reputable readers to introduce a more distinctive term."

Engel Writes on Singing.

S. Camillo Engel, well-known vocal instructor, has recently published a new booklet which he calls "The Spirit of the Art of Singing." According to his own statement, Mr. Engel does not offer this as a textbook on singing, but as a series of articles embodying the fundamental principles underlying teaching. Mr. Engel presents and develops the idea that singing, like all other action, is ruled by a two-fold energy—the spiritual and the material, the desire to sing being the spiritual energy and the production of the tone the material. When the singer has developed the mechanical vocal apparatus to such an extent that it acts as an efficient agent to convey the spiritual conception of the song to the material world, then and only then is he able to give himself up entirely, heart and soul, to the spirituality of singing.

In replying to the question "Why have we not singers with the vocal powers of celebrities of former times?" Mr. Engel quotes Dr. Wesley Mills and says, "It is because we do not, today, pursue right methods for a sufficient length of time." Mr. Engle's book is not something to be read hurrdiely and cast aside, but is well worth the serious consideration of any student of voice.

Rehearsals Start This Week.

Rehearsals of the Philharmonic Orchestra will be started Tuesday morning in Trinity Auditorium, and will be continued twice daily during the entire season of twenty-eight weeks. The opportunity of continuous rehearsals has been made possible through the generosity of W. A. Clark, Jr., the founder, who has stated his intention of endowing the Philharmonic for a period of five years.

The new members who are to take part in the initial rehearsal are Sylvain Noack, the concert master; Ilya Bronson, formerly solo 'cellist with the New York Philharmonic; Alfred Kasteer, harpist; Vladimir Drucker, trumpeter; A. B. Rickert, bassoonist; V. G. Geoffrain and Frank Jusseret, bass players; Vincent Schipilitti, oboist, and Frank Kelemen and J. R. McCollister, bass players. All of these men are from the East.

The twelve pairs of symphony concerts planned will be given on Friday afternoons and Saturday evenings, October 24, 25; November 7, 8,; November 21, 22; December 5, 6; December 19, 20; January 2, 3; January 16, 17; February 6 7; February 27 28; March 19, 20; April 9, 10; April 30, May 1.

There will be fourteen popular concert programmes these to be given in two series of seven each. Each of these concerts will be given Sunday afternoon of the week that there is no symphony concert.

WOMAN'S ORCHESTRA STARTS REHEARSING.

The Woman's Orchestra resumed rehearsals Wednesday at Blanchard Hall with Henry Schoenefeld as director. Programmes have been arranged for the three morning concerts, and while the general policy of the organization remains unchanged various improvements have been made. Among other things the orchestra is to have the benefit of the symphonic library of the new Philharmonic.

The officers of the orchestra selected for the new season are Daisy Walters, president; Mrs. Cecil Frankel, first vice-president; Grace Dering, second vice-president; Beatrice Atkins, secretary; Alberta Zens, treasurer. The board of directors includes Mr. Schoenefeld, the officers, and Miss Lala Fagge, Mrs. Homer W. Glidden, and Miss Sadie Stanton. Committee chairmen appointed are as follows: Publicity, Bessie Fuhrer Erb, and Associate Membership, Mrs. Frankel.

Many prominent club women are co-operating and lending their influence toward the success of the unique organization, among them Mrs. Frankel, and Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, past Los Angeles district president of California Federation of Women's Clubs.

KINGSLEY CONCERT TODAY AT TRINITY.

The second Sunday afternoon concert will be given at Trinity Auditorium today by Dr. Bruce Gordon Kingsley. Amber Fay Haack, the young soprano, who has a voice of singular richness and expression, it is said, will make her first appearance in this concert. She is known to a wide circle of friends in this city. Gage Christopher, the basso-cantante, who directed community singing during the war, will also be heard. Dr. Kingsley will render organ numbers, prefaced by short interpretive remarks.

The programme is as follows: Organ, overture, "Tannhauser" (Wagner,) Dr. Kingsley; vocal, (a) Vissi d'Arte (from "La Tosca") (Puccini,) (b) "Love is Best of All" (Herbert,) Amber Fay Haack; vocal (a) "Vision Fugitive" (Massenet,) (b) "Young Tom of Devon" (Russell,) Gage Christoper; organ, "The Last Hope" (Gottschalk,) Dr. Kingsley; duet, "The Passage Bird's Farewell" (Hildach); organ, "Wedding March" (Jensen,) Dr. Kingsley; vocal, (a) "Before the Dawn" (Chadwick,) (b) "Spring Serenade" (Gilberti,) Amber Fay Haack; vocal (a) "Values," (Vanderpool,) (b) "Dany Deever" (Damrosch,) Gage Christopher; duets, (a) "I Would that My Love" (Mendelssohn,) (b) "May Bells" (Mendelssohn.)

FOR CITY WORKERS.

Pooling Center for Farm Produce, an Indiana Man's Idea.

A plan for reducing the high cost of farm produce to the employees of business houses and factories of the city has been suggested by Lewis Taylor general secretary of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' Association. Mr. Taylor would use the headquarters of the federation as a pooling center for the farmers to deliver their produce and for the employees of the industries through agents to buy the foodstuffs.

The plan, Mr. Taylor believes, would eliminate the food speculators and materially lower the cost to the consumer.

The farmers, he believes, will favor this method of disposing of their produce. Farmers, he pointed out, do not wish to lose the time required in selling to the consumer directly either from the curb on market or by peddling produce through the streets. He does not care to become the distributing as well as the producing medium.

To aid both the consumer and producer the federation might send out a field secretary, who could list the kind of produce and note when it will become available, Mr. Taylor said. The business and factory interests should appoint a representative who would attend to taking orders, collection and distribution of the foodstuffs. This plan of bringing the consumer and producer in closer contact with each other, Mr. Taylor believes, would be successful and would result in reducing materially the cost of living.—[Indianapolis News.

EGAN DANCER FOR BIG BROADWAY.

MOROSCO WIRES FOR CURTYNE ENGLAR TO APPEAR IN NEW SHOW.

The unusual distinction of being selected to make her debut as a dancer in a big Broadway show has just been conferred on Curtyne Englar, former pupil and now assistant teacher at Frank Egan's dramatic school, whose activities have heretofore been confined chiefly to the local social and artistic world. Manager Morosco wired Mr. Egan last week that he wished to have Miss Englar appear in his production of "Linger Longer Letty," a descendant of the famous "So Long Letty," which received its original production on the local stage. Mr. Morosco also stated that if Mr. Egan had any other pupils whom he could personally recommend as being eligible he would endeavor to use their services in one or the other of the twelve new productions which he is putting on this year.

Mr. Egan is preparing for a large number of performances to enable his pupils to become accustomed to professional activities, including an operatic production. The first of the performances will be October twenty-three one-act plays, one a Chinese tragedy, "Dream Doors," by Olga Prinzlan; the second by a scenario writer of the Cecil de Mille staff, which will have its first public presentation; the third, "The Maker of Dreams," by Oliphant Downs. These will be given two different evenings. Practically all students in the school will have parts.

Mr. Egan has just leased his one-word play to William Gibson, who is now presenting the sketch, "Honeymooners." This so-called one-word play is a dramatic novelty—no character speaking more than one word at a time during the progress of the action. It has been translated into four foreign languages.

Hope-Rosenfeld Concert.

Two novelties of the programme to be presented by the Hope-Rosenfeld-Alter trio at their first concert October 16 at Blanchard Hall, will be the Wolf-Ferrari trio and a suite by Goldmark for piano and violin. Several new works will be introduced during the season of six concerts, by the ensemble organization. This is the third year for the trio, which was formed by May MacDonald Hope and which has had very unusual success.

The attractiveness of their programmes has grown chiefly from the intelligent interpretation given a variety of musical numbers representing the best schools in the art. Both Mr. Rosenfeld, the violinist, and Mrs. Hope, the pianist, have engaged in very extensive study abroad, and their work bears a very authoritative stamp. Mr. Alter is an excellent 'cellist who has devoted most of his life to the study of the higher branches of music, although professionally otherwise engaged.

Zoellner's First.

The first concert by the Zoellner Quartette will take place the 28th inst. They are to give a series of ten at the Ebell Club Auditorium, the first group of five running until the middle of December and the second group to start March 23. During the interim of three months the Zoellners will make a winter tour, covering the Middle West, and possibly even the eastern coast.

"SPANISH DOUBLOONS."

A Humorous Yarn Recounting Adventures of a Treasure Hunt Interrupted by Real Pirates, on a Lonely Pacific Island.

All those who would embark on the good ship Romance, headed for the Islands of the Blest, will receive with glad acclaim "Spanish Doubloons," by Camilla Kenyon, a new California author. (Bobbs Merrill.) The yarn has for its setting Leeward Island, a lonely outcrop of rugged sea-washed rock in the Pacific.

The central figures—for there is no one central figure—are two middle-aged, weakly strong-minded dames, a jolly red-haired girl who tells the story, a dour Scotchman, a young Briton, scion of a stately manor house, but a second son, who is such a "love of a lad" that the heroine bemoans not being twins so that she could marry him as well as the man of her first choice.

There is also a band of hard-drinking, bloodthirsty, rough-speaking pirates, regular devils, you know. The characters stand out with vivid reality. There is not a stick in the bunch. From Crusoe, the derelict dog found on the island, to the garrulous Mr. H. H., the characters are as amusing a band as the most exacting reader might wish. Even Cookie, the colored gemman who presides in the kitchen, sticks in the memory like a bur to a sheep's fleece.

The publishers proclaim this as a second Treasure Island, but the reviewer can't see it in that light. While there is a flavor to this yarn that is redolent of "the days of old, the days of gold, the days of the Spanish Main," it is so palpably and intentionally a burlesque as to make comparisons in this case even more odious than usual.

The action of this thrilling and adventurous romance is continuous. The plot, while not even pretending to originality, is worked out along original lines. There is a humorous glint in the author's style that adds much to the reader's pleasure.

The old story of a dying sailor with the secret of a hidden treasure gasped out at the last in fragmentary details forms the basis of the plot. The identity of the treasure island is readily recognized but the location of the cave in which the treasure is secreted and of the grave which must be found proves difficult.

When the treasure seems almost within reach and expectations are at fever heat, it develops that the bulk of the loot has been discovered and appropriated by the republic of Santa Marina, nothing but the old copper-bound chest which had once held the gold remaining. The anticlimax comes, however, when—but read the tale yourself and find out.

Thus the author takes all the stock ingredients and from this age-old recipe concocts her story. To one dying sailor with a secret on his chest add one island, one or more caves, a skull and cross bones, a grave or two, one medium skeleton, one gold crucifix, one sunken ship, one treasure chest, several pirates, plenty of firearms, a bottle or two of rum, and sufficient love interest to give coherence. To this the author has added, by way of flavor, a keen sense of humor and a unique appreciation of the fun of the game, and thus has produced a lively, colorful yarn.

The slip covers give the following account of the author, written by herself: "I was born in San Francisco with a family background of the 'Early Days.' Ill health kept me from school and threw me on my books as my only resource. I could always read, although I am sure I don't know how I learned. Apparently I lacked all feminist proclivities, for I scorned girls' books and, instead, reveled in tales of adventure.

"For sea stories, particularly with a buccaneering flavor, I had and have an abiding love. Perhaps this is because I was brought up on a tale—whether truth or legend I am still not clear—of an ancestor, a soldier of fortune by profession, who when business was slack eked out a living as a freebooter, though of course after the fashion of a perfect gentleman. I sometimes think that the soul of the old adventurer may have ensconced itself by mistake in my earthly frame, and being denied all other forms of activity may have endeavored to escape in 'Spanish Doubloons.'"

POLITICS AND POETRY.

A recent dispatch from Portland, Me., announces that John Kendrick Bangs, author and lecturer, will be a candidate for Representative in Congress to succeed Congressman Lewis B. Goodall. Mr. Bangs recently returned from France, where he had been occupied with war work, and is now busily engaged on the final proofs of his new book of poems, "The Cheery Way."

This is Mr. Bangs's second venture in politics. Several years ago he ran for Mayor of Yonkers, and the result was his amusing book, "Three Weeks in Politics." What literary product may be forthcoming from this Congressional campaign and from his term in Congress, if he is successful at the polls, offer wide opportunity for lively speculation.

"MR." PUNCH'S HISTORY OF THE WAR.

> "There are nine and twenty ways
> Of inditing tribal lays,
> And every single one of them is right."
> —[Kipling.

There is fully as much truth as poetry in the above, and it is equally true that there are numberless ways of writing history.

London Punch has found a new one, for "Mr. Punch's History of the Great War," published in this country by the Frederick A. Stokes Company, is a unique example of a history composed of running monthly comment, contemporaneous with the events touched upon, illuminated by sparks of wit, flashes of humor and ever and anon by a touch of grim irony.

Here we have the war from start to finish as "Mr." Punch saw it. Not a formal, scientific or military history, not yet a comic history, but nevertheless a history that visualizes in a vital way the drama of death and destruction as it was waged for fifty-one interminable months.

In the prologue "Mr." Punch tells us that when the first shock of the war came he seriously considered putting up his shutters on the theory that humor could have no place in such a tragic period. But this view was soon dispelled, for from the "Tommies" themselves came Punch's cue.

These seemingly phlegmatic, matter-of-fact Britishers, from the outset to the end of the conflict, refused to take life too seriously. They still wanted their little jokes just as they wanted their small beer and their "baccy." So Punch continued publication and even in England's darkest hours, with her soldiers being cut down by tens of thousands, with her homes and her schoolhouses made the object of more and more frequent Zeppelin attacks, with food growing scarcer and scarcer, and with calamity and defeat everywhere threatening, the great humorous journal was read and chuckled over just as in the days of peace and prosperity.

In this bulky volume, which is profusely illustrated with some of the leading cartoons that appeared in Punch during the war, we get a glimpse here and there of the real character of the Briton. Here is depicted his bulldog grit, and his deadly determination to "carry on," and over the whole is a light play of fancy that gives color and life to the part played by the British "Tommy" on land and the British "Jackie" on sea.

The book contains some earlier cartoons of historic value, with a flash of the prophetic. Among these is one showing the presentation by Mr. Punch to the King of Prussia, in May, 1864, of the "Order of St. Gibbet;" of France on her knees defying Germany in 1871 and again on September, 1873, of France standing in an attitude of grim defiance saying to Germany, "Au revoir! We shall meet again."

Of cartoons visualizing the tragedies o fthe great war, none is more startling than that of little Belgium, standing with his back to the gate marked "No thoroughfare," while the burly Hun, with sausage hanging from his capacious pockets and a great war club in his hands, rushes on to crush his tiny opponent. The edies of the great war, none is more story.

Another remarkable cartoon is of a German officer with sword in hand driving a mother and her two clinging children before him while he heroically proclaims "God (and the women) Our Shield."

German frightfulness is visualized in the cartoon entitled "The Flight that Failed." A German aviator returns to the Kaiser and reports his failure to kill a number of babies with his bombs.

The Emperor: What No babes, sirrh?

Aviator: Alas, sire, none.

Emperor: Well, then, no babes, no iron crosses.

The Crown Prince's failure at Verdun is shown in the drawing of a bristling wild boar with his snout firmly gripped in a steel trap which is labeled "Verdun" with the subcaption, "Held."

The faith of the British officer in the will of "Tommy Atkins" to "carry on" is shown in the casual remark of an officer returned from the front: "Atkins is really at his best when an ordinary mortal might be contemplating desertion or suicide."

The philosophy of Tommy Atkins is shown in the following, contributed to the pages of Punch from the front:

> "If we're standin' in two feet o' water, you see,
> Quite likely the Boches are standin' in three;
> An' though the keen frost may be ticklin' our toes,
> 'Oo doubts that the Boches' 'ole body is froze?
> "So 'ere's our philosophy simple an' plain:
> Wotever we 'ates in the bloomin' campaign,
> 'Tis balm to our souls, as we grumble an' cuss,
> To feel that the Boches are 'atin' it wuss.

Mr. Punch pays his respects to Ireland in a cartoon showing a prosperous Irish farmer with his pipe in hand addressing his priest, thus: "And what about the war, your Riverence? Do you think it will hould?"

During the period of the war, prior to the entrance of the United States, there are a number of sarcastic references to this country, particularly one entitled "Hamlet U. S. A.," in which President Wilson, on the "ramparts of the White House," is pictured as saying, in despair,

> "The time is out of joint. O cursed spite,
> That ever I was born to set it right!"

while ex-President Roosevelt, off stage, sadly agrees in a heartfelt "That's so."

The changed attitude toward America is revealed in May, 1918. Here Mr. Punch tells of Americans pouring into France at the rate of 250,000 a month and of how they have shown their fighting mettle at Cantigny, a small fight, but one of great importance, as it "showed their fighting qualities under extreme battle conditions."

The attitude of British labor and capital is the subject of a striking drawing picturing the two great lions, one with a silk hat of the conventional style, the other with a sport cap, side by side, with this caption, "Unaccustomed as I am to lie down with anything but a lamb, still, for the sake of the public good——"

The closing cartoon, "The Ghosts of Versailles," reveals the brutal, sullen, unrepentant Hun, clad in his gold lace and spiked helmet, signing the Peace of 1919, while standing behind him we see the wraiths of the Old Emperor, Von Moltke and Bismarck.

This history is a purely British document. It visualizes the Briton's point of view and since it may be assumed to be the result of spontaneous expression, is undoubtedly more reliable than a studied historical narrative, written with a weather eye to the niceties of diplomatic and international obligations.

BOOK NOTES.

A New Publishing House.

The new publishing house of Scott & Seltzer, with offices at 5 West Fiftieth street, New York, has been organized. The firm is composed of Mr. Temple Scott and Mr. Thomas Seltzer, both men of high standing in the publishing world.

The King Pleased.

His Majesty the King of England has been pleased to accept the record of Marie Corelli's war work, a book of essays entitled "My 'Little Bit,'" and has expressed his thanks to Miss Corelli. The book was published in America by George H. Doran Company on September 10.

More of Creel Criticism.

George Creel's new book, "Ireland's Fight for Freedom," is dedicated to his wife, Blanche Bates Creel, "who has long begged me to give up controversy in favor of 'nice, unargumentative things like books.'" The "nice, unargumentative' field chosen by Mr. Creel is being demonstrated at present by the lively battle which is waging around his volume. It has met with the most bitter condemnation and the most exalted praise, but no one—as usually happens with anything pertaining to Ireland—seems to be able to keep quiet about it. The New York Times finds it full of "curious inconsistency," "one-sided," etc., while the New York Tribune declares it "the best concise treatment of the question which we know." All of which depends on the point of view! Meantime, a second large edition is being bound, and a third printed, to fill one large order from a patriotic Irishman.

"Heredity and Environment."

The Princeton University Press is publishing this month a third edition of Edwin Grant Conklin's "Heredity and Environment in the Development of Men." This is the sixth large printing of the book since the first edition appeared in 1915. It has also been translated into Japanese and French. This latest edition has been revised, and much new material added.

Horace vs. Untermeyer.

Louis Untermeyer has turned juggler. In his "Including Horace," which Harcourt, Brace and Howe expect to publish shortly, he balances Horace while keeping one theme, two methods and a score of schools of poetry in the air. The volume starts with a precise translation of "Integer Vitae," followed by some twenty versions of translations such as would be made by poets ranging from William Shakespeare and Carl Sandburg to A. C. Swinburne, The Imagists and many others, including Irving Berlin! The rest of the book consists of a series of light-hearted paraphrases of the other odes, and forms a companion volume to Mr. Untermeyer's earlier parodies—"—and other Poets."

When the Prussians Came.

Mme. Laura de Gozdawa Turczynowicz, author of "When the Prussians Came to Poland" (Putnams,) declares she is the only woman member of a European Cabinet. Mme. Turczynowicz, who was known in the days of monarchies as Countess Turczynowicz, has just been appointed Commissioner of Charities by the new Lithuanian government, and has returned to America after, six months abroad, to aid the National Lithuanian Council in its efforts to secure recognition at Washington.

"The liver is an infernal organ of the body."

CURRENT FICTION.

"Patty and Azalea."

The clever, the inimitable, the omnipresent Carolyn Wells is evidently a syndicate. She writes jingles and rhymes that are full of witty turns and clever quips; she ranges from thrilling detective stories to droll disquisitions on all manner of subjects and she writes the "Patty" books and the "Marjorie" books. Writes them by the dozens and sells them by the thousand. Children, especially girls in their early teens, are supposed to cry for and over this juvenile pabulum and there is no doubt of their popularity.

It is difficult for a staid reviewer with a bald head and a game leg to put himself in the proper frame of mind to review "Patty and Azalea," by Carolyn Wells (Dodd, Mead & Co.) He doesn't know how to do justice to it, and he doesn't see how injustice can be done to such an amazing book. If this is what the feminine portion of the rising generation dotes upon, the world will surely be in its dotage when the rising generation has risen.

"Patty and Azalea" is the seventeenth of a "Patty" series in which Patty successively has friends and romances and blossoms and pleasure trips and motor cars and suitors and a fortune and ever so many other things. They are all "perfectly darling" books, the slip cover says so; books over which girls "weep buckets" and pronounce "fascinating."

In this particular member of the series Patty is pictured as a pink china matron with a rose-garden husband, whom she constantly refers to as "My lord and master." This noble lord has a western cousin, Azalea, whom he has not seen since she was a baby, and the altogether sweet and charming Patty decides to invite this unknown cousin to leave the wild and woolly West and come to the East for a visit.

Azalea comes. She is like no western girl the writer ever saw, but she fulfills the purpose of the story to a tee.

She is uncouth, ill-bred, badly dressed and worse behaved. How she develops into the "perfect lady" of the last chapter is told with Miss Wells's usual pep and go, making a story in which there is no dearth of incident nor lack of action.

If some old-fashioned folk prefer to recommend "Little Women" and the "Wide, Wide World" to these very up-to-date productions it will in no wise hurt the sale of the "Patty Books."

"The Charm School."

A subtly satiric, delightfully humorous story is "The Charm School" (Harper) by Alice Duer Miller. The plot is absurd by intention; the characters, from the ambitious Mrs. Rolles and her too docile daughter to the irascible banker, Mr. Johns, make an ensemble difficult to match.

Austin Bevans, endowed with "a feeling that he was going to make a lot of money some day," despite his cherubic good looks and his lack of influence, unexpectedly becomes the owner of a girls' school near New York, left him by a maiden aunt. Determined to win a competence in the shortest possible time so that he may win for his life companion the charming and refined daughter of the ambitious Mrs. Rolles, Austin decides that he will make the school a money-maker by conducting it on new and original lines. "Parents," he reasons, "want girls made into charming women—marriageable women. Parents don't dare to say this. They talk a lot of bunk about cultivation and womanliness, but what they really mean is attractiveness—they want their daughters to be charming and have beaux. Well, my scheme is to meet the parents half way. To come out boldly and say that the object of my school is to teach charm. And, by heavens, I'll teach them—have 'em taught, that is."

So this young man, an entrancingly handsome one, starts out to put his plan in operation. The complications he meets, his skillful management of the parents, the romantic aloofness that so fascinates his young lady pupils, and the trouble he has with the recalcitrant Elise, who insists on falling in love with him and in publishing this love to the four winds of heaven, make a tale that is designed to drive dull care away and leave the reader with a broad grin on his countenance.

The two school-teachers, the highbrow Miss Hayes and the totally incompetent and befuddled Miss Curtis, are only two of the delightful caricatures that adorn the pages of this clever book. The seemingly sweet and docile Elise, gifted with the wisdom of the ages in sex affairs, is a character worthy of much pondering on the part of the young people of both sexes who have the good fortune to read this book.

A Hawaiian Tale.

"Sorcery," by Francis Charles MacDonald (The Century Company,) is a highly imaginative story with the Hawaiian Islands for its setting. The love story of two girls with Hawaiian blood in their veins is unfolded in a series of melodramatic events that race along at the speed of a high-powered motor car.

The plot turns on the ancient native superstitions of the island. A married woman, who covets the lover of her friend, visits a native sorcerer and bribes him to use his devilish occult powers on her rival. She succeeds, for, in obedience to the working of that law, which modern psychology describes as the law of suggestion, the relentless pressure of a strong alien will brought to bear on the subconscious self of a weaker will, the victim succumbs.

The author has succeeded in producing the tropic atmosphere of the island and gives us a glimpse of one phase of life as it is lived in our Pacific outpost.

The characters play their parts with varying degrees of reality. The tale should appeal strongly to those who are looking for something to cause nervous chills and deep green shudders. It is, in fact, a grisly yarn well told on the whole and closing with a fine bit of irony.

Two Books on Angling.

That ever-increasing tribe of anglers, who, whether their periods of recreation be short or long, delight to hie themselves to the haunts of the finny denizens of ocean deeps or the rushing shallows of mountain brook or lowland stream, will find in two books just issued from the press of Stewart & Kidd Company, Cincinnati, much that is both informative and delightful concerning the gentle art of angling.

"Fishing Tackle and Kits," by Dixie Carroll, is packed from cover to cover with useful hints as to tackle and kits, also much that will appeal strongly to the romantic and sentimental side of those who love this ancient and honorable pastime, which the immortal Izaak Walton has clothed with an antiquity that reaches back into the first glimmerings of known history. The author, who is the editor of the National Sportsman Magazine and fishing editor of the Chicago Daily News, is qualified to speak on the subject, and while he has devoted much space in the book to hunting, he has stressed what all real sportsmen hold as the first tenet of their creed—in fishing to "throw the little fellers back," and in hunting to bag only a reasonable amount of game and to give the game a sporting chance.

"Bass, Pike and Perch," by Dr. James A. Henshall, author of "The Book of the Black Bass" and "More About Black Bass," has contributed to the literature of the piscatorial art in this, his latest book, a volume that every lover of the "gentle art of angling" will want on his five-foot shelf.

This book is a comprehensive work on American game fishes. It describes in detail ninety species and varieties of game fishes inhabiting fresh-water lakes and streams east of the Rocky Mountains and also of those to be found in the marine and brackish waters of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts. The author's treatment of the art of angling on the whole is delightful. Not the least valuable feature of the book is that it will become a practical text-book for all who love to whip the streams for game fish. The best bait and the proper artificial fly to use under given conditions will prove invaluable to the novice and will be appreciated by the experienced.

The books are well printed, the type being large and easily read and the binding substantial and attractive.

A hundred women tried them first

Slender—short—stout—tall—each had a chance to tell what had always been her underwear complaint

Tall and stout
—had never been able to get under-suits to stay closed

"As I am a rather large woman, it seemed nearly impossible to get a knit union suit which would stay closed. The Kayser union suit you sent me is the first one I have ever worn which is made with a seat that stays closed."

Very slight—shoulder ribbons always slipped down

"I am very small and every knit union suit or vest I wore slipped right off my shoulders. I even tried tying the shoulder ribbons together to make them stay up. What a relief and comfort it was to find that the Kayser vest seems to have the shoulders made in such a way that they stay up beautifully."

Full shoulders
—arms require a roomy arm size—had never been able to get it

"My shoulders are rather plump and every knit under-suit I bought I would have to cut a bit out of the arm. That suit you sent me is the first one I ever had with a sufficiently large arm size—and oh, how nice it felt!"

Tall and slender
—exceptionally hard to fit

"I am size 34 and had never before been able to get a knit under-suit which fitted me. If it was long enough, it would be too wide—if narrow enough, it would be too short. How delighted I am to know that now, at last, I can get under-suits cut so that they fit perfectly."

SOME women had always had trouble in getting a knit cotton or lisle under-suit roomy enough at the hips—some never could get the shoulder bands to stay up—some had never been able to get a knit suit that stayed closed—there were other complaints—a hundred of them!

Could so many wrong things ever be remedied?

Determinedly Julius Kayser set to work. Started at the very beginning. Tested, ripped, and worked, again and again, to get knit underwear just right for women.

For just as Kayser SILK Underwear, Kayser Silk Hosiery and Kayser Silk Gloves are the best that can be made, so should Kayser KNIT Underwear be the best knit underthings a woman could get.

And eventually a hundred knit union suits and vests were ready for their final test!

They were sent to a hundred women—slender women, stout women, women large at the hips, women narrow at the shoulders.

Out of the enthusiastic letters that came to us, we have selected these letters from five women. Read what their particular difficulty was and how it was overcome in a Kayser Knit garment.

Then go to your favorite department store and look at a Kayser Knit union or vest. Wear it! See how your underwear difficulty is solved. JULIUS KAYSER & CO., New York City.

Short and stout
—could never get a union suit large enough at the hips

"My pet underwear complaint has always been that I never could get knit garments which did not bind me at the hips. I quite expected Kayser's to do the same. Imagine my surprise and delight when I found that it was shaped so as to be extremely comfortable in this respect. Hereafter you may be sure I'll always wear a Kayser Knit garment."

BLUEBEARD NOT YET CONVICTED.

French Judge has Hard Time with Clever Prisoner.

Man is Held for Murder of Thirteen Sweethearts.

But Police Have Failed to Find a Single Body.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Little headway has been made in the case of Landru, "the Gambais Bluebeard", as the French papers term him, who is charged by the police with being responsible for the disappearance of thirteen women to whom he had promised marriage.

The police have been investigating for four months and four times a week Landru is taken from the prison of La Sante to the office of Judge Gonin whose questions as to the fate of the thirteen women elicit from Landru evasive and at times very witty responses. They have got as far as sweetheart number three and Landru's flippant replies have nearly driven the judge to nervous prostration.

Yesterday the judge announced that he was going for a holiday. Landru immediately chipped in with the request that he, too, be permitted to take a vacation as the regime of La Sante did not agree with him. Might he not be allowed to go to his villa at Gambais and hold himself at the disposition of the court? It was from Gambais villa that Landru's future spouses disappeared never to be heard of since.

Judge Bonin was asking Landru this week how it was that his son who assisted him in removing the furniture of three of his fiancees did not make queries when moving that of Mrs. Guillin, the third removal of furniture in six months. "Did he not find it strange?" asked the judge.

"My children obey my orders, they do not discuss them", responded Landru, "I have my misgivings as to the way you bring up your children, judge," he added sententiously.

Landru contended that he had an order from Mrs. Guillin, drawn up in legal form giving him full power of attorney to administer her property. "This document was not found among your papers, therefore, I must conclude that it never existed," said the judge.

CROOK IS CLEVER.

"And as you and your police, with all the means at your command, are unable to find Mrs. Guillin, I must therefore conclude that she never existed," countered Landru.

Not one vestige of the missing women has been found and the charge of murder against Landru is growing weaker. There is no "corpus delicti". The villa at Gambais has been ransacked by the police and ponds in the vicinity of the villa have been drained, but it would appear that the women have vanished into thin air. To question as to the probable whereabouts of the missing women, his relations with them prior to their disappearance, Landru invariably replies: "I am a man of the world, I cannot betray the confidence of women".

He Had To Think.

The lawyer was crossexamining a witness to a robbery. "When did the robbery take place?" he asked.

"I think—" began the witness.

"We don't care what you think, sir. We want to know what you know."

"Then if you don't want to know what I think, I may as well leave the stand. I can't talk without thinking. I'm not a lawyer."—[Outlook.

AUTHORS IN THE ADIRONDACKS.

Favorite Haunt of Emerson, Lowell and Agassiz.

Former Poets and Scientists Camped Together.

Notable Club Formed at Follensbee Pond.

A story of how Emerson, Agassiz, Lowell, Stillman and other noted men spent their summers in the Adirondacks and the reason for Longfellow's refusal to go along, is told in the recent issue of State Service, a monthly magazine devoted to the government of New York State and its affairs. This describes it as follows:

"Lovers of Emerson's work are familiar with the opening stanzas of 'The Adirondacks, a journal dedicated to my fellow-travelers in August, 1858.' This poem is the record of a huinting and fishing trip famous in Adirondack annals. It was a scientific expedition rather than a hunting trip, for Emerson's fellow-travelers included the distinguished naturalist, who daily dissected fish, deer, small animal and birds. In his boat he always had a dredge or insect net, and made all others in the party assist him. A most distinguished party it was. To quote from Emerson's poem, it included

"Ten scholars, wonted to lie warm and soft
In well-hung chambers daintily bestowed,
Lie here on hemlock boughs, like Sacs and Sioux."

The party was made up of Lowell, Emerson, Agassiz, Dr. Jeffries Wyman,, Dr. Estes Howe, John Holmes (brother of Oliver Wendell Holmes,) Judge Hoar, Horatio Woodman, Amos Binny and W. J. Stillman, a landscape painter, who managed the trip, and went ahead to locate the camp at Follensbee Pond, at that time out of the track of hunters or chance tourists. Emerson's poetic description of the trip, wiih the lessons which he drew from nature, is a thing to be read and enjoyed, and interest is added by the relation of intimate incidents of the trip by Stillman in writing of it many years afterward.

STILLMAN ACTS AS SCOUT.

"During a short residence in Cambridge, Stillman's enthusiasm for the Adirondacks led to the formation of a party which included Lowell and several of their mutual friends in 1857. They went from the Saranac waters down the Raquette River, camped on Tupper Lake, went up Bog River to the source of the Raquette and so back to the point of departure. The trip was so ratisfactory that Stillman was directed to take charge of a trip for the next season, which included the famous party of ten. An effort was made to have Longfellow and Holmes go also. But Holmes cared little for unhumanized na ture, and Longfellow, although tempted to enjoy the company of his friends, disliked killing animals, and was too settled in his habits. His final decision in the matter furnishes an anecdote that has often been told. 'Is it true that Emerson is going to take a gun?' he asked. 'Yes,' replied Stillman. 'Then I shall not go,' said Longfellow, 'somebody will be shot.'

"An amusing incident happened at Keesville. The village trustees did not know Emerson nor Lowell, but Agassiz had become famous in the newspapers through refusing an offer of the Emperor of France of the keepership of the Jardin des Plants, and a Senatorship with a large salary. One of the trustees had a picture to compare to Agassiz, and as the likeness was satisfactory, he said: 'It's him,' and shook hands with the scientist, but ignored the other celebrities.

"Stillman called Lowell the Magnus Apollo of the camp, with his fund of humor, unceasing play of wit, his erudition and poetry alway son tap, Hoar with pyrotechnical wit, matched table talk with Emerson and Agassiz, John Holmes and Howe were not silent, either, and the woods rang with laughter. Agassiz's wonderful personality towered over all. Myriad-minded and many-sided, he was easily the most popular with the guides, and no plant, insect or quadruped held its secret from him.

EMERSON'S BUCK FEVER.

"No vacation or mishap could ruffle the calm serenity of Emerson, nor disturb his philosophy, or rob him of its lesson. He went night hunting, but could not see the deer. 'Shoot," whispered the guide. After two trials Emerson said, 'Well, if that was a deer, I shall shoot the next square thing I see,' but saw no more that night. Later he vowed he must kill a deer before he went home, even if the guide had to hold it by the tail. The incident serves to show that in the woods the 'grent of the earth differ little from ordinary mortals.

"Out of this trip grew the 'philosopher's club.' In the words of the poem: 'We planned that we should build, bard-by a specious lodge . . .' It was agreed that this lodge should be built and the meeting place fixed at Ampersand Pond, to which, in time, the tradition of the philosopher's club was attached. But the club expired when the war broke out, and twenty-five years later, Stillman, found it hard to find on Follensbee Pond the site of Camp Maple, as it was called, even with Steve Martin as guide. Fires had done their deadly damage, the wood had all been cut away, and the great pines and maples were gone. Stillman rather sadly related that every fit camping ground on the shore of the Follensbee had been occupied, and the whole pond sploited by the tourist parties who had made it a place of pilgrimage. He characterized as 'wreteched dolts' those who had put pickerel in the Racquette River, thus exterminating the trout.

"At a later period, Follensbee Pond and its surrounding lands came under private ownership, and for a good many years it has been held as a preserve."

The Jealous Woman.

The lady at 23b, Poppings court, was regarded by her neighbors as rather swanky, especially when she had a family photograph taken, says an English contemporary. One morning she passed it over the back fence to the lady at 23b with a badly concealed air of pride. "Quite pretty," said No. 23a, who was bursting with envy, really. "But do I know them?" "Know them!" snorted 23b. "Course you do. It's me an' the kids." "Is it?" purred 23a. "Well, what a difference a good wash makes, to be sure!"

its inhabitants refuse to believe in its death. Seven hundred of them have come back who tenaciously insist on reviving it, who camp in the ruins of their homes, have no social, intellectual or political cares, nothing but what impelled and spurred on primitive tribes: food, drink, a roof to keep the rain out of their soup and bed.

Their remaining time and energy are given up to clearing out, from morning to night, struggling against mingled stone, brick, plaster and wood, against the stifling dust and still more against both a lack of organization and a luxury of useless formalities.

After the towns, I wanted to see the villages. Leaving the pilgrimage train, I took a motor car and traveled about the Somme battlefields. For some time after Peronne, the countryside looks a little like life or at least like war.

There are camps here and there, pacing sentries, heavy motor lorries carrying rusty guns, and Nisson huts, their round camouflaged backs crouching in the grass.

But little by little, all these disappear and the white, rugged, dusty road rushes into ghastly wilderness, into an uncultivated shaggy, desolate landscape.

THE GRAVES OF VILLAGES.

At each turning or cross-road can be read on big wooden boards, written in English, in French, and in German those names that our anxious eyes so often used to meet in the brief communique, names for ever sadly and heroically famous.

But where are the places themselves? If you did not read the tragic epitaphs written on some of them "Here was Villers-Carbonnel" or "poor Combels!" you would pass without notice the grave of what was only a few years ago a happy cluster of houses and blossoming gardens, nestling around a church. Some had 2000 inhabitants and more.

Nothing remains of them, not one of these stones which, for centuries marked Cathage or Memphis, not one piece of wood, not even the dustcloud that rises in the wind.

Suddenly my heart leapt at an unexpected sight; a flimsy ribbon of blue smoke unfurling gently in the breeze. Is it a house? No, not a house, only a wooden hut, but a place with a fire, with living beings around it—a home!

We made for it and I stopped in wonder in front of a dainty little garden, with beans and green peas in strict rows, freshly watered, bright golden and scarlet flowers of nasturtium, and even a small gooseberry bush with ripening berries.

Inside the hut was a fireplace, a wooden table, a few wicker chairs, flowers and reeds in shells, photographs on the wall. The biggest shows a young soldier, a bold French face. It is veiled with black crepe.

"SPLENDID ASHES."

I looked at the mother, a tall, middle-aged woman with pathetic eyes in a worn, pale face, who had welcomed us with quiet dignity.

"Yes," she answered, "it is my boy. He was killed at the Eparges while we had the Boches here. At the very time they had arrested his father, tried him, condemned him to death.

"Bah! They would not have dared to kill me," said the husband, an old peasant. "You see, I was the Mayor of this place. I was not going to let them take more than I could help; les bandits! They had their revenge the second time they came back, but they have left us something. Will you come and see it?"

Across the barbed wire and shell holes we got on to a huge circular quarry, against which leaned a gigantic limekiln reaching to the top of the high white cliff. The Mayor was gazing at it with grim satisfaction.

"A fine kiln, n'est-ce pas?" he said. "Well there is more than one Boche that has taken his last leap into it. Last year, they had too many corpses, they could not bury. They came every night to the top of this hill, tied the bodies four by four and threw them into the lime fire. The flames sprang up to the sky and what a roar inside. Thousands of bodies were burnt there. A quick and clean way of getting rid of them."

He walked quickly to the kiln opened the grate, and taking a handful of white, soft ashes, he let them flow through his fingers, then blew the rest into the air.

"Splendid ashes!" he said pensively. "As to the lime inside here," he added after a silence, "it has been most useful to us for rebuilding and white washing.

I gasped: "What? With the ashes in it?"

He answered simply: "Why not? We need the lime badly and the ashes don't hurt."

TOOK TWO WARS TO DO IT.

It has been hard to get a laundress in Alexandria, Va. War-time conditions have enabled many who earned their living at the tub to turn to less arduous pursuits, with the result that there is a scarcity of "wash ladies." The condition is one paralleled in many other cities.

"Aunt Lucy," said one Alexandrian woman, addressing a colored woman whom she had known for many years, "don't you know some one who can do my washing?"

Aunt Lucy smiled.

"No, ma'am, I don't know no one," she said.

The woman made a last attempt. "Won't you do it for me, Aunt Lucy?" she asked, with a winning smile.

"Deed, chile," said Aunt Lucy, "I don't have to do no washing no more."

"Why?" asked the woman.

"Well, honey, hit is jes like this," explained Aunt Lucy, with nice distinction. "De Civil war made us free. And dis here World war has made us independent."—[Washington Star.

This an excerpt from a paper published in the city Naper
On the coast of old Atlantic near the ruins of New York town.
Thus we read: An excavation in the southwest of our nation
Sheds new light upon the ancients called "Lost Angels," who went down
When their watersheds denuded sent upon this folk deluded
With a crash and with a thunder, something of a sudden thud
Suffocating e'en the people who climbed up the tallest steeple,
Filling all their streets with wailing when they saw their name was "Mud."

"How these ansients were so foolish as to let these gobs of goulash
Fix their clocks for good and ever, we're indebted to a gink
Who has studied sign and letter till we feel he knows 'em better
Than this funny tribe of 'Boosters" who once played them up in ink.
This a sample of a "poster," "Try our pretty roller coaster."
This, perhaps, was at the ocean. Near the spot he found a port
Now far inland from the tide line 'neath a mountain's lofty incline
While beneath a mile of debris he unearthed a wondrous fort.

Other signboards read as follows: "Buy a home up in the hollows,"
"Get a ranch out in the valley—fifty millions coming here."
While a time-worn publication says, "Behold our full salvation, Everything is lovely, fellows; they can't have their lager beer."
Only once he found a warning published on a Sabbath morning
By a man who ran a paper called, he thinks, the "L. A. Times;"
"Babylon," he says, "was sunken when the storms with power drunken, Sent the sand and silt a-plenty, silencing their belfrey chimes."

Still some others: "Be a booster;" "Councilwoman swats the rooster."
Not a thought save that just cited of the fires that laid them bare.
"Let's reclaim the dear old missions and recall our fat commissions."
"Get your pumpkins up to Wiggins for the California fair."
These, with many, many others, make us weep for our lost brothers.
Only once the gink referred to said he didn't want to bawl,
That was when he found a mummy of a man all mouth and tummy,
It was Hiram Johnson spouting when the mud plugged up his Hall."

SOLDIERS UNPREPARED.

One-fourth of All Who Apply Found to Need Education or Training.

One reason why it so difficult to place thousands of recently discharged service men is that fully 25 per cent. of them need either educational or vocational training before they are qualified to fight the battle of life, said Afred L. Smith, executive secretary of the Re-employment Committee, yesterday, discussing conditions at the bureau. It is because the committee realized that one-fourth of all applicants comprise prospective students instead of members of the so-called unemployed class, the committee has opened an educational bureau at 505 Pearl street.

More than 1000 applicants after conference with the vocational advisers have admitted they need further training and have expressed desire to take up advanced courses. J. H. Vertrees, director of the new educational division, is anxious to co-operate with former service men whose educational advantages have been neglected.

"Since the bureau was opened about four months ago more than 1100 clerks have been advised to seek new occupations," said Mr. Smith. "Of this number almost 1000 have decided to follow the advice of our vocational counselors.

"More than 2000 unskilled men have been interviewed. Of this number more than 1800 have been directed to apprenticeships.

"As is generally known, hundreds of men who were being educated went to war. A large number of them lost two years. Returning, they thought it best to go right to work. Our educational director is advising this class to continue their studies. Undergraduates of colleges are urged to return.

"The average office worker who has been mustered out of service is surprised to find that he faces entirely changed conditions. He learns that the experience obtained in the last job does not count for much when he is seeking a new one. He also discovers that the increase in pay for clerical work has not kept pace with the cost of living, also hundreds of other clerical workers are jobless. Reports submitted by both Mr. Ventrees and Mr. Sullivan show that many of these so-called clerks are really only one peg above the manual laborer."—[N. Y. Times.

Hairpin a Favorite Bookmark.

The most startling marker that Forest B. Spaulding, public librarian, has come across in the books that have circulated from the library was a strip of underdone bacon. The most ordinary bookmark found in the books is the common variety of wire hairpin. Hairpins might be collected by the hundreds, Mr. Spaulding says, but owing to that very fact they are considered as fairly worthless from the collector's standpoint.

The vacation season is announced annually by the presence of snapshots in the returned books. These are both personal and otherwise in character. Postcards and letters, too, come in often. Frequently letters addressed and stamped are found just as they were left by the book borrower, who doubtless was proceeding postofficeward by way of the library. These are mailed from the library.

Mr. Spaulding has noticed any number of pretty girls sitting on the beach at Riverview Park with books, and he has been looking forward all summer to recovering a bathing suit absent mindedly left by one of the young ladies in her book.—[Des Moines Register.

ALWAYS FOLLOW DIRECTIONS.

A student at the State University presents the following puzzle which he declares he actually experienced. "I got a prescription from a doctor, had it filled, followed the directions on the bottle, took not a drop of the medicine and yet got well."

How did he do it,

He explains it this way:

"After I got the medicine I saw upon the bottle the following, the only directions: 'Keep tightly corked.' I did so, consequently took no medicine and got well."—[Columbus Dispatch.

TO UNITE THE TWO AMERICAS

Story of Pan-American Union, its Building and Members.

First Suggested by a Mexican Thirty Years Ago.

Building Handsomest Public Structure in Capital.

[From the Indianapolis News.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The Pan-American Union Building on Seventeenth street always attracts a good deal of attention, and is just now being admired by the visitors who are again permitted to visit the public buildings of Washington and also by many of the war workers, who are packing up preparatory to leaving, but who are taking advantage of the opportunity not granted them heretofore. The Pan-American Union Building is undoubtedly the most beautiful of public buildings in Washington.

To John Barrett, the present director-general of the union, is due a large part of the credit for the erection of the building, for it was he who played an important part in collecting the necessary money for the erection of the building. Andrew Carnegie gave something like $1,000,000 toward it, while the Pan-American republics belonging to the union contributed the rest. The building and the Pan-American Union is supported by twenty-one nations, all of whom pay annual dues for the purpose, the amount of their dues being regulated by the size of their populations.

MUST BE NORTH AMERICAN.

According to the laws governing the union, the director-general has to be a North American and the assistant director-general a Latin American. Francisco J. Yanes is the present occupant of the last named office. The chief clerk, the rules say, must come from this continent, while the librarian must needs be from a country to the south of us. Franklin Adams holds the office of chief clerk, while Charles E. Babcock is acting librarian. During the thirty years that the union has existed it has gradually got together a very valuable library, now concentrated in the Pan-American Building. It contains about 40,000 volumes and some 20,000 photographs of people and places in South America.

The movement to form the union was first advocated by a Mexican named Aspiroz, who served as Ambassador to this country when James G. Blaine was Secretary of State. Another leader in forming the union was the former Governor of Kentucky, McCreery, who was also a member of the Congress. John Barrett became director-general of the union in 1907, just after serving as Minister of the United States to Colombia.

WAR PROVED IMPORTANCE.

It is agreed on all sides that the world war proved the importance of the Pan-American Union and the absolute necessity of complete understanding among the nations of this hemisphere. The union aided in winning the war and now that the war is over it is playing a most important role in helping to get the world settled down to a peace basis. The office force of the Pan-American Union Building is kept busy these days answering thousands of letters from soldiers from all parts of the world, asking for information concerning the South American countries, with the idea of going there permanently.

The governing board of the union is composed of Frank Lyon Polk, Undersecretary of State, who is chairman ex officio, and the diplomatic representatives to this country of the nations belonging to the union. The Undersecretary of State is at present in France, having succeeded the Secretary of State, Robert Lansing, at the Peace Conference. He met Secretary and Mrs. Lansing on their arrival in New York recently, and sailed a few days later for France, accompanied by Mrs. Polk. During their stay abroad their children are at Southhampton, L. I.

ARGENTINE AFFAIRS.

John Barrett, director-general of the Pan-American Union, has lately returned to Washington from New York City, where he went to attend a luncheon given in honor of Ricardo C. Aldao, one of the leading lawyers and financiers of Argentina, now visiting the United States. From New York Mr. Alado will come to Washington for conferences relating to Argentine-American matters. The director-general will entertain the visiting officials of Argentina, as he usually does for the South American diplomats and other officials who come to Washington on business or as guests of the government.

The last large affair given at the Pan-American Union Building was the reception tendered the President-elect of Brazil and Mme. Pessoa and Miss Pessoa.

Doesn't Miss Anything.

They were seeing San Francisco. They had done Chinatown, the seals, a couple of museums and the spaghetti tunnel on Bay street. The evening found them in Peacock Alley watching the Frangipani parade. Finally one of them had an inspiration. She turned to her companion.

"Do you like art?" she queried.

"Oh, law, yes. Whenever I hit a big city with an artery in it I always blow in."—[Dallas News.

BEES FOR THE STINGS.

An Eastern Woman Supplies the Manufacturing Druggists.

Raising bees for the stings pays an eastern woman better than keeping them for the honey which they would produce. From these stings is secured the purest formic acid obtainable, and the customers are the manufacturing druggists of the country. In the past twenty-four years this woman has supplied one firm with 25,000 stings annually; other concerns take from 500 to 5000 each year, making a yearly trade of 50,000 stings. To produce this number, but two colonies of bees are necessary, while it would require fifty colonies to make an amount of honey equal in value to the stings.

The method of taking the sting from a bee is simple. The bees are first gathered in a specially arranged box, by shaking a comb on which they are working over the mouth of the box. Next, in a room with all the shades but one drawn, the box is opened. As the bees come out of the box they are attracted to the lighted window, and cluster there on glass or screen. Mrs. Beekeeper picks up the insects by their heads and, holding them under a magnifying glass, draws the stings. For this purpose a small pair of tweezers is used. The stings are placed in a dish filled with milk sugar, which covers them with a coat that prevents decay.

Each sting contains a small amount of formic acid, which is removed by distillation. This acid is used in the treatment of rheumatism by homeopathic physicians, being administered in much reduced strength, while doctors of the regular school use it, reduced one-half, for restoring circulation in cases of paralysis, applying it externally. Formic acid was one of the first of the solid-fat acids discovered. It was originally obtained by distilling common red ants (formica rufa) from which the name is derived.—[Sam E. These illustrations show how a woman may look when she has only 25% red blood corpuscles and her blood is starving for iron and the change that takes place in her appearance when the percentage of red corpuscles increase as her blood becomes filled with strength-giving iron.

Baker, formerly Physician of Monmouth Memorial New Jersey, who says: "What to put roses in their the springtime of life into is not cosmetics or stimulat- but plenty of rich, pure red it no woman can do herself or to her work. From examination of the formula own tests of Nuxated Iron, I feel convinced that it is a perparation which any physician can take himself or prescribe for his patients with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results."

Among other physicians asked for an opinion was Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author. Dr. King says: "By enriching the blood and increasing its oxygen carrying power Nuxated Iron will often transform the flabby flesh, toneless tissues, and pallid cheeks of nervous, run-down women into a glow of health and make them look years younger within a surprisingly short time."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "As I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is one of the greatest of all strength builders. I have prescribed Nuxated Iron—organic iron—many, many times, and I have seen frequent instances where it gave renewed strength and energy, increased power and endurance, steady nerves, and the rosy bloom of health in about ten days' or two weeks' time. I consider Nuxated Iron one of the foremost blood and body builders—the best to which I have ever had recourse."

It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Boswell & Noyes Drug Co., Dickinson Drug Co., B. & B. Drug Co., Chambers Drug Co., Sun Drug Co. and all other good druggists.

IN STORES AND HOMES.

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

By Olive Gray.

Up-to-Dates:

A dress of tricolette, in tobacco brown, embroidered in gold bullion thread, in detached flowers of large design, scattered over the entire surface of the garment. Two-inch tucks upturned around the lower edge of the long tunic, and tiny heads of kolinsky fur set along the lower seams of the skirt: These are features of one of the smartest dresses recently shown on Broadway.

Black velvet suits for dressy wear for the girl of 14. This lovely material, when worn with the youthful charm of face and figure, is most interesting. A suit noticed recently had a coat cut upon simple lines and belted with a band of velvet, braided in silk soutache. With it was worn a simple shape of black velvet, the crown rather low and the brim soft and sweeping.

Upholstery material for the handsome davenport or sofa and easy chairs, in brocaded velours of brown and green, the latter color for the undertint and the brocaded flowers or scrolls in green.

Now is the Time to Buy:

The new suit, coat or dress, during the sales which, this coming week, make offering of such wanteds, for less.

Shoes, pumps and slippers, at reduced prices which make shoe buying the pleasure that it should be, for the woman who cares.

Warm nighties for chilly nights; and comf'y robes for "nippy" mornings.

The little air-tight heater for the living-room, to preclude those season-lasting colds which we are so likely to contract when winter chill first sets in.

Gem-time.

Were I a fortune teller I would predict for Milady a gift of handsome gems on the forthcoming Christmas. Why? Well, all signs point that way. You see, it has been long that both she and he have saved and saved, buying Liberty Bonds, and Victory Bonds and Saving Stamps. Long has it been since pleasant surprises were the order of the day. The prudent man has long neglected the one-time thought of the investment value in fine gems; but suddenly has come the realization that such gifts are of lasting worth as well as beauty dowering. The marvelous increase in the value of precious stones has recalled his old-time wisdom, and he ruminates of the money he has lost, in failing to purchase earlier; but he reasons that it is not yet too late, for such treasures are bound to go much higher. Thus, you see, the reason for buying jewels is logical. It carries an argument of well-liked masculine bountifulness and also that of the practical investment—two appeals which have never failed throughout the ages to convince the man. And, as a rule, it is the man who buys the jewels. Therefore, I need not be a great seer, were I telling fortunes, to fore-glimpse a gem-receiving Christmas for beloved women.

Not all that Color.

Citron is a popular shade for some costumes; but it is not because of this, that a certain shop holding an anniversary sale, will be a mecca this week. While it may sound like that, the "I" makes all the difference. Anyhow, the offerings there are of a nature to turn all eyes in that direction. Please forgive my puns, since a valuable statement lies within them.

"I think that is the most beautiful satin I have ever seen!" "The most beautiful satins, you should say!" "I think so, myself!" And then all three turned to me for corroboration of their views. I did not know them, but hastened to add my approving sentence; for we stood before that window wherein were displayed those loveliest of satins, called Francaise. The showing was in those glorious shades resembling fruits and flower petals—"riga," like the inner tint of the petunia blossom; the "primrose path," a shade like the Japanese persimmon when it has ripened in a California sun; the new French cerise. These shimmering satins were spread out like the fleecy-like clouds at sunset; or were triumphantly draped upon a figure, where they thus displayed sartorial possibilities, when combined with wondrous lace. The draping, of the entire piece, without any incision, was truly a work of art. This is national satin Francaise week. To this interesting fact we owe the glory of that window. This satin comes in all most wanted shades, and has proven especially adaptable to the softly draped modes of now.

"Better Values."

Just because so many women have been heard to declare that "it is impossible to buy a suit, or dress, or coat for less than $85," it looks as though the stores had set about proving otherwise. The sales of the forthcoming week run at prices ranging from $35, and even less for such garments, and there is rivalry to show greatest values at these prices. Hence: "Now is the time to buy."

Five Blousing Dollars.

If you happen to be one of those who has set aside $5, as the amount you would like to spend for your new suit-blouse; you will find an embarrassment of riches for your blousing five. Rivalling the rivalry as to prices on suits and coats and dresses, is that rife over blouses at the price I name. Really beautiful are some of the blouse offerings in Georgette and in crepe, for which the shrinking five bill is exchangeable.

Capes.

Capes, from being things of use and every-day wear, have become articles of pure ornamentation, in the completion of evening attire. One of the girls who is to spend the winter in New York, has among the lovely additions to her wardrobe, a cape of gold tissue, woven in a fine design, similar to lace, and strung upon a golden cord, passing around the shoulders of her decolletege. The lower edge of the cape, which is extremely full and falls almost wholly behind the shoulders, a la Sir Walter Raleigh's historic garment, is weighted with hand-made satin roses, in a tone of pink to match the color of her dancing frock. A cap-like hair ornament of gold tissue edged with roses, and a tall "tree" of roses posed saucily at one side, completes a most fetching accessory of a lovely toilette.

A Butter Economy.

Mrs. H——, who leaves no stone unturned to economize, in order to add dimes and dollars to the house-building fund, has a new butter economy. She purchased for a few cents, one of the dainty flower ornamented individual molds, and in these she molds the butter, allowing a mold for each member of the family for each meal and a few extras. She declares that this simple device has saved about 33 per cent. of the butter bill, for her rather extensive family. "They like the small, pretty molds, too," said she, "and forget to resent the restraint upon their butter-eating proclivities."

Under Fashion's Banners.

Some of the new suit coats have a turned-up or cuff effect around the bottom.

Garments for evening wear continue to use a great deal of ostrich as trimming.

Combinations cut like men's athletic underwear are among the latest things for women.

When embroidery appears on a woolen gown it should have great distinction of design.

A dash of bright embroidery is often the only ornament on the sober-hued hats for winter.

Long blouses of Georgette crepe, heavily beaded, are charming adjuncts to dressy tailored suits.

Thin women find the very long close-fitting tailored sleeve most becoming with day dresses.

Nothing is better for tiny girls than the plainest of little beaver bonnets, slightly poke-shaped.

Striped fabrics are made to trim themselves delightfully by simply turning the stripes the other way.

The straight one-piece dress still appears with a perfectly straight back only the front being held in by a more or less interesting belt.

A new chemise of crinkly crepe fastens on the shoulders and has its fullness gathered into a casing, thus doing away with the necessity for lingerie ribbons.

Irregular stripes are seen on certain exclusive new fabrics.

Navy blue and black is a favorite color combination for suits.

The new hats sometimes use quills as effective ornaments.

Many of the evening gowns have floating panels and side puffs.

UNCLE TED AT THE TRAGEDY.

Rob Wagner, a movie director, said at a luncheon in Los Angeles:

"Movie audiences are very sophisticated nowadays. They insist on accuracy. If you are inaccurate in the smallest detail they write you hundreds of jeering letters. It wasn't so in the past.

"The movie audiences of the past were as naive as Uncle Ted Prouty. Uncle Ted came in town one evening and went to the theater with his wife. In the first act a woman was shot, and when the curtain went down a good many men left their seats and went out.

"Uncle Ted fidgeted a while and then he took his hat and started out in his turn.

" 'Where be you goin'?' his wife asked.

" 'Look here, Hannah,' said Uncle Ted, 'I've stood this thing jest as long as I can, and now I'm goin' out like the rest to see how that pore woman is gettin' along that was shot. The unfort'nit wretch may be dead by this time, and if she is this ain't no place for us.' "—[Exchange.

EDUCATIONAL.

Because of the increase assured in the entering class of the Yale academic department, the college officials have been compelled to make plans for leasing two temporary dormitories. Indications are that the freshman class in the academic department will number about 450 students.

Vassar begins the year with an enrollment of normal size and which, as usual, just about taxes the college's dormitories and lecture halls to capacity. The freshman class is slightly smaller than it was last year, but the number of upper class students has increased.

The Harvard faculty is again intact, virtually all of the men who left the university to enter war service having returned to take up their teaching duties.

Oberlin College has opened with registration in all departments as follows: College of arts and sciences, 1050; seminary, 30; conservatory of music, 400; total, 1480. This is larger than the figures for one year ago, the freshman and sophomore classes being particularly large.

According to the estimates made by the United States bureau of education more than 50,000 public schools lacked teachers at the beginning of last year, which made necessary the drafting of over 100,000 new and untrained young men and women into the teaching service.

Reginald G. Harris, instructor in biology at Brown University last year, has left for an exploration trip through the jungles of South America as special representative of the American Museum of National History of New York City. He is a member of the Cornell entomological expedition. He will study, classify and collect specimens of the mammals of the South American continent.

What Dr. Charles W. Eliot once referred to as "the living Harvard force," will all be listed in black and white in the 1919 edition of the Harvard University Directory which will be ready for distribution November 1. This new directory will contain the names and classes, and wherever possible, the addresses and occupations, of all living men who have attended the university. The list totals 38,149 names as compared with 36,194 given in the 1913 edition which the new directory will supplant.

The Roosevelt Military Academy, named in honor of the late Theodore Roosevelt and what he stood for in American life, has been organized to succeed the Sheldon School for Boys at West Englewood, N. J. It is announced that Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., on behalf of the family, has consented to dedicate the school to his father.

A great library, to cost approximately $5,000,000, will, it is said, soon be erected at Yale out of the funds made available by the bequest of the late John W. Sterling.

New Hampshire College announces a department of music which will offer instruction in piano and violin, and also in vocal music if enough students register for this last subject.

Passing "High Cost" Along.

A tailor's old-time customer sent a suit of clothes to be pressed and when it was returned the price tab called for 10 cents more than the rate formerly charged. The result was a complaining patron, whose wails were met by this clincher from the tailor:

"Well, hasn't the price of transfers gone from nothing to 2 cents? The tailor can't stand all of the high cost of living; he has to pass some of it to his customers."—[New York Sun.

Film on Teeth

Is What Wrecks Them

Dental science has found that most tooth troubles are due to a slimy film. You can feel it with your tongue.

That film clings to the teeth. It gets between the teeth, enters crevices and stays. The tooth brush doesn't end it. The ordinary dentifrice cannot dissolve it. So its damage is unceasing.

That film is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of many other troubles, local and internal.

That is why brushed teeth discolor and decay. Why tartar forms and pyorrhea starts. You may remove the debris, but the real cause of tooth troubles—the clinging film—is largely left to do its damage.

Now dental science has found a way to combat that film, after years of searching. We ask you to accept a ten-day test and see the results for yourself.

See How Teeth Glisten

When the Film is Gone

The results of Pepsodent show clearly in white, glistening teeth. You can see them everywhere, for a million folks now employ it. You can see them on your own teeth when you remove the film. And that's the purpose of this ten-day test.

Based on Pepsin

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The purpose of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

But pepsin must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid, harmful to the teeth. So pepsin long seemed impossible.

What science has now done is to invent a harmless activating method. That method is employed in Pepsodent. The result is a tooth paste which will do what nothing else has done. And five years of tests seem to clearly prove that it opens a new dental era.

Pepsodent has been submitted to every form of clinical and laboratory test. Dentists everywhere have watched its effects and now urge its daily use. This week we offer a test to you, and we ask you to accept it.

Look in Ten Days

We urge this test for your sake and your children's sake. Children have most to gain from cleaner, safer teeth. Try to avoid the troubles we have had.

Present this coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Use like any tooth paste. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

A book comes with the sample tube explaining the results. Learn the reason for them. Compare them with the results of old methods. Then let your own good sense decide which method to employ.

This test is of lifetime importance both to you and yours. It has shown at least a million people the way to whiter, safer teeth. Someone in your home should make it. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

TEA TABLE PERSIFLAGE.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

"The trouble with common people," remarked the sophisticated passe countess, who favored pink hats and soft lights, "is that they take everything in such dearly earnest. Dreadfully earnest people are so vulgar—so emphatic, argumentative, melodramatic. The more sincere they are, the more unpleasant their company. Take this Bolshevism, for instance. It was never meant to be taken seriously. As a purely intellectual amusement, it was quite harmless, a useful social adjunct at dinner parties and soirees. But look what happens when the common herd takes it up in its intense way."

"Why, yes," agreed the president of the Mona Lisa Art Club, "think how ghastly if they had taken up futurist art and Vers Libre in the same disgustingly intense manner!"

"They simply ruin the fashions," sighed Molly. "There isn't such a thing as an exclusive model any more. A week after one owns a thing one meets a vulgar copy of it in every block on Broadway."

"That's it exactly. The common people overdo everything. They took to drink with such nasty intensity that refined people just had to go in for temperance, and now they have hogged that, and with their vulgar deadly earnestness they have brought on prohibition." The countess shrugged her shoulders and smiled—really, she was getting almost too serious on this absurd subject herself for good breeding.

"Maybe, since they are overdoing the Bolshevism so intensely and ferociously, they'll kill that, too," volunteered Ermyntrude, "and then the political epicures will start a vogue for a new form of autocracy."

"Oh, that's already happening, you know. The political epicures started that in wartime and now the common herd has caught it—every man his own autocrat, don't you know."

"Is that what's the matter with the servants?" asked Edith. And there was acrimony in her polished tones.

But she had brought the subject to where even the refinedly sophisticated could allow themselves a certain show of sincere feeling. Vulgar it might be, but it was hard to discuss the servant question in a mood of light badinage and airy persiflage.

And Edith's case was particularly poignant. For more years than she cared to remember, she had rubbed along on a beggarly income that barely admitted of one maid and a light roadster. But she managed to keep her hands manicured during that probation period, against the day when hubby's rich relative should depart this world largely for their exclusive benefit. That happened six months ago. They had paid $60,000 inheritance tax alone, as Edith liked to mention with a deprecatory little shrug. They had built a suitable mansion—and the cost of building materials so dreadful, too. They owned a Locomobile, besides a fleet of other essential cars. In short, they had just everything—everything but servants.

Edith would not be vulgarly intense for anything, but there was a certain reckless misery beneath her mirthless laughter as she recited her woes—a twelve-roomed mansion and Edith's little manicured hands doing all the work. Here she was, worth goodness knows how much a year, with every store in town begging her to open charge accounts, with a roomful of sumptuous gowns and all the jewelry she could carry—spending her days sweeping, polishing, dusting, washing dishes, cleaning silver, mopping out bathrooms, scouring sinks and tubs, when by all the natural rights she should not have to rise until noon, after breakfast had been brought in by a fleet-footed maid, the sort of breakfast first-class but unobtainable cooks know so well how to create.

"How really delightfully funny," gurgled the countess. "Don't, darling, don't get intense about it. Why your house looks scrupulously well groomed, no mere servants could ever have attained such perfection. And how becoming work must be, my dear! Your complexion is just too ravishing. And your figure—you have lost weight, haven't you dear. Not too much, oh dear no. Just enough; you were getting a little puffy, oh, just a trifle. Do you do the cooking, too?"

"Yes, I do," admitted Edith, slightly mollified. "And because we know and like good things, I take pains to get them right. Ronald is quite a cook, too. He gets breakfast. Of course, he grumbles all the time, but I understand he brags about it shamefully down at the club. He got up early and swept out the downstairs rooms yesterday, too," she added reminiscently, "and then cooked himself two breakfasts as a reward. Funny, but his stomach doesn't trouble him at all now."

"Ugh!" snorted Ermyntrude. "I see what's coming. Society women are going to make housework fashionable. And being so refined and well bred, they wouldn't dream of being intense and unpleasant about it. They will abolish the famous old word "drudgery" and treat the whole thing with graceful, airy persiflage. They will make dishwashing and housecleaning the vogue, just like they made department store work the vogue at the Red Cross Shop."

"Oh!" said Molly, "do you think they will really? I always declared I wouldn't wear a tight skirt again when they were in last time—but one just must be in the style, musn't one. But I just hate housework."

"Hush! don't be intense," admonished the countess. "One doesn't always love grand opera, but one goes. And there is always something to like about it—particularly the other distinguished company. Like housework, it is all right if it isn't taken too seriously and intensely."

"Oh!" gurgled Edith. "I'm starting a vogue. How fascinating! One of the first real triumphs of our new money—I'm rich enough to make housework fashionable. And to think I always kept a maid, no matter what else we did without, when we were poor."

In addition to being the youngest general traffic manager, Miss Elizabeth Robinson, twenty-one, is the only woman in the business. After being with the Division at the front she stayed with it on its march to Coblenz, covering the entire distance on foot.

An efficiency expert found that the girls in a hat manufactory whose work was to sew silk-ribbon bows and hat-bands on hats wasted bits of ribbon valued at $800 a year in cutting by guess from rolls of ribbon given to each girl. Now the ribbons in that factory are cut by accurate gauges.

UNCLE SAM WAS FIRST MERCHANT

Brought Stock of Goods to Missouri River in 1808.

Romantic Story of Mercantile House in the Wilderness.

Patronized by Thousands of Friendly Indians.

[W. L. Webb in Kansas City Star.]

Uncle Sam was the first merchant to locate in Kansas City's trade territory; he arrived with a stock of goods and a company of soldiers in 1808 and set up in business on the Missouri River, where the town of Sibley now stands. Hence, his present venture in the mercantile line is not wholly an innovation.

More than a century ago our government embarked in the fur trade with the Indians, not as a gainful occupation, but as a military maneuver. It was more philanthropic and more businesslike to engage the wild men of the forest in trade than to engage them in battle. The government, however, came into the wilderness prepared to trade or fight, as the exigencies might require. A trading post and a fort were established at what is now Sibley, the one a lure of civilization, the other a warning against Indian treachery.

There is not a more romantic chapter in the history of the West than the narrative of all that occurred in and around the storehouse set up by our government here in the wilderness. The success of the venture is disclosed in this one assertion: No serious trouble ever occurred with the Osage Indians nor with their more warlike and less thrifty cousins, the Kaw Indians, an eloquent tribute to the beneficient influence of commerce and to the government agents who managed the business.

A SUCCESSFUL MANAGER.

A young man, George C. Sibley, a fur trader from St. Louis, was the government factor, and he accompanied the soldiers who built the fort. He brought up a stock of goods valued at $10,000, a very large sum of money for those days. The goods were selected for Indian buyers and consisted of trinkets, blankets, cloth, hardware, such as axes, hatchets, spots, kettles, pans and a few hoes and plows. There were in stock a few flintlock rifles and powder and lead. There were trappers' outfits, steel traps, etc. The government, overlooking nothing, sent up a blacksmith who was permanently located at the fort, or rather at the storehouse. The business of the blacksmith was to repair the guns of the Indians and also their few agricultural implements and traps.

The Osage Indians had asked the government to establish a trading post in their country. The fort was a mere incident and was never important. However, the mere presence of troops at the fort may have worked a tremendous effect. The trading-house, however, was from the first an immeasurable force in the development of the wilderness and in the maintenance of peace.

The government was determined to make a success of this mercantile venture. In the treaty with the Osages, a reservation of six miles around the fort was blocked out for white settlers. These were the first settlers in what finally became Jackson county. The reservation adjoining the fort is known to this day as "Six Miles" in the neighborhood of the modern town of Buckner. The early settlers were to engage in raising agricultural supplies for the fort and trading-house. Presumably they also were to give instructions for the Indians in the art of farming.

The chief purpose in the establishment of the trading post was to exchange commodities for the furs and peltries brought in by the Indian hunters and trappers. The treaty with the Osages provided the tribe should make their permanent residence in the neighborhood of the trading-house. And they came, by the thousands; squaws, papooses, dogs, ponies and all the paraphernalia of a populous Indian village. George C. Sibley was a great favorite among his customers. He knew evrey man, woman and child in the Osage tribe. He was equally well known among the Kaw Indians, who made periodical and long visits to the great mart which the government had opened up. The Osages, however, found that the novelty of the white man's life could not satisfy their longing for the customs of their ancestors. They finally returned en masse to their former homes on the Osage River. But the continued to patronize the trading-house at the fort and reported there with their furs.

Our government might now ship goods by airplane, railway or electric line, but when the store was opened at Sibley, goods had to be taken up the river by keel boats propelled by oars, sails or by cordelle. Steamboats were not in vogue at that time. Before the store was finally abandoned, upon the completion of the cantonment at Leavenworth, steamboats had appeared on the Missouri River and had begun to revolutionize commerce and travel throughout the West.

PASS THE SALT.

Two reporters were boasting of the speed of their shorthand writing.

"Whenever I am reporting a meeting on a warm evening, all the people try to get near to my table."

"Why?" asked the other.

"Because," said the penpusher, "my hand goes so fast that it creates a current of air like a fan."

"A mere nothing," said No. 2. "I always have to report on wet paper, or else the current of air caused by the movement of my hand would blow it away. Besides, the paper has to be wetted every few minutes, because the friction caused by the rapid movements of my arms would set fire to it in no time."—

Intellectual Snobbery.

I used to know a man who carried always with him a Russian novel in the original; not because he read Russian, but because a day might come when, as the result of some accident, the "pockets of the deceased" would be exposed in the public press. As he said, you never know; but the only accident which happened to him was to be stranded for twelve hours one August at a wayside station in the Highlands. After this he maintained that the Russians were overrated.—[A. A. Milne in the Outlook (London)

—Furs that have been subjected to a rigid character analysis and are here because of their superior fineness in every possible way

—It should be a consolation to choose a fur from this Bullock collection—to know that it possesses such excellent points of merit.

Moonlight on a Field of Snow or Lamplight on a Tablecloth of —Which is the more beautiful? Indeed, it would be hard to say—and a great deal might depend on one's mood.

John S. Brown's Linens

—But as snow is nature's covering for her mountain tops—so John S. Brown's Linens are the chosen coverings for tables where taste and elegance are desired.

—One's silver may be costly and distinctive—one's glass may be crystaline with cutting of a master hand—one's table decorations may be delightful to a captivating degree—but if one's table linen is lacking in snowy whiteness—in luster—in silky surface—or if it is commonplace in design—that final touch of finesse, which is the hall mark of authenticity, is noticeably absent.

—Choose rather for your table covering a linen which has been accepted in the dining-rooms of the elite, as a table covering beyond reproach—which has been set as a criterion by which to judge good linen.

—Linen made from the best home grown flax—fashioned upon Irish looms by patient Irish fingers—bleached by the olden method of grass bleaching.

—Such are the John S. Brown's linens, which have received the stamp of Bullock approval—and which are on display in Bullock's Linen Store for your examination.

—If you are an admirer of good linen you will be interested and charmed with the beauty of these fabrics—with their fineness of weave—their snowy silky sheen—and their simple effective patternings. —At Bullock's—Second Floor.

CLIMBING PERCH ACROBATIC FISH

Remarkable Habits of Small Tropical Water Life.

Strange Things Seen at Museum of Natural History.

Zebra Fish from India Less than an Inch Long.

[From the New York Times.]

If there are persons who think of fish as something to eat, embodying the idea of at least a few mouthful of solid substance and sustenance, they have apparently missed the recent showing of tropical fish by the Aquarium Society at the American Museum of Natural History.

As objects of beauty these tiny fish of the tropics offer color combinations well worth the artist's attention, or even the more practical study of the designer of silks or the creator of costumes, but, in the matter of size, they would hardly serve as bait for a minnow.

It is notable that practically all the exhibits were very small, the largest being about three inches long, and only one or two of the fish shown attaining that size. A good example of their diminutiveness are the zebra fish from India, the largest of which was a darting mite, about three-quarters of an inch long. The smallest of the species were hardly visible, had it not been for the bright stripes of silver running along the body. They were virtually small, translucent moving streaks. They glowed like fire opals, and, as they turned and darted, looked like the blazing "black opals" of Australia. They were so faint that they would have been difficult to see, except for the black background against which the case was placed.

Another fish about three-fourths of an inch long, of soft, grayish color, had a round fin, like a butterfly's wing, which was orange with black stripes. Though the fish was short, it was handicapped with a long name, Poecilia vivipara.

Another translucent, wraith-like fish was among the few comparatively large fish shown. This was the gurami of India, and was about two inches long. It won the first prize for its exhibitor, C. B. Rush, who also had several other entries. This prize was won under the technical classification of "young fish bred in 1919."

WINNER OF FIRST PRIZE.

Among the paradise fish, the question of women's rights was settled long ago—in the woman's favor, of course. Mrs. Paradise Fish gets her way. She may go to the moving-picture show all the time as far as her housekeeping duties are concerned, for the male paradise fish seems to do most of the work. He makes the "bubble nest" on top of the water and guards the eggs there until they are hatched.

A few days later, when the fry slowly get out of the nest, the female fish eats them unless she is put off in a separate tank. Accordingly, the attendants remove her and the male is left alone to act as nursemaid. This fish is dark gray, with a cinnabar stripe running vertically around the body and a flaunting Indian red tail, tipped with blue, giving the effect of a sweeping fringe.

The Siamese fighting fish also makes a bubble nest, and, as with the paradise fish, the male guards it and takes care of the young. The Siamese fighting fish is a dark indigo blue, so dark that it looks like a velvety black, and it has a little red on its tail. It is a much smaller fish than the paradise.

CLIMBING PERCH.

The climbing perch of India, scientifically known as Aanabas scandens, demonstrated ingenuity at the exhibit. When the pool he happened to occupy got too shallow he spread his gill covers and scrambled along the ground to the next pool. Spectators who were inclined to take account of this performance with a grain of salt were shown. The attendant took one of the largest ones out and put him on the floor, where his jerky progress demonstrated his ability. This faculty of climbing gave the fish its name. It can travel some distance in this manner. The fish is a slaty color, with lighter and darker spots.

A larger, prettier fish rejoices in the name Hemichromis bimaculatus. It is a sooty gray in color, with a turquoise-like hue. It comes from Africa, and is two to three inches long.

From Brazil there were the conchitos, with black and yellow stripes and with elaborate black fins.

There was also an African butterfly fish, heralded as the only specimen in this country. It is a mottled silver with a stripe or two across its face, all calculated to make it invisible when in its native habitat and an effective camouflage in shallow water. With its resemblance in color to pebbles, the very light spots seemed like sun flicks and the streaks across its nose appeared to be shadows cast by reeds and water plants. This fish takes its name from its graceful fins, with which it can skip along over the surface of the water in search of its food, which consists largely of insects.

CENSUS OF FLIES TAKEN IN BERKELEY.

Lest there be some one in this city who may think he or she is not getting a fair quota of flies this summer, Wells Drury, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, has determined, after exhaustive research, that every man, woman, and child is entitled to one and one-half flies each. Drury arrived at the decision following a fly census. He found 101,217 able bodied hale and hearty flies of summer age. The census was made on the basis of an announcement from University entomologists that a fly never travels more than 500 yards from its birthplace.

Comparing fly statistics of today with those of ten years ago, Drury has discovered that the flies are losing the battle, there being fewer at the present time. This he attributes to "swat the fly" campaigns and high living costs which cause people to be stingy with their garbage. —[Oakland Enquirer.]

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS—
WARTS AND MOLES.

Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles, without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 360 hairs an hour. I have had 19 years' experience and devote all my time to the work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. A. satisfied customers will testify to my skill as an expert.

MRS. F. A. SCOTT,
Suite 407 Bumiller Bldg.,
430 S. Broadway.

SUPERFLOUOUS HAIR—

HUMILIATING AND UNSIGHTLY.

There is only one method known today of permanently removing superfluous hair, and that is Electrolysis (electric needle.) This process in the hands of a reliable and expert operator insures absolute satisfaction. I stand back of my work and guarantee any hair treated by me will be permanently destroyed, leaving no scars.

MR. OWNER AND MR. RENTER—were in the smoker the other morning discussing the H. C. L. in dead earnest. Mr. Owner enjoyed his smoke thoroughly, while his partner sat in a deep study.

"John," he said, "I have to move and can't find a place."

The answer came slowly and as true good advice. "Ted, my boy, do you know the man that builds his own home has many advantages, he has the comforts just as he wants them. He commands the highest respect from his fellow men. His merchants are glad to give him their very best service, and if sickness comes in the family he can always borrow enough money to tide him over, so you might say that it gives him insurance, assurance, as well as better efficiency thereby enabling him to attain success and make more money. I am going to build some rent houses because they are a good investment so you can come with me and we will be well satisfied at

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM URGES RATIFICATION.

MASSACHUSETTS G.O.P. WANTS TREATY SIGNED WITHOUT AMENDMENTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—Prompt ratification of the treaty of peace without amendments, but with "unequivocal and effective reservations," was favored in the platform adopted at the Republican State convention today.

The reservations include such "unequivocal and effective reservations" as will make clear the unconditional right of the United States to withdraw from the league upon due notice; as will provide that the United States shall assume no obligation to employ American soldiers or sailors unless Congress shall so direct; as will make it clear that no domestic questions, such as the tariff and immigration, will be taken from the control of the United States, and that the United States shall be sole judge as to the interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine." The Shantung provision of the treaty also was denounced.

Inability of the Committee on Resolutions of the Democratic State convention to agree on its attitude toward the League of Nations caused delay in opening the convention this afternoon.

Only a small number of the delegates elected were present, and there was little interest in questions other than that of the League of Nations.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Without the quiver of an eyelash Judge Landis pronounced the death sentence in the Federal District Court yesterday.

There was stern gravity in the judge's voice as he concluded the decree by directing John P. Bradley, United States Marshal, to carry out the edict of the court. And there was no kindly addendum like "May God have mercy on your soul" to mingle humane feeling with the inexorable working of justice.

Wherefore, today thirty barrels and a dozen cases of beer that were born in defiance of law and order, grugled down the sewers into Lake Michigan and ended their joyless career.

The bottles were held by the neck downward until empty. A comparatively painless dissolution. But the unfortunate barrels, more culpable offenders because they hold more—succumbed to crashes of the headman's bung starter.

A large assembly of mourners was present.

The condemned receptacles were found guilty of containing from 2.50 to 2.99 per cent. of alcohol beverage in violation of the Federal statute fixing the limit of alcoholic content at one half of one per cent.

TACOMA, Oct. 4.—The Martin bombing plane which Lieut.-Col. R. S. Hartz is conducting on a 12,000-mile trip around the rim of the United States will remain at Camp Lewis until Monday or Tuesday before continuing its journey. The plane reached Camp Lewis today after landing near there last evening.

Railroads Employing Fewer Women.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The number of women employed by railroads in heavy work while the war was on is being reduced steadily, Director-General Hines announced. Women employed July 1 were 4.9 per cent. fewer than on April 1, but those working in roundhouses had been reduced 23.6 per cent. and in shop work 18 per cent.

The total number of women working on railroads July 1 was 82,294, most of them in clerical positions.

PRODUCTION IN TEXAS AT PEAK.

Daily Oil Output Amounts to Quarter Million Barrels.

Producing Areas Widen and Improvements Permanent.

Lease Values Hold up; Money Plentiful with All.

BY W. D. HORNADAY.

[STAFF CORRESPONDENCE.]

AUSTIN (Tex.) Oct. 1.—It may be another month before the peak of production of the Central West Texas oil fields that was reached the third week in September is again attained. The high record mark was 254,500 barrels. Combination of conditions caused a sudden drop of this daily output, and at the beginning of October the daily average was only 232,000 barrels. One of the factors that contributed to the falling off of production was the decline of a number of the older wells. The shortage of storage and transportation facilities also served to hamper development operations, particularly in the Burkburnett and Desdemona fields. Many wells are down to the pay sand, but their bringing in is deferred, pending an improvement of conditions for handling the product. Some of the operators are exercising caution in the matter of developing production because of the steel strike and the fear that it may be some time before the orders for tankage material and pipe can be filled.

PRODUCING AREAS WIDEN.

What is regarded by oil men as the most significant feature of operations in the Central West Texas fields is the gradual widening of the producing areas. It is the expressed belief on all sides that the proved territory may continue to be enlarged for several years to come. That the large oil companies and other industrial interests are conducting their operations on the theory that the production will continue for many years to come is shown by the heavy investments which they are making in improvements that are intended to be more or less of a permanent nature.

Besides the pipe lines and storage tanks, large supply depots, terminals, refineries, railroad lines and other adjuncts to the production and handling of oil are being built throughout the district. It is asserted that even should the widespread wild-catting which is now in progress in practically every county in Texas result in no new fields being discovered the territory already proved should insure a supply of crude petroleum of an average daily quantity of not less than 250,000 barrels for a long time to come.

LEASE VALUES HOLD UP.

The percentage of dry holes in the Burkburnett, Ranger, Desdemona and other fields continues unusually small. The famous Northwest pool of the Burkburnett field was widened considerably only a few days ago by the bringing in of an outside well. The intervening territory will be developed as rapidly as rigs can be installed. Lease values in the vicinity of the new well took an enormous jump, resulting in creating over night a new crop of millionaires. In this connection it may be noted that the market for leases all over the State is holding up remarkably well. Even as far distant as 300 miles from any producing well oil rights are selling for 50 cents to $10 an acre. This demand for leases is due chiefly to the excitement over the possibility of finding oil anywhere in Texas.

Millions of dollars are being invested in oil land leases in this State by people of other parts of the country, many of whom have no idea in the world where the leases that they are buying are situated or how large in area Texas is. As long as this outside money continues to flow into Texas in a golden stream, so long will lease values in wild-cat territory hold up, it is pointed out. Of course, the high prices of $10,000 to $25,000 an acre that are being paid for leases in the proved fields of Burkburnett, Ranger and Desdemona are based on actual values, but it is in the faraway localities that the investments take on a wholly speculative tinge.

MONEY IS PLENTIFUL.

It is figured by oil statisticians that the value of the daily crude production of the Central West Texas fields is now close around one-half million dollars a day or at the rate of nearly $200,000,000 a year. The point has been reached when the value of production is much in excess of the amount spent in drilling wells and paid-for leases. One thing is certain, nowhere in the United States is money more plentiful than in Wichita Falls, Burkburnett, Ranger, Desdemona, Newcastle and the more removed cities of Fort Worth and Dallas.

Even negro bootblacks wear $15 silk shirts while plying their trade. The laboring man is literally rolling in money. Every device imaginable is employed by the crafty class of human parasites, who have drifted into the oil fields to obtain as much of the "earned increment" of the labor element as possible, and, it is said that the latter parts with its money with a readiness and willingness that makes the hearts of the mountebanks beat with gladness.

What little fear may have been engendered recently by the appearance of salt water in some of the outlying wells of the Ranger and Desdemona fields seems to have disappeared. It is now asserted that this water did not come from below as was originally supposed, but is from above. The problem is being met with successfully and while the water may continue to give trouble in some of the wells, it is thought it will not interfere seriously with production.

TENT TOWNS RIVALS.

With the recent opening of the townsite of Jakehamon, situated five miles from Desdemona, competition of the keenest kind between the two communities was begun. Jakehamon bounded into being in one day with a population of several hundred people, all living in tents, and with growing pains which indicate that it may become a rival of Desdemona in size before many months have passed. Jakehamon is on the line of a new railroad that is being constructed through the oil-producing region. Although Desdemona is off at one side of the railroad it is aroused over the possibility of having its honors as an oil metropolis being divided by a new town only five miles away. Its citizens subscribed a fund of $200,000, which is offered for a railroad outlet.

In several respects Desdemona is the most picturesque town in the entire oil district. It now has a population of probably 15,000 people, most of whom are living in tents. Every considerable kind of business, almost, is conducted there. People from the four winds comprise the population, and all are intent on making as much money as possible in the quickest possible time. From the standpoint of oil production, the Desdemona field exceeds all other proved areas in possibilities of increasing its output. Hardly a week passes that the producing territory is not widened considerably by the bringing in of new wells.

The heart of the Desdemona pool is more than one mile square—"golden mile" it is called by some. How many more square miles may be ultimately added to the producing district, only time will tell. Only a few days ago the proved area of the Desdemona pool was extended to the west three and one-half miles by the Tagnolia Petroleum Company bringing in a well of small production at the top of the sand, but with indications that it would be a large producer when drilled deeper. The company owns 1000 acres of leases in the vicinity of the new well.

In several of the counties adjoining Eastland, Stephens and Wichita, where the principal fields are found, disappointment is felt over the failure to bring in producers in some of the deep tests that have been drilled. In some of these wells, however, small quantities of oil were found and this has stimulated further prospecting which may result in better success. In Brown county, where a shallow field has been producing considerable quantities of oil for the last two years the prospecting for possible deeper pay sands still continues. Explorations of a similar nature are being conducted in Coleman, McCulloch, Lampasas and other counties that are situated within the scope of territory that was favorably passed upon by geologists as oil-bearing.

In the San Antonio field the average daily production of the several pumping wells is now more than 500 barrels. All these wells are of shallow depth, but deep test holes are being drilled by several companies. According to advices received from the lower Rio Grande border region the production of the shallow field in Starr and Zapata counties is being gradually increased by the drilling of additional wells. Several deep test holes are under way in the vicinity of Cuevitas and in other parts of the two counties. Plans are on foot by a syndicate of Kansas City and Des Moines (Iowa) men to drill five deep test wells in Starr county. They have obtained leases on several thousand acres of land with this obect in view.

MAIL CHARGE MADE.

Former Shipyard Worker Accustd of Writing Obscene Letters.

Ralph J. Schmitt, a guard at the Los Angeles shipyards, was taken into custody yesterday by Deputy United States Marshal Bassett on a bench warrant following his indictment by the Federal grand jury on the charge of sending obscene letters through the mails. His bond was fixed at $1500, which he was unable to furnish.

Postoffice Inspector Cookson, who has charge of the case, says that Schmitt was discharged from his employment as foreman of the upholstery shops of the Pacific Electric Railway because he was under suspicion in regard to his pro-German sentiments.

He brooded over his troubles and blamed Supt. W. F. Small and Asst. Supt. A. A. Wingler for the loss of his place, and wote letters to them, it is charged. Some of them were addressed to Mrs. Small.

GIFT OF RARE BOOKS IS MADE TO SOCIETY.

The Society, Sons of the Revolution, has recently been presented with nearly fifty volumes of history and genealogy by Capt. Joseph Davis of Hollywood. Capt. Davis some years ago placed nearly 300 volumes with this society, some of them being of great value and exceedingly rare. Among these works was a copy of the "Pioneers of Missouri," one of only five known copies.

The present gift includes a copy of "The History of South Carolina," by Simms, a volume impossible to purchase anywhere and for which a large number of standing orders have been in the hands of book dealers for years. Many other valuable records are included as well.

BODY CREMATED.

Services Held Here for Carl Anderson, Mining Engineer.

The body of Carl Anderson, 48 years old, a mining engineer, was cremated yesterday at the Rosedale Crematory. Rev. J. M. Schaefle, pastor of the Pico Heights Church, conducted the service. Mr. Anderson died at his home, 517 South Flower street, early Wednesday morning. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Minnie M. Anderson.

Mr. Anderson was a native of Denmark, and came to this country when a young man, becoming interested in the mining industry. He came here eighteen years ago from Colorado and had since spent most of his time in Los Angeles. He was well known among mining men for his interest in the perfection of the cyanide system of treating ores.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BUDAPEST, Friday, Oct. 3.—The city has sudenly become placarded with large posters summoning the people, regardless of race or creed, to rally to the monarchy and demanding an immediate meeting of the national assembly for the purpose of bringing about a monarchy.

OAKS AND BEES IN DOUBLE HEADER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—Oakland took today's double-header from Salt Lake, 4 to 1 and 9 to 4. The opening contest was a pitcher's battle between Gearin and Dale, in which the Oaks managed to bunch their hits. The second game was a farce, Salt Lake making fourteen hits, but being unable to get them when men were on bases. Crespi was wild and Oakland got five runs in the first inning on two hits, three walks and three errors. The scores:

FRENCH WANT TREATY MADE MORE SEVERE.

DEPUTY LEFEVRE DECLARES GERMAN DISARMAMENT IS NOT EFFECTIVE.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Friday, Oct. 3.—Deputy Andre Lefevre's motion asking the government to open negotiations to have a rider added to the Versailles treaty, which would render the disarmament of Germany effective, was discussed in the Chamber of Deputies today. M. Lefevre cited a statement by Gen. Von der Goltz, the German commander, whose men are yet under arms, making trouble in the Baltic provinces, and expressed his regret that Germany was not disarmed at the moment of the armistice.

M. Franklin-Bouillon interrupted him by saying "I have not heard it from Gen. Bliss himself, but I have certain information that this general, who represented America at Versailles, proposed on October 28, 1918, that the German army should be disarmed before it entered Germany. Why was not this proposition accepted? Why was the German army allowed to return home with flags flying?"

FLEETS A BARRIER.

Marcel Cachin suggested general disarmament, pointing out President Wilson's "fourteen points," and declared the maintenance of the British fleet, "which entails a great American fleet," was an obstacle to disarmament.

M. Lefevre finally withdrew his motion in favor of one "inviting the government to reach an understanding with the Allied and associated powers with a view to the execution of measures rendering the disarmament of Germany and her allies effective by the interdiction of certain manufactures of war and other necessary measures." This was adopted unanimously.

POWER FOR WILSON.

M. Renaudel and Albert Thomas moved an amendment which would insert after the word "powers" in the foregoing resolution the words: "In agreement with President Wilson, who should convoke a conference under the provisions of the covenant of the League of Nations." Premier Clemenceau remarked that this was merely a modification in form, as President Wilson should convoke a meeting of the League of Nations even if the United States did not ratify the treaty.

OPEN DIPLOMACY HAS ARRIVED, SAYS HARA.

JAPANESE PREMIER WARNS OLD SCHOOL DIPLOMATS OF NEW ORDER OF THINGS.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TOKIO, Saturday, Sept. 27.—"The day of Machiavellian diplomacy is past and a new era of open diplomacy is arrived, with international affairs managed by co-operation of the powers, whether old-school diplomats of Japan like it or not," declared Premier Hara today at a luncheon given in honor of Baron Makino, former Minister of Foreign Affairs and one of Japan's delegates to the Peace Conference. In view of the struggle going on between the militarists and liberals of Japan, considerable interest has been aroused by the Premier's words.

M. Hara praised Baron Makino and his colleagues for obtaining approval of all Japanese contentions except that relative to equality of races, adding:

"The fact that some misunderstandings existed in foreign countries concerning the real intention of Japan made the task of the Japanese delegates more severe."

The Premier said the new postwar era means that "militarism has been absolutely discarded and that the powers will work conjointly for world peace."

M. Hara expressed the belief that the treaty of peace with Germany would be ratified by the powers at no distant date, although he thought it probable the operation of the treaty would bring up new problems which would require the exercise of care and consideration.

In replying, Baron Makino said Japan must "fall in with the new order of things if she wished to maintain her position as one of the five great powers."

UNION LEADERS ADMIT DEFEAT AT BETHLEHEM

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

BETHLEHEM (Pa.) Oct. 4.—Union labor leaders today reduced the estimate of employees of the Bethlehem Steel Company affected by the strike from 85 per cent. to 75 per cent., but announced they were well satisfied with the situation. Company officials maintain all shops are working with virtually 100 per cent. production.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—More steel strikers returned to work in the Chicago district today, but most of them were laborers and the number was not so large as on a few previous days. The force of union pickets was materially increased at several points, but no disturbances were reported.

At Indiana Harbor, Ind., and in the South Chicago districts hundreds of special police and deputy sheriffs were sworn in.

At Gary, Ind., a surplus of laborers was reported in the Indiana Steel Company's plant, with a great scarcity of skilled workmen. As a result it was said that while the force equalled 50 per cent. of normal, the production did not exceed 25 per cent. of capacity. The American Sheet and Tin Plate Company plant was said to have 75 per cent. of its normal force and to be operating at about 50 per cent. of capacity. At Gary it was said several hundred skilled workmen had gone to work as section hands at 40 cents an hour. They formerly earned $10 or more a day in the steel mills.

At Indiana Harbor, Ind., additional strikers were reported to have returned to work at plants of the Inland Steel Company and the Mark Manufacturing Company. Both are said to be running at about 50 per cent. capacity.

FIGHT ABANDONMENT OF WHIPPLE HOSPITAL.

PRESCOTT BUSINESS MEN WANT ARMY TO MAINTAIN TUBERCULAR POST.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) Oct. 3.—That General Hospital No. 20 at Whipple Barracks has been an expensive addition to the war equipment is indicated by a report that it costs the United States $400 per month for each of the 400 tubercular inmates of the hospital. In this there is no computation of interest on the investment or of past cost. The old buildings at the post are understood to have cost about $1,000,000 and the new buildings of the general hospital $2,000,000 more. Yet, there is all indication that this enormous investment is to be abandoned for army use, and the twenty-two officers, forty nurses and a battalion of consumptive patients are to be distributed among hospitals in Colorado and North Carolina. Naturally such action would be to the serious loss of the business men of Prescott, who are doing all they can to block it.

In a military way the post was abandoned about the time of the first Mexican disturbance, when the last company of infantry was ordered to the border. Back in Spanish-war time there was also a period of abandonment, followed by one of construction. Still further back, the post was headquarters for the military department of Arizona, established as such in 1863, at the time when a government was established in the new Territory of Arizona.

JOHNSON DENOUNCED BY FORMER FRIENDS.

RIVERSIDE REPUBLICANS SEND A LETTER DISAPPROVING HIS LEAGUE STAND.

Dr. Francis B. Kellogg, who was a Johnson supporter, yesterday sent an open letter to the Senator expressing his disapproval of his course in attacking the covenant.

"The League of Nations," Dr. Kellogg says, "is the hope of the world. Moreover, I can find but few of your former supporters who do not agree with me."

Judge Harlan G. Palmer, who was president of the Young Men's Johnson for Senator Club, gave out a statement yesterday declaring that Senator Johnson "has been weighed in the balance and founding wanting," and further asserting that the straw votes taken in Southern California "give absolute evidence that he is a misrepresentative of the people who placed him in office."

The following petition from prominent Republicans of Riverside city and county has been forwarded to Senator Johnson:

"We, the undersigned, Republicans of Riverside city and county do not approve of the stand taken by you on the League of Nations. We are strongly for the League of Nations."

It was signed by the following: Frank P. Wilson, Sheriff; Miguel Estredith, City Attorney; Jerome L. Richardson, police judge; Carl J. Carlson, Chief of Police; Henry L. Graham, merchant; Mr. Ben. O. BUDGET URGED TO COMMITTEE.

Taft and Glass for Responsibility in Finances.

Former President Points Advantages of System.

Would Require Cabinet Members Before Congress.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—William H. Taft, former President, today urged on the House Budget Committee a Federal budget system that will put responsibility for the government's financial affairs on the President and that will give him the necessary money to execute properly his duties under this responsibility.

Secretary of the Treasury Glass also urged adoption of the budget system for the handling of government finances. He declared that the business of the government is being run at a loss and that he was unwilling to go before the people of the country and ask them to subscribe to another issue of government securities in order to tide the nation over a financial crisis. Secretary Glass made a strong plea for the adoption by Congress of a Federal budget system.

"The burden of the issues of bonds already out must be met by us today," said the Secretary. "We cannot pass the burden of meeting the obligations out of future generations."

MUST PAY FOR SPENDING.

"There can be no spending by the government," he added, "but what must be paid, and it must be paid out of the pockets of the people. The burden falls more heavily on the poor of the country than on the well-to-do and more heavily, in turn, on the well-to-do than it does on the rich."

Governmental extravagance, the Secretary said, is costing the United States huge sums of money annually.

Secretary Glass also entered a plea against providing an additional bonus to those who served during the world war on the ground that the government could not afford to levy additional taxes upon the people of the country to provide for it. "I do not believe," he said, "that the splendid, brave, courageous young men who fought for their country want a donation from the government. They were paid liberally in comparison with the soldiers of other countries."

WOULD ENLARGE DUTIES.

Recommending that the budget bureau proposed for the government be placed in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary Glass said the office of the Secretary of the Treasury should be made something more than an institution through which the government found the way to meet the expenditures which Congress makes with a "lavish hand."

"While I do not anticipate a deficit," he said, "more than a billion dollars which will be covered by the payment of outstanding victory note issues at the close of this fiscal year, I do insist that Congress must exercise self-control in expenditures."

Immediately following the close of Mr. Glass's testimony Chairman Good announced that Monday the Budget Committee would begin framing its bill and it would be placed before the House for consideration next Friday.

Practically every witness appearing before the committee has urged the adoption of the budget system and has recommended that the President be authorized to prepare the budget annually. It is probable the bill to be framed will take this form, and that a Congressional control committee will be authorized to dissect the budget as it is presented.

Among the suggestions made by Mr. Taft was that there should be a provision in law requiring Cabinet members to come before the House and Senate to justify the estimates of expenditures for the fiscal year covered in the budget and applying to their respective departments.

"I believe a budget ought to be prepared by that branch of the government which is charged with the duty of carrying it on in an executive way," said the former President. "The executive branch is the one most familiar with the actual machinery of government and, therefore, best able to tell how much money is needed to keep that machinery going.

"The presentation of a budget by the President will put him on record, will make him responsible and will require him to justify himself before the people. It will put him on record with reference to the kind of taxation that he urges, in order to meet the requirements of his budget. The President would have the opportunity to present his budget in a speech before Congress, but in the nature of things his would be general and comprehensive, but not detailed as the discussions in Congress necessarily would be."

The young lady across the way says she is glad to believe that women will soon have the vote everywhere and she certainly sees no reason why our government should be purely maniacal.

WAR LOOMS OVER FIUME.

Italy and Jugo-Slavia Mass Troops Along Frontier; D'Annunzio Sits Tight.

BY JOHN H. CLAYTON.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FIUME, Oct. 4.—Every day that D'Annunzio remains in Fiume brings Italy and Jugoslavia nearer the probability of war.

While both nations officially declare a desire for an amicable settlement of the question of Fiume, neither is leaving anything to chance.

Both the Italians and the Serbs are massing large bodies of troops along the frontiers.

Three days ago I counted two brigades of field artillery from Trieste and one brigade of six-inch howitzers from Abbazia proceeding to the frontier in the vicinity of San Fielro. Troops and supplies are constantly being sent from Trieste toward the Croat and Slovene borders. Italy does not intend to be caught napping.

Perhaps the most ominous of all signs are the closing of the frontier and the remobilization of Serbian classes of 1880 to 1896, bringing back into the field practically the entire Serbian army. These men, from the ages of 24 to 39, recalled after a brief period of demobilization, will be held as reserves to the younger men now being sent toward Italy.

It isn't to be conceived that a warlike nation such as the Serbs will sit quietly by and let Italy take by might what the Peace Conference refused. The feeling is general in Serbia that war with Italy is inevitable and most of the military leaders believe it would be better to strike now than any other time.

I have talked with several British, French and American officers of rank and all declare the Jugo-Slavs have a better army at this moment than when the European war began in 1914. Among the Serbs themselves there is nothing but confidence. They will go into the struggle, if it comes, with confidence in their ability to defend their rights. They are as deeply convinced as the Italians that Fiume is their property. They have also every assurance of the support of the United States, which their leaders declare in official proclamation has been assured them by the President, even if armed intervention is necessary.

MARCONI WON'T COME.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Oct. 4.—It become known in Paris today that Signor Marconi has withdrawn as the head of the Italian mission to accompany the Allied mission sailing from Brest on Monday for the United States. The official explanation is "illness."

It is known among his friends in Paris, however, that Marconi has felt much embarrassed because of the present strained relations between Italy and the United States over Fiume. He is understood to have expressed the fear that if he obtained a big personal reception from friends in America it would embarrass the administration whose guest he would be.

On the other hand, his loyalty to Italy and the constant incentive to present the Italian viewpoint on Fiume would be equally embarrassing considering the object of the trip, which is to foster new financial and commercial relations between the two nations, consequently the plea of illness.

FIUME BLOCKADE LIFTED.

ROME, Oct. 3.—Orders that the blockade of Fiume be lifted have been issued by the government, according to the Epoca. The military blockade, against soldiers and civilians entering the city, is all that is now being enforced. The decision was taken after the government had discussed a protest from the Fiume national council.

The steamer Prince Hohenlohe, with a cargo of foodstuffs consigned to Pola, has altered its course and is heading for Fiume, according to the newspaper El Tempo.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Dr. Milenko R. Vesnitch, Premier of Jugo-Slavia, says the report of the mobilization of the Jugo-Slav army is without foundation, Belgrade dispatches report. "Our cause is so just we can defend it without mobilizing one class," he is reported as saying. "The rights, dignity and honor of the great powers are at stake."

CONFER ON BRITISH STRIKE

Committee Meets Bonar Law, Arranges Conference with the Premier.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—There was at least a slight rift in the strike storm clouds tonight. The country today has reconciled itself to the belief that there was an irreconcilable break between the government and the unions in consequence of the absolute failure of yesterday's conference between the Cabinet and the trade union Conciliation Committee in an effort to reach a basis whereby negotiations with the railway workers could be reopened.

Two unheralded events tonight gave rise to a more optimistic feeling in both government and labor circles regarding the possibilities of a settlement. Briefly, the conciliation committee again unexpectedly visited Downing street and, after a conference with Andrew Bonar Law, repaired immediately to the executive of the National Union of Railway Men. At a late hour it was announced that James H. Thomas, secretary of the union, and the railway delegates would see Premier Lloyd George tomorrow, after having absented themselves from the mediation councils for several days.

VISIT UNEXPECTED.

The visit of the conciliation committee to Downing street had not been looked for. The delegates were closeted with Mr. Bonar Law for more than an hour, at the end of which time it was announced that the interview had been adjourned until tomorrow.

The nature of the conference was not divulged, but the newspapermen waiting outside the Premier's residence noted that the members of the committee seemed more cheerful when they left. Apparently progress was made by Mr. Bonar Law and the committee, as the visit of the railway delegates tomorrow would seem to be dependent upon some new angle, which has arisen.

After the meeting between the railwaymen's executive and the conciliation committee, Arthur Henderson admitted to the reporters that the committee had come from Downing street to report progress to the union. Mr. Thomas himself announced that he and the railway delegates would see the Premier tomorrow forenoon. Pressed for a further statement regarding the likelihood of a settlement, Mr Thomas simply said: "You must wait."

SERVICE IMPROVED.

In the meantime some improvement in railroad service is reported.

In an article contributed to the Daily News today refuting an accusation that he is animated by personal ambitions, James Henry Thomas, secretary of the Railway Men's Union, declares that he thrice declined offers to become a member of the British Cabinet.

Mr. Thomas warns the country that if other trades unions join the strike it may result in a class struggle which "not all my counsels or moderating influence may avail to save the country from a violent and bloody revolution."

Pending the outcome of Tuesday's meeting of all trade unions in Great Britain the Executive Committee of the Vehicle Workers' Federation will not call a strike of bus, tram and taxi drivers.

MIDDLE WEST NEWS IN BRIEF.

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

WILL NOT SUPPRESS PAPERS OF SIBERIA.

OBJECTIONABLE ONE SAYS THE GOVERNMENT DOES NOT KNOW SITUATION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—It was believed at the State Department today that Maj.-Gen. Graves, commander of American forces in Siberia, would not attempt to execute his threat to suppress Russian newspapers in Vladivostok which have published scurrilous attacks on the United States. The matter, it was hinted, has already received diplomatic attention.

There was obtained here today the text of an article appearing in the Vladivostok "Goles Primori" (Moderate Liberal,) which assails America's policy towards Siberia. The paper says, in part:

"After a year of intervention in Siberia, Washington does not understand the trend of events going on now in Siberia.

GUARDING RAILROAD.

"We read that the American troops' aim is to guard the Siberian line from partisan bands which have no leaders and which have no connection with any of the existing authorities. Their leaders are only temporarily and nominally loyal to this or other authority.

"It seems that if these gangs of anarchists, robbers and murderers would have been in the ranks of his majesty Lenine, the American troops would not have interfered in the 'internal' Russian affairs.

"It is remarkable that the American government in all its official statements usually speaks of 'the peoples of Siberia.' It underlines that it does not recognize 'the peoples of Russia' but of Siberia, Ukraine, Don and Crimea, Caucasus, etc.

WOULD DIVIDE RUSSIA.

"'The Siberians,' says the American government, 'have lent a helping hand to the Russian armies during the three and a half years of war with the central empires and now they look for economic help from the Allies and America. Admiral Kolchak's troops and the population of Western Siberia also depend upon America.' We see that the Americans don't think of such problems as of one united and indivisible Russian state.

"The American government only mentions Admiral Kolchak's armies when speaking of the negotiations carried on for the purchase by the American Secretary of War of drugs, and other goods necessary for the Red Cross. In short, the American government is fixing upon a separate Siberian state and a separate Siberian people, while it has no power and no right to do so. We understand perfectly well this policy of Washington. It is a policy of a trial to divide and to dismember Russia into a series of provinces, a policy which American official circles carry on with exceptional calm and stubbornness."

Damage to store and residence was estimated at $10,000 each.

AUTOMOBILE HIT BY RACING FIRE ENGINE.

AUTOISTS GRAZE DEATH WHEN ENGINE STALLS AT STREET CROSSING.

Stalled in the path of a thundering fire engine on its way to a fire at the plant of the Western Lithograph Company on East Second street, an automobile driven by E. A. Anderson of 1001 Dawson avenue, Long Beach, was hurled twenty feet and partly demolished at First and Broadway late last night. Mr. Anderson and the three passengers in his car escaped injury.

The fire engine, in charge of Driver R. O. Ewing, and drawn by three horses, was speeding east on First street after rounding the corner of Hill street, when Anderson's car came into view. The automobile reached the center of the intersection and its engine stalled, with the horses and the engine only a short distance away.

Clinging to his seat, Driver Ewing made a desperate effort to avert the collision, but succeeded only in swerving the horses. The rear end of the fire engine, turning on two wheels, struck the standing automobile, turning it around and hurling it on the sidewalk, where it hit against the heavy iron pedestal for the new lighting standard now being installed on the corner.

Hundreds of persons witnessed the accident.

No damage was done by the fire.

HAS FAITH IN THIRD TRIAL FOR DIVORCE.

AFTER TWO SEPARATIONS AND COURT ACTIONS HUSBAND MAKES ANOTHER TRY.

Franklin L. Cline got in Judge Taft's court yesterday after he and his wife, Ethel L. Cline, had twice separated and there had been two divorce suits. One of the former suits was dismissed and a decree in the other denied. Mr. Cline sued this time on the ground of desertion. The case was taken under submission by the court.

Mr. Cline told the court he was at his office when he was told his wife was packing up the furniture and moving out.

"I immediately left for home and found the report was correct," he said. They separated, he said, because he objected to his wife associating with a particular woman friend. After a separation in 1916, they became reconciled. There was another parting in 1917.

Mrs. Cline, who was in the courtroom, was called as a witness, although her default had been entered. She admitted her husband had objected just before their final separation because she was out late to a picture show and also objected to the person who was with her. The next day she packed up and left.

SAY SHELL RETURNED, BUT OYSTER IS KEPT.

CHINESE WELFARE SOCIETY IN STATEMENT OPPOSES SHANTUNG AWARD IN TREATY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—That Japan returns to China the shell, but retains the oyster under the present Shantung award is the view expressed in a statement sent to the United States Senate tonight by the Chinese National Welfare Society, said to represent 10,000 Chinese in America.

"She obtains by the treaty sovereign rights, possession," the statement said, whereas Germany only had leased rights. Japan declares she will restore the leased territory to China, but she does not promise to restore the railways and mines; she promises to give up the lease only on condition that she may have a permanent possession there under her exclusive control. In exchange for the return of the lease that has seventy-eight years to run, she obtains a permanent concession at the port of Tsing Tau, thus getting a stronger position there than that held by Germany."

Regarding power of the League of Nations to protect China from losing Shantung, the statement continued, Japan's one vote in the council would prevent a unanimous vote.

"What we most earnestly desire is that the Senate shall not underwrite what the Senate — even the whole Congress and the President himself, regarded as the most unjust award of the entire peace treaty. China wants the United States to refuse to acknowledge that award in the peace treaty, the statement added.

RAIL DELEGATIONS ARE YET UNDECIDED.

ALL OTHER ARRANGEMENTS ARE COMPLETE FOR OPEN INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Arrangements for the opening Monday of the industrial and labor conference called by President Wilson, virtually were complete tonight, with only the question of whether the railroad unions would send delegates unsettled.

With the transportation workers unrepresented many officials think the value of the conference reduced because of the tremendous part played by the rail men in the economic life of the country. There is no question, however, but that the deliberations will begin Monday afternoon in the Hall of Nations at the Pan-American Union Building as planned.

Timothy Shea of the firemen's brotherhood, the only executive of the four big brothers now in Washington, said the railroad unions were acting together and that no decision had been reached as to whether they would send delegates. It was intimated that there was serious doubt as to the railroad unions participating because their suggested change in the representation of organized labor had not been accepted.

The compromise proposal submitted by the Railroad Administration after conference with President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and Secretary of Labor Wilson, would give the four big brotherhoods one representative each in the conference, leaving the other railroad unions to be represented by the fourteen men named by the federation. In addition, B. M. Jewell, acting president of the railway employees' department of the federation, has been appointed a representative of the public in an endeavor to meet the opposition of the unions which he represents.

FOUR-SCORE PLANES WILL START IN RACE.

TRANSCONTINENTAL FLIGHT OF ARMY AVIATORS WILL BEGIN WEDNESDAY MORNING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MINEOLA (N. Y.) Oct. 4.—Four score airplanes will participate in the transcontinental air race to be started Wednesday under the direction of the American army air service, it was announced today. An incomplete list of entries shows that seventy-two machines already have been entered, fifty-seven of which will start from Mineola and fifteen from San Francisco. The race, which is limited to military aviators, is held chiefly to test the reliability of various types of planes and to stimulate interest and recruiting in the air service.

The contestants from this end will start promptly at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. Maj. M. F. Davis, in a Martin bombing machine, will be the first aviator to get away and the others will follow at two-minute intervals. The race will be a one-way affair, but a number of machines are expected to make the round trip. In addition to the terminal stations there will be twenty intermediate stops. Binghamton, N. Y., will be the first stop of the westbound flyers.

There are eight types of machines entered in the contest, all of which are capable of attaining a speed of exceeding 100 miles an hour. In addition to the American aviators there are two foreign contestants, Air Commodore L. O. O. Charlton, air attache of the British Embassy, and Capt. de la Vergne, air attache of the French Embassy.

SIBERIAN EMERGENCY MEN TO LEAVE SOON.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—In an autograph letter to Congressman Osborne, Secretary of War Baker today stated all emergency and selective service men would be out of Siberia before winter shuts in. Already up to September 15, according to cables from Gen. Graves, in command of the Siberian force, the number of emergency and selective service men in Siberia had been reduced to 2853, and with the soldiers who sailed from San Francisco to replace these men this number would be reduced to 1600. Secretary Baker said that replacement Regular troops had sailed from San Francisco for Siberia since June 1 as follows:

June 5, 9; July 5, 67; July 26, 690; August 15, 1270; September 12, 287; September 13, 992; total, 3315. Four thousand six hundred and seventy-two men to date have voluntarily enlisted for service in Siberia and the remainder will be sent over as soon as they can be equipped.

Secretary Baker explained the above method would get the California men back quicker than to send over complete Regular units to replace the whole number now on duty in Siberia as suggested by Congressman Osborne.

PUBLIC IS LEARNING EFFECT OF STRIKES.

RESERVE BOARD SHOWS COST OF LIVING LARGELY EFFECTED BY LABOR AGITATION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Growing consciousness on the part of the general public of the disastrous effect which labor agitation and strikes have on the cost of living was noted in the review of September conditions issued today by the Federal Reserve Board.

"Public opinion," the review said, "appears to be awakening to the reaction which increased wages and decreased output may have upon commodity prices and the vicious circle which may result."

From several Federal reserve districts it was reported also that there was "a growing realization on the part of workmen that their interests are bound up with the interests of the community as a whole and that increased efficiency resulting in greater productivity," was imperative.

While labor unrest assumed the predominant place in the industrial situation during September, nevertheless there was no interruption in the usual autumnal swell of business.

"The high retail prices prevailing," the review stated, "do not appear as yet to have a noticeable effect in checking consumption and the demand for higher grade products continues."

BAY CITY SHIPYARDS STRIKE DEADLOCKED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—The shipyard strike in the San Francisco bay district today had reached a deadlock. The employers insisted that they must "uphold the hands of the government" by holding any wage increase in abeyance until after the industrial conference called by President Wilson.

F. C. Miller, secretary of the Bay Cities Metal Trades Council, announced that eight more shops outside the shipyards had agreed to the union scale and that the men will return to work.

Little Farms In the Foothills $150. (No Extras.) Pay $3 and Start In

Last Sunday in the rain 15 families picked lots from this marvelous offering in the Tujunga-Sunland region. Over 80 families have bought in the last 12 days.

They are people who love the great outdoors and do not desire to maintain an extensive estate in the hills but want a "leetle cabane" for week ends with just enough ground to grow figs, avocado, oranges, apples, raisin and table grapes and other good things to eat and have a splendid place, in the soothing aroma of the mountain chaparral, to go to when they have a cold they cannot shake off down here in the ocean atmosphere.

These lots are 2000 feet above sea level. In a natural amphitheater of high mountains.

The lots are all level.

Tujunga is only 17 miles out.

Soft mountain water already piped.

Frostless and fogless.

Electricity already installed.

Paved boulevard all the way and good gravel roads.

Stores, schools and churches.

We give you free building stone and sand nearby. Get a trowel and a bag of cement and build a cabin of your own.

Using eucalyptus poles for rafters, palm leaves for thatched roofs, flat stone for porch floor, old photograph negatives for French glass doors and windows and local boulders and sand, a young man and his wife of Los Angeles have erected a rustic home that you couldn't duplicate for $2500 in the city. They saw some rustic bedsteads while away at Bear Valley this summer and now they are going down to a eucalyptus grove to get a few poles to make rustic bedsteads for their guest room.

This certainly is one good old world when you look up and think instead of looking down to kick.

As Chas. F. Lummis once wrote: "We have a glorious California but mighty few of us know how to play on it."

You are not living in Chicago now.

Arrange your life plan and enjoy it.

We want population to bring our region abreast with the older foothill settlements and here is your "how" to get the one biggest object of your heart's desire.

No city taxes, no extras.

Prices, $75.00 to $200.00; average, $150 for 40-ft. lots by 150, etc.

John Stevens McGroarty, author of the "Mission Play," says: "Yes tell them you sold me this dream place of mine and that they will not find your offer too good to be true but happily surprising."

Harry Carr, editor Times Sunday Magazine, says: "The place you sold me at Tujunga-Sunland is the one most happy acquisition of my life. I was only hoping for such a spot. I did not know it was so near."

Auto trips weekdays one P. M. A charge of $1 is made and then you incur no obligation to us.

Sunday visitors may reach Tujunga via the new State Highway, which runs between Pasadena and Sunland and San Fernando. Tujunga is four miles west of Montrose and Crescenta-Canada.

The public auto stage leaves Sixth and Los Angeles streets 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

FACT AND COMMENT.

While various schemes for combating present-day social unrest are offered by bankers, business men and others in several parts of the country, it is worthy of interest at this time that a considerable number of thinking people in Los Angeles agree that their own discomfort as well as discontent would soon pass into forgetfulness if only some solution of their problem of home ownership could be found—a thought, by the way, that deeply concerns an increasing number of people.

Property ownership represents an outstanding desire in the community just now, though it is evident from the communications reaching Fact and Comment, man that many persons anxious to proceed with homes of their own are not finding them easy to finance. They say that "small" money, unsupported by liberal banking credit, has much less potency than it had a year or two ago, a complaint being rather generally heard that a person with only $1000 or $1500 cash to put into a home finds it extremely difficult to interest a builder or private lender. When the same person seeks to purchase a home already built, either a new one or one several years old, he is asked to pay either all cash or a sum so large that it threatens to keep him indefinitely in the renting class.

The Chamber of Commerce, sensing a situation not healthy in a growing community, has recently appointed a special committee to tackle and if possible solve this very problem. It is hopeful of offering relief from this vexing situation by bringing together in conference the various business elements concerned in building, from the banker to the man who sells the material and the man who owns the lot, and from them gather views out of which may be evolved some plan of constructive benefit. Such a plan has undoubted merit and deserves unstinted support. No one questions that Los Angeles—as is so of every American community—needs more home owners and should any considerable number grow out of the sensible idea of co-operation inspired by the constructive forces of the Chamber of Commerce, there is no doubt that the prestige of that organization will be tremendously enhanced.

Still Going Ahead.

September building permits ran far ahead of those issued by the city building department in August, although there is still much to be desired about the building situation both in operations the volume the present demand seems to justify. The smaller operations, especially of home building, are moving forward energetically, a feeling prevailing that more of the larger class await an improved labor situation and adjustment of present strike troubles.

The city building department's report of the September operations shows that 1350 permits were issued with an estimated valuation of $2,-[illegible], as compared with 520 permits estimated at $724,091, for September, 1918. The largest single item in last month's permits was for frame homes, 322 with an estimated valuation of $770,881 being issued. It is noteworthy that this item alone exceeded the total estimated value of the building operations for the same month of last year. For nine months of the present year building operations aggregated $15,284,303, or almost double the valuation for the same period of 1918.

[illegible] to Art.

It has become clear to the City Council, the Chamber of Commerce and the City Planning Commission that early steps must be taken to relieve the traffic congestion in the downtown districts, or otherwise the business interests must be seriously jeopardized. This congestion problem has lately grown so troublesome as to arouse vigorous criticism of the city from within and without, and that it is a source of embarrassment to the present municipal administration is freely admitted at the City Hall.

Schemes without number have been advanced as offering a possible solution, ranging from proposals to "shaving" off the buildings on streets running east and west to eliminating street-car tracks. One engineer proposes that the pavement space at all downtown street corners be widened by requiring arcades to be built in abutting buildings. The cost of this, he believes, should be assessed against the city as a whole as affording a public benefit. Perhaps such a scheme, if seriously considered, would find considerable favor, but as time passes it is becoming evident that such municipal evils as traffic congestion and lack of suitable and architecturally attractive public buildings must in the end come through the adoption of a practical civic center plan. Public sentiment in favor of such treatment of the city's sorely-exposed and widely-advertised municipal deficiencies is rapidly crystallizing, a fact which may be accepted as a hopeful sign. It is felt that time for action is not far away.

Los Angeles still counts among its enlightened citizens men and women able to think clearly and in pace with its needs, although the blindness of others when confronted by the necessity of progressively constructive reasoning is indeed dispiriting to that element which earnestly desires to go ahead.

HOME BUILDING STILL IN LEAD.

Residences Going up Express Beauty of Design.

Several More Notable Places for West End.

Architects and Builders Vie in New Activity.

Home building continues to occupy the attention of Los Angeles' leading building firms, many of the residential construction jobs now going forward being homes notable for their attractive architectural design. Three new residences that are suggested by their builders as combining architectural merit with convenient floor arrangement are those being erected for Edgar S. Dulin on Plymouth boulevard, Windsor Square; for H. M. Pembroke on Manhattan place, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, and for Eric E. Nies at 1417 Kingsley drive.

The residence for Mr. Dulin is one of several notable homes now going up in the Windsor Square district of the West End. It is designed in the Italian Renaissance type of architecture, plans having been prepared by Meyer and Holler (Milwaukee Building Co.), who also have the building contract. The exterior walls will be of plaster and the roof of red tile. There will be ten rooms and four bathrooms and an attractive patio.

The Pembroke home was designed by Architect Ross Gordon Montgomery in the modified Colonial style of architecture. It will have eight rooms with bathrooms. The main living-room and breakfast-room will lead directly to an inclosed garden. Two attractive features of the home for Mr. Nies, who is assistant supervisor of agriculture for the Los Angeles schools, are the solarium opening off the large living-room and the treatment of the formal garden adjoining the house on the north. This house was designed by Harold Bowles in the picturesque Dutch Colonial style of architecture. It has seven rooms and large sleeping porch. The first story is of cream colored stucco, with red brick columns. The interior finish is mahogany, white and old ivory. The site, 100 by 176, will be landscaped by the owner in harmony with the architecture.

KINGSLEY DRIVE HOME
ENGLISH ARCHITECTURE.
$21,500.

On a high, elevated corner lot north of Wilshire boulevard, with an unobstructed view of the mountains. The improvements represented an expenditure close to $24,000 when the cost of building was 50 per cent. lower than it is today. The house is complete in every detail, has ten rooms and three baths, and is one of the most attractive, livable houses we have on our list. Quiet, restful decorations obtain throughout the house, and the fixtures were selected to harmonize with the decorations. The finish is exceptionally good and the floor plan is most convenient. Grounds are laid out with the choicest shrubbery, winding walks of brick through the gardens, a quaint summer-house, garage. In fact, a most desirable home in every respect; and if you want a real home, this will appeal to you.

HANDSOME CORNER HOME IN THE WILSHIRE.
$33,000.

Constructed of pressed brick and cement. The main rooms are finished in the choicest of selected hardwoods, are decorated in exquisite taste and ideally arranged. A huge porch across the front of the house running into a glassed-in side porch, twin gas furnaces, stationary vacuum cleaner, double garage with man's room and bath, on a beautiful corner lot 100x170. Maid's room and bath particularly well planned on the first floor. One of the best built and most artistic houses in Los Angeles.

HOLLYWOOD FOOTHILL ESTATE.
$35,000.

A fine, livable completely modern 8-room plaster house, with tiled bath. Double garage with servant's quarters. The property is in absolutely first-class condition in every respect and is priced at $35,000 for quick sale.

FINE WILSHIRE HOME ADJOINING THE BOULEVARD AND NEAR THE NEW CALIFORNIA HOTEL.
$37,500

A white cement plaster house, with roof of Spanish tiles, located on a large east front lot 105x155. Of the very best finish and construction, containing twelve well-arranged rooms, dressing rooms and innumerable commodious closets, and handsomely equipped tiled baths. The most inviting entrance hall, dining-room, (from which the built-in features have been eliminated,) living-room and library are finished in the choicest of selected hardwoods, with walls either tapestried or canvassed and done in oils; electrical fixtures chosen with great care. The last word in modern architecture and an ideal home of the highest quality. Do not fail to make an appointment to see this place if you are looking for an unusually good home; it will meet your every requirement.

A WONDERFUL HOME ON ARDMORE NEAR WILSHIRE BOULEVARD.
$37,500.

One of the most attractive homes in the Italian renaissance in the entire Wilshire district, containing twelve large, sunny rooms, ideally arranged and exquisitely finished. It was built for a home and cost was always secondary to results, consequently the property is artistically correct inside and out. The lot is 95x150 feet and splendidly located, and at the above price it is a real buy. The furniture and furnishings were purchased especially for this house and may be bought, if desired, at about one-third of their value. Shown by appointment only.

A BEAUTIFUL HOME, COMPLETELY FURNISHED.

The early English type of architecture prevails in this house of brick and plaster construction, on a lot 150x150 feet. The interior is one of the most pleasing we have ever seen, with silk-tapestried walls, artistic lighting fixtures, finish in the choicest of hardwoods and white enamel, ideally arranged. Two of the baths are tiled. There are four big sleeping rooms and sleeping porch on the second floor; maid's room and bath on the first. A very large living-room, cozy library, spacious dining-room, delightful little breakfast-room. More than $10,000 was spent in improving the grounds, which contain the loveliest of roses, carefully selected shrubs and quantities of other flowers, attractive little teahouse, a complete laundry, isolated from the house, 2-car garage. And the furnishings and furniture are thoroughly in keeping with a house of this character. $20,000 worth of oriental rugs and an unusually fine collection of oil paintings. The place represents an expenditure in excess of $85,000 and is a rare buy at $70,000. Shown by appointment only.

WILSHIRE COLONIAL BUNGALOW.

COMPLETELY FURNISHED.

Owner going to move to New York City, and has commissioned us to dispose of his charming 7-room Colonial bungalow, which he had built to his order about a year ago. The rooms are all exceptionally large; living-room, 16x24; dining-room, 14x16; one bedroom, 14x16; another, 12x14. In addition to the two main bedrooms is a third room equipped with 12 Pullman windows, which makes it a regular sleeping porch.

Furnished in mahogany, and complete including china and silver. Furnishings bought for this house, and are in splendid condition. Bring your grips and trunks and move right in. A real opportunity is offered you here.

IT COST $20,000.

CHARMING WEST ADAMS HOME OF 11 ROOMS AND TWO BATHS.

On a lot, 150x150. Cement tennis court, and wonderful gardens. Asphalt paved street, paid for.

You cannot imagine a more beautiful and homey place than this one. It was built by day labor of the finest materials and the construction as heavy as that used in eastern homes. It has been occupied by the original owner only, and has been kept up in perfect condition. Not a year has past but what the house has been painted, and the result is that it is as good, if not better, than when it was built. THE REASON THE HOUSE IS FOR SALE NOW is that the owner's family is much smaller and they have no use for this large a home.

IF YOU WANT A REAL HOME, AND AT A PRICE ONE-HALF OF WHAT SUCH A PLACE WOULD COST TO BUILD TODAY, YOU HAD BETTER MAKE HASTE TO SEE THIS ONE. SHOWN ONLY BY APPOINTMENT UPON APPLICATION TO THE UNDERSIGNED EXCLUSIVE AGENTS.

$20,000.

MAGNIFICENT WHITE CEMENT HOME.

ON A LARGE CORNER LOT IN THE HOLLYWOOD FOOTHILLS SURROUNDED BY ELEGANT NEW HOMES. BOTH STREETS PAVED, SEWER IN, ALL PAID FOR.

Solid bronze hardware throughout, with genuine CUT GLASS DOOR KNOBS. There are four fine bedrooms, and three baths on the second floor. FIRST FLOOR ARRANGEMENT includes CENTER RECEPTION HALL, LIVING-ROOM, DINING-ROOM, LIBRARY, BREAKFAST-ROOM, AND TILED KITCHEN. Two great big porches, one across the front of the house, and another practically as large across the rear. TWO REAL LIVING PORCHES.

The lot is 100x140, commanding an unsurpassed view of city and ocean, and in a highly restricted residence subdivision. The lawn is a beauty and equipped with AUTOMATIC SPRINKLER SYSTEM. HOUSE PIPED FOR VACUUM. The owner has to go East, and will be gone for two years, consequently desires to dispose of the home. It is shown by appointment only, so call us and we will show you through. Ask for Mr. HOLCOMBE.

FOR SALE—
ATTENTION, HOUSE BUYERS.

We are extensive home builders. We completed a house for each work day in September.

For October we expect to surpass this record.

Now, Mr. House Buyer, before buying you should visit our properties and study the high character of the homes we are building, and learn the particulars as to why we are able build five, six and seven-room houses and sell them for the small price we are asking; also learn of our easy-payment plan which enables a person of small means to make a small cash payment to show good faith, and pay us a monthly rental sum—no more than rent—for the balance.

These are facts worth considering.

We develop acreage into highly restricted residence parks, put in the best of street improvements.

We maintain our own ornamental shrubbery nursery and beautify these tracts and make them distinctively different from the ordinary home subdivisions.

We maintain our own lumber yards, and buy millions of feet of lumber at wholesale prices. We maintain an up-to-date architectural force, and include in every home the latest and most modern improvements. We do business on such a big scale that we are able to produce a better house for less money and sell on easiest possible rental terms.

Telephone or call at our office and have representative show you our properties. You will be under no obligation if our homes do not meet your requirements and approval.

FOR SALE—
BEAUTIFUL HOLLYWOOD FOOTHILL HOME.
A REAL SHOW PLACE.
I am obliged to dispose of my beautiful Hollywood foothill home, situated two blocks north of Hollywood blvd., between Western avenue and Cahuenga st., and only 200 feet from a noted $200,000 home, in the vicinity of which there are numerous $50,000 to $150,000 homes.
THIS IS A PERFECT GEM.
House was built by day labor, is of Japanese chalet type, containing 8 rooms, 3 baths and large cement basement. Is finished in ivory and mission with polished oak floors throughout. Upstairs are two airy bedrooms and bath. Downstairs are large parlor, living room with built-in bookcases, mammoth mantle and fireplace; cosy library den; beautiful bedroom 16x24 feet inside measure; luxurious large tile bath with separate tile shower; artistic dining-room with exceptional built-in buffet; commodious modern kitchen with extra long woodstone sink and cold-air closet; maid's room adjoining kitchen and has one connecting bath; back porch is screened and glass inclosed (really another room;) basement is of cement and contains combination gas and coal furnace, automatic thermostatic water heatr. Best plumbing throughout, and in addition to furnace heat the house is equipped with vented gas radiators. Broad cement driveway with garage for two cars. Tool and storage shed 10x20 feet. Lot is 100-foot front, beautiful lawn equipped with invisible automatic sprinkling system. Large garden equipped with automatic turn-off rain machine. There are orange, lemon, tangerine, fig and apricot trees, asparagus, artichokes, grapes, mont and chayotes in the garden. Among the ornamental are roses galore, wistaria, honeysuckle, trumpet, violets, carnations, dahlias, boxwood, cypress, Japanese hedge, palms, poinsettias, geraniums, zinnias, poppies, etc. This fine home contains everything to please the most exacting, and you will wonder why I want to sell. I do not want to, but I have to, and to do so quickly the price is only $20,000. The improvements today would cost that much, while land values are soaring higher and higher each day you wait. No agents considered and no commission allowed. If you want to see this attractive property you may make appointment with owner by addressing P.O. BOX 151, STATION C, Los Angeles, Cal.

BEAUTIFUL WELLINGTON SQUARE
AT ONE-HALF APPRAISED VALUE
THE GREATEST
RESIDENCE LOT SALE LOS ANGELES HAS SEEN
IN YEARS.
OVER $200,000 IN LESS THAN 90 DAYS.

THIS BEAUTIFUL SUBDIVISION IS IN THAT SECTION OF THE CITY WHICH HAS ENJOYED A PERIOD OF BUILDING AND DEVELOPMENT ACTIVITY SELDOM EXPERIENCED IN ANY COMMUNITY. IT EXTENDS FROM CRENSHAW BOULEVARD, [illegible] INGTON AND WEST ADAMS BOULEVARD, THE NORTHERN BOUNDARY OF THE TRACT, IS THE GREAT HIGHWAY, LOS ANGELES TO VENICE AND THE SEA.

WELLINGTON SQUARE IS IRRESISTIBLY ATTRACTING THE VERY BEST CLASS OF INVESTORS AND HOMESEEKERS BECAUSE IT IS UNDOUBTEDLY THE FINEST RESIDENTIAL OFFERING IN THIS SECTION. THE TIME TO BUY PROPERTY FOR FUTURE INVESTMENT OR A HOME IS WHEN IT IS NEW AND PRICES ARE THEIR LOWEST. TODAY YOU CAN BUY THE HIGH CLASS PROPERTY IN [illegible] REGION FOR CONSIDERABLY LESS THAN YOU WILL SHORTLY BE SELLING FOR. NOTHING IN THE VICINITY SURPASSES IT AND THE MAN LOOKING EITHER FOR INVESTMENT OR HOMESITE SHOULD FULLY INVESTIGATE ITS CLAIMS.

YOUR HOME IN WELLINGTON SQUARE WILL BE IN THE MIDST OF INCOMPARABLE SURROUNDINGS. YOU WILL HAVE EXCLUSIVENESS, YET BE MOST ACCESSIBLE TO ALL POINTS OF INTEREST. THE DEVELOPMENT ALL ABOUT THIS SECTION ASSURES RAPID INCREASE IN VALUE AND CONSEQUENT PROFIT TO EARLY INVESTORS. [illegible] IN THE DIRECTION OF THE CITY'S RESISTLESS MARCH TO THE SEA.

CONSIDERING LOCATION AND OFFERING PRICES, THIS NEW AND ATTRACTIVE SUBDIVISION IS THE CHOICEST OFFERING IN THE WESTERN PART OF LOS ANGELES TODAY. WELLINGTON SQUARE IS PRACTICALLY SURROUNDED BY FINE BOULEVARDS AND IS WITHIN TWO BLOCKS OF THE PROPOSED SUBWAY WHICH WILL MEAN A TRIP OF ONLY [illegible] MINUTES TO THE BUSINESS AND SHOPPING CENTERS OF THE CITY. ITS LOCATION GUARANTEES ITS FUTURE. SOME OF THE NEWEST AND FINEST SUBDIVISIONS IN THE CITY ADJACENT.

THIS REGION IS IN THE HIGH PART OF LOS ANGELES AND A FINE UNOBSTRUCTED VIEW OF THE MOUNTAINS AND FOOTHILLS IS OBTAINABLE AT ALL TIMES. PALATIAL HOMES ARE ON EVERY SIDE. EVERY CONVENIENCE IS PROVIDED FOR THE HOME LOVER OR FAMILY MAN. LOTS ARE WIDE AND DEEP.

THE STREET WORK IS MORE THAN DISTINCTIVE—IT IS A REVELATION TO EVEN THOSE FAMILIAR WITH HIGH GRADE PROPERTY DEVELOPMENT. THE SCARCITY OF DESIRABLE PROPERTY IN THIS FASHIONABLE PART OF THE CITY IS GROWING MORE AND MORE PRONOUNCED. GOOD RESIDENCE SITES WILL BE HARD TO PRODUCE VERY SHORTLY WITHOUT PAYING EXORBITANT PRICES.

THIS IS AN EXCEPTIONAL HOME TRACT AND IT OFFERS A RARE OPPORTUNITY. MAKE YOUR RESERVATION NOW AND BUILD LATER IF MORE CONVENIENT. PEOPLE OF PROMINENCE, SOCIALLY AND FINANCIALLY HAVE SELECTED THIS REGION FOR THEIR HOMES, AND YOU WILL MAKE NO MISTAKE BY DOING LIKEWISE.

TULARE COUNTY LAND BARGAINS.

(Agents' Co-operation Solicited.)

Mr. Land Seeker: In deciding where to buy farm land bear in mind that Tulare county has a long, warm growing season, rich level soil, abundance of cheap irrigation water, which means big and varied crops—that this county has the trunk lines of both the S. P. and Santa Fe, and hundreds of miles of cement highways; BUT that our land prices are as yet very much less than those for similar lands in other parts of California.

Come to Tulare county for the best of alfalfa, corn, grain, sugar beets, cotton, beans, melons, tomatoes, peaches, apricots, figs, raisin and table grapes; olives, lemons, oranges, dairying, beef stock and hogs.

This land is suited to production of alfalfa, corn, grain, sugar beets, dairying, hog raising, and a great deal of it to fruit trees and vines.

It is owned by a bank that will sell on terms and give a long time. It will pay to develop this tract. There are numerous well-developed high-priced ranches near it. Only $45 per acre.

If you want raw land or a developed ranch get on the train and come at once to see for yourself. I will gladly show you this country. During the past two years prices of farm lands in most parts of the U. S. have boomed. Tulare county, already one of the richest in the whole U. S., will soon have its turn, as it has just begun a new and extensive development, which will advance values, so that now is the time to buy.

PROSPERITY TRAILS THE FARMER.

Have you ever stopped to realize the opportunity for financial profit that is facing the California farmer today? There has never been a time in our history when farm products have sold for higher prices than at present and authorities agree they must continue for a long time to come.

The American farmer has done a wonderful work in winning the war, but his task is not completed. America must continue to feed the world for several years to come.

Now is the time to start farming profitably if you want to make money. If you are interested in buying land that will produce abundant crops of alfalfa, beans, potatoes and corn, you should not fail to investigate our Chowchilla lands, where we are making special terms to men who want to start farming this year.

We have places for good farmers in our district and can offer good men an opportunity to own their own ranch home on terms far more profitable than renting.

Call and see us; it will cost you nothing, as this is undoubtedly the opportunity you have wanted for years. You are dealing with the owners direct.

FOR SALE—RANCHES OF ALL SIZES WITH ideal water conditions in the Fallbrook district, that wonderful section where no smudge pot has ever been needed. People who are not informed regarding conditions there, or who have a selfish interest in trying to locate you elsewhere, will admit that it is a wonderful place so far as perfect but low-priced land, delightful climate and beautiful scenery are concerned—but "look out for water," they say. Now, listen: The streams at Fallbrook during this dryest of dry seasons are flowing right along, while the scores of wells there are today producing more irrigating water for the cost of development than in any other citrus section of this glorious Southland. And listen to this: The Fallbrook district today shows more actual development and progress during the two years that the railroad has been there, than any other two sections of California combined. For many years we have handled that property exclusively and will be glad to show you the remarkably attractive offerings yet available. While looking at wind-swept alkali, adobe, hardpan or clay properties at $800 to $1500 per acre in other localities, where it is either too hot or too cold, just keep your mind on the fact that at Fallbrook all those objections are eliminated and the best unplanted land is still available at $200 an acre and on down to rough stuff at $10 an acre. FALLBROOK DEVELOPMENT CO., 315 Trust and Savings Bldg. Main 9273, Home 13172.

Irrigated Lands of the SEDCO.

During the war the South Elsinore Development Company (SEDCO) has been improving their great tract of 5600 acres in the Valley of Elsinore. It is now ready for subdivision into 5, 10 and 20-acre groves and orchards. The soil is of the best in Southern California. The irrigation system is adequate, the water excellent.

The irrigated lands of the SEDCO lie in the Valley of Elsinore at an altitude of 1300 to 1700 feet and are well adapted to the growing of citrus and deciduous fruits. The winters are mild and pleasant. The summers ideal. Lake Elsinore is a well-known health resort. Elsinore is a city of sixth class.

There are only about 600 acres of citrus lands, but while they are the equal of Pomona, Corona or Whittier, they will be sold at prices very much lower than asked for land in those districts. Now is the time to buy if you would like to have an orange or lemon grove. There are about 1200 acres suitable for walnuts, and while the trees are growing to maturity other crops can be harvested between the rows of trees. Deciduous fruits, peaches, pears, apricots and prunes are very profitable now and do exceedingly well in this locality.

A sales office has been opened in Los Angeles, where you can learn all about the property and make arrangements to go up there in the company's automobile and look the property over.

There are some wonderful villa sites on the shores of Lake Elsinore and many beautiful country places.

This is not cheap land by any means, but of the very best and well worth the price. The choicest tracts will soon be sold, so if you are interested you had better investigate at once.

OIL SHORTAGE IS INCREASING—

No better investment can be made now than test holes in new territory. The country needs all the oil you can find, and you have a safe and sure market.

But don't resort to old-fashioned methods of drilling, with large and expensive machinery; never forget the cost of a hole increases in the approximate proportion to the "square of its diameter."

So drill smaller diameter holes with the latest and most efficient portable machines ever built for territories from 800 to 2500 feet deep. Write us for particulars and circular.

BUSINESS CHANCES—
Of Many Kinds.

ARE YOU LOOKING FOR AN INVESTMENT where you can settle down in California and be contented like a lot of us who have paved the way for pleasure and prosperity? If you are, we know for a certainty that we can be of valuable assistance to you in getting into business. We have specialized for years in the handling of the better class of business investments. The kind that we are happy to refer to as having been handled through this office. We do not solicit or handle the very small propositions, as there is always more or less grief connected with that class of business. We cater to business men looking for strictly business openings, with sufficient capital to handle the right one when it is presented to him. It is possible we may not have just what you are looking for at the time you call on us, but we are constantly getting in new propositions, and the ones that come to us are generally sent to us by recommendation, therefore you are not likely to find this kind being peddled around by everyone. We do not handle anything unless we have the exclusive agency for a limited time, eliminating thereby the juggling or peddling of this particular business. We are in a position to handle more good retail, wholesale or manufacturing concerns, from $5000 up. Our best reference to either the prospective buyer or the seller are the people we have served.

BUSINESS CHANCES—
Of Many Kinds.

CONFECTIONERY—

We have the exclusive handling of three of the best stores of this kind that we know of. One of them is located in the San Fernando Valley, is practically the only one in town, the equipment has been practically all replaced with new; the business is averaging around $50 a day, which will be increased with a new buffet luncheon which has just been installed; in fact everything is just the very nicest layout that anyone could look for. Good candy-making equipment included. The price on this, $4500 spot cash.

Another one is located on the Valley boulevard; it is splendidly equipped with a fine fountain, with seating capacity for about one hundred people; the best showcases, booths, etc. This business is averaging at present $75 a day, and showing a marked increase each month. We are in a position to make an attractive price on this with liberal terms.

The one in the city is a dandy, never been offered for sale in seven years, business over $100 a day, fine corner, elegant fixtures; long lease at $50 a month and has cleared as high as $600 a month. Any of the places mentioned in this ad. will stand a thorough investigation, and you will not go wrong in considering any of them.

W. S. RATTRAY & CO.,
1023 Title Insurance Bldg., Fifth and Spring.

BOOK AND STATIONERY STORE.

Here is a dandy little business that can be handled by either a man or woman. It is absolutely first class in every respect, it does not require any boosting from us to sell it. There is an agency goes with this store that will make the owner at least $200 a month without putting any extra effort into it. The fixtures and stock are all first class. No good will to buy, just the invoice for stock and fixtures, which is about $4500. The location is in the center of a rich farming community, about twenty miles from Los Angeles. Same owner seven years.

BUSINESS CHANCES—
Of Many Kinds.

CLEANING AND PRESSING PLANT—

How often do you see a business of this kind advertised for sale? Those who know the business, understand the reason, and that is the very reason why this place we are advertising today should not have to be offered the second time. A better located or cleaner plant could not be found anywhere. The rent is $75 a month, which includes two elegant flats furnished, renting for $40 a month, making the rent of the business free. The net profits of the business is around $200 a week. There is practically no soliciting done, as the business is so well established that the business is nearly all sent in or telephoned. The same owner has been there for over eight years and has the best reason in the world for wishing to dispose of it now. This is, indeed, a rare opportunity and we will positively refuse to give any information to anyone unless they can show us they have the money and mean business. To that party we will gladly tell all there is to be told and, if necessary allow them to remain long enough in the business to satisfy themselves that it is all we claim for it, before asking for any money.

W. S. RATTRAY & CO.,
1023 Title Insurance Bldg., Fifth and Spring.

FOR SALE—

TWO UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITIES.

We have 2 business offerings for high grade men of the kind that are seldom open in California. Both have been established for several years, both are making fine money, neither has ever been sold, or offered. They are strictly staple lines, but each requires a considerable investment. One will require $25,000, the other $45,000, but they are worth it and require in both cases strictly high-class men of ability.

BUSINESS CHANCES— Of Many Kinds.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE STORE— We have never advertised a general store since we have been in business, that we have failed to sell if it was worth the money asked. This store should not be any exception, as it is located in the very heart of the richest citrus and walnut groves, with no competition for five miles. The owner of this store owns the building, which he wants to sell with the store. It could not be built today for less than $4000. He is willing to sell it for just $2800 and give terms on half of it if necessary. The fixtures will invoice $500 and the stock about $2000. He has run his stock down with the idea of selling, but this community will support a stock of at least three times the amount he is carrying. If this interests you at all, and you care to investigate the truth of these statements, you will agree with us that this is certainly one of the few opportunities that you will find to buy and build a prosperous country general store. W. S. RATTRAY & CO., 1023 Title Insurance Bldg., Fifth and Spring.

MOTION-PICTURE STAR OF NATIONAL REPutation, whose pictures are being successfully shown in the United States and foreign countries, and whose contract with large producing and distributing company expires soon, desires to produce his pictures and already has market for same. We propose organizing a company and earn for ourselves the 200 per cent. profit that the company now producing these pictures are making on each release. We are putting our own money in the enterprise, but need more capital. TOY STORE— This is without doubt one of the best propositions on our list. It is located in the busy part of the city, has the most liberal rent of any store on the street, $75 a month, in fact this lease alone is worth nearly as much as the business. The fixtures are only a few hundred dollars, the balance good, clean, marketable stock that can be bought at invoice. CHECK SUGAR HOARDING.

Prosecutor Says Purchases Here will be Limited Under War Act.

According to Lyndol L. Young, special assistant to United States District Attorney O'Connor, who has been co-operating with the Fair Price Committee, the Food Conservation Act, so far as it relates to the sales of sugar, will be enforced this week.

Retail dealers have become alarmed by the recent heavy demands for sugar from individuals who, they believe, are buying extra supplies. Their activities in making purchases have depleted the available stocks of sugar here and the the dealers themselves are asking that the law, which has been ignored since the signing of the armistice, again be enforced.

It is not now proposed to restore the old rules nor the system of registration, but a limit may be placed on the individual purchases.

Mr. Young said yesterday that there was danger of a sugar famine if conditions were not relieved. The supplies of sugar in the hands of the firms operating chain groceries are becoming depleted, with no immediate prospect of further supplies being available in the immediate future. With this condition facing them they fear they will not have sugar on hand for the necessities of the people if the present large purchases are not stopped.

"To forestall the distress they see coming," Mr. Young said, "many of the retail grocers are restricting sugar sales to ten pounds to one individual, but without the co-operation of the Federal authorities they cannot prevent a person from acquiring and hoarding large quantities by buying ten pounds from one clerk and as much from another, to return and buy as much more from a third clerk. Again a purchaser can go from one store to another, buying all the different dealers are willing to sell.

"Hereafter, it will be deemed lawful only to buy enough sugar for the reasonable requirements of the individual or the family for a period not longer than thirty days. Any person caught with more sugar than he can reasonably use in thirty days will be punished for violation of the Food Conservation Act.

"It is believed that fair warning to the public and an appeal to the general sense of fairmindedness will suffice to check the present flood of sugar orders. The Department of Justice, represented by Mr. O'Connor, has ways of ascertaining where and by whom sugar is being hoarded and swift punishment will follow willful violation of the law."

BANKER'S CASE IS READY.

United States District Attorney O'Connor and his assistant, W. Fleet Palmer, who have been in San Diego, the past week, attending the trial of Charles L. Williams, former president of the First National Bank of San Diego, who is on trial in Judge Bledsoe's court, at San Diego, were busy yesterday preparing for the real opening of the case, which is likely to become locally famous in the history of criminal prosecution.

The jury was obtained late Friday evening, and Mr. Palmer will make his opening statement tomorrow morning. Williams will be defended by L. A. Dadmun, of the San Diego bar.

The various counts of the indictment charge Williams with embezzlement, misapplication of funds, abstraction of moneys and credits and false entries on the books of the American National Bank, previous to its consolidation with the First National Bank in December, 1917.

It will be a part of the case against Williams that after the affairs of the American National Bank had been examined by the officers of the First National Bank, following the consolidation, there was a total amount of $575,000 and more charged off the books of the American National Bank on account of the management of its affairs by Williams.

One of the many defenses of the accused will be that he is being made the "goat" in the interest of others, with a general denial of all criminality in his management of the American National Bank.

It is estimated that it will require at least two weeks for the government to present its testimony to the jury, provided there is no unusual delay. The testimony in behalf of the defense will not require so much time.

There was the greatest difficulty encountered in getting the jury, as Williams had been the friend of about everybody in San Diego during the thirty years he was connected with the banking business in that city. The original panel was exhausted and it was necessary to issue a venire for another of thirty-five.

IN REPLY TO JOHNSON.

Inconsistencies and inaccurate deductions developed by Senator Hiram Johnson in his countrywide speaking tour against the covenant of the League of Nations will be fully discussed tomorrow afternoon by J. Stitt Wilson, orator and political economist, in an address at Clune's Auditorium.

The meeting will be open to the public and no seats will be reserved. The doors will be thrown open at 1:45.

John D. Fredericks will call the meeting to order at 2:30 and will introduce the presiding officer of the afternoon, former Lieut.-Gov. A. J. Wallace, who was Johnson's running mate in 1910 when Johnson was a candidate for Governor.

Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, one of the leading club women of California and a member of the Republican National Committee, will deliver a brief address.

The ministers of Los Angeles, many of whom have joined in vigorous indorsements of the movement to obtain immediate ratification of the treaty of peace with the covenant of the League of Nations, have been invited to occupy the platform.

It is believed that a substantial majority of Los Angeles congregations today, responding to an appeal from the church federation, will observe the day as ratification Sunday.

Among the list of prominent men and women of Southern California who will attend the meeting as vice-presidents are former supporters of Johnson who have come out strongly against his present attitude.

A programme of music will be rendered preceding Mr. Wilson's address.

Included among those who will attend today's meeting as vice-presidents are the following:

Judge Russ Avery, James A. Anderson, Seth Brown, United States Judge Bledsoe, Dr. Geo. Bovard, Mrs. E. C. Bellows, J. H. Bean, Louis M. Cole, Mrs. J. E. Cowles, Mrs. Herbert Cable, H. W. Frank, Dr. James A. Francis, W. M. Garland, W. J. Hunsaker, Judge Leslie R. Hewitt, Arthur Letts, Clinton E. Miller, William Mead, Henry S. McKee, W. E. McVey, Nathan Newby, Mrs. Mathew Robertson, Mrs. R. W. Richardson, Mrs. Clinton Sterry, C. C. C. Tatum, Mrs. Shelley Tolhurst, Stanley B. Wilson, F. E. Woodley.

ON TRUCK HIGHWAY COST.

At a conference called by the Board of Supervisors yesterday, attended by County Council Hill, Deputy E. T. Bishop, City Attorney Burnell, Deputy Clyde M. Leech and David R. Faries, general counsel for the Automobile Club of Southern California, the report of Road Commissioner Jones showed that the total cost of the harbor truck highway, an eight-inch granite base, twenty-four feet wide, will be $628,450.

The cost was proportioned as follows: Vernon, $42,000; Compton, $56,000; Wilmington, $71,500; the territory from Vernon to Compton, $149,000, and Compton to Wilmington, $309,950.

The conference recommended that the city of Los Angeles bear the total expense in Wilmington and that the Supervisors take up with Vernon and Compton the amount of county aid they would require for the highway. It was also decided that a road improvement district be formed between Vernon and Compton, and Compton and Wilmington, including territory one-half mile each side of the highway, the county to aid the latter district as it has already aided the former. The amount an acre estimated is less than $50, which can be spread over twenty years.

The Supervisors will confer with the Pacific Electric to see what part of the cost of the overhead crossing the railway will bear.

HELPS AIR DERBY FLYER.

The outcome of the coming aerial derby from San Francisco to New York will hold particular interest for the newly-established meteorological and aeronautical department of the Chamber of Commerce, because of the following inquiry received yesterday by Dr. Ford A. Carpenter, manager of the bureau, from an officer in the air service of the United States, who is to take part in the contest.

The officer asks for information on the subject of "winds, rains and surface temperatures on a line running through San Francisco, Salt Lake, Green River, Walcott, Cheyenne, Sidney, North Platte, St. Paul, Omaha, Des Moines, Rock Island, Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, Rochester and New York for the period, October 8 to 20."

Dr. Carpenter stated yesterday that the information desired could be given readily if the cities mentioned were equipped as is Los Angeles in the acquiring of meteorological data, but in the absence of daily observations of the upper air, only general information can be given.

The officer went into minute detail in asking for data regarding atmospheric conditions covering the 3000-mile stretch across the country, but concluded by saying that it was hardly his expectation to obtain anything definite regarding the velocity of wind at elevations above the surface of the earth, which data regularly can be furnished to all flyers in this section.

With the general information sent by the meteorological and aeronautical department, the suggestion was forwarded that the weather map of the country be studied for a few days preceding the flights. The line of the derby is close to the average storm track from California to the Great Lakes.

CHING WILL APPEAL DRUG LAW VERDICT.

Dr. Henry Ching, the convicted herbalist, facing a five-year sentence in the Federal penitentiary at McNeil Island, for violation of the Harrison narcotic law, is preparing to appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

A motion will be made in the United States District Court before Judge Trippet tomorrow, asking for a further extension of the warrant of commitment for a period of five days, in order to allow Frank E. Dominguez, who has been retained by Ching, to prepare an appeal in the case.

Further disclosures in regard to the source of the rich loot, found in possession of Ching indicates that some of it came from recent robberies in this city. It need occasion no surprise if there are sensational developments along this line before the Ching incident is closed.

It is known that many of the late robberies reported in this city, have been consummated for the purpose of furnishing funds to narcotic addicts, and it is believed that much of the valuable jewelry in possession of Ching was part of the proceeds of these robberies.

SEIZE GERMAN'S HOUSES, LOTS

Alien Enemy Property Custodian Takes Over Four Bungalows.

A notice filed in the office of the County Recorder yesterday informed the public that four bungalows and the lots, said to belong to Thiesen, said to be an alien enemy, have been seized by Francis P. Garvan, Alien Property Custodian.

The property was declared to stand in Thiesen's name although he resides in Germany. The property is located, it is said, at 1486 West Forty-fifth street, 221 West Sixty-seventh street, 6341 Estrella avenue, 6348 Estrella avenue and at Florence. The notice states that the property has been placed in charge of J. C. MacFarland, A. Hewitt and M. C. Somers as custodians.

TO PROVIDE SCHOOLS FOR FRENCH CHILDREN

FUNDS ARE BEING COLLECTED HERE TO AID IN NEEDED WORK OVERSEAS.

While the school children of America are lamenting the fact that they must go to school, thousands of children of the devastated sections of Northern France are crying because they have no school to attend. Education in Northern France ceased in 1914, and it cannot recommence until Germany has been forced to pay the indemnity levied by the Peace Conference.

Part of the work of the American Committee for devastated France is to bring help to the school children to provide more adequate school facilities. In many of the towns of Northern France, there is no building left, but hardy pioneers re-entering these villages

Work in Foreign Fields will be Subject Discussed.

Pacific Branch Members will Hold Four-Day Session.

The thirty-first annual meeting of the Pacific Branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be held at the First M. E. Church of Hollywood, at Hollywood boulevard and Ivar avenue, from next Thursday to Sunday, inclusive. It will be the first time the branch, which includes California, Nevada and Arizona, has held its session in Hollywood and the church is making preparations to entertain about 300 delegates. Mrs. J. A. Davis of 6036 Selma avenue, is chairman of the local general committees of arrangement. Mrs. G. T. Gower, 1400 Gower street, is chairman of entertainment; Mrs. O. P. Conaway, decoration; Mrs. A. R. Gates, music, and Mrs. C. H. Betts, banquet and luncheons.

The morning sessions will be at 9:30 o'clock. "The Keynote of the Session" will be the opening address, Thursday, by Mrs. Charles Edward Locke. General business will follow. At 1:45 holy communion will be given by the Rev. Dr. Byron H. Wilson, Los Angeles district superintendent. In the evening a banquet will be served at the Hollywood Woman's Club, in charge of Mrs. M. V. McQuigg, the toastmistress being Mrs. Byron H. Wilson.

The chief speaker at the Friday morning session will be Miss Margaret Corson of China. At 6:30 p.m. the young people's supper will be given at the church with Mrs. C. E. Teach, in charge. At this time the winner of the efficiency contest will be announced, and the new missionaries introduced. These are the Misses Grace P. Smith, Rita M. Lane, Laura Corlett and Jessie Ruth Lane. The evening meeting will be marked by special music by the church choir under direction of Prof. Henry Cogswell, and a pantomime, "The Evolution of Miss Holledge," by the young women's societies of Hollywood. An address will be made by the Rev. Dr. Merle N. Smith.

ELECT OFFICERS.

Saturday morning standing committees will render their annual reports. Election of officers and delegates to the general Executive Committee will follow. Miss Maud Soper, missionary from Japan, will give the address.

The afternoon session will be devoted chiefly to unfinished business. Following this, an automobile ride for delegates and guests will be given by the Hollywood church.

Sunday morning service will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. Willsie Martin, pastor of the church. At 3 p.m. the children's rally will be held with Mrs. Lulu M. Firey in charge. Stories by missionaries in costume will be a programme feature. Greetings from foreign and home fields mark the closing session.

All the meetings are open to the public. Tickets to the Thursday evening banquets for which a fine programme is arranged, may be obtained from Miss Eva Shore. Women of the Congregational Church have the affair in charge. The women of the Christian Church serve luncheon at the First M. E. Church Thursday and Friday noon.

Missionaries home on furlough who are expected to attend the session are Miss Gertrude Taft of Chiangkiang, China; Miss Clara Grace Barstow, from Buenos Aires; Miss G. Evelyn Hadden, Shajahanpur, India, and Miss Nurand S. Meyers, Lucknow, India. Assisting with the programme are Mrs. J. B. Thomas from India, Mrs. M. Newman from China, Miss Soper and Miss Corson.

Then She's Ready.

A Kansas City man paced nervously back and forth on his front porch yesterday morning. "Hey!" he called to his wife. "Haven't you started to get up yet?" "Yes," she replied. "I'm starting to comb my hair." "Good night!" he yelled. "Just starting to comb your hair! We'll miss that train, sure." Five minutes later she appeared and announced she was ready for the train. "Well, one good thing about the way women dress nowadays," he commented, cooling off, "is that when a woman gets her hair combed, she is ready to go."—[Kansas City Star.

ACCOUNTING

Complete 3-year curriculum starting with GENERAL BOOK-KEEPING.

Students may take up their work in any class for which they are qualified by training or experience.

The accounting faculty consists of FOUR certified public accountants who have a broad practice and are experienced and successful teachers.

Our students are successful in passing the C.P.A. examinations each year and scores of our graduates are now practicing as C.P.A.'s and public accountants or holding positions with salaries or incomes ranging from $2500 to $5000 per year.

Yes, we secure many of our students high-grade executive positions and often have more calls than we can fill. It is a real pleasure to be of the utmost assistance in this regard.

Our Policies

The policies of this school are conservative. Meritorious SERVICE is our motto. We do not guarantee any prodigies by "flash-in-the-pan" or "strong-arm" or "peppy" methods.

We believe the work in hand is earnest work and requires exhaustive analysis and must be made interesting to the student by serious study and energetic but dignified presentation and demonstration.

Southwestern University CONDEMNS the policy of any other commercial school of EXPERT training that presumes to claim the successful graduates or students of SOUTHWESTERN as her graduates or her students when such students have never been in attendance at such school.

THERE IS A REASON for the success of our students and we respectfully refer to them for the statement of that REASON.

The new theater is located in the Arroyo Seco near the California street, La Loma Bridge. The concert will start at 3 o'clock.

Willis-Woodbury BUSINESS COLLEGE

Nothing Succeeds Like Success

The splendid new scientific method of teaching Gregg Shorthand used in the Willis-Woodbury College has won so great a reputation for efficiency that the attendance is now much larger than in pre-war years. As Business Colleges in general have smaller enrollments this year, the increased registration in Willis College is an unmistakable tribute to the outstanding merit of the teaching method and the business policy of this College.

The Willis plan of instruction is an improved method of individual teaching which furnishes the student with what is the equivalent of private instruction. Each student progresses as rapidly as he masters the studies, not being required to keep pace with any one else. It enables you to get one hundred per cent. efficiency out of your time.

The excellent record being made by Willis graduates is bringing us a tremendous demand for Willis-trained secretaries, stenographers, and book-keepers at much higher salaries than formerly.

You may begin on any school day in the year with equal advantage. Why not start now? We invite you to call and inspect our excellent facilities and get full particulars about our popular system of individual instruction.

FIND FOOD LAW VIOLATED HERE.

Accused Dealers Questioned Before Health Board.

Some Cases are Referred to Prosecutor's Office.

Many Adulterated Products Under Investigation.

Approximately twenty-four alleged violators of the pure-food law appeared before the California State Board of Health in the committee room of the Board of Supervisors yesterday, accompanied by their attorneys. The investigation was held behind closed doors and names were not given out. Some of the cases, it was stated by Prof. E. J. Lea, director of the bureau of foods and drugs, will be referred to the District Attorney for action, and other cases were held for further investigation.

Under an amendment adopted by the last Legislature, the State Board of Health, which heretofore met in Sacramento, is permitted to hold meetings in any part of the State for the greater convenience of the people. Only the cases from Southern California were heard yesterday. These included adulteration of egg noodles, which contained less than one-fourth of the required amount of eggs; lemon juice adulterated with water; grape juice nectar, containing coal-tar dye; cotton-seed oil sold for seed oil; canned skipjack and yellowtail, decomposed and unfit for human consumption; camphorated oil, containing less than one-half the standard strength; citrate of magnesia, adulterated; raspberry and apple jelly made from unfit material and artificially colored with coal-tar dye; Mexican maple sugar, containing no maple; walnut meats, rancid and unfit for consumption.

A physician reported to the board that sewage from the outfall sewer was coming ashore at Hyperion. This matter was referred to the sanitary engineer's department.

CANNERIES ON LIST.

The bureau of foods and drugs has devoted a great deal of time to tomato canneries in an effort to get deliveries of good tomatoes and prevent the destruction of goods. Last year 1,000,000 cans were condemned. The investigation is just starting this year.

The members of the State Board of Health who officiated at yesterday's investigations were Dr. George E. Ebright of San Francisco, president; Dr. W. H. Kellogg of Sacramento, secretary; Dr. Robert Peers of Colfax; Dr. Adelaide Brown of San Francisco; Dr. William Le Mayne Wills of Los Angeles; John C. Macfarland, attorney for the board; Dr. E. J. Lea, and Miss E. Jaimme, head of the bureau of nurses. Dr. J. L. Pomeroy, county health officer, also was present.

The shortage of nurses and the consideration of means to supply the increasing demand for nursing service were discussed, representatives of various training schools taking part.

CATHOLIC INSTITUTES PLAN FOR NEW WORK.

SANTA MONICA ENTERTAINMENT IS FIRST STEP TOWARD NEW ORGANIZATIONS.

Elaborate plans have been made for an entertainment in the Knights of Columbus Auditorium, Santa Monica, Tuesday night, by the members of the Young Ladies' Institute and the Young Men's Institute of Los Angeles.

This entertainment is the initial step toward organizing in other near-by cities. As the Y.L.I. and Y.M.I. have strong organizations in the larger cities, it is their ambition to start institutes in the smaller communities.

Because this is a big undertaking the Los Angeles Y.L.I. and Y.M.I. have organized into a joint committee, whose personnel includes Edward Purpus, district deputy of the Y.M.I.; Miss Madeline Brush, district deputy of the Y.L.I.; Thomas Connoly, grand marshal of the Y.M.I., and Mrs. Kresick, Miss Genevieve Colgan and Miss Gertrude Powers of the Y.L.I. It is the object of this Organization Committee to establish the institute as far south as San Diego.

This plan already has been a big success in Los Angeles and in order to have the perfect co-operation of all the Y.L.I. and Y.M.I. of the city in the extension programme various committees have been appointed. Those on the Transportation Committee are Miss Clara Munger, Miss Marie Hill, Alex Malloy and Ed Regan. Miss Gertrude Powers, Miss Marie Coughlan and Thomas Briderick are on the Publicity Committee and Miss Katherine Kitly, Mrs. Celcelia Greenbaum, Walter Clurie, Alex Malley, F. Meston Donavan have charge of the entertainment features.

HOLD CAR OWNER FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

CORONER'S JURY LAYS BLAME FOR DEATH ON AUTO DRIVER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Oct. 4.—The body of Mrs. Mildred Cox, 28, who was fatally injured last night, when run down in Los Angeles by an automobile owned and driven by G. R. Willbaum, 1885 South El Molino, Pasadena, was brought to the Renaker funeral parlors in this city this afternoon. Mrs. Cox formerly lived here, and will be remembered by a large circle of friends, who knew her before her marriage, as Miss Mildred McNeal. Willbaum said to be responsible for her death, was today held on a charge of manslaughter, it being said that the testimony at the inquest indicated he had not used proper precaution in driving his car.

The accident occurred near the north end of the Broadway tunnel, Los Angeles, late last night, as Mrs. Cox was stepping to the curb after bidding good-by to a friend whom she had accompanied from her home at the Alhambra Hotel to the car line.

She was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where a major operation was performed in an effort to save her life, but she died at 4 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Cox and her husband, recently came to Los Angeles from Oakland. The husband, Edward E. Cox, is an employee of the Southern Pacific Company, and had just purchased a home in Los Angeles.

DISCRIMINATING ROBBERS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Oct. 4.—Four hundred dollars' worth of tires were taken by robbers last night, when they entered the Owl Tire and Rubber Shop, through a rear transom. Fifteen high-priced tires were in the lot, and the capacity of thieves' car was evidently limited, for they left nine casings on the rack, in addition to many used tires. The preferred sizes were 30x31-2; 30x3; 32x31-2; 32x4, and 33x4. Tires of larger size, including one "cord," were not disturbed.

COMPANY INCORPORATES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, Oct. 4.—Articles of incorporation for the Moorpark Farmers Water Company have been filed in the County Clerk's office here. The directors are three well-known ranchers of that section, E. R. Boyden, W. H. Thomas, and W. H. Taylor. The company is incorporated for $50,000.

RENDEZVOUS OF I.W.W. IN HILLS.

Prosecutor Finds Activities of Reds Center There.

Mountain Resort Hotel Taken Over by Agitators.

Investigator Goes There and Overhears All Plans.

Startling, new information will be placed before the county grand jury tomorrow when that body resumes its inquiry into the activities of the I.W.W. in this county. It was indicated yesterday, when it became known that the District Attorney has information regarding a rendezvous of agitators within a few hours' ride of Los Angeles. Propaganda for Southern California, according to the information, originates at this place, where 200 or more alleged I.W.W. are gathered.

Deputy District-Attorney Keyes, who is handling the prosecution of the criminal syndicalism cases to come up in the Superior Court on Tuesday, admitted yesterday that District Attorney's investigators have gathered important information regarding the I.W.W. agitation and propaganda at this rendezvous, which is said to be in the mountains, not far from Los Angeles. He declined to give the location. He admitted, however, that the information gained marks an important phase in the grand jury inquiry.

MEET AT HOTEL.

It was said that the I.W.W. activities in Los Angeles and other Southern California cities are organized at this place, believed to be a hotel in the mountains once patronized by fashionable guests, but now practically filled with I.W.W. It was learned that an attache in the District Attorney's office, while visiting the place, learned the purpose of the gathering of so many I.W.W. and reported the facts. Since then, it was said, investigators for the District Attorney have mingled with the agitators and learned many of their plans, in addition to gathering much evidence. The attache, it was said, was surprised that practically all conversation at meals there was regarding I.W.W. activities.

Though eleven of the twelve I.W.W., accused of criminal syndicalism, remained in the County Jail, the other produced the required $5000 bail yesterday. Mrs. Fania Steelik appeared in Judge Willis's court with five $1000 Liberty Bonds, which she deposited as bail for her husband, N. Steelik, one of the accused. Steelik, when booked, gave his occupation as a book-keeper and his age as 27. He was said to have been sent to Los Angeles to attend to the correspondence for the local I.W.W.

That not all I.W.W. are as poor as they would make it appear, was shown by the bail given by Steelik and the offer of Dan Chandler, also accused of criminal syndicalism, to produce bail of $2500 in cash. This latter offer was denied by Judge Willis. It was understood that the so-called "Labor Defense League of California" will furnish bail for many of those arrested, as well as retain attorneys for the defense.

VENTURA FAVORS LEAGUE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, Oct. 4.—One hundred out of 105 polled casually on Main street here yesterday favored the passage of the League of Nations without reservations. Four of the other five were for reservations. The fifth was opposed to any sort of league and believed that Hiram Johnson is on the right track.

Mayor Dimmick received a request from the League of Nations headquarters in Los Angeles for the poll and Judge W. E. Shepherd conducted it.

The board of county Supervisors and the board of trustees had both previously gone on record in favor of the league.

BURGLAR ALARM SAVES BIG LOSS.

VENTURA JEWELRY STORE IS INVADED BUT NOTHING STOLEN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, Oct. 4.—R. W. Cummings saved his $50,000 stock of jewelry and cut glass in his Main street store by a home-made burglar alarm last night.

For the past ten years, Mr. Cummings has spent a laborious fifteen minutes every night before shutting up his store, winding a long thread in and out of his counters, an improvised burglar alarm so constructed that on breaking the thread a revolver would be discharged and a red light turned on. It was an ingenious device and last night it worked

On entering his store this morning Mr. Cummings found that the thread was broken, the revolver had been discharged and from the skylight hung a rope. But nothing had been touched and evidently the burglar had made the quickest getaway he could. The rope, itself, however, furnishes an unmistakable clue to the identity of the burglar, the officers assert, and it is believed an arrest will follow shortly. The rope was an unusual one and had been stolen from the County Fair Association.

BUSINESS MEN ELECT.

Chamber of Commerce Chooses Officers and Starts Campaign.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HEMET, Oct. 4.—The board of directors of the Hemet Chamber of Commerce has elected the following officers: I. E. Farrar, president; Walter A. Carr, vice-president; Louis M. Jackson, secretary; J. O. Percival, treasurer. The following compose the board of directors, Dr. J. B. Weston, W. S. Rather, Burdetts Raynor, I. E. Farrar, Walter A. Carr, Louis M. Jackson, and J. O. Pervical. Dr. Oren B. Waite will be in charge of the drive for the increased membership in the valley. One of the first things that will engage the attention of the chamber is the securing of a good road from the Fruitvale district and the committee appointed is to interview the county commissioners on the subject at once. It is also planned to request the city to erect a comfort station on a triangular spot of land belonging to the city, near Florida avenue.

TO BRING PASTOR INTO COURT HERE.

DOMESTIC TROUBLES IN MINISTER'S FAMILY LEAD TO DIVORCE ACTION.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HEMET, Oct. 4.—That her husband, an adventist minister, made life unendurable for her by forbidding her to eat meat, use rouge or powder or to wear clothes cut according to modern styles is the claims made by Mrs. Anderson, whose husband is said to have assaulted W. M. Murray a few days ago.

Mrs. Anderson claims that the breaking point came when her husband insisted on two hours per day of Bible study. She left him and went to Los Angeles where she is a practicing physician.

About a week ago she returned for her children accompanied by W. M. Murray as she feared violence on the part of her husband. Her husband, according to her account, met her at the door and slapped her face, and then attempted to assault Murray with a chair. Murray who is something of a prizefighter retaliated by thrashing Anderson, knocking out some of his teeth. Attorney Ford of Los Angeles, who [illegible] representing Mrs. Anderson in the case, will ask for a change of venue to Los Angeles, when the case comes up in the police court here, and Mrs. Anderson has already asked for a divorce.

GET BIG PAY CHECKS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HEMET, Oct. 4.—The largest check ever paid to a peach cutter in a canning factory was drawn last week in favor of an Indian woman, Mrs. Pachita of the Saboba reservation, who received for six days work $60.20. Great Events Cast Their Shadows Before

THE WILLYS CORPORATION, headed by Mr. John N. Willys, has recently added to its resources the magnificent manufacturing plants, patents, equipment and manufacturing talent of the Duesenberg Corporation of Elizabeth, N. J.

New construction will greatly increase the size and capacity of this large plant.

The Willys Corporation needs this immense plant for the production of a new and remarkable automobile—a Six cylinder car which marks a great forward development in the industry.

The new Six is fully developed, its most important features having had over 200,000 miles of the most painstaking and strenuous road tests, extending over a period of more than two years. The car contains engineering features not embraced in any other six cylinder car. It is a climax of long experience in the manufacturing and distributing of motor cars; is standardized and will be produced in large quantities.

New principles of construction give the car unusual lightness of weight with perfect balance, and exceptional road ability. The car is fully equipped. Heretofore, engineering and manufacturing restrictions have placed a price upon six cylinder cars which has kept them out of the reach of thousands. For this reason, the New Six has an enormous field.

WILLYS CORPORATION

The Willys Corporation is one of the largest manufacturing concerns in the automobile industry. It owns and operates the Electric Auto-Lite business and also the New Process Gear business.

The Electric Auto-Lite business is, in itself, a vast industry, having to date manufactured and sold more than 1,400,000 sets of starting and lighting systems for automobiles. Orders and specifications are in hand for 4,000 outfits per day, beginning January, 1920. This Corporation also manufactures the well-known Willys Light house and farm lighting outfit which has the unique advantage of being operated by the Willys Knight Motor. Orders for 20,000 Willys Light outfits to be delivered in 1920 were received in the month of August alone.

The New Process Gear branch of the Willys Corporation is one of the largest producers of gears in the country, manufacturing many types of gears used in automobile transmissions and differentials.

A third plant owned and operated by the Willys Corporation is located at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., formerly owned by the FIAT Automobile Company.

All these plants contribute as sources of supplies for the new car.

Booklet giving further information about the plans and the new car program of the Willys Corporation will be sent on request.

WOUNDED NOW STUDENTS.

Hundreds of Disabled Soldiers Training Here for Work They Like.

Disabled soldiers of Southern California and Arizona are being well cared for by the Government Vocational Training Bureau, according to G. Vernon Bennett, supervisor of the work for this district, who has just returned from an inspection trip to Arizona.

Since the Vocational Training Bureau was opened in this city 300 men have been sent to the several training stations and schools. During the past fifteen days seventy-five more men have been approved for vocational training in this district and all of these will have begun their new work within a short time, it was announced yesterday.

Disabled soldiers get approval for vocational training by applying to the local bureau, 625 Merchants' Trust Building. Here the men state the cause of their disabilities, outline the kind of work they prefer, and tell what they were doing before the war.

HOW PLAN WORKS.

A corps of assistants, trained in psychology, and knowing how to fit the men in the right places, interview each disabled man, and make a recommendation to the district office at San Francisco. There the reports and recommendations are carefully gone over again, and if the findings of the local office are concurred in the report is sent to the central office at Washington, where they are again examined and if approved, the local office is instructed to place the man in the proper training station school or college.

It is a remarkable fact, Mr. Bennett says, that only three cases have been discovered where the applicant was not entitled to help.

Applications for training have been pouring into the local office during the past few days, Mr. Bennett stated yesterday. "Upon my return from Arizona," he said, "I found that applications were being received at the rate of eight a day. These are being approved by this office, the district office at San Francisco and the central office at the rate of five a day, which is an excellent showing in comparison to the rest of the United States. Our entire staff is busy getting the men out into educational institutions or into business and industrial establishments where they receive a living wage while being trained for some good work.

"The government pays all men in the vocational training. Single men get $80 a month while learning, married men get $100 a month, and $10 a month additional for one child, $7.50 each for two children and $5 a month for each child in addition to the two.

TRAINING MANY NOW.

"In this way over $25,000 a month is being paid to disabled soldiers in this city, and at the same time the men are learning some good vocation they can follow for the remainder of their lives. All this money is spent right here in Los Angeles. There are at present over 200 men receiving vocational training in Southern California and we expect to double that number within a few months."

As a result of the Congressional appropriation, a great many of the Southern California men who have been waiting a long time for the approval of their cases are now receiving training. This number is to be increased right along.

The following men have been approved for training within the past two weeks: Henry W. Rohra, Carl F. Linneman, Bascom Montgomery, Alma E. Ramseyer, Harry E. Curtis, William E. Jenney, Leo J. Murphy, Ernest Puryear, Paul B. Smith, Walter B. Stockett, Fred Abernathy, Frank G. Whalen, Charles S. Stockwell, Alfred T. Barr, Leigh H. Crosby, Franklin B. Filkey, Buron R. DAILY TRADE TALK.

Week in Review; Morris Plan Report; Stock Market; Business News.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

The business week locally was without especial feature. There has been a continuation of activity; a good market in every line; an increase of receipts, and a somewhat improved freight condition. The early fall advance guard of the army of winter tourists is arriving, and hotels are booking reservations far in advance.

There has been an uneven rent increase dating from the first of the month that appears to have ranged from 10 to 25 per cent. The housing problem is serious. Lumber production is now exceeding the demand, and dealers look hopefully for a decline in prices. This would stimulate building, but we are too far behind to catch up in one season.

Labor is fully employed, even a considerable importation having been readily assimilated. Retail trade is excellent, and the demand for high-grade materials continues. Money seems to be plentiful and collections are good. The bond market is in good shape, especially with reference to municipals. In stocks the chief activity is in oils which are favorites with Los Angeles investors.

There is not much of an encouraging nature to be said regarding a lower food price level. Butter and eggs are higher. Milk is higher. Beef and pork have strengthened, and we are definitely promised an increase in the cost of sugar. The flurry occasioned by the government's proposal to investigate and punish profiteers has passed and although from various centers come reports of increased production and lessening food exports the fact remains that there has been little reflection of such a condition in the retail market.

There is no doubt that there is profiteering; perhaps speculating would be the better word. Lessening of output and raising of wages has provided all the excuse that was needed by many. A big Northwestern logging concern reports that the increase of wages as compared with 100 per cent. in 1915 is 224 per cent. and that production per man per hour is only 45 per cent. in 1919 as compared with 100 per cent. in 1915. It is becoming more and more apparent that it is to a correction of this fundamental condition we must look for any real decrease in living cost.

Morris Plan Prospers.

Concluding its second year of business, the Los Angeles Morris Plan Company of which W. H. Workman, Jr., is general manager, yesterday issued to its stockholders a statement of condition at the close of business, September 30, showing assets of $844,609.37, and revealing a steady and consistent growth.

Of this sum the Morris Plan loans total $705,127.20; loans — other plans $28,000; United States Liberty Bonds and United States certificates of indebtedness, $78,754. Furniture and fixtures stand valued at $10,299.97. Unpaid stock subscriptions are held in the amount of $1345.37; interest accrued at $5099.38, and the reported assets include cash on hand and in bank in the sum of $15,988.45.

Liabilities are given as follows: Capital stock, $500,000; payments on installment certificates, $293,089.12; investment certificates outstanding, $5400; subscription to Liberty Bonds by borrowers, $300; contingent reserve, $2618.06; Industrial Finance Corporation, $870. Discounts collected, unearned, amount to $21,206.16, and surplus and reserves total $21,126.19.

The Morris Plan Company's healthful growth may be taken as indicative of the stability of local conditions, since in most part the loans negotiated through this source are in the interests of thrift and ambition. This fact is upheld by the records of the company showing as objectives for loans, first payments on homes, funds for furnishing homes or making improvements, as well as for the meeting of financial emergencies.

In view of this report of condition it is highly probable that the directors of the Morris Plan will put the company on a dividend basis in January.

The Stock Market.

The market yesterday was in good shape for the short call, and the week ended in much better tone than it commenced, and with a more optimistic outlook. Associated Oil still held the stage center of activity, and was the leader throughout the trading. This stock opened at 99 and then moved up to 99.25, where it closed. There is still a widespread belief that accumulation of this listing is going forward on a large scale. Union Oil opened at 173.50, moved up a quarter of a point and held steadily at 173.75 through a fair amount of trading. Industrials were all steady with Hawaiian Sugar registering a three-point advance to 59.25 and featuring the industrial side of the market. The sugar wise assert that this is but the beginning of a marked upward movement in this commodity which will increase as the shortage becomes more acute later in the season. Tom Reed was the most active and consistent performer among the mines, holding steady through quite a large volume of trading at 1.75. It was the only one of the mines to attract any attention. The day and week may be summarized; business fair, prices and volume good. Victory Bonds were sold at 99.75 and Fourth, 4¼'s from 94 to 93.87½. Bank clearings for the day were $7,856,371.79, an increase over the corresponding day in 1918 of $2,816,378.71. It was the first day of the month the clearings fell below $8,000,000.

Listing Californias.

Application has been for listing Southern California Edison on the New York Stock Exchange. Also Union Oil Company, temporary certificates for 1,000,000 shares of capital stock without nominal or par value.

Silks and Satins.

Since the war there has been a great demand for silks and satins. Persons who found the less expensive fabrics all-sufficient a few years ago are now demanding the luxurious textures, and local dealers have been hard put to in meeting this demand. As a result the situation in the silk industry has developed into a problem of vital importance, and it is predicted by those in close touch with this trade that the highest prices ever known for silks will soon make their appearance. In the face of this probability the new season promises to be the biggest ever known. Every silk manufacturer will have a ready market for every yard of silk he can produce, and more.

Navy Purchasing.

The industrial department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce has taken up energetically the question of securing for this city a navy purchasing office, but a recent communication from the Navy Department declines to accede to the request. The Pacific Coast Navy purchases are made at Puget Sound, Washington and San Francisco. The committee suggests that the best way to hasten the establishing of a navy purchasing office in Los Angeles is to impress upon our large concerns the desirability of doing business with the navy through the present available sources. When the volume of this business is great enough to warrant, the Chamber of Commerce, will be in a better position to secure the purchasing office.

The Lumber Market.

Only 4.1 per cent. of the total lumber production of the United States was exported in 1918, according to recent government figures which prove how unfounded is the statement reported to have been made that "our forests are being drained to support foreign factories. In 1918 the government figures give somewhat more than 1,300,000,000 feet of lumber exported out of an estimated production of 32,000,000,000 feet. Of these exports about 110,000,000 feet was in railroad ties, not quite as much in hewn and sawed timber, while over 1,000,000,000 feet was in the form of boards, planks and deals. The per capita consumption of lumber is greatest in the newer States. Montana, for instance had a per capita consumption of 1234 board feet, while New York had only 206, and Pennsylvania 293 board feet. It is quite probable that the unusual building activity this year, especially in dwellings, will raise the per capita consumption for 1919, even in the older States. Wood is being used more intensively than formerly, and less wood is being consumed as fuel.

Cable Service.

There has been no improvement in the cable service to the Orient since the subject was last discussed in this column, and as a result some local houses have been seriously inconvenienced, a condition which is more aggravated in other places where the export and import interests are greater. Delay via wireless to Manila at the present time is said to be indefinite. Delay to the Orient averages nineteen hours; from the Orient, twenty hours; Honolulu, five hours. The rate to the Philippines via Commercial Pacific cable has been reduced 20 cents per word, and to China, 22 cents per word.

Citizens Branch Bank.

The new Wilshire district, Western avenue branch of the Citizens' Trust and Savings Bank, which was opened for public inspection yesterday afternoon and evening was visited by hundreds of the bank's friends, and by residents of the community to be served, who were appreciative of the facilities afforded and confident that the bank will fill a district need. The branch is located at 209 South Western avenue.

CLOSING PRICES FIRM ON PRODUCE MARKET.

EGGS AT HIGHEST PRICE NOW; SCARCITY MAY CAUSE BUTTER TO ADVANCE.

Active trading characterized the dealings on the floor of the local produce market yesterday. Although the early morning arrivals were heavy, the demand was good, with retailers and peddlers out in force, and throughout the morning produce sold readily at Friday's figures. Active competition between the retailers and the wholesale men during the early hours tended to hold the market up. During the later hours, with the demand less active, the farmers sold at prices fractionally lower, but the tone of the closing market was strong on nearly all lines, with prices holding at about Friday's closing figures.

Tomatoes declined in price yesterday, owing to heavy arrivals and the generally poorer quality of yesterday's offerings, shipping stock held at about steady, with supply scarce, and demand active, but other grades fell from 5 to 10 cents per lug. At the end of the day's trading many of the farmers were forced to sell at even greater reductions in order to clean up their supplies. Lettuce continued weak, selling at 70 and 80 cents per crate for the most part. Fancy and shipping stock held firm at Friday's figures, but the supply of this grade was very light. Celery held at about steady, although there was little first-class quality available. Cranberries continued to sell at Friday's quotations, with another car on hand from Massachusetts.

Arrivals in northwestern apples yesterday were heavy, with four cars from Utah, one from Washington, and three from Oregon. The market for the northwestern product was firm, but price weakness appeared for the California varieties. There are very few crab apples on the market, the season for this variety being about over.

Quinces were down 15 cents per box, with demand very light and movement only moderate. The recent arrivals have been of very good quality, but they are a little heavier than the local trade can bear, which causes price to show weakness.

Cantaloupes, with the peak of the shipping season well passed, and the arrivals on the local market very light, have advanced in price. Yesterday's lowest price was $1.35 per crate, while the fancy grades, which are scarce, brought from $1.50 to $1.75.

The price for potatoes advanced yesterday on the carlot market, although the advance was not reflected in the prices to retailers, which held at $3 and $3.25. On the carlot market they sold at $2.85, rising as high as $3 for the extra fancy grades. The arrivals from the northern districts were heavier than they have been for several days, reached almost normal. If the arrivals continue in these proportions the upward trend of the market will probably be checked, and prices will hold at about the present level.

Butter and eggs, at the present prices, are 15 per cent. higher than they were at this time last year, F. M. Hudson, secretary of the local Produce Exchange, says that the extreme high point for the price of eggs for this year is reached, and the surplus eggs that are now going into storage will prevent prices from going higher. Butter, however, may go even higher, says Mr. Hudson on account of its scarcity. During the war many of the farmers, unable to get farm hands sold their herds and discontinued the manufacture of butter. This has reduced the available supply, and until the labor situation is relieved, there will be little improvement. There will be no shortage of butter this year, says Mr. Hudson, but while the present heavy demand continues, there will be scarcity and high prices.

What is Your Greatest Fear?

SOME people fear old age; others fear death and still others fear that they will lose their property, but with most people, the greatest fear is that they will not have sufficient to provide for old age.

Financial losses at any time are to be deplored, but particularly so as a person grows older and the chances of the recovery from loss becomes less. Our GUARANTEED FIRST MORTGAGE CERTIFICATES have proven eminently satisfactory in all regards. They evidence the ownership of selected first mortgages on real estate, their payment guaranteed—this is the only company in Los Angeles permitted by law to guarantee the payment of mortgagees.

Your principal is always safe—your income always certain. There is a satisfaction about holding these Certificates that is probably not enjoyed in any other investment. They can be bought for any amount from $500 up to many thousands.

Our officers are always pleased to answer questions or to give added information.

Money in Oil

Do you wish to make some of the money that is now being made in oil? If you do, join me. I know the business from A to Z. Have been in every oil boom during the last 25 years, and made money. Am responsible and reliable to the fullest extent. I am organizing a small syndicate and need $15,000 more capital. I have worked out a plan where you can invest, without fear of any loss, and where your chances to win are as good as the best—in fact, this can't be beat. No stock-selling. We buy the land, and sell to Eastern promoters at a high price. Sale of land already arranged, at a price to give us a big profit and a royalty. Subscriptions taken $1000 or over. Address

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Stocks recovered in variable degree today from the sharp reversal of the previous session, extensive short covering and some buying for the long account being induced by better news concerning President Wilson's condition.

Rails were conspicuous features on a renewal of the midweek demand, transcontinentals, Grangers and coalers leading on the pronounced strength of Southern Pacific, St. Paul common and preferred and Reading.

Oils made gains on the strength of Mexican Petroleum, tobacco was hesitant but improved toward the end and American Woolen, motor subsidiaries and several of the food groups made irregular advances. Sales amounted to 475,000 shares.

Another moderate increase of actual reserve in the clearing-house statement brought the total excess of that item up almost to $4,000,000, against the deficit of $53,000,000, reported a fortnight ago. Bonds were firm. Liberty bonds were steady, internationals featureless. Total sales, par value, $6,750,000.

Old United States bonds were unchanged on call during the week.

STEWART STOCKS ARE ONLY MARKET FEATURE

DESIRE OF POOL INTERESTS TO BOOST PRICES BRINGS THE ACTIVITY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Trading in local stocks for the week-end centered largely in Stewart Manufacturing, over 3200 shares changing hands on an advance of 3¼ points to 54⅛. There was nothing to account for the activity other than the desire of pool interests to see the stock go higher. Otherwise the market was without feature and transactions were of limited volume. DECLINE IS STEADY ON COTTON MARKET.

COLDER WEATHER PROSPECTS IN SOUTH ARE PRACTICALLY IGNORED.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Practically ignoring the prospects for colder weather in the South on the idea that it would not mean any killing frosts, the cotton market was lower again this morning. It opened unchanged to 10 points off and soon declined about 15 to 17 points under last night's close. By 10:15 o'clock the local market was about 18 to 20 points under last night's close.

Liverpool was selling on the break, which extended to 30.60 cents later in the morning or 45 points net lower.

FINANCIAL AND TRADE REVIEW.

various vehicles passing a given point on Michigan boulevard. The census covered a twelve-hour period during which time 20,150 automobiles passed the block, twenty-nine motor trucks and twenty-five horse-drawn vehicles. A similar census taken at Seventh and Broadway would be interesting.

Street Railway Fares.

Since the publication by the American Railway Association in March of the fare increases in the cities of the United States, several additions and changes have become effective. The fare in New Jersey has been reduced to 6 cents and again advanced to its former level, 7 cents, plus 1 cent for transfer. Three hundred and eighty-nine cities, having more than 55 per cent. of the urban population of the country, are now paying increased rates. Of this total twenty-nine cities are paying a 10 cent fare; nineteen an 8 cent fare; 100 a 7 cent fare, seventeen of which pay an additional 1 cent for each transfer, and 164 are paying a 6 cent fare. Fares in the remainder have been increased either by a reduction in the length of zones, the adoption of a zone system, the abolition of reduced rate tickets, or a charge for transfers.

Fuel Oil Advance?

Henry L. Doherty & Co's., Investment Bulletin says that a general rise in fuel oil prices is justified by its present uses in the belief of many oil men. Due to the important position of gasoline in the industry during the last fifteen years, the value of certain other products has been lost sight of. Only lately have the larger oil companies taken up seriously the importance of fuel oil, its usefulness during the war being the main reason for its present recognition as an important fuel product.

Oil Well Development.

The number of new oil wells started drilling, as reported to the State Oil and Gas Supervisor last week, is slightly in excess of that for any previous week during the year. The total is nineteen; nine being in Kern county, six near Los Angeles, and four in Coalinga. Maintenance work, in the form of deepening or redrilling, is also above the average, there being twenty-one such jobs under way. Tests of water shutoff number twenty-one, and abandonments five.

Our Trade With Belgium.

When King Albert landed upon United States soil he greeted one of Belgium's best customers from the standpoint of international trade. Our trade with Belgium since 1900 has aggregated considerably over $1,000,000,000, of which more than one-third has been in the form of imports and approximately two-thirds were exports thereto. Our principal imports from Belgium in normal years, according to a statement by the National City Bank, of New York, consisted of diamonds, India rubber, wool, glass, hides of cattle, manufactures of flax, silk yarns, cotton and silk laces, ivory, nickel, ore, and a large number of minor articles, chiefly manufactures. Our exports to that country in 1914, the latest normal year, consisted chiefly of cotton, wheat, meats mineral, oils, tobacco and lumber.

Failures Decrease.

Bradstreet reports eighty-six failures for the week as compared with 116 for the preceding week and 161 facilures for the corresponding week a year ago.

Development News

CONTINENTAL Oil and Refining Company

The shares of this Company, from a conservative point of view, possess those many advantageous requisites in concise and final form to present the investor who acquires the shares of a strictly business opportunity, to join in the development of a company already producing oil in large quantities. Also to become a participant in the successful results of an especially well prepared drilling and development campaign.

It Is Not Too Late for You to Reap Large Profits in Continental O. & R. Stock!

Action, however, will be necessary on the part of the investor, as shares are firm in their upward trend. The CONTINENTAL OIL & REFINING COMPANY is now classed among the unusual companies in the oil development field. CONTINENTAL OIL & REFINING COMPANY will continue to combine diversified and scientific methods in proving up its large acreage.

Continental Holdings in Heart of Producing Sections of the Famous Oil Fields

The Company owns forty acres in the heart of Butler County, Kansas (Eldorado Field); two hundred acres in Chatanqua County, Kansas; four hundred sixty seven acres in Claiborne Parish near Homer, La. The Borealis Oil Company has block 10, of section 88 in the Northwest extension of the Burkburnett Field of Texas. This latter Company also has forty acres in Butler County, Kansas, and fourteen hundred and seventy-three acres in Chatauqua County, Kansas.

Continental Owns and Controls Borealis Oil Co.

The Continental and Borealis Company are about to acquire eight acres in the northwest extension of the Burkburnett. This property has one well flowing two thousand barrels daily and two more have already reached the oil bearing sands. In addition two wells are drilling and should be completed in thirty days.

Continental O. & R. Co. earnings should amount to over $100,000 monthly and be increased to $500,000 monthly in thirty to sixty days.

Continental Has Liberal and Consistent Dividend Policy—Pays 1½% Monthly on Par

A dividend policy of 1½% monthly on all of the outstanding shares of the corporation is now being carried out. However, recent advices are in effect that a substantial increase in the dividend rate should materialize at any time. The Company is well in a position through its large and increased earning power and small outstanding stock, to increase this dividend as soon as they consider it good business policy to authorize such increase.

Continental has told its own convincing story!
—efficiency in management, realization of honest endeavor, added aggressiveness in drilling operations, choice locations in best and biggest territory in oil producing sections and

CITRUS REVIEW FOR WEEK.

The demand for fancy Valencia oranges is strong throughout the eastern markets. Dealers report the movement of oranges from stores and fruit stands as increasing now that the supply of fresh summer fruits is decreasing.

The car situation is somewhat better and shippers were able to get out a total of 445 cars of Valencias the past seven days as against 345 cars the previous week.

The rain that fell during the first part of last week was beneficial to citrus groves. Picking was halted for several days, but all packing houses had large supplies of fruit and no let-up in shipping resulted.

F.o.b. California quotations are on a basis of $5.25 per box for Orange county Valencias and $5 for fruit from other districts.

The new navel crop is coming on nicely. The crop is expected to run about the same as the past season in volume, but it will be another thirty days before any accurate estimates can be had. The Valencia crop promises to run 15 per cent. short of this season's output.

Early Florida oranges are expected to begin moving about October 20, according to latest reports from that State. Central California navels will probably begin to move thirty days later, or about November 20.

LEMONS.

The market on California lemons is strong and higher, with a splendid demand reported from all markets.

Delivered prices are on a basis of $7 to $7.50 per. F.o.b. California quotations range from $6.50 to $6.

There are 320 cars of California lemons in storage as against 340 cars at the corresponding period last season and 188 cars two years ago.

There are 65,000 boxes of foreign lemons on hand and available for sale within the next thirty days.

CORN ADVANCES AFTER WEAKNESS AT OUTSET.

LIFT FOR OATS IS COUNTERBALANCED BY THE WEEK-END REALIZING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Corn advanced in price today, notwithstanding that considerable weakness prevailed at the outset. Gossip that a bill would be introduced in Congress to restore the import duty on corn was to some extent responsible for the advance. Prices closed firm, ¼@1¼ cents net higher, with December $1.24@1.24¼ and May $1.22@1.22¼. Oats gained ¼@⅜@½. In provisions the outcome ranged from 30 decline to a rise of 50.

The downward tendency shown by the corn market around the opening appeared to be due chiefly to fear of Argentine competition, uncertainty over President's Wilson's illness. Activity of seaboard demand for oats was the first strengthening factor.

The weakness of country offerings operated also as a bullish influence. Big sales to the seaboard lifted the oats market. The effect, though, was subsequently counterbalanced in a measure by week-end realizing.

ONE "Main Chance"

Frank Oil Co.

Has FIVE "Main Chances"

We wish that we might indelibly and clearly impress on your most thoughtful judgment and conviction that we earnestly, honestly feel that each one of these five oil land holdings, in five different fields, is a "main chance" in itself; that any one of the above properties offers what we believe is an unusually bright chance to develop a flow of oil more valuable than the entire capitalization of $150,000 of the Frank Oil Co.

One 500-barrel well on any single holding would be worth, in annual income, twice or three times the Company's total capitalization.

One Share of Stock Covers All These Properties

Louisiana oil field news the past week brought our 26 acres in the Red River Parish conspicuously in the foreground. Another "gusher" just south of our Louisiana tract was "brought in," which further confirms all the good things we have said of this newest holding. A contract for a rig was made last Wednesday and actual drilling is promised by the 25th of this month.

THIS WILL MAKE TWO DIFFERENT WELLS ACTUALLY DRILLING FOR OIL

It should not be difficult for any calculating mind to realize what we mean when we insist that we believe the Frank Oil Company—with its five holdings and small capitalization—is "in a class by itself."

Oil Investment Problem Analyzed

An Open Letter to the Public:

An Answer to the Important Question:

"What shall I do, with my small capital, to take advantage of TODAY'S marvelous opportunities to make a fortune legitimately out of the spreading oil rigs in virgin oil fields of Texas?"

We, the people of North America, are experiencing the most sensational "money-making craze" perhaps in the continent's history.

Unprecedented discoveries and developments of one of Nature's most priceless hidden treasures—a liquid fuel and a valuable lubricant, in one—namely, petroleum oil, have excited us, in varying degrees. We all are growing a little more anxious, day by day, to learn and know how we, too, may "make some money" out of these new discoveries and spreading developments.

Fuel, a member of that indispensable quartette of human necessities—food, fuel, clothing and shelter—enjoys a "demand" that never fails. A liquid fuel, therefore, that bursts from the ground, or "natural oil," has no successful rival in meeting that "demand," which is limited only by the population of the earth.

Millions, billions, have been made from "oil."

America's greatest individual fortune and "only billionaire" sprang direct from "oil."

"Oil" is a greater fortune builder than "gold" because it "flows from the ground," practically at no expense, once its storehouse is tapped by human ingenuity.

Texas has become the great focusing point in the present growing "oil craze." Virgin oil fields of a year and a half ago, are literally crowded, almost like houses in city lots and blocks, with drilling or pumping "rigs" or derricks.

Ranger, Burkburnett, Burkburnett Northwest Extension, Desdemona—names unknown 18 months ago—are known around the world today. Millions in dollars have "flowed" from beneath their land squarely into the out-stretched hands of thousands of "small investors," who "took a chance," but "invested wisely."

"Oil," unlike any other treasure of Nature, offers multitudes of "little investors" an equal chance to "invest wisely," and to make fortunes, for the plain reason that "oil treasures" are not confined to any small piece of land. The "oil" lies, in great pools, under countless thousands of acres of land.

Every "acre," therefore, that overlies an "oil pool," even though the "oil right" is owned by a "little investor," has just as great an investment—or speculative—value as if it were owned by a great "oil monopoly." If the "oil monopoly" might happen later to want it, it will always "pay the price," because every one of such "acres" has a recognized "market price," according to how "close" it is to profitable, producing wells, or how bodly it stands in the way of spreading "rigs" or derricks.

Every "wisely selected" acre, therefore, is an "opportunity" all its own.

Hundreds, thousands of men and women, knowing nothing of "oil," of "oil investments," or of "oil rights," are today straining their eyes to see how they, too, may make a "little investment"—of just a few dollars, maybe—so that they, too, may enjoy their share of these continuing flows of millions, which steadily, irresistibly, day by day, hour by hour, are spreading to other "new" or "virgin" fields. They realize the need of thinking quickly, of acting quickly, if they do not lose "another opportunity," the same as they have lost their "opportunity" of six months, twelve months and eighteen months ago.

Two avenues are opened widely to the oil-investing public—"oil company stocks" and "oil land leases." One avenue leads in a distinctly different direction than the other. "Oil company stocks" is the usual avenue traveled by the investor, big or little.

The "wise investors" in "Texas oil"—those who have fallen heir over night to the really fabulous fortunes—have made their money, however, by going down the other avenue—by making "small investments" in "oil land leases."

While both "avenues" possess merit, it is emphasized that the "lease" is more desirable, both from the standpoint of "safety" and of "more certain profit" on "little investments."

In "stock," the risk of principal—or the speculation—is, we believe, more than doubled, first, because of the risk as to "integrity" and "ability" of management, and, second, because of risk as to "productiveness" of the land to be drilled.

In "leasing," there is but one risk—that of "productiveness."

All investments in "stock" of Texas companies have not proven profitable and the "little investor" who has put in a few dollars in "oil stock" and has taken out a fortune is a strong exception to the rule.

On the other hand, practically every man or woman, big or little, who has "leased" land anywhere in the "great range" now recognized as "producing," has made "big money." The fabulous fortunes, we believe, without exception, have been made from "leasing."

By "owning a lease" yourself, you become your own manager, board of directors, etc., and you can trust yourself better than anyone else. You can do what you please with "your own lease," just as you can with a city lot or any piece of property to which you hold separate, individual title. If spreading "rigs" get closer and closer to "your lease," there are hundreds of men in Texas today who will know it as quickly as you do. That is their business, just like a real estate man in a land boom. If you want to "sell," you are tied to no one except your judgment. If you want to "hold" for better offers, you may do so. If you want to drill or form a company, you may do so.

The important question, therefore, with the reader, is:

"How may I, with a limited amount to 'invest in oil,' become a 'leaser,' with any degree of assurance that 'my lease' is in the direct 'trend of development?' How may I do, today, about the same thing that the 'little investors' of Ranger, of Burkburnett, of Burkburnett Northwest Extension and of Desdemona have done during the last six to eighteen months?"

"Opportunities" to do this are growing more rare, where a man or woman, with a few dollars, say $50 to $100, can secure a "lease," in the hope of making $10,000 to $250,000 out of it. "Leases" now open to the public, cover, in most cases, entire ranches, which in Texas, often means thousands of acres. To get anything desirable, therefore, in "direct trend of development," it is almost necessary to invest several thousands of dollars and to buy big tracts.

This is exactly what we have done. We have bought a large tract, known as "Good Luck Oil Tract," and now are subdividing it into smaller tracts for "little investors." The smaller tracts, or "lots," are five acres each, big enough to duplicate the fortune-making experiences of the older fields, where acres have sold for $50,000 each. The "lease" of these five-acre "lots" sells for $50, in small installments.

"Good Luck Oil Tract" is in the direct pathway of the "trend of development" from these older fields. It is squarely on the "oil derrick highway" that heads from Desdemona, Ranger, Burkburnett, Burkburnett Northwest Extension, straight toward our tract. Drilling rigs are close to our door. Gas and oil are being "brought in" in our general direction.

Every day the "spreading rigs" draw closer to "Good Luck Oil Tract." Every day the "opportunity" grows brighter — but shorter. It is a "Today Opportunity."

The "Good Luck Oil Tract," in our best judgment, affords the best "oil chance," or speculation, that there is in Texas—or the world—today; that is, for those with only a little money to invest. We would like the opportunity of presenting all of the facts and arguments sustaining this claim, and, upon receipt of the coupon below, maps, plats, and full particulars will be mailed promptly.

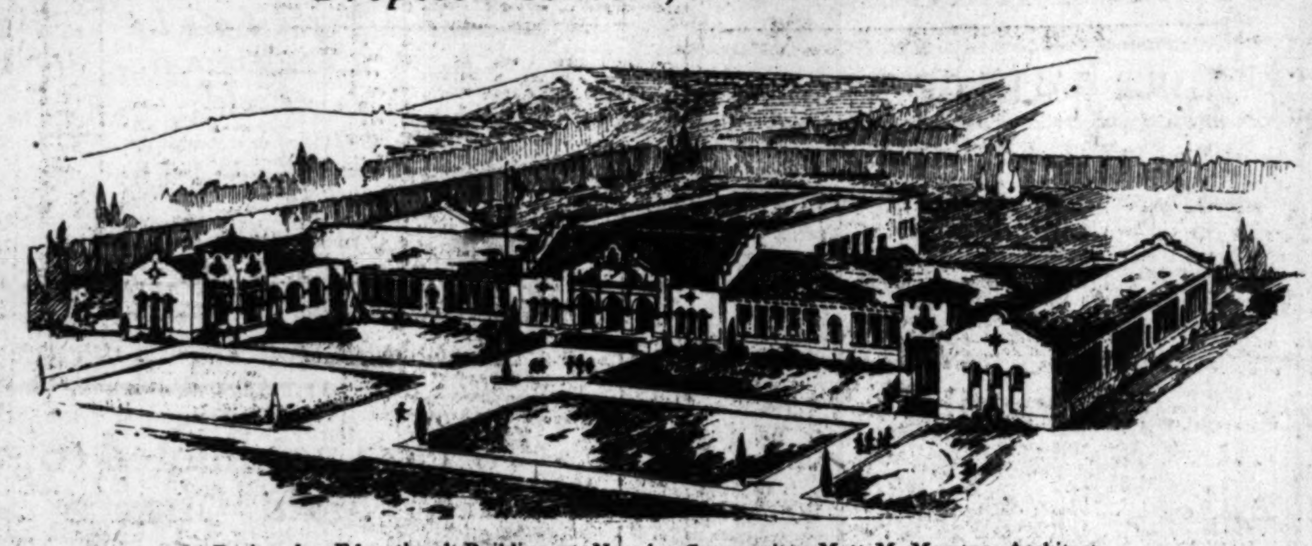
Proposed School for Montebello.



Design for Educational Building at Near-by Community; Mott M. Marston, Architect.

PLAN NEW SCHOOL FOR MONTEBELLO.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLAR STRUCTURE NEEDED TO MEET GROWTH.

To meet the demand for additional school facilities at Montebello, a new $100,000 structure will soon be erected there in accordance with plans which the local educational authorities have recently developed. The proposal is to erect the building at the Washington-street site, the funds to be raised at a bond election which will be held in the near future.

Architect Mott M. Marston has prepared preliminary plans calling for a Spanish style building in the form of the extended letter E. The center wing is two stories in height and contains the auditorium, stage, teachers' and rest rooms on the second floor. Below the auditorium are the domestic science, manual training and kindergarten departments. The rest of the building is one story and contains twelve classrooms, principal's office and library.

A shelter on each side of the auditorium between the wings provides protection and ample playroom space for children during rainy weather. The construction will be hollow tile walls with stucco exterior. The roof will be of Spanish tyle.

Montebello has recently recorded considerable growth because of the increased oil activity in that section, and its present school accommodations are considerably overtaxed, according to the local school authorities.

WEEK'S WALL STREET REVIEW.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The steel strike, stringent money conditions with call loans fluctuating between 6 and 15 per cent. and increasing anxiety regarding the health of the country's Chief Executive determined the course of this week's active but very irregular stock market.

Of these factors the latter was perhaps the most effective in causing a sharp reaction from the higher trend of the early week.

Rails were intermittently active and strong, but all fell back in the reaction yesterday.

The investment situation was the most encouraging feature.

Leading mercantile agencies refer to the "progressive shrinkage in certain lines of trade," but record bank clearings continued to be made at the leading reserve centers.

SECURITY GETS TWO HOLLYWOOD BANKS.

INSTITUTIONS HAVING $5,000,000 RESOURCES WILL BECOME A STRONG BRANCH.

Announcement was made yesterday of the completion of negotiations by which the Hollywood National Bank and the Citizens' Savings Bank of Hollywood, allied institutions, are to be merged with the Security Trust and Savings Bank of Los Angeles, and operated as a branch of that bank, as rapidly as the legal formalities and requirements can be complied with.

The two banks at the last call showed total resources of more than $5,000,000, the national bank assets standing at above $3,700,000 and the savings bank, more than $1,229,000. Service of both banks will be continued undiminished during the merger period.

Although the two smaller banks will ultimately be conducted as a branch of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, carrying on a savings, a commercial and a trust business, the point is emphasized that the Hollywood branch will remain as distinctly and strongly a local institution as before the merger, the only effect being to increase its strength and facilities for business. There will be no changes in the active personnel. A local advisory board will be created, including some well-known Hollywood residents and business men, so that the branch may continue to be an active factor in the affairs of that part of the city. The principal stockholders of the banks will become stockholders in the Security bank, and the merger has also made an opportunity for a number of leading Hollywood citizens to become holders of Security stock.

The two banks were established in 1905 and have shown a remarkable growth in assets and volume of business. The officers are E. O. Palmer, president; C. C. Greenwood and F. S. Phelps, vice-presidents; Ralph C. Lang, cashier; Frank C. Galloway and George R. Dodge, assistant cashiers.

"Hollywood has developed very rapidly in the last few years, not only as a residential section but as an important business center," said J. F. Sartori, president of the Security bank, yesterday. "The community has needed an extension of its banking facilities, and through this merger will obtain the benefit of the large resources, stability, and the complete line of departmental service of the central bank. All this is added to the strength of the present banks, without in any way diminishing their local character. There will be no deviation in the policy of the Hollywood branch from the established policy of the two banks it replaces—to work earnestly for the upbuilding of the Hollywood community in every manner consistent with good and safe banking.

"The Security Trust and Savings Bank already has a large number of stockholders, and a great many patrons and depositors who live and do business in Hollywood. We feel that the establishment of this branch will prove a great convenience to many of these whom we already count as members of our Security family, as well as to those who have been patrons of the local banks. We will not only be looking for new customers in the new branch, but for the centering there of a large part of our Hollywood patronage."

TELLS OF SOUTHLAND.

Japanese to Read in Own Language the Story of California.

A forty-eight-page special edition of Pan-Pacific, printed in Japanese, is being mailed by its Pacific Coast publishers to 5000 firms in Japan and the Orient with whom Los Angeles business houses hope to establish trade connections. This is the first time that the story of Southern California's industrial and commercial possibilities has been carried to the Japanese people in their own language by an American publication.

Much of the reading matter, descriptive of the Southland, was furnished by the Chamber of Commerce and thirty Los Angeles firms are represented in the advertising section. A similar edition, published in the Spanish language, will be circulated within the next few months, in the Latin-American countries.

A CORRECTION.

Through an error in the report submitted to The Times of the proposed four-story addition to the Hamburger Building at Broadway and Eighth street, mention of A. F. Rosenheim as the architect of the original Hamburger structure was omitted, and credit was given to Architect Albert C. Martin, who designed the addition. Mr. Rosenheim has since requested that this omission be corrected. He and not Mr. Martin designed the original building. Architect Martin planned the addition as already printed in The Times, and will superintend the construction, according to D. A. Hamburger.

SAYS PUBLIC SHOULD STUDY VITAL ISSUES.

JUDGE CRAIG ASKS FOR MORE THOUGHTFULNESS IN TALK TO PENNSYLVANIANS.

One thousand members of the Pennsylvania Society were addressed at Sycamore Grove, yesterday, by Judge Gavin W. Craig with a plea for more thoughtfulness and more tolerance on the part of Americans in regard to politics, religion, the industrial question and all other problems concerning the public welfare. Referring to the League of Nations, the speaker said that he had no brief to present in its favor, but that he did not intend to speak in opposition to it.

Speaking of the strike in Pennsylvania, Judge Craig said that if it is true that the foreign laborers have not been properly treated their employers are not living up to the democratic principles pronounced by the early settlers of Pennsylvania.

"On the other hand," declared the speaker, "if it is true that the secretary of the labor union has advocated lawlessness and a defiance of the United States government, such treachery is far more inimical to America than any acts of the employers."

Among the other speakers were M. E. Giebel, vice-president; Col. Sam Brown, honorary president; R. W. McCrea, secretary, and Mrs. Sarah Guyer, treasurer of the society; Col. W. P. Lowrey, of the Sons of Veterans, and Doncaster G. Humm, a teacher in the public schools.

Mr. Humm spoke on "The Psychology of High Prices" and declared that prices will stay high and continue to get higher so long as the public remains apathetic, expecting and always ready for an increase in the cost of products. Another celebration held at the grove yesterday was that of the Los Angeles county grand jury of 1912, of which Col. H. C. Hubbard was foreman.

Particular care will be exercised by the train commander. The entrants and all others concerned will use every precaution in the use of the highways, bridges and other public property.

No charge is to be made by any entrant for the transportation of any merchandise.

The train is to travel as a unit.

First California Motor Truck Train.

Which leaves Los Angeles tomorrow morning on a tour of the principal cities of Southern California. The train is being run to boost the ship-by-truck movement, which is gaining popularity all over the United States. Over thirty trucks have been entered in the local convoy. The sketch shows the route to be traveled by the truck train, with the night controls marked by stars. The photographs below show the difference between the present-day methods of transportation and those in use a few years ago. The truck train is the San Francisco-Los Angeles convoy as it was leaving the Bay City.

MOTOR CARRIERS DO NOT BOOST RATES.

"The automobile and motor truck as passenger and freight carriers are the only transportation units I know of that have not had to increase rates to pay operating expenses," says Gilbert Woodill, manager of the Western Motors Company, local Kissel distributor.

"Averaging ten miles a day, the 6,000,000 automobiles and motor trucks in the country would travel a total daily mileage of 60,000,000 miles, which is in excess of the combined mileage of all railroads, short lines, trolley lines, interurban lines, in fact every method of transportation now in existence."

READY TO REPAIR LINCOLN HIGHWAY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RENO (Nev.) Oct. 3.—H. C. Osterman, field secretary of the Lincoln Highway Association, is making a tour of investigation here, preliminary to taking steps to repair the highway, which has become practically impassable since it was used by the United States motor transport train in its historic trip.

Hundreds of tourists are said by Osterman to be taking the southern route via Los Angeles daily because of the condition of the roads in Nevada and Northern California.

OPTIMISM IN MOTOR RANKS.

Serious Situation is Threatening, However.

Settlement of Strike Needed to Insure Production.

Rolls-Royce to Establish Factory in Detroit.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT (Mich.) Oct. 2.—While there is a more optimistic feeling in automobile circles than there was the first week of the strike there is no disguising the fact that only a quick settlement of the steel strike will avert a shutting down of many of the automobile plants. Though some of the manufacturers profess to be encouraged, what they really think about the situation is very much different from what they give out for publication.

Some comfort is derived from the fact that the number of men on strike is not as great as had been predicted by strike leaders, and reports that many of the workers are returning to work. But unless the plants resume operations in full or nearly so many of the concerns will be forced to close their doors within the next two or three weeks. This applies to the smaller manufacturers particularly. The large plants mostly are fortunate in possessing a considerable reserve supply of raw material and possibly can continue operations for several months.

UNFORTUNATE.

The strike comes at an especially unfortunate time. At no period since the armistice was signed have any of the manufacturers been back on a pre-war basis. None has yet produced as many cars for a period of one week as during the height of the season previous to the war. The Ford company, for example, which was turning out 2300 to 3400 cars a day, would have passed the 4000-mark by this time. Similar conditions prevail at the Willys-Overland plant, Dodge, Reo and others.

It is predicted the strike may have its affect on the price of automobiles if it continues much longer. It is not at all certain that the present prices will not be increased.

ROLLS-ROYCE.

Detroit's reputation as an automobile center may be further enhanced by the addition to its auto manufacturing colony of an American branch of the celebrated Rolls-Royce factory of London, which bears the reputation of turning out one of the aristocrats of motor cars, much in demand where fashion holds sway and where price is of little moment to the purchaser. The Rolls-Royce chassis sells for $20,000.

Advices from New York say that an American branch of the factory of Rolls-Royce, Ltd., soon will be established in the United States with Detroit as the most probable and logical location of the plant.

Announcement was made by Alfred & Co., New York bankers, that they have agreed to finance an

USED-CAR DEALERS ARE INCORPORATED.

PAPERS RECEIVED LAST WEEK AND CERTIFICATES ARE NOW BEING ISSUED.

Incorporation of the Used Car Dealers' Association of Southern California is now an accomplished fact, Secretary F. B. Calvert having received last week final papers from Secretary of State Jordan. Certificates are now being issued to the members of the association by the secretary.

"The incorporation of the Used Car Dealers' Association put the membership on a new plane, and in a much better position to wage its fight for improved methods and honorable dealing in the buying and selling of used automobiles," M. A. Leach, president of the association, said.

"To date the association's efforts have worked an almost marvelous change in the used car market conditions in Los Angeles by eliminating to a large extent the 'fly-by-night' curbstone auto broker.

"Every member of the association may be easily identified by the fact that the association's emblem is displayed prominently in his place of business. That emblem stands for square dealing and is the buyer's assurance that what the dealer sells is just as he represents it."

PROTECTION.

The association is sponsoring the ordinance recently introduced in the Council, which, if enacted, will compel dealers in used cars to announce themselves as such by posting a sign at their place of business.

"This," Secretary Calvert said, "will to a large extent put a stop to the practice of many dealers whose pose as auto owners hard put to for cash, and who resort to all manner of schemes to interest buyers, the most common of which is to advertise that they are forced to sacrifice their cars because of illness or because they are going East."

CAR SHORTAGE IS BOON FOR TRUCKS.

The car shortage which is beginning to be seriously felt in many parts of the country has already had its effect upon the sales of motor trucks. In August the sale of Mack Trucks alone increased 64 per cent. Over those for July, and the sales for September continue at the same high rate.

ANTIQUE PLANS SLIPPING.

Cities Throughout Country Adopting New Systems for Handling Traffic.

A nation-wide improvement in traffic conditions among the largest cities in the country is marking a new era in motoring and commercial circles.

Antique methods of parking cars in the business sections, in traffic circulation and in penalties for infringements are going by the board, to be replaced by new methods, which take cognizance of the fact that the motor-driven vehicle is a supreme factor in urban progress.

OLD VS. NEW.

It is a question, say officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California, of "off with the old, and on with new" in every phase of the process. Cities in the East which have found that motor cars and street cars formed a large, stagnant pool in the business center of the municipality have thrust in the spoon of progress and stirred the stagnant pool to activity.

Cleveland, Cincinnati, Seattle and many others are among those which have led in the skimming of the scum off their "stagnant traffic pools," and while each reports that opposition was encountered from motorists, street railway officials and downtown merchants for many of the improvements proposed, the final working out of the changes adopted were subsequently hailed with acclaim unanimously.

GREAT DIFFICULTY.

Cities situated in an area to which heavy outside traffic is tributary, such as Cleveland, where automobiles from a large "flat" section of country pour in continuously to the urban center over well-defined routes have had particular difficulty in adjusting public sentiment to traffic innovations working for the better, according to reports received by the Automobile Club. In the West, where tributary territory is highly motorized, the problems are similar.

Strange as it may seem, many cities whose "floor plans" are geometric have had greater difficulties in adjusting traffic relations than those where the "floor plan" was of the cowpath type. This is explained, say club officials, by the flow of travel. That is, automobile traffic must be fluid, and to be fluid it must circulate.

PROBLEMS.

Where a city's streets are laid off at right angles throughout the business section it is easier to lay out a scheme of traffic circulation, which will avoid stagnation, but it is not so easy to adjust the various interests to the changes.

In one large eastern city, the downtown merchants arose on their hind legs block by block and attempted to check every solution offered for the improvement of stagnated traffic. When it was proposed to move all traffic east on one street and west on the next, alternately, the store-keepers and shopmen of one street complained that "their best customers would never consider approaching their stores from the west." They pointed out that their trade always came from the east.

However, when the municipal authorities really got busy on the problem, the downtown merchants were finally convinced that with the change in the traffic situation exactly three times the number of customers could be brought to their doors by the more rapid circulation of traffic, all was well.

RAPID INCREASE.

Automotive traffic in Los Angeles has increased by leaps and bounds in the last decade, until the problem, which confronts the city is a serious one, say the authorities. Also, the interests which are concerned in traffic changes for this city are many and varied. With a half-circle of beach towns pouring in a continuous stream of "automobile commuters," with thousands of cars reaching the civic center every day from the slopes, the west, and from the cities lying to the north and south, Los Angeles is nationally pointed out as a shining example of the "stagnated pool of traffic."

Lessons learned by other cities in relieving their congestion and moving traffic twice or three times as fast as formerly will have a salutary effect upon any operation to be performed here by traffic physicians, say the authorities, as sectional bickerings and commercial opposition based upon selfishness or narrow-mindedness will be largely eliminated in view of the light shed by similar petty squables elsewhere.

Motorists are looking eagerly forward to the time when traffic changes can be made, and the stagnant pool stirred to life by the best and most modern adaptations of traffic relief garnered from pioneers in the process.

GRINDING AHEAD FOR OXY FROSH.

COACH JESSON WORKING TEAM INTO SHAPE FOR BATTLE WITH COVINA HIGH.

In an attempt to get the Oxy Frosh team into shape for their first game with Covina High School, now only a week distant, Coach Ralph Jesson is working his tanbark proteges overtime out at the Eagle Rock institution.

Last night the Tiger "Cubs" scrimmaged with the Franklin High team and literally shoved them all over the lot. Franklin put up a good fight, but were unable to stand up against their heavier and faster opponents. Franklin possessed just one man who was able to gain consistently against the Bengals, and that was none other than "Stan" Creswell, brother of "Bob" Creswell, for three years an all-Southern member of the Oxy team, and one of the best quarter-backs that the south has ever known. Creswell Junior seems to have inherited his brother's football brains and football legs, and bids fair to be a real star when he gets into college.

SHOWING WELL.

A number of men have been showing up well for the Oxy frosh, and did good work in the scrimmage against Franklin. Among the more notable are Jean Corey, one-time all-Southern tackle for Pasadena High; Hugh Osborne and Kenneth Horton, two good back-field men who hail from Santa Ana; Sherwood, Hadden and Inglasedue, who once upon a time played for South Pasadena; and a young husky bearing the moniker of Roberts, who used to wear the colors of Los Angeles High.

Coach Jesson is a protege of "Fox" Stanton, head coach for the Tigers, having learned football under Stanton at Pomona. Consequently Jesson knows the meaning of the word, "work," and is doing his best to teach the Oxy frosh its meaning also. Inasmuch as the Tigers meet Covina High on October 10, and the heavy Hollywood team but four days later, hard grinding is necessarily the rule. Jesson was pleased with the results of last night's scrimmage against Franklin, and stated that barring accidents he believed the "Cubs" would have a winning team from the start of the season.

ORDER LUMBER FOR SPEEDWAY.

Two Million Feet Called for in First Contract.

Rain Delays Actual Construction on Big Oval.

Contour Maps Drawn up as Aid to Grading Gangs.

Two million feet of lumber for the surfacing of the new mile and a quarter board track to be built at Beverly Hills by the Los Angeles Speedway Association was ordered last week. The huge bill of lumber, the largest order closed for a single construction job in years in Southern California, was purchased from the Woodhead Lumber Company, and delivery of the first of the lumber will commence next week.

Huge as the order was, however, it by no means included all the lumber that will be required for the construction of the new track. At least another million feet will be required, which will be used in the construction of the grand stand and supports for the track. A number of minor details of construction have not yet been finally determined upon, which delayed the completion of the final order, but officials of the speedway association expect to close the contract for the remainder of the lumber required within the next few days.

DELAYED BY RAIN.

"The first of the lumber would have been on the ground already had it not been for the rain of this week," said Manager A. M. Young yesterday. "However, the rain was most welcome, as it will make our grading job easier and will probably enable us to complete that work in faster time if we are favored with good weather for a few weeks now.

"The work of surveying is wholly completed, and contour maps of the utmost accuracy covering the whole 200-acre tract have been completed. Though the ground appears absolutely level to the eye, as a matter of fact it is not, and the job of laying out a track of a mile and a quarter in circumference that shall be virtually absolutely level, with a minimum of grading, has been no easy one. Our engineers have worked out the problem, however, and the early delivery of our first supplies of lumber will make it possible to begin the work of building the big board oval within a short time."

SHORT-CIRCUITED PLUG.

The short circuiting of a spark plug that causes misfire is seldom at the spark plug. Only surfaces of the porcelain collect and retain metallic wear products which invite the current to avoid the gap and prevent the spark jump that is needed to get ignition. The quality of spark plug makes no difference. The surfaces must be cleaned to restore proper action.

GETS BAPTISM OF FIRE.

New Velie Six Rushed to Mountains During Fires with Help for Fighters.

The new 1920 Velie Six, twentieth car produced by the Velie Motors Corporation of the 1920 model, and numbered 70,020, came as near to having a baptism of fire in the recent forest conflagration as an automobile has ever come.

While the fire was at its height the brand new Velie with the handsome new lines which had never before been seen on Southland roads, and a car which under ordinary circumstances would have been kept in the salesrooms for weeks as a show car, was rushed to the $100,000 mountain playground of Cecil Be de Mille in Little Tejunga Canyon, to render there a service which the fire fighters will not soon forget.

For the tonneau of the car was filled to the brim with refreshing food and cool soft drinks, a contribution of the Lord Motor Car Company, Velie distributors, to the men battling to save the place from destruction.

But the De Mille place was destroyed, as were a score or more of other lovely places, and the toll of the fires for the early fall of 1919 was probably the heaviest ever known in this section.

The fires of this year have served to awaken motorists as could nothing else, to the importance of obeying the various fire warnings posted in the forest reserve. According to Forest Supervisor R. H. Charlton, the actual cost in cash to the government of the recent forest fires was close to $75,000, which does not include the value of timber burned. And when it is taken into account that a score or more of costly mountain resorts, invaluable watersheds and the famous Mt. Wilson observatory were threatened with destruction, it is seen that motorists cannot afford to continue in the carelessness which, according to Charlton, is second only to lightning as the cause of forest fires.

SUGGESTION.

Hundreds of suggestions pour into the office of the Forest Supervisor most of which show either a total lack of understanding of forestry, or are entirely impracticble. It has been suggested that the mountains be sowed with rye, oats or barley dropped from an airplane.

"Break every burnt match in two before you throw it away, then you will never be the man who causes forest fires," says Charlton. "If the match is cool enough to break without burning one's fingers, it is cool enough to throw out of the car, and the habit of breaking every match in two should be adopted by all who frequent the pleasure spots of the mountains near Los Angeles."

Distinctive in Lines, Power and Beauty.

The new 1920 Velie six, which recently put in an appearance at the Lord Motor Car Company. One of the new Velies was driven into the mountains during the recent forest fires and was given a baptism of fire and rough traveling that proved it a thoroughbred.

CLOSED CARS GAIN POPULAR APPLAUSE.

BONUS OFFERED FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY, BUT NO TAKERS APPEAR.

The popularity of closed cars at this season of the year and the extremes to which some people are willing to go obtain one was demonstrated by an incident reported by H. C. McVey, the Oakland car dealer.

The rain was pouring down and Mr. McVey was called to answer the telephone.

"Have you an Oakland coupe or sedan you can deliver right away?" was asked by a feminine voice.

Mr. McVey said he was sorry, but he not only did not have a coupe or sedan, but no other type of Oakland.

"Well, can't you get me one? I'll pay somebody $100 for the delivery turn. Surely somebody can wait, but I have to have a car."

Mr. McVey went through his list of delayed deliveries, telephoned all of them and not one would waive delivery date on the offer of $100 bonus.

AUTOMOBILES GO WELL IN HAWAII.

MORE CARS SOLD THERE THAN IN CHINA AND JAPAN PUT PUT TOGETHER.

Most people would hardly credit the Hawaiian Islands with being a better motor-car market than both China and Japan put together, yet that is the condition of affairs today, according to Al G. Faulkner, Marmon distributor for California, Nevada and Hawai.

"Eventually, of course, China and Japan will be immense buyers of motor cars," declares Faulkner. "Today, however, their demand for automobiles is so small as to be negligible. The lack of roads and bridges adequate for automobile traffic constitutes at present an almost complete barrier to their usefulness anywhere outside the limits of the larger cities. In Japan, for example, according to the latest figures I have been able to get, there are only 2700 automobiles of all makes in operation.

"In Hawaii, however, the demand for automobiles is very lively, indeed. We sell a good many Marmon cars there in the course of a year, and motoring is a very popular form of amusement, though, of course, it does not take a great while to cover all the roads on the island.

"Motor equipment of all kinds is very extensively used. The big sugar companies have found it profitable to employ trucks to haul their workmen to and from the plantations. The roads are for the most part excellent, and make driving there a pleasure."

TRUCK CARAVAN READY TO MOVE

and the impressive showing made by the San Francisco-Los Angeles division of the tour will be doubled by the Southland's division, as it numbers more than twice as many cars.

Plans are being completed today to give the Southern California truck train a royal send-off and if nothing unforeseen develops, the northern division and the southern division will leave at the same hours. The plan includes an informal programme before the start with probably brief speeches and music.

EPOCHAL EVENT.

Yesterday's event marked an epoch in transportation annals, according to Ralph Hamlin, president of the motor car dealers' organization. This also is the opinion of every motor truck dealer who is responsible for the northern tour. It is likewise the sentiment of those who originated the idea for Southern California and who are responsible for making it a fact.

The northern convoy, which reached San Fernando Friday night, were met and greeted Saturday morning by a Reception Committee appointed by the dealers organization, including O. R. Fuller, chairman; Gilbert Woodill, vice-chairman; Watt Moreland, Earle C. Anthony, Harold L. Arnold, M. S. Bulkley, W. E. Bush, Mr. Nerny, J. A. Stoner. A number of enthusiastic truck and auto owners also joined the party.

Felicitations on the success of the trip were exchanged between members of the Entertainment Committee, officials of the motor dealers organization, newspaper representatives and auto owners on one hand and Train Commander F. C. Flickinger, members of the Northern Operating Committee and others.

THE ENTRANTS.

OSTERLOH NAMED GENERAL MANAGER.

The rubber industry generally and the automobile tire world particularly will be interested in the announcement that Mr. A. F. Osterloh, secretary of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, of Akron, is leaving for Los Angeles about October 1, to become vice-president and general manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of California.

The Goodyear project in California contemplates an adjunct to the immense plants of Akron, which have grown by leaps and bounds during the last decade, which will provide an increased production to meet the demands for the Good[illegible]

PLANS EXTENSION FOR EXIDE SERVICE.

Extension of Exide service by the Kay and Burbank Company was arranged for the past week, when a location was selected at Riverside for the Auto Electric Company. C. H. Kay, upon his return from San Bernardino, announced that plans are now being drawn for the new Exide service station.

"Success which has attended the methods adopted at San Bernardino by the Auto Electric Company under the direction of Hale Clippinger has prompted the company to duplicate the service at Riverside," Mr. Kay said.

"The methods put into operation by Mr. Clippinger are identical with those in effect in Los Angeles. Free weekly inspection of batteries is strongly featured, and all repair work, installation of oversize batteries, and everything along ignition lines, is handled just as we do it here."

Incidentally, the Kay and Burbank company experienced the busiest September in the history of the organization, according to a report handed to Mr. Kay upon his return to the city.

MORELAND TRUCKS

Ice and Ice Cream are not considered luxuries in Imperial Valley, rather necessitics. In the heat of the summer months, their prompt delivery is considered of first importance.

The distribution of Ice and Ice Cream is largely done by Morelands, the truck which does three-fourths of the Imperial Valley hauling. Hauling conditions in Imperial Valley are doubly severe, due to variations in temperature and rutty, dusty roads, yet Moreland trucks have surmounted these obstacles with ease.

Moreland trucks are built to work under unusual conditions, and that is why Moreland equipment is in the majority in Imperial Valley—the "Waterloo" of many makes of trucks.

Morelands are economical, reliable, sturdy and long lived. These are a few of the many reasons why Harry R. Beale of Calipatria uses Moreland equipment.

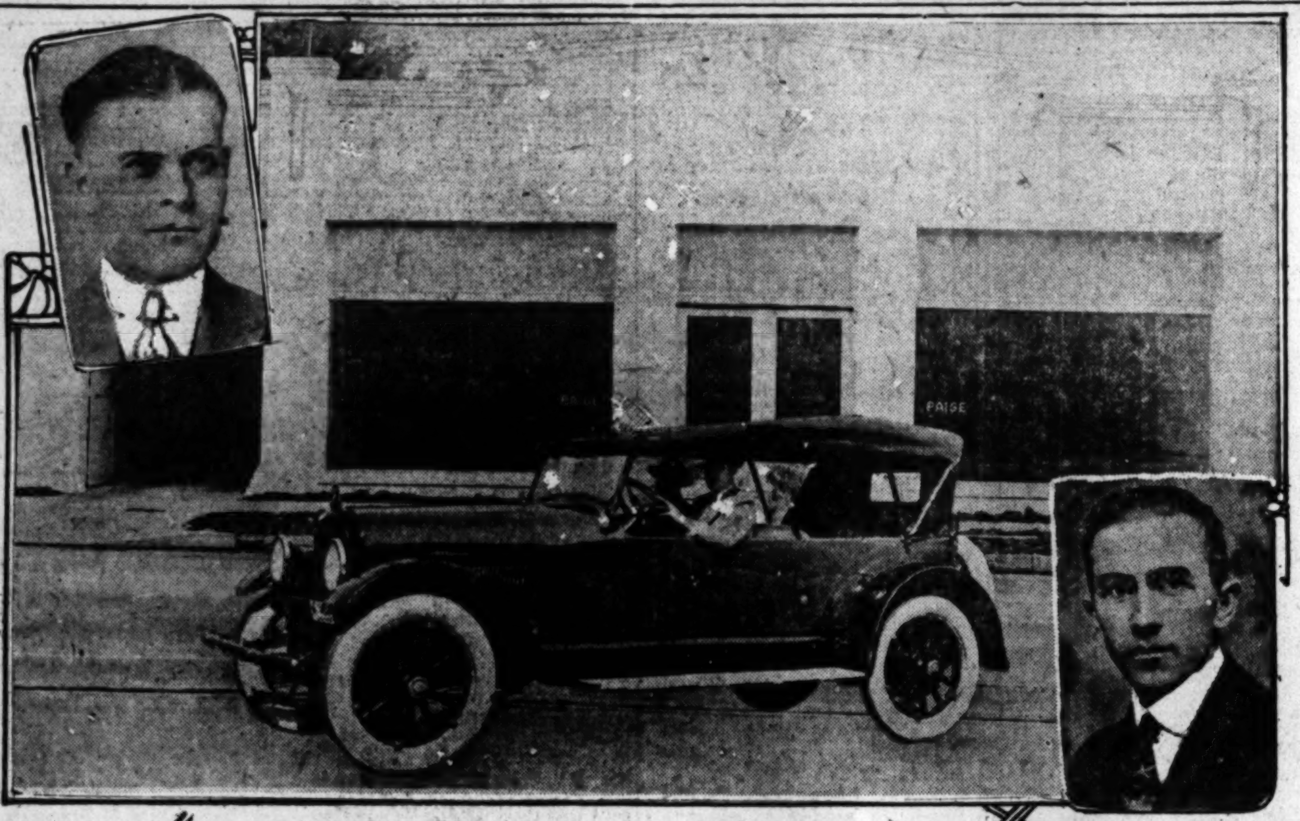
more fees, taxes and have been levied on operators of trucks, and, those who find it necesmotorized equipment. been proposed in many parts of the country to even increase the exorbitant licenses that are now in force. To carry out this intention would mean stagnating the most expeditious means of transportation for short-hauling purposes available. Thus it has become necessary for representatives of motor transportation to stand up for the rights that are due every American citizen and appeals will necessarily be made to the Federal, State and civic governments for fair treatment—nothing more.

"The now universally known 'ship-by-truck' movement, which had its inception in the East and which is being furthered by a well-known rubber company, is but one of the many prevalent examples of what motor transportation means to the individual. Then, too, the history-making transcontinental journey of the government motor convoy, which recently was completed in San Francisco, is sufficient proof that official Washington is likewise taking heed of the feats performable by the motor truck. Lastly, the current motor-truck demonstration of Northern California, which resulted in sending a caravan from San Francisco to Los Angeles and which will be followed up next week by a Southern California tour of trucks from Los Angeles motor-truck dealers, gives evidence that the entire country has awakened to the realization that motor transportation is not only feasible and practical, but that it is here to stay."

RADIATOR LEAKS.

Radiator leaks are often very hard to locate, especially when they are little ones. In these circumstances empty the radiator completely and blow smoke into it through a jeweler's blowpipe. This will discover the location of the leak. A little soft solder on the end of a wire will enable you to reach places where common soldering cannot be carried out.



Rapid Expansion Includes New Salesrooms.

A. E. Evans Company, Southern California distributors for Paige cars, have just opened their new plant, one of the best equipped in Los Angeles. The salesrooms are unusually attractive and the garage is prepared to take care of any sort of work. The insets show A. E. Evans (left) and Wallace S. Chorn (right,) members of the Evans firm.

NEW HOME FOR PAIGE.

Salesroom One of Finest in City; Garage Equipment is Complete.

Setting an enviable record in prosperity for the last year in local automobile circles, the A. E. Evans Company, Southern California distributors for Paige cars, has brought its first year in Los Angeles to a successful close with the opening of the big new home, designed and built expressly for the housing of the Evans company.

Although it did not enter the local field until early this year, the Evans company is now considered among the topnotchers in automobile trade circles. With "Bob" Evans at the helm, the company steered through the difficulties that are usually experienced the first year, and met with such success with the Paige car that, although the field was entered only in January, a new and larger home was necessary.

JUST COMPLETED.

The new home of the company is at 1534 South Figueroa. It has been completed during the last week, and the Evans company has already been installed in the new headquarters. The new building is a 75x175 foot brick combination showroom and garage. The showroom of the building is 50x65 feet, and is one of the most modern and up-to-date to be found in Los Angeles. It is equipped with a mezzanine parlor and restroom for ladies, as well as mezzanine offices. In addition to the show floor on the main floor, there are the general business offices, the office of the sales manager, offices for salesmen and conference rooms.

A garage providing ample space for the housing of a great number of cars, together with one of the most elaborate and complete repair shops in Los Angeles, complete the new home of Paige cars. Especial pains have been taken with the repair shop of the new building, according to Mr. Evans. The shop has been fitted with the latest model welding outfit, as well as electric drill presses, air tanks and all of the machines needed in expert repair work. Each machine is driven by individual electrical units, thus eliminating all line shafts and belting.

ALL REPAIRS.

An up-to-date welding outfit makes it possible to make all repairs necessary within the Paige shop. The repair pit is electrically lighted throughout. Special dressing-rooms, washrooms and individual lockers have been provided for all employees, and an electrical time clock keeps accurate time on all repair jobs.

The Evans company has pursued a progressive policy that has resulted in a tremendous business for the Paige car in this territory. Within two months of the company's advent in this territory it was found necessary to have a raise in the allotment of Paige cars for this district made. Only a month ago, the Evans company was rewarded for its live policy by being given the distribution rights for Southern California, not only for Paige cars, but for Paige trucks. With the installation of the company in its new building, another raise in the scheduled allotment was found necessary, and it has just been obtained.

A. E. Evans, known to the automobile trade familiarly as Bob, and Wallace S. Chorn are members of the Evans firm.

ENORMOUS SAVING BY USE OF TRUCKS.

REDUCE TRANSPORTATION FROM TWENTY-FOUR CENTS PER MILE TO EIGHTEEN.

During the past three years no less than 1,233,959 head of horses and mules have been shipped from the United States to foreign countries. The greater portion of these animals were used in war service by our allies.

It may be surprising to know that this great exportation of draft animals in no way taxed our supply of available animals, but, due to the increased use of motor trucks, we have a surplus of some half-million horses and mules on hand.

STATISTICS.

More than 600,000 motor trucks and commercial vehicles are now in use in the United States and they have displaced approximately 2,000,000 head of horses and mules. A study of the records show that motor trucks have not only released these animals, but have also released the 10,000,000 acres of land necessary to feed them and made the millions of acres available for the production of food for human consumption.

According to Walter H. Bissell of the Walter H. Bissell Company, distributors of Diamond T motor trucks in Southern California, Arizona and Lower California, motor trucks are effecting a saving of more than a half-billion dollars annually in the transportation of goods.

"It is estimated," said Mr. Bissell, "that motor trucks haul 1,800,000,000 tons of goods annually, at a cost of 18 cents per ton mile. With horse-drawn vehicles, the cost of transportation is increased to 24 cents per ton mile.

"The fact that the motor truck can create such an enormous saving in the cost of transportation and the further fact that it is releasing land for the production of food for human consumption, are matters of great moment to every thinking man, and should be the convincing argument to induce him to discard his horses and wagons and adopt the more economical means of transportation—the motor truck."

SPECIAL SALE OF AUTOMOBILE TIRES.

The Pacific Tire and Rubber Company expects to break all records in this city for the sale of automobile tires and tubes on October 6, 7, 8 and 9, when they will hold a sale, the special feature of which will be the offer of an extra tire for $1 and an extra tube for $1.

To every purchaser of a tire and tube at the regular list price, on the days mentioned, the company will give another tire and tube for $1 each, but in order to participate in the offer both a tire and tube must be purchased at the list price.

TIRE SHORTAGE IS STILL FELT HERE.

Although the freight tie-up no longer exists, there is still a shortage of tires on the Coast, according to Manager N. Bershon of the Bershon Tire Company, distributors of McNaull and Victor tires.

"Ever since we announced the arrival of the first shipment of Victor cords, we have been unable to keep up with orders; this, in spite of the fact that the factory is working day and night to supply the demand," said Mr. Bershon.

"We are looking forward hopefully to the arrival of Jack Frost in the East and the laying up of cars there to relieve the situation."

BUREAUS NEEDED FOR RETURN LOADS.

The necessity of establishing return load bureaus in the different cities to aid in the development of intercity truck haulage is explained by M. L. Pulcher, general manager of the Federal Motor Truck Company of Detroit, Mich.

These bureaus are established for the purpose of distributing the freight so that the truckman is assured of a return haul when he brings a load from one city to another. The Chambers of Commerce in many cities have given valuable assistance in this line in many instances, even going so far as to establish bureaus under their control in an effort to relieve freight congestion in certain sections and cities. The work entails, however, concentrated and aggressive effort; and the services of a salaried representative with permanent headquarters are absolutely necessary, so that it is usually found more satisfactory to establish these bureaus under the direction of the truck men themselves.

HERBERT C. HOOVER BUYS A MOTOR CAR.

EXPECTS TO MAKE MANY TRIPS OVER STATE IN CONNECTION WITH HIS WORK.

Herbert C. Hoover, the world-wide Food Administrator, who has come to California to rest after five years of international effort, has decided that the best way to enjoy California is from a motor car, and accordingly last week took delivery from Don Lee, in San Francisco, of a Cadillac victoria.

Mr. Hoover did not desire a demonstration as he has seen Cadillacs demonstrated on the battlefields of France and in the relief work of the American commission and knows from first-hand knowledge what this American car has done. The victoria will be used for traveling between Palo Alto and San Francisco and for trips over the State, which the Food Administrator may decide to take.

TROUBLE TRACED TO LACK OF AIR.

CITY MOTORISTS HAVE ADVANTAGE OVER DRIVERS IN RURAL DISTRICTS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

DENVER (Colo.) Oct. 3.—Approximately 75 per cent. of tire trouble experienced by farmers and rural residents is due to air, or, rather, to lack of air.

That is the information gleaned from reports made by dealers at Gates service stations throughout the United States and Canada, and condensed into bulletin form by the Gates Rubber Company for the benefit of tire consumers.

Even in districts where the country roads are kept in almost perfect condition, where tire bills of the farmer might naturally be expected to be less than those of his city neighbor, Gates reports show the rural resident is under much heavier pro rata expense for "shoes" for his car than the city motorist.

Smooth country roads are not so severe on rubber as are hard, greasy, paved city streets. But the city man has the advantage of free air every few blocks. Without effort, he can keep his tires inflated to the pressure recommended by the manufacturer, thereby eliminating flexing and bending that heats casings and destroys fabrics.

In striking contrast, the farmer who finds the pressure in his tires is several pounds light must either resort to a hand pump or drive several miles to a free-air station. Usually he drives, for there is nothing in a back-breaking hand pump to inspire enthusiasm, even if the trip on soft tires is costly.

Besides the rapid wear, deflated or under-inflated tires are more easily punctured than casings carrying the specified pressure. The tread covers a much bigger surface, and the side walls frequently are subject to grind through ruts or over rough places.

Rim cuts also may be traced largely to under-inflation, say Gates dealers. For, with light air pressure, the tire bulges out over the rim and is subject continuously to rim friction that eats away the rubber and chews into the fabric, which necessarily is thinner at this point than at any other place on the tire.

Keep your pressure right, even if it requires an occasional battle with the hand pump, is the concluding advice of the Gates bulletin.

SECURES AGENCY FOR HOLLYWOOD.

F. E. Wright, of the "Wright" Service Company, formerly at 6658 Hollywood boulevard, has secured the Cole Aero-Eight automobile agency for Hollywood and vicinity.

The Cole Aero-Eight is one of the distinctive cars on the market today and Mr. Wright, who is one of the best known automobile salesmen in the city, has achieved a marked success in securing as high grade a car as the Cole-Eight for the Hollywood trade. The rapid growth of Hollywood's population, including as it does a discriminating class of buyers from many other large cities, has created a demand for a car that represents the class of construction and style that is to be found in the Cole-Eight.

IN TOWING.

When it becomes necessary to employ a team of horses to pull a car out of the mud or sand, the ultimate humiliation in any event, be careful to use as long a tow rope as possible. Not only does this permit the team to get a better footing, but it allows the engine to be used to help the animals, without fear of suddenly lunging forward into the team.

MACK PERFORMANCE COUNTS

Motor Truck Engineering

WHOEVER employs motor trucks in his business is engaged in the transportation business. The transportation business is ruled by the same inexorable laws of cause and effect, supply and demand and output over input as every other form of enterprise.

Motor transportation is the operation of machinery for financial gain. The efficiency of a machine in operation depends upon its design and construction. The best results are achieved by the best engineered machine. All the manufacturer of a motor truck can offer is the result of engineering.

We believe more detailed attention, skill and effort are devoted to engineering the MACK motor truck than to any other type of highway transport.

Two young girls last week dared death in an Automobile

"THE TRAIL OF THE ARROW" has proved women's ability in motor car driving. Never again can mere man say "I am master at the wheel." That is why Harold L. Arnold, all this and next week, at Seventh and Grand Ave., will be glad to have you, your family and friends come and see the most thrilling motor car drive ever made—shown in motion pictures.

Miss Nell Shipman and Miss Marjorie Cole have surpassed anything ever conceived of in the annals of the automobile in forcing the famous "Essex Arrow" through the heat, sand and rocks of the toughest of the "hard going" of the Mojave Desert and landing their sturdy Essex in the depths of the Devil's Punch Bowl, winning a wager of $1000 against the terror of a trail picked by their opponents in the race for the gold.

The picture will be run in a special exhibition starting each hour from 1 to 10 p.m., all next week, at Mr. Arnold's salesroom.

Mr. Arnold invites the public to see this wonderful picture.

OFFERED HIS PLACE.

The Broad Ripple car was crowded, as usual. As women boarded the car the polite and gallant men got up and permitted them to have seats. A man, his wife and little son, about 5 years old, got on the car. The attractive-looking mother was given a seat and she took her son on her lap.

As the car went along, the boy conversed in a loud tone. He spoke of the condition of the roadbed, of the length of his trousers, of how long it would be until they got there, and so on.

Finally so many men had given up their places that several of them were standing in the car aisle. The little boy seemed to think it was wrong for him to have a comfortable place on his mother's lap while so many men were standing. Finally he sang out in a voice that could be heard throughout the car:

"Somebody can have my seat," he shouted.—[Indianapolis News.

Velie

Here at last! The sensational new Velies are now on display in our salesroom and we have cars available to take YOU for a demonstration ride! Phone NOW for your appointment.

A Car of NEW Ideas

A CHANGED and bettered car from end to end. Every line of its body is different — new — and a season ahead.

The motor is the NEW Velie Continental, a motor the Continental factories have spent four years in designing and bettering.

Everywhere about the car NEW ideas are expressed. It represents the advancing age, the accelerated Progress of our time, the bettered world in which we live. All the good features of past models are IMPROVED—important new features are added.

The NEW Velie Body Design

Symmetrical, harmonious, mirror-like planes, the real style-note of the year! Different because it is more beautiful, better proportioned and with the clean-cut lines of the thoroughbred. It is the authoritative style in automobile body design, the advance agent of styles to come next season and the next.

For your comfort the body is longer. It has really broad doors, more room in the deep-tilted seats and soft-plaited upholstery, more leg-room for the driver. New designed storage compartment. Some NEW feature wherever you may look.

The NEW Velie Continental Motor

THE Continental Factories produce more motors for Velie automobiles than for any other make of passenger car! Possibly this is why the Velie-Continental motors embody the very latest ideas in engine design and construction. Each genuine improvement goes first to Velie, and thus the power-plant of this NEW Velie is as far ahead as the greatest motors factory in the world can make it!

Chief among these engine betterments are the NEW heat-treated manifold which gets most power out of low-grade fuel. The valves are larger, with extra high lift. There are four crank-shaft bearings instead of the usual three—a bearing now adjacent to every connecting-rod! Bronze-backed bearings throughout the motor.

Other NEW Features

Tool compartment in driver's door; brakes much larger than before, more powerful; gasoline tank larger; large plate window in rear curtain; curtains stored in ample compartments in back of front seat — NEW ideas everywhere!

Old Assets IMPROVED

RAPID ADVANCE IN TIRE GAME.

Floor Space Tripled Since Local Branch Opened.

Fleet of Rapid Delivery Trucks Handles Local Wants.

Overnormal Production Fails to Answer Demands.

There is probably no better illustration showing the tremendous expansion that the automobile truck and accessory industry has enjoyed in Southern California than the experience of the United States Rubber Company since it opened its headquarters for this territory at 923 South Los Angeles street, in May, 1916. From these headquarters Manager J. B. Magee directs the business of the Arizona and Southern California branches, the offices of which are respectively located at Phoenix and San Diego.

LARGE INCREASE.

A little more than three years ago, approximately 20,000 square feet of floor space was sufficient to care for the company's needs in this city. Recent acquisitions have increased this to about 65,000 square feet and the local organization is about five times larger. Last month the sales force, now four times greater than it originally was, beat all records for a similar period of time since the company established itself in Los Angeles.

The United States Rubber Company has a fleet of four rapid delivery trucks that handle nothing but local business. These trucks are in the delivery service solely, as the transporting of freight from the cars is done by contract. That there are eighteen automobiles for the use of the sales force indicates the strength of this department of the organization.

A NECESSITY.

"Were it not for these autos, our salesmen would not be able to cover their respective territory in anywhere near the time that they do. It is a waste of time to elaborate on the commercial value of the automobile. That it is an absolute necessity and that without it business would be hampered to an extent that would be appalling are established facts of long standing," declared Magee.

"The rubber industry in all its phases is expanding by leaps and bounds and not the least of these is that of tires. We are hampered at this time by lack of sufficient labor and delayed freight shipments. The shortage in freight cars is probably felt in all lines of industry.

"We are in better shape as regards automobile tires than we have been for some time, although the demand for Royal cords keeps us generally pounding the East for more and more. On giant pneumatics and solids we are better than even. This is going some for the giant pneumatic Nobby cords are in demand everywhere for heavy-duty trucks, particularly in stage and interurban freight service."

TO STUDY CONDITIONS.

H. A. Farr, assistant to the general manager, left San Francisco last week for the East, where he will be for about five weeks, studying producing conditions, and will endeavor while there to arrange for heavier shipments to the Coast. While there he will visit the factories located at Indianapolis, Detroit, Hartford and Providence. Solids are made at Providence, pneumatics at Detroit and Hartford and tubes, bicycle tires and sundries of almost every kind, at Indianapolis.

TRUCKS USEFUL IN FIGHTING FIRES.

CALLED UPON TO DO IMPORTANT WORK WITHIN HALF MILE OF FIRE LINES.

Though their activities were necessarily limited by the lack of roads of any sort, trucks nevertheless proved decidedly useful in fighting the recent forest fires in the San Gabriel reserve.

Advices received from Pomona last week by J. W. Leavitt & Co. stated that two Oldsmobile trucks won especial praise from the forest service officials for the part they played in helping combat the fire after it had reached the San Dimas country. One of the trucks was furnished by C. H. Sanborn, a brick contractor of Pomona, and the other by Clark Bros., Oldsmobile dealers in Pomona. The Oldsmobile trucks maintained communication between the mouth of the canyon, where the larger trucks could penetrate.

At times the trucks penetrated to within a quarter of a mile of the fire line, and were in constant use, night and day, while the battle with the blaze continued. The ability of the trucks to operate without rest made them especially valuable in this work, for fire fighting is a twenty-four-hour a day job while it lasts, and horse equipment is, of course, not equal to such demands.

ENTRY BLANKS OUT FOR PHOENIX RACES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX, Oct. 3.—Entry blanks are now being distributed by George Purdy Bullard, superintendent of automobile events at the State Fair, and from the early interest evinced in all quarters it is evident that the coming programme, which is to be staged November 8, will fulfill all expectations.

There will be three main events this year. Event No. 1 will consist of a 100-mile class D, nonstock free for all. A prize of $2500 will be awarded the winner. Fifteen hundred dollars will go as second prize, and $1000 as third money.

Event No. 2 will be a 25-mile class E, nonstock race open only to drivers and cars from Arizona, New Mexico and Texas. The first prize will be $500, the second $300 and the third prize $200. The entry fee in these events has been placed at $25.

Event No. 3 will be a 10-mile novelty race for class E, nonstock cars costing $1200 and under, factory price. The first prize will be $250, the second $150 and the third $100. The entry fee is $10.

GREER HOOKS SWORDFISH.

After several years of watchful waiting and persistent angling, Perry Greer, at Catalina, September 21, landed his first swordfish. Following the time-honored custom, the prize which was landed in forty-five minutes of hard fighting, was taken to the Avalon fish pier, where it tipped the scales at 159 pounds.

It was at the fag-end of a four days' stay that Greer hooked the big one. Accompanied by Don C. Hastings, son of the general manager of the Hupp Motor Car Company, who is on the Coast in connection with Hupmobile business, and Billy Williams, retail Hupmobile sales manager of the Greer-Robbins company, he had been cruising about a large part of the day. With less than two hours left before boarding the steamer for Los Angeles, and near Seal Rocks, the battle started. Not that Greer would have quit to catch that particular boat—far from it.

According to Hastings and Williams, there was plenty of excitement, with Greer the coolest one in the boat. Hastings has never been on the Coast before, and swordfishing was decidedly a new experience, with plenty of thrills.

Greer left a week ago Saturday for Denver, where he attended last week a business meeting of the directors of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, of which he is one. The directors convened October 1 at the Brown Palace Hotel and then adjourned to meet the two following two days at the Stanley Hotel at Estes Park, in the Rocky Mountains. Greer will also visit Cripple Creek, and probably Leadville, and may go to Detroit before returning to Los Angeles by way of San Francisco.

PLACES ORDER FOR MANY CARBURETORS.

TYPE MADE HERE ADOPTED BY BIG MARINE ENGINE CONCERN.

Still further recognition of the important value of Los Angeles-made automobile and truck accessories, is shown by a recent order for Miller carburetors, received by the Harry A. Miller Manufacturing Company from the Sterling Engine Company of Buffalo.

"The Buffalo concern is nationally known as the maker of marine engines, and that it has adopted the Miller carburetor as part of its equipment, shows that Los Angeles is fast coming to the front as a very important factor in the automotive industry of the country. This action on the part of the Sterling Engine Company was only taken after exhaustive tests which covered several months," said Milton H. B. Miller, secretary and treasurer of the company.

SPACE ALLOTED IN CHICAGO AUTO SHOW FOR CARS FROM LOS ANGELES.

To Los Angeles will fall the honor of being the first city west of the Rocky Mountains to become an exhibitor in a national automobile show, when a Los Angeles-made motor car, the Leach power-plus six, is put on display at the Chicago automobile show, January 17 to 21.

Word that the Leach-Biltwell Motor Company had been one of the lucky ones assigned space in the show at the drawing just held in New York City, was telegraphed to M. A. Leach, president of the company bearing his name, by C. N. Graves, wholesale sales manager, who attended the drawing.

The automobile show, the first to be held in the second largest city of the country since the war's close, and one which will attract wide attention and cause of the new vanced styles which by the public for the will be held under the the National Autom of Commerce.

RELAX ON LONG TRIP TO COAST.

automobile trip which covered miles in two months, and which visits to points of chief interest between Atlanta, gia and Los Angeles provided ation after eight months of war work for two young matrons who arrived in the last week.

While serving at the Fort Mc- base hospital, Georgia, the last eight months of war, E. Hill made daily trips from Atlanta in a Ford coupe. Touring Through a Little-Known Wonderland.

Stanley W. Smith of the Peerless Motor Car Company of this city put one of the new Peerless models to a thorough big test last week on a trip through the Sierra Madre Mountains. Rainstorms and washouts failed to halt the car. Scenic points were discovered which had never before been reached by motor car.

TO BUILD CARS FOR INDIVIDUAL TASTES.

"Your Car as You Like It" is the slogan adopted by the Collins Motors Ins., Huntington, Long Island. Announcement has just been made of the formation of this $400,000 corporation to build automobiles which will be fitted to the purchaser, in measurements, and built to requirements as regards finish and luxurious details of finish.

SCENIC SIERRA MADRES.

Barton Flats, Big Meadows and Jenks Lake Explored by Motorists.

Sometimes it pays to take a hunch. President Stanley W. Smith, of the Peerless Motor Car Company, distributors of the Peerless automobile, in Southern California, will tell you so. He had heard just an inkling about a little known wonderland in the big mountains, where government operatives were active during the war and he determined to pioneer it. It was described as a land of magnificent forests and waterfalls, winding picturesque mountain roads, deep canyons and high altitudes, reached by a short cut over a private road, and all within a touring distance of about 125 miles from Los Angeles.

BARTON FLATS.

The mountain area included in a trip made last week by Mr. Smith and his party, comprised parts of the Barton Flats and Jenk Lake, summits in the San Bernardino range, and extending as far as the Big Meadows, and the very source of the north fork of the Santa Ana. Scenically, there is no portion of the Sierra Madres to compare with this. As to its motoring possibilities, no serious conditions were encountered, although in the higher range, some steep grades and narrow passes obtained.

The trip from Los Angeles to Redlands, direct, via the Valley boulevard, although enjoyable, was without incident. But a few miles further along toward the mountains the changing verdure and brilliant tints of autumn upon the foliage in the small canyons, painted an ever-varying picture of wondrous charm. Along the skyline of Mt. San Bernardino and its nearest neighbors, a rolling bank of thunder clouds in rainbow tints, took on fantastic shapes and augured trouble.

A brief delay for luncheon at the Harvey control, during which the aforementioned clouds had not been idle, and the ascent of the big range began.

STORM BREAKS.

Nearing the switchbacks about half way to the summit, the storm, so long threatening, began in earnest. The bottom of the clouds seemed to have dropped out to the accompaniment of vivid lightning and terrific thunder, followed by a barrage of bullets of ice. Rain in torrents followed the hail and in less than five minutes a river of water and mud was rushing down the wheel tracks in the road. Myriads of pine cones, big and little, washed from the mountainside, bobbed along in the flood, to be cast up later, along the outside edge of the road, in windrows, for miles.

The great danger on mountain roads, at such times, is not so much from the rush of water, as from the falling stones and boulders, which become loosened from the steep banks in an astonishingly short space of time. Realizing the danger, Mr. Smith called upon the Peerless for a display of its "sporting range" and the beautiful car sped up that storm-swept mountain road lige a jack rabbit in a hurry to get home. The water now filled the road from precipice brink to mountain wall; sticks, stones, small stumps and other debris began to strew the way, but the car never faltered. The summit was reached. The car had run through the storm. But its escape was narrow, as the party learned a day or two later, for during that storm thirty-five washouts occurred in the nine miles of road, any one of which would have ended the tour.

The new country originally scheduled for the trip, begins about four or five miles beyond the Mountain Home summit, where the so-called "high line" road leaves the Snyder cut-off on the Bear Valley highway. But before the Peerless party had reached it, the storm began again and it was decided to be too dangerous an undertaking until the weather modified. A direct run was therefore made to Seven Oaks, two miles above the Santa Ana River Control.

The morning bringing no sunshine, but only banks of fog and drizzle, the prospect for the trip up the "high line" looked dismal. But at the suggestion of Mr. Dudley Glass, manager of the resort, the party decided to take a short cut to the "high line," via the Santa Ana Canyon, ford the river, climb the mountain to the big sawmill at the beginning of Grayback trail; thence to Barton Flats, where the "high line" road could be attained, above its thirteen switchbacks and stretches of greasy clay.

SCENIC BEAUTY.

The scenic beauty of the Barton Flats country is admittedly far ahead of any other section on the entire Sierra Madre range. Thousands of acres of magnificent pine, spruce and cedar trees, of immense size, cover the hillsides and valleys of the section and the entire country is so free from underbrush as to remind the tourist of a gigantic park. It was in this section and adjacent higher land in the vicinity of Jenks' Lake, that German agents were active during the period of the war. Government operatives were well aware that a wireless outfit was operated somewhere within this area, and after the capture of a portable outfit in the mountains near Montecito, in Santa Barbara county, an energetic campaign was inaugurated to find it.

Taking the "high line" from Barton Flats eastward, the party proceeded toward the south fork of the Santa Ana, which, in proper season, is the trout fishermen's paradise. The road is really good, for a mountain road, and had the weather been anyways fair, no one could have found fault with it. It was constructed by San Bernardino county, a few years ago, and, while it has proven difficult to keep in repair, owing to storms both summer and winter, yet it is always in better than fair condition, owing to constant road work. At an elevation of a little under 7000 feet, the road begins its abrupt drop into the Santa Ana Canyon. More than a thousand-foot drop in a little more than a mile, over a tortuous, narrow road, calls for expert driving as well as extreme care, but it can be made by any good car. The return trip was decidedly interesting, after leaving Seven Oaks, that same afternoon. The party was informed that the Supervisors had ordered the Mill Creek road closed; that no cars from Redlands had come through, not even the mail stages. Nevertheless, a start was made and after many hair-raising experiences in passing some thirty-five or more washouts, hastily repaired by the road gang, the Harvey control came into view, with a speed record of about twelve miles in three hours.

A DUST COVER.

A dust cover made of unbleached muslin, large enough to cover the car with the top up, is a good investment. When proper shelter cannot be obtained you can depend upon this cover to protect the car from rain, sun or dust. It may be folded and placed under the rear cushion.

SPOTS ON VARNISH.

The best substance with which to remove spots from varnish, such spots as are made by road oil or tar, is butter. The stronger the butter the better. It should be laid over the spot and be permitted to stand for half an hour, when it will soften the material and allow it to be removed with a piece of cheesecloth.

HUDSON SUPER SIX

The Super-Six Motor Gives Hudson Its Endurance

It Is a Patented Principle Invented by Hudson Which Reduces Vibration and Adds 72% to Motor Power

Hudson records for endurance stand unmatched because of its exclusively used and patented Super-Six motor.

That same principle is also responsible for Hudson being the largest selling fine car in the world.

No other car can have the Super-Six motor without Hudson's consent, because Hudson invented and patented it.

It Prevents Motor Self-Destruction

Motor vibration is minimized by the Super-Six patented principle. It accounts in part Hudson's smooth riding and for its endurance.

It also increases the useful power of the motor by 72%. The power that is absorbed within the motor in vibration, is through the Super-Six principle, made available for propelling the car.

Thus with a comparatively small motor, the Hudson Super-Six has established endurance, speed and mountain climbing records never equaled by any other stock car.

Just See What It Has Done

A Hudson Super-Six stock car three years ago officially established the fastest time for one hour and for 100 miles. A stock chassis made the fastest mile at the rate of 102½ miles an hour. Those records stand unmatched.

The same stock chassis was driven by one man 1819 miles in 24 hours.

The Super-Six has contested on the speedway and in the most famous road races with specially built racing cars. Changes were made to fit it for racing, but the principle by which vibration is minimized in every Hudson accounts for its winning in more championship events than any car raced at the time.

Because of its endurance, Hudsons are entered and make notable showings in every important automobile race. They belong to race drivers whose only interest is in a car that will win prizes. We have nothing to do with their entries. They for the most part, buy standard Hudson Super-Six cars and make such changes in them as they believe will best fit them for racing.

You, Too, Want That Endurance

Super-Six tests were made not so much with the idea of winning records as to establish the limits of its endurance.

Each harder test was a step up in the trials, thinking it would show just how far the Super-Six could be pushed before tearing itself to pieces. But no test has yet proved that. Not even did the trans-continental run from San Francisco to New York develop its endurance limits. In fact, the seven-passenger touring car, although having made the run in 14 hours less time than any car before or since has made it, was turned back and completed the round trip in 10 days and 21 hours.

But a thing those tests did help in doing was to bring the Hudson up to the standard of the Super-Six motor.

Such a motor required better car design, better axles, better qualities and higher standards than were needed with the usual type. It resulted finally, in the present Hudson Super-Six.

60,000 Owners Also Helped

Present models also show how owners of 60,000 earlier models have helped develop the Hudson.

There are close to 10,000 of the present type now in service. Note how, though not materially different, they reflect the fineness and smoothness that is possible through such experience.

It explains why Hudsons have been for four years the largest selling fine car.

It shows why it is important to reserve your Hudson in advance of your actual need for it. Thousands of buyers have waited months to get the Hudson of their choice.

WHEELS SELDOM GET ATTENTION

Hardest Working Part of Car is Often Neglected.

Wood Type Predominates at Present in Popularity.

Wire and Disc Wheels Have Points of Vantage.

The modern automobile wheel is among the hardest-working parts of the car, and yet so well has it been perfected that it rarely gives trouble, and the average car owner is almost oblivious to anything except its mere existence. And yet, strange as it may seem, it looks as if we were on the verge of some change in the wheel field, though it is not likely to be the complete revolution that some authorities seem to imagine.

Wheels at the present time in use may be divided into four major classes: Wood, wire, disk and steel-spoke wheels. The latter type is practically confined to motor-truck construction, but cannot be entirely neglected in any comprehensive view of the wheel situation.

PREDOMINATING.

The predominating type of wheel at the present time is the wood wheel, made of second growth American hickory. There is no real cause of complaint against the service rendered by this type of wheel, although many academic flaws are picked in it by experts who favor other types. Until recently it was assumed that failure of the supply of second-growth hickory would eventually compel our wheel makers to switch to another type. Recent government forestry figures, however, seem to show that we have a supply of this wheel material sufficient to last for some time. This being so it is scarcely likely that any other type of wheel will oust the wooden wheel from its position of pre-eminence in the American motor-car industry.

While the wooden wheel is generally efficient in service, occasionally this type has been known to go to pieces under excessive strains. Wire-wheel advocates claim that this can never happen with their favorite type. The commonest failure of wooden wheels is the development of annoying squeaks. This trouble may be remedied by driving wooden wedges into the spiders where the spokes have become loosened. Car owners frequently neglect to give due attention to the hub bolts of their wooden wheels. These bolts pass through the wheel and hold the hub plate in position. In the case of the rear wheels the hub bolts also hold the brake drums. If these bolts are permitted to become loose, the wheel will be thrown out of alignment. This will make driving difficult and inevitably tire wear will be enormously increased.

Next in popularity to wooden wheels comes the wire type. Strangely enough the wire wheel was the original automobile wheel, but it was simply lifted bodily from the bicycle and was quite inadequate to stand the strains of its new service. Later considerable changes in design were effected and the wire wheel was made entirely practicable for the motor vehicle. In Europe, where no second-growth hickory was available and no other wood efficient for wheel construction at hand, wire wheels became standard and still are. Here in this country, with our supply of hickory, we early abandoned the crude wire wheels of the early days and switched to wood.

As a matter of fact the modern wire wheel has certain undoubted points of superiority over its wood rival. The wire wheel is somewhat stronger in resisting shocks than even the best wood wheel. The latter, too, it is claimed, with continual service becomes somewhat distorted, a condition that increases tire wear. The wire wheel, supported at the rim by a greater number of spokes, is not liable to this distortion trouble.

A further point of advantage claimed for the wire wheel is that the metal more easily dissipates the heat engendered by running. Wood is undoubtedly a poor heat conductor and steel is an excellent one. The wire wheel never gives annoyance by developing squeaks. But the wire wheel demands a considerable amount of care to keep it in good condition. The enamel must be watched, and whenever it cracks off, as it does occasionally, the spot must be painted over, or else moisture will cause rusting. This is particularly dangerous around the nipples where the spokes join the rim. Wire wheels must be kept clean if they are to continue to be an ornament to the car. The mud must be rigorously cleaned out from between the spokes after every run.

INSPECTION NEEDED.

Car owners using wire wheels should give these parts of the equipment a thorough inspection once every three weeks or oftener to see that no spokes are loose or bent, and that no rust has formed around the nipples. In one type of wire wheel a serrated drive is used and these serrations must be kept perfectely clean. If nicks should develop in the serrations there will be difficulty in mounting the wheel. Should rust form on the driving surface it should be removed immediately with kerosene.

The tendency toward covering the wire wheel with steel disks is of comparatively recent origin. The disk wheel is considered a distinct addition to the appearance of the car and it serves to keep the wheel beneath from dirt, rust, etc.

In France and England they are using the steel-spoke wheels for passenger-car service, and they are giving excellent results. They are even lighter than wood, and stronger, and their heat-radiating qualities are better. In appearance these wheels are just the same as our familiar artillery type wooden wheels. It is not impossible that the steel-spoke wheel may be the type of the future.

Capable of Carrying a Load.

Firestone of the local branch and President Barley of the Indiana Truck Corporation are enthusiastically agreeing on the unusual ability of the tires to carry heavy loads.

BOOST PRODUCTION IN HENDRIE PLANT.

NEW MACHINERY BEING INSTALLED IN ALL BRANCHES OF THE FACTORY.

The Hendrie Rubber Company of Torrance, Cal., one of the pioneer tire manufacturers on the Pacific Coast, is unusually busy these days turning out Hendrie black tread tires.

Since January quantities of new machinery have been installed at the factory. Two new special type horizontal vulcanizers have been adopted which give the plant a curing capacity of seventy tires to each heat, on which basis 280 tires can be cured on an eight-hour shift.

Additional mold equipment also has been installed and two patented tire building machines.

The Hendrie company is now inaugurating a special selling campaign, and the tires are being sold through the Motor Car Supply Company, 920 South Broadway, at special prices.

The A. H. Scott Tire Company of San Francisco, who distribute the tires in Northern California, have just written the factory that the sale of tires looks well in Northern California, and it is the plan of the sales department of the factory to go after the business harder than ever this fall, with a view of doubling the capacity of the Torrance plant by next spring.

HORN ENTHUSIASTS SEVERELY CALLED.

ORDINANCE ADOPTED IN MANY CITIES TO CONTROL NEEDLESS NOISE MAKING.

How many times have you had your Sunday morning "beauty" sleep disturbed by the raucous screech of a klaxon in your otherwise quiet street? You turn over with a muttered hope the driver will choke and have visions of another snooze, but the honking continues and you have to give up the attempt as a bad job.

Many times it turns out the sleep disturber is merely a friend of one of your neighbors routing him out for a trip to the golf links or the beach. He has no thought of the bother he is causing you—just mere thoughtlessness.

SOFT PEDAL.

According to a letter just received by L. V. Starr, manager of the J. W. Leavitt & Company, Oldsmobile distributors from a friend in New York the needless sounding of the horn is contrary to State law in Wisconsin and the City of New York now has under consideration an ordinance which, if enacted will largely abate the nuisance.

"Los Angeles, too, might very well consider legislation similar to that recently enacted in Wisconsin," said Starr last week. "In that State all signal devices must produce a sound sufficiently abrupt to serve adequately as a warning of danger; but it is an offense to make any unnecessary noise with a horn or bell. The use of sirens is forbidden except on ambulances and upon vehicles of the police and fire departments.

UNJUSTIFIED.

"For years people have listened to unsolicited symphonies on automobile horns, because the driver or the owner of the car fails to consider the feelings of others. You may be sure that persistent honking is unjustified nine-tenths of the time, and the motorist deserves most of the maledictions heaped upon his head for his action.

"It is invariably the owner who is guilty, as a chauffeur would call at the door and tell the party that the car had arrived. If courtesy to those who are to be your guests does not indicate such procedure courtesy to those who are not to be your guests should do so."

STATISTICS SHOW UNUSUAL GROWTH.

A THOUSAND PER CENT. GAIN IN FLOOR SPACE IN THE PAST TWO YEARS.

While individual approval is oftentimes a very good indication of the worth of an article, its steady normal growth is by far the best proof of its growing popularity. When any article becomes more and more in demand as it grows older on the market, that is a sure sign that the article is giving unfailing service in its line.

For that reason—the steady growth of the Gates Tire Company, as well as his own branch, the Warfield Tire Service Company—H. D. Warfield is highly pleased with the prospects of the company. Statistical reports gathered by the company, as well as those gathered in his own shop, show a steadily-increasing demand for the Gates half-sole tires, as well as the Gates rubber products.

According to a report received by Mr. Warfield, in 1917 the total sales of Gates products amounted to $1,643,364.00, while this year the sales will go considerably in excess of $7,000,000, a gain of 350 per cent. in volume of business in two years. No industry with the exception of war-inflated industries, such as the shipbuilding companies, can show such an incerase, according to Mr. Warfield. In addition, the company in 1917 had only 300 employees, while today the pay roll numbers more than 1600 employees.

Two years and a half ago, Mr. Warfield says, the Gates Company occupied a total floor area of 44,470 feet, while today the company occupies 402,630 square feet, a gain of nearly 1000 per cent. In the same period of time the production has jumped from 150 half-soles a day to 3500.

ENGINEERS PROFIT BY WAR.

When enough of the new models for the new year are announced to design the composite American motor car for 1920, a study of the engine and chassis specifications will disclose the embodiment of many war-time engineering principles in the post-armistice automobile.

The various airplane engines, such as the Liberty Motor, the Rolls-Royce, Renault and Sunbeam engines, have had an inspirational influence on the American automobile engineer, according to D. McCall White, a member of the Supervisory Committee of the three engineers prominent in the design and development of the twelve-cylinder engine that powered Uncle Sam's airplanes.

"The automobile industry has profited greatly from the lessons learned in war time," said Mr. White, who with E. C. Howard is preparing to manufacture a new passenger car in Indianapolis. "The cars of 1920 will show the benefits of that experience, for adaptations of aircraft engine principles already have been made by many of the leading automobile companies. These principles are not new to engineers, but until the war they were to manufacturers and to the public.

"The war taught us, for example, the absolute practicability of lightweight construction and the logic of machining parts to close limits. As a result, we shall have low engine parts of greate than the solid parts previou giving them greater streng durability with less weight.

"In the development of plane engines difficulties encountered in the machin loy steels were overcome achievements were made treatments through the of closer limits in furnace tures, thus increasing the and resistance to fatigue.

"A notable achievement solution of the baffling welding a thin sheet of thicker one without thinner, the thin steel of the airplane motor to the steel cylinder.

"War reduced many of called dreams of engineers mercial practicability. made the manufacturers things hitherto considered sible. For example, they through necessity that could be machined on a basis which they once to be done by hand. Some of lessons were radical facturers were not alway pupils, but the automobil facturer gradually learned his engineers with greater and the result was a real ward from which the public rive the benefit."

"PURITY" AND "LUBRO

Traveling hand in hand, as gasoline and lubricant companions, the two new filling station trade-marks, Purity and Lubro, have gone across the city from east to west and north to south in surprising fashion.

Four weeks ago twenty new Purity filling stations sprang into existence without any blare of trumpets, further than the announcement that Purity was a new gasoline, with a "new thrill" in it.

Independent filling stations, of that number, quickly were transformed into a uniform appearance by the application of new coats of blue and white paint, with Purity and Lubro signs dominating their roofs and fronts.

Since then ten more stations have likewise been transformed and an equal number of "independents" have enrolled under the colors of Purity.

Starting its fifth week, therefore, with an even thirty stations, the prediction that forty to fi stations would be throughout the city in a bri now appears certain of Increasing Demand may not be Met for Several Years.

Production Rapidly Getting Back to Normal.

One of the visitors to California who is here to enjoy a few weeks vacation is Henry Dandsdale of Detroit, sales manager of the twin-six carriage division of the Packard company. Landsdale was asked to answer the two questions usually asked by motor car dealers and buyers, "When will the factories be able to supply the demand for motor vehicles" and "When will prices come down to the previous level?"

"No one can accurately forecast that time," said Landsdale, "when production will reach the point that dealers will be able to acquire surplus stocks of vehicles such as will enable them to make immediate deliveries. The industry, as a whole, has never been overstocked but, on the contrary, has always been oversold and if no new owners were added to the present list of users of motor cars and trucks there would be just enough produced this year to take care of the replacements of cars worn out or trade in for later models.

THREE YEARS.

"There were 6,000,000 motor vehicles in the United States on January first, according to official figures, and according to the records the average length of time for a man to own a car is three years.

"With a production of 2,000,000 cars for this year one-third of the present owners can be supplied with new cars leaving none for new buyers if the law of averages for renewals holds good.

"Every large motor car manufacturer is striving to increase production and reach the volume attained before we entered the war, but progress along that line is slow, due to many conditions beyond the manfacturers control. For instance, there is a marked shortage of many vital elements that enter into the composition of a motor vehicle and the producers of those materials are suffering from the same handicaps that motor car manufacturers suffer. Then again the motor car manufacturer is faced with the same problem that all large manufacturers face who manufacture goods suitable for export.

"There is a big export opened to American products on account of the war and now is the logical time to cultivate it as we have at least a year's start on the European manufacturers. To properly cultivate this field and gain a strong foothold a larger percentage of manufactured products will have to be exported than before and this supply will have to be taken from the supply that would ordinarily have goen to United States consumers.

MEETING DEMAND.

"So far as meeting the demand, we will not be able to catch up with that for years for there is a potential demand for motor vehicles all over the world.

"In the United States alone there are six men who are able to own and operate cars or trucks to every one who owns one. There is a very small percentage of our roads improved to such a stage that automobiles could be driven over them economically, but with the rapid extension of our good road systems in every State, a demand will be created that will more than offset any increase of products that would be possible for years.

"As to prices, I do not see how any decrease can take place for a long time, but do anticipate a still further advance of price.

"The decline in prices of motor cars which began some years ago, still continued after the world war started because the increase of output and increased efficiency of manufacturing methods, more than offset the increase in prices of most other commodities. Even when the tide turned and prices of motor vehicles began to advance the climb was not so sharp as shown in nearly every other line of manufactured products. The advance was due, at first, to decreased production, resulting from the demands of war on the motor car factories and while we are swinging back very rapidly to the volume of two years ago, we are using elements in the composition of motor cars that have advanced much more sharply in price than the finished products, increased efficiency tends to offset this somewhat.

BASED ON COST.

"Most of the automobile factories, and the Packard particularly, base the price of their vehicles on the cost of production, and until we can reduce production cost by increased volume or have the benefit of lower markets on materials and labor, there seems to be no probability of a lower price.

"European, and other nations are bidding strongly for the same products which this nation desires and they will continue to hold the market up until they can get into production themselves or get surplus stocks on hand, and it is impossible to say just how many weeks or months that will take.

RISING MARKET.

"From the Packard point of view, it would be wise for every man who can use a motor vehicle to advantage, to assure himself delivery of such vehicles at the earliest practical date for he is buying on a rising market and a delay of a few months even, will require a larger investment in automotive transportation than at present. This is a transportation age and the immense advantages of having a transport fleet under ones own control, a fleet of trucks or cars that affords flexibility of service is keenly appreciated by those men who have a vision of the future of American business."

ANOTHER MARK ON AUTOMOBILE ROW.

MAXWELL AND HOFFMAN ENJOY BIGGEST MONTH IN HISTORY OF BUSINESS.

Another record for "automobile row." With the totaling up of the sales for September, Maxwell & Hoffman found that they had enjoyed the largest month in their history as Studebaker distributors. Not only that, all best marks for the Studebaker Corporation in retail sales for Los Angeles were beaten by more than $25,000.

"We not only hit a high record in September, we are out after a still better sales total for October," said Paul G. Hoffman, yesterday. "This month has started with a rush and we believe that our October figures will surpass those of September.

"There's prosperity here. Lots of it. The public is buying cars, but is discriminating more and more. While there is a great volume of buying, the purchaser is carefully looking around. We believe that this discrimination on the part of the buyer is one of the reasons that our sales have been so high."

Robert D. Maxwell has received letters from the East saying that all Studebaker sales records are being broken. So the Studebaker prosperity evidently is not confined to Los Angeles.

PRIMED FOR STAMPEDE.

Big Doings to be Staged Every Minute of Three-Day Rodeo.

History is to be turned back at Ascot this week. The most famous mile motor speedway in the country will revert to its original purpose and the horse again will come into its own for three brief days. It is the Stampede to be held next Friday, Saturday and Sunday which has brought all of this about.

MORE CHANGES.

Just as the building of the paved speedway at the historic park brought about a surprising transformation, so has the Stampede created still further changes. With heavy expenditures, extending over a period of more than two months, a new horse trick has been built for the return of the thoroughbreds, and corrals and a quarter-mile arena have been placed in the infield.

It is literally a three-ring plant that has been built and is declared by men who know to be the most thoroughly equipped rodeo site in the country. The proud thoroughbred is to share honor with the wild horses from the plans of Nevada and the wilder steers from the mesas of Mexico.

There will be twelve events for the thoroughbreds which will return to Los Angeles with all of the blare of bugles and flying of colors. Stable reservations already have been made for 150 horses for the twelve running events. In fact, so many of the gallopers are coming from Reno and other tracks that it will be necessary to provide stable room for some of them outside of Ascot.

COW PONIES.

In addition to the proud prancers which will sport the silk there will be at least 500 cow ponies, outlaws and mustang racers. For all of the rivalary is not centered in the thoroughbred events. In fact, it is probable that there will be several races among the different cowboy outfits that will send some backers back to the sagebrush afoot.

The races Friday, Saturday and Sunday afternoon will be held over the newly constructed track, which is fifteen-sixteenths of a mile around. And workouts already have shown the track very fast. The rains of last week took all of the newness out of the oval and it is expected that from the first race the going will be just the sort to add unusual zest to the occasion of the return of the sport of kings.

The amount of the purses has attracted horsemen from as far East as Maryland for the thoroughbred events. With purses of $570 already provided for the twelve events, it is expected that added moneys may bring the total to $7500.

"COME-BACK."

The race programme Friday includes the appropriately named "Come-back sweepstakes at seven furlongs, the Thomas H. Ince cup, mile, and the Santa Anita stakes, five furlongs. Saturday afternoon there will be the Old Mission stakes, five furlongs; Los Angeles derby, mile, and Pasadena handicap, six furlongs.

Night racing under the powerful illumination of lamps used in night pictures at the film studios will be an innovation. That every foot of the racing may be at all times visible the Saturday night card will be run on the arena track. The events will be the Electric handicap, half-mile; Fleet Wing stakes, half-mile, and Venice sprint, half-mile.

PACIFIC HANDICAP.

Sunday's track events will be ushered in with the Pacific handicap, six furlongs. Then will come the Ascot derby with a mile and an eighth. The Robert Brunton handicap will close the speed events.

The racing officials will be Ed O'Malley, presiding judge; T. H. Dudley, George Middleton and J. Myrick, Jr., associate judges. Ed Smith, the veteran starter, will officiate in that capacity here. William Wohrman, who has been assisting at Reno, will be the man on the ground at the barrier here. Billy Coe will be the chief timer.

Among some of the stables which will be here is that of Wade & Buchanan, which wired last week for twelve stalls. Orbiculation, Ponce de Leon, Orlin, Kripp and others are in this string. H. W. Barnes is bringing seventeen horses, and W. Singleton has four in his stable. J. G. Stadler is bringing Sam Hill, Pajaroita II and others, while Calvin H. James is on the way with Handy Andy, Capt. Druse and Multnomah. W. H. Crawford is shipping La Thorpe and Sonoma.

RODEO FEATURES.

The rodeo features of the Stampede will vie with the racing for popularity. The Stampede brings the year's finals in the championships. In recognition of this Mayor M. P. Snyder has donated a handsome trophy emblematic of the all-around cowboy championship of America. This emblem is the work of a New York firm, and shows a bucker in action with the cowboy rider urging the animal to greater pitching with his sombrero.

There will be the keenest competition in this event among the star cowboys, both in the film world and outside. In fact, there will be some cowboys come out of the sagebrush to "show up" the "fillum guys." They will meet a warm reception.

Challenges have been flung by Art Accord, Hoot Gibson, Art Hoxie and others, and now comes Bob Anderson, who telephoned from the San Joaquin Valley that he was coming with twenty-three horses and $500 that some cowboy in his outfit would win the championship.

Tom Mix will lead them all in the size of competing outfits. With fifty horses, two stage coaches, wild steers and a wilder bunch of cowboys, Mix will move into Ascot tomorrow. Mix will compete in the different events with his outfit and personally. Among his sensational stunts is trick shooting with Mrs. Mix. Mix can remove the eyelash of a gnat with a gun at the distance of 200 yards, those who have seen him shoot declare.

REAL RIDER.

Mix is not only a film star, he's a genuine fellow on horseback. He has several championships to his credit. And it will be recalled, too, that he won the Pacific Coast amateur speed championship with his speedy Stutz at Ascot last spring.

The honor of leading the street parades next Friday and Saturday will fall to Mix. He will follow the cowboy band which is to be composed of fifty cowboys, who are declared to be as good on the brass as they are the hide

OUTSIDE DELEGATION.

George R. Bentel, chairman of the Ascot Speedway Association, says that Arizona and Nevada are sending large delegations of spectators as well as contestants. Each cowboy is bringing his friends, evidently. There has been a heavy demand for reserved seats at the Stampede headquarters, 1015 South Grand avenue.

But after all, the horse is not to entirely remove the motor at Ascot, for there will be the airplane thrill furnished by Miss Elsie de Velleir, who will leap at an elevation of 3000 feet. Calmly stepping off a plane racing through the air at top speed, Miss Vellier will grip a rope attached to a parachute. Her fall will pull the parachute loose, and what comes after that is a gamble. In a test with a 100 pound bag of sand last week, there was a sheer drop of 1200 feet before the parachute opened.

CLOSED CAR BEST FOR COOL WEATHER.

WIND AND RAIN SMALL MATTERS WITH CARS OF THE COUPE TYPE.

Even in California's balmy climate, the weather gets cold enough to make the motorist shiver now and then during an early morning drive or during a drive in the cool of the evenin when the sun has gone down. That is the reason that the closed car is popular in Southern California despite its wonderful climate.

The closed car was built with especial benefits for Southern Californians, according to W. D. Wright of the W. D. Wright Motor Company, distributors for Roamer cars in Southern California. In other parts of the country, where snow falls very heavily, even the closed car is of no use. But in this section of the country, where the weather with the possible exception of a few rains, is always excellent, the closed car is the ideal vehicle for the winter.

The demand in the last month, Mr. Wright says, shows its popularity. The closed car is coming into its own in Los Angeles this month. In answer to the demand it was found necessary to get in a supply of closed cars. The first of the lot will arrive next week, according to Mr. Wright, and with the popularity of the closed car, it is believed that automobile dealers will be unable to supply the demand.

POLICE DEPARTMENT BUYS ROAMER CARS.

Four standard Roamer touring cars were shipped Thursday night by the Barley Motor Car Company, the consignment being for the police department of New York City and for special official use.

The order was closed by H. J. Everall, manager of the Roamer Sales Company. He called the Barley Motor Car Company by long distance on Wednesday for immediate delivery of the cars. The order was filled twenty-four hours later.

NOVELTY, FAD AND NOW NECESSITY.

INVESTMENTS SHOULD BE PROTECTED BY PROPER CARE OF ALL PARTS OF CAR.

Gradual development of the motor-car industry can be seen in the light in which automobile owners made the purchase of the vehicles. Years ago, the automobile was a novelty. It was purchased only by the very smart people of unlimited means. Later it became a fad, and everyone who could afford a machine, bought one. Now, however, it has become almost a necessity, and millions of people own their own cars.

The first purchases of automobiles were wastes of money—apparently. Then the buyers became more cautious and as the ownership spread among millions it came to a point where money put in an automobile was considered an investment.

Just as in financial circles investments are made without being protected, investments are made in automobiles—and then not protected, according to N. M. Day, sales manager of the Panama Lubricants Company, distributors for Pennzoil. Many people buy automobiles, invest a considerable sum in them and then allow their investments to dwindle because of lack of protection of the motor.

When they buy poor and cheap oil for the motor, according to Mr. Day, they are jeopardizing original investment for the saving of 2 or 3 cents. The cheap oils appear to work for a short time, but when efficient work is demanded of them they break down, with consequent injury to the motor. A good oil, rather than a cheap oil, according to Mr. Day, is an investment in itself as well as a protection of the investment of the car.

WORK UNDER DIFFICULTIES

The important part that White trucks played in staying the onrush of the flames that threatened the resorts and valuable timber in the San Bernardino Mountains, when the forest fires in Southern California attracted the attention of the entire nation, was told last week to O. R. Fuller of the White Auto Company, distributor of White trucks, by Max Green, head of the mountain auto stage line of San Bernardino.

"We received instructions at 9 o'clock on the morning of September 22 from the govrnment forestry service to turn over every available stage to transport men and material to the fire line. From that hour until 11:30 o'clock that night we transported 253 men from San Bernardino and Riverside to the threatened points. From the 22nd to the 29th we hauled more than 4000 men and tons upon tons of tools, food, clothing and other supplies," said Green.

"It was go, day and night, without stopping. The old Whites and their drivers stood the gaff and asked for more. One White stage with two drivers was operated continuously for twenty-four hours. The points reached by this arduous service were Pinecrest, Squirrel Inn, Skyline, Thousand Pines, Houston Flats and Bark Canyon. Time and again, where back firing was in progress, the Whites and their crews of fire fighters were sent along the road when it was so hot that the men were compelled to lay down and cover their faces with their arms.

"Anyone who knows the San Bernardino Mountain grades appreciates what fast service means in that region."

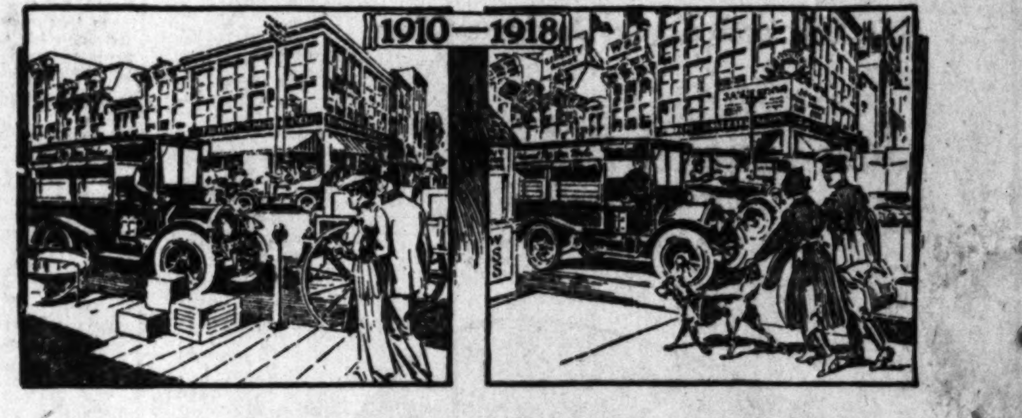
Look! ONE OF THE FIRST FEDERAL MOTOR TRUCKS

after eight years continuous service, will accompany a modern 1919 Federal, equipped with pneumatic cord tires, in the big Southern California Motor Truck Tour, which starts tomorrow. LOOK FOR THE FEDERALS.

THINK OF IT!
The First Federal Is Still on the Job



In 1910, Mr. M. L. Pulcher, Vice President and General Manager of the Federal Motor Truck Company personally accompanied the first Federal to its destination in Lynn, Massachusetts. There its purchaser, the National Pop Corn Works, put it to work and it has been working uninterruptedly ever since—its record for performance so nearly 100% perfect as to seem almost incredible.

Nine years spans practically all of the history of motor trucks. In that time, this first Federal has witnessed a complete revolution in haulage.

It has seen motor haulage practically supplant the horse and open the way to a broader commercial growth.

It has seen the motor truck come to the rescue in war-time when freight congestion swamped the over-burdened railroads.

It has seen the first small Federal factory grow to a mammoth plant and the name "Federal" on the radiator become a national institution in itself signifying sure, efficient haulage at lower costs.

The record of this rfist Federal's nine years' successful service differs from Federals following it only in length of service.

Each one has contributed its share to the reputation for efficient performance and the general good will that Federals now enjoy.

Federal, therefore, takes a peculiar pride in this forerunner of Federal success, justifying as it does in its faithful service day in and out, the early ideals which animated Federal builders.

Their Wear Imperceptible After 14,000 Miles

Aside from a few slight scratches on the treads of a pair of Goodrich De Luxe Truck Tires on a 5-ton truck of the Carkey Transfer Co., of Los Angeles, it would be difficult to tell them from new tires.

This despite the fact these tires have traveled every conceivable road around Los Angeles for twelve months—in other words, gone 14,000 miles.

Tires in such splendid condition after this mileage testify unqualifiedly to the rugged construction of De Luxe Tires and the numerous economies embodied therein.

Mr. Carkey is enjoying a tire economy that you can share by having De Luxe Tires applied to each wheel—take advantage of it!

WORRIES ABOUT AUTO BUSINESS.

Frank Wiggins Tells of Early Fears for Harness Market.

Rode in First "Horseless Carriage" and Liked It.

Tremendous Advancement Seldom Realized Today.

When Frank Wiggins, secretary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and the man who has done more to make the name of California known throughout the world than any other, took his first automobile ride, in 1893, his first thought was of the effect universal adoption of a horseless carriage would have upon the harness business, his own particular line before he came to Los Angeles, in 1886.

Wiggins was back at the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893 as the representative and booster of Los Angeles. Kokomo, Ind., was not so very far away, and in that town were a number of old friends, for Kokomo had been one of his regular stops in his old days as traveling salesman for a harness firm.

"Cain & Son, of Kokomo, was one of the leading harness firms of the day," said Wiggins in recalling that visit in '93, "and I made the trip over from Chicago largely in order to call on my friends in the concern.

"The day I was there Elwood Haynes was giving the original Haynes a tryout on the main street of the town. The machine closely resembled one of the four-wheeled phaetons or sulkeys of the day. It was fitted with solid rubber tires, had a dinky little curved dash in front and numerous exposed gears and bicycle chains showing in the underworks.

"Of course, the street was lined with people out to see the 'funny contraption,' and several had been invited to take a ride. Someone, I don't recall now just who it was, but it was not Mr. Haynes himself, asked me to get into the car, and I did. I only rode a half block or a block, but even that is something to look back on now as a wonderful experience.

"Naturally, being so familiar with the harness business, my first thought was how vitally such an invention was to affect that industry and horse-drawn transport of all kinds. I did not think as many did at the time, that it was a mere freak of passing interest. I was certain it had come to stay, but little did I realize then that Mr. Haynes's 'horseless carriage' was but the forerunner of the greatest industry in the world today, and probably an invention as important as that of James Watt and his steam engine of nearly a century before.

"Of course, today I can look back on that ride in the street at Kokomo and fill in the details of the upbuilding of the automobile industry. The fact that my first ride was taken in a Haynes naturally has induced me to keep track of the progress of that car, especially. I don't suppose Mr. Haynes himselm in those early days was able to picture in his mind how great would be the development of his ideas in the next twenty-six years; certainly, his wildest dreams would never reach the perfection of lines, mechanical construction and power that the Kokomo factory has achieved in the 1920 Haynes, for instance. It is an achievement to rank with the wonders of the world, and Elwood Haynes may well be proud of that little old 'contraption,' now in the archives of the Smithsonian Institution at Washington."

JOHN DE PALMA SALES MANAGER.

RACING DRIVER OF DECIDED ABILITY JOINS LOCAL MOTOR CAR ORGANIZATION.

What is considered one of the most important events of the week along Auto Row was the signing of John de Palma, brother of the famous Ralph, as sales manager of Dowling & Fisher, local distributors for the ReVere. De Palma, who is a racing driver of no mean ability himself, has long been interested in the ReVere, and when Messrs. Dowling and Fisher approached him with the proposition of joining their forces he was elated and immediately assumed his new duties.

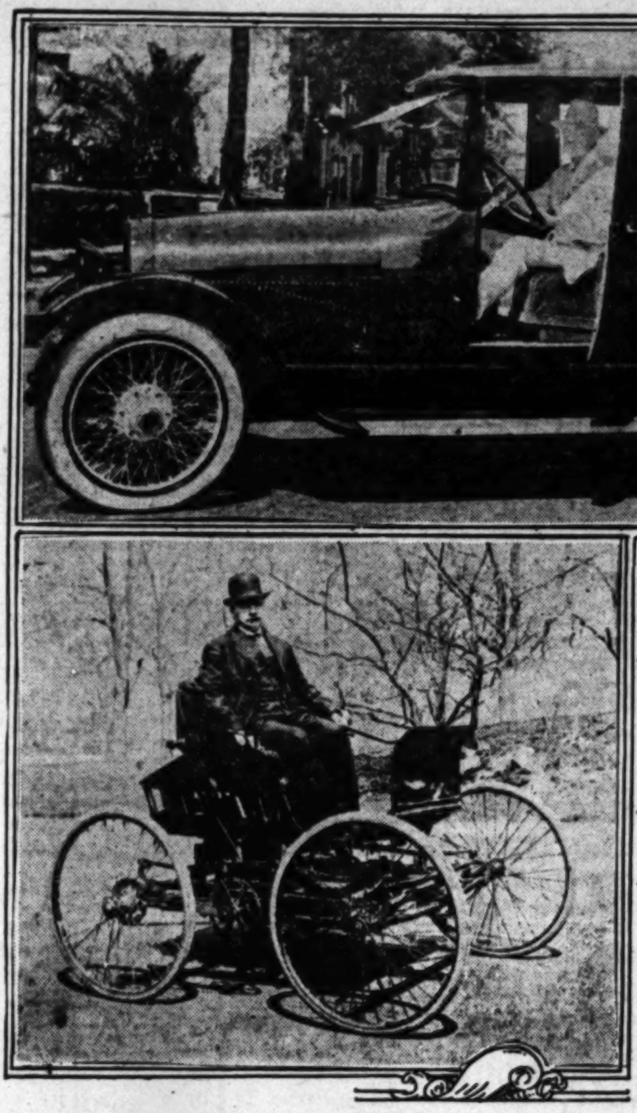
In speaking of the connection, J. L. Fisher said: "I feel that we have been unusually fortunate in securing a man of Mr. De Palma's ability to take charge of our sales department. He is thoroughly competent to conduct a selling campaign, and his wide acquaintance among motorists should help him in his new work. I have seldom seen a man who knows automobiles like Mr. De Palma does. This connection should be one of mutual benefit, in as much as it gives us a man who is thoroughly familiar with every phase of the automobile business, and it offers him the opportunity of being associated with a car that will fulfill the expectations of such a competent authority."

Mr. Fisher reports that their demonstrating cars have been on the road every minute of every day, and that numerous inquiries are daily being received at the temporary quarters of the firm at 949 South Broadway. In fact, the ReVere has created such a stir in motoring circles that the local agency fears that it won't be able to meet the demand for this new car. Plans for the erection of the firm's new home are progressing rapidly, and it is expected that the location will be made known in the course of the next few weeks.

FOUR-DOOR SEDAN NEWEST OFFERING.

The newest offering from the Dort factories at Flint, Michigan is a four-door Dort Four Season Sedan. In designing the new car the Dort engineers have incorporated many body refinements that make for greater comfort and convenience.

Four doors permit convenient entrance and exit to both the front and rear compartments. The front seat is of one-piece design, replacing the divided seat of former seasons.



From a Freak to a Necessity.

Above is one of the 1920 Haynes cars, a model of refinement from the tires up. Below, the first automobile produced by Elwood Haynes about twenty-five years ago. The rapid advancement in motor-car construction during this period is strikingly illustrated.

FIRM REINCORPORATES.

The firm of Spencer & Morris, 231 North Los Angeles street, dealers in Selden trucks, well known and patronized by local trade, has been reincorporated under the name Spencer, Morriss & Mang. The general public will be interested to learn that the new firm has taken on the distribution of the Case car, as well as all the J. I. Case threshing machines and that company's entire line of stock.

The new company is to be congratulated on securing this line of machines, since the factory branch of the J. I. Case Company is located in Los Angeles, which means that their car and tractors will receive special attention and that there will be an ample supply of all repair parts.

All of the members of the firm of Spencer, Morriss & Mang are from Buffalo, N. Y., in which city they are well known as successful and reliable business men. Mr. Spencer, for ten years, was assistant general superintendent of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company, of which firm Mr. Morriss was also an efficient employee for several years. Before coming to Los Angeles Mr. Morriss operated a machinery sales house at Buffalo. Mr. Mang was formerly a prosperous glove manufacturer of Buffalo. The Selden truck, as is well known, is the pioneer truck, the first one having been constructed in 1877. The J. I. Case threshing machines are pioneer makes in modern farm machinery. The Case car has already made an enviable reputation in Southern California.

EFFICIENT BRAKES BEST IUSURANCE.

MANY ACCIDENTS EACH YEAR CAUSED BY FAULTY CONSTRUCTION OF BRAKES.

Recently a railway official in Los Angeles was quoted in the newspapers as saying that the large number of crossing accidents that occur in Southern California are, in nearly every instance, the fault of the automobile driver. The position was taken that the driver usually knows when he is approaching a crossing and if unfamiliar with the country his driving within the limits prescribed by law will enable him to come to a complete stop upon observing the railroad warning sign, if the brakes on his car are efficient.

"The importance of an efficient brake system to the safety of motor-car passengers apparently is not as thoroughly recognized as it should be," asserts Harris M. Hanshue, manager of the Los Angeles factory branch of Apperson Bros.' Automobile Company. "If there is any one particular mechanical weakness in many makes of automobiles it is in the brakes. Some manufacturers have striven to develop power in the motors of their cars without paying proper attention to providing a way to overcome this same power when the occasion demands.

"The 1920 series Apperson cars are equipped with the most efficient braking system I am acquainted with. The car actually can be brought to a dead stop from a speed of forty miles an hour in forty yards, or four seconds. The Southern California motorist knows full well the value of real brakes when driving in the mountains. Not only is the grade usually severe, but short, sharp turns make meeting another car dangerous if unable to stop instantly.

GOODWILL OF ARMY TITLE OF NEW BOOK.

LETTERS PUBLISHED PRAISING CAR'S PERFORMANCE ON FRENCH BATTLE FIELDS.

Entitled "The Goodwill of an Army," a little pamphlet recently issued by Dodge Brothers has been received by the Alberstan Motor Company. With the exception of brief foreword, not a line of it was written by the Dodge Brothers advertising department, but its more than forty pages contain letter after letter from men of the A.E.F. concerning the performance of Dodge cars in army service in France.

Every one of the letters was entirely unsolicited, and a majority of them, however, were not written with the idea that the Dodge factory would ever see them. As a rule they were comments to family or friends called forth by a real admiration for the quality of service the writers had received from Dodge cars in active service with the army in France. It is safe to say that Dodge Brothers will never feel exactly the same degree of pride in any other publication they will ever produce.

Some of the cars mentioned in the letters from service men were veterans of the Mexican border campaign as well as all of the major actions in which American troops took part in Europe. Many different incidents are described in the various letters but all have the same record of praise for performance, which they declare was nothing short of phenomenal.

MANY DRIVERS DIG THEIR OWN GRAVES.

RACING MOTOR IN LOW GEAR HARDEST STRAIN ON CAR AND GETS NO RESULTS.

"A motorist often digs his own grave" because he doesn't remember that the slower a wheel turns the more traction it has," said Harold L. Arnold, distributor of Hudson, Essex and Maxwell cars in Southern California and Arizona.

"Nine owners out of ten, when stuck in the mud, will put their cars in low gear and then race their engines, shortening the life of both tire and motor. With the wheels going at such a pace it is impossible to get any traction, even if straw or twigs are placed beneath the treads, and tire chains will be slipped around idly. The effect is usually to dig a deeper hole and increase the difficulty.

"The correct way is to pack cloth or twigs beneath the wheels, use low gear and only speed the motor sufficiently to take the clutch without stalling. Above all things, don't race the engine. Cars like the Hudson super-six have the power to extract themselves from any difficulty if they are only given the chance."

NO GEAR CHANGE ON STEEP GRADES.

SETS NEW RECORD IN FAST CLIMBING OVER HIGH PER-CENT. PITCHES.

Climbing 5500 feet in thirteen miles in third speed is the latest record hung up by John De Palma, recently-appointed sales manager for Dowling and Fisher, at the wheel of a powerful Re Vere car.

This remarkable feat was accomplished on the Mill Creek road to Big Bear, in an endeavor to test the qualities of this new car. In speaking of the trip Mr. De Palma said:

"Like, every other motor enthusiast, I am always anxious to try out a new car and when the opportunity presented itself of taking one of the new ReVeres on a trip that is generally conceded as being the hardest test of a car in Southern California, I fairly jumped at the chance. The remarkable showing of the ReVere on this trip was the cause of my joining the forces of Dowling & Fisher. I pounded the machine hard but she never faltered. She went through the deep sand like water through a funnel and took the steepest grades without any trouble at all. I had no difficulty whatever in negotiating the sharp turns and did not shift from third gear. Only three pints of water was consumed by the car on the entire trip. I have driven lots of cars in my time but I have never seen anything that could have made such a rough trip with such little effort."

BIGGEST GAME IS HIS PRIZE.

MAKES FUR FLY IN TIRE TRADE AND LANDS SEVERAL BIG ORDERS.

Contented only in landing the biggest game, H. H. Anderson is making fur fly in the tire trade these days. He is following out literally the instructions of A. T. Smith, Pacific Coast manager of the Globe Rubber Tire Manufacturing Company, who assigned to him as manager of the tire department of Hawley, King & Co., the task of "putting Globes on the map."

Smith left Los Angeles a week ago for a tour of Northern California, Oregon and Washington cities. He was hardly out of town before Anderson got busy. His first visit was one he had planned for some days, and almost the minute Smith got out of sight Anderson made a bee-line for the Apartment Garage.

It did not take him long to convince H. G. Haffer that the Globe line of cord and fabric tires was just what he needed to add to the otherwise distinctive service featured by the Apartment Garage, a three-story, fire and damp-proof concrete building in the heart of Los Angeles downtown apartment district.

"I don't know whether you are selling me a line of Globe tires or whether they've been sold for you," Haffer told Anderson. "The fact is that since I opened up so many eastern motorists have made inquiries about Globe tires that I had really made up my mind to stock Globes before you called."

FIFTY TONS MAKES REAL TRUCK LOAD.

CONTRACTORS USE SPECIAL TRAILER TO HANDLE HEAVY JOBS.

Allen Brothers, local trucking contractors, have established a national reputation for hauling loads of tremendous weight. They use an especially designed trailer-truck which has a hauling capacity of fifty tons. On one occasion they hauled a marine engine cylinder which weighed forty tons. At another time a thirty-ton American locomotive, such as building contractors use, was loaded on the trailer-truck and transported across the city.

Their reputation for hauling covers not alone loads of stupendous weight, but also loads that are exceedingly bulky. Recently they transported one of the yellow cars of the Los Angeles Railway, which, while it did not weigh as much as some of their previous loads, was perhaps the most unusual trucking job they have yet undertaken.

The trailer-truck is equipped with Goodrich 40x12 De Luxe duak truck tires. According to E. R. Just of the Just-Crackel Rubber Company, local distributors of Goodrich truck tires, despite the numerous burdensome loads placed on them, these tires have demonstrated remarkable endurance. They show practically no signs of wear.

GLYCERINE FOR CLUTCH.

Glycerine of the best quality, applied to the leather facing of cone clutches, gives the "take hold" which is often lacking. If the clutch is fierce in taking hold, add a little graphite to the glycerine.

OPTIMISM IN MOTOR RANKS.

American branch of the Rolls-Royce concern. The corporation is to be capitalized at $7,000,000. Its name probably will be Rolls-Royce of America, Inc. Some of the corporation personnel, it is said, will be from the London factory.

The American company will manufacture a chassis practically identical with that made in England. The Rolls-Royce aero engine, parts of which were built in America during the war, also will be constructed by the American factory.

SAME STANDARDS.

The announceemnt of the bankers is to the effect that the American company would "have all the advantages of Rolls-Royce design and knowledge," and that the chassis and engines manufactured in this country would be of the "same standards" as those made in Great Britain. The announcement also sets forth that the plant was made necessary by the American demand for Rolls-Royce cars which would not be met from England as the plants there have booked orders that will occupy them for a year and a half.

Ford Motor Company of Canada declared another cash dividend of 10 per cent. the past week, making the total 35 per cent. since January. Balance sheet of the company dated July 31, last, shows cash on hand and in bank, $3,048,441. Surplus amounted to $4,348,098. Added to this were profits for the year of $5,200,899, less $1,970,934 paid for profits, taxes, making the total surplus $7,370,061. Dividens paid in the year amounted to $2,100,000 and total assets are listed at $16,185,291.

PARAMOUNT.

The action of Judge D. C. Westenhaver of the Federal district court in Cleveland in dismissing the case against the A. N. Schraders Sons of New York, indicted on a charge of violating the Sherman anti-trust law is considered of paramount importance to accessory makers and dealers throughout the United States.

In substance the court ruled that auto accessory makers legally may fix the price at which dealers must sell their products. The Schrader company manufacture's values, valve parts, pneumatic pressure gauges and other accessories. It was charged it dictated to dealers the prices at which they must resell Schrader products.

ELECTRICS.

Electric automobiles will have their inning during the closed-car salon which is to be held by the Detroit Auto Dealers' Association next week. During the war manufacturers of this type of motor vehicle were curtailed to an even greater extent than gasoline passenger cars in view of the fact they are used almost exclusively for personal and pleasure purposes. The salon will be marked by the display of at least two entirely new types of electric cars, both of which undoubtedly will meet with approval, as it has been some time since any new departures in the way of electric car bodies have been brought out.

Besides the new electric models the salon will boast of every conceivable type of inclosed gas car. Chauffeur driven types again will be conspicuous. The car with a separate compartment for the driver is gaining steadily in popularity and Detroit motorists seem to feel that a "man on the box" is becoming more and more a necessity on account of traffic congestion and the fact that motor cars are depended on almost entirely for the transportation of the entire household.

BOOST PRODUCTION.

Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company has acquired thirty-one acres of land in Detroit and on the completion of the first building on this property the company will be in a position to increase its production by 125 per cent. in passenger cars alone.

Nash Motors Company of Kenosha will considerably expand its manufacturing activities through the erection of a plant in Milwaukee, where a new four-cylinder moderate-priced car will be turned out.

AUSTRALIA TAKES TO MOTOR RACES.

Automobile racing is the latest Americanized sport to gain popularity in Australia.

Twenty thousand persons witnessed a race meet recently at Sydney, Australia, according to newspaper reports from that city.

The events were held over a new cinder oval measuring nine furlongs, or one and one-eighth miles. American-built cars won four of the six events in competition with several prominent European makes.

A Lexington Minute-Man six, manufactured by the Lexington Motor Company of Connersville, Ind., U.S.A., carried away the honors in the principal stock events of the day. Driven by A. V. Turner of Sydney, the American entry captured the initial heat of a 20-lap race. The winning margin, according to the Sydney Sunday Sun, was sixty yards, which evidently is the Australian way of figuring margins.

Climb? Nothing but a Telephone Pole Could Stop It.

ReVere touring car was driven to Big Bear over grades that totaled 5500 feet in thirteen miles. The car rambled over the hills the whole distance in third speed without effort. Considering the hairpin curves in the road and the slow speed necessary, it was some performance.

NO GEAR CHANGE ON STEEP GRADES.

SETS NEW RECORD IN FAST CLIMBING OVER HIGH PER-CENT. PITCHES.

Climbing 5500 feet in thirteen miles in third speed is the latest record hung up by John De Palma, recently-appointed sales manager for Dowling and Fisher, at the wheel of a powerful Re Vere car.

This remarkable feat was accomplished on the Mill Creek road to Big Bear, in an endeavor to test the qualities of this new car. In speaking of the trip Mr. De Palma said:

"Like, every other motor enthusiast, I am always anxious to try out a new car and when the opportunity presented itself of taking one of the new ReVeres on a trip that is generally conceded as being the hardest test of a car in Southern California, I fairly jumped at the chance. The remarkable showing of the ReVere on this trip was the cause of my joining the forces of Dowling & Fisher. I pounded the machine hard but she never faltered. She went through the deep sand like water through a funnel and took the steepest grades without any trouble at all. I had no difficulty whatever in negotiating the sharp turns and did not shift from third gear. Only three pints of water was consumed by the car on the entire trip. I have driven lots of cars in my time but I have never seen anything that could have made such a rough trip with such little effort."

BIGGEST GAME IS HIS PRIZE.

MAKES FUR FLY IN TIRE TRADE AND LANDS SEVERAL BIG ORDERS.

Contented only in landing the biggest game, H. H. Anderson is making fur fly in the tire trade these days. He is following out literally the instructions of A. T. Smith, Pacific Coast manager of the Globe Rubber Tire Manufacturing Company, who assigned to him as manager of the tire department of Hawley, King & Co., the task of "putting Globes on the map."

Smith left Los Angeles a week ago for a tour of Northern California, Oregon and Washington cities. He was hardly out of town before Anderson got busy. His first visit was one he had planned for some days, and almost the minute Smith got out of sight Anderson made a bee-line for the Apartment Garage.

It did not take him long to convince H. G. Haffer that the Globe line of cord and fabric tires was just what he needed to add to the otherwise distinctive service featured by the Apartment Garage, a three-story, fire and damp-proof concrete building in the heart of Los Angeles downtown apartment district.

"I don't know whether you are selling me a line of Globe tires or whether they've been sold for you," Haffer told Anderson. "The fact is that since I opened up so many eastern motorists have made inquiries about Globe tires that I had really made up my mind to stock Globes before you called."

FIFTY TONS MAKES REAL TRUCK LOAD.

CONTRACTORS USE SPECIAL TRAILER TO HANDLE HEAVY JOBS.

Allen Brothers, local trucking contractors, have established a national reputation for hauling loads of tremendous weight. They use an especially designed trailer-truck which has a hauling capacity of fifty tons. On one occasion they hauled a marine engine cylinder which weighed forty tons. At another time a thirty-ton American locomotive, such as building contractors use, was loaded on the trailer-truck and transported across the city.

Their reputation for hauling covers not alone loads of stupendous weight, but also loads that are exceedingly bulky. Recently they transported one of the yellow cars of the Los Angeles Railway, which, while it did not weigh as much as some of their previous loads, was perhaps the most unusual trucking job they have yet undertaken.

The trailer-truck is equipped with Goodrich 40x12 De Luxe duak truck tires. According to E. R. Just of the Just-Crackel Rubber Company, local distributors of Goodrich truck tires, despite the numerous burdensome loads placed on them, these tires have demonstrated remarkable endurance. They show practically no signs of wear.

GLYCERINE FOR CLUTCH.

Glycerine of the best quality, applied to the leather facing of cone clutches, gives the "take hold" which is often lacking. If the clutch is fierce in taking hold, add a little graphite to the glycerine.

OPTIMISM IN MOTOR RANKS.

American branch of the Rolls-Royce concern. The corporation is to be capitalized at $7,000,000. Its name probably will be Rolls-Royce of America, Inc. Some of the corporation personnel, it is said, will be from the London factory.

The American company will manufacture a chassis practically identical with that made in England. The Rolls-Royce aero engine, parts of which were built in America during the war, also will be constructed by the American factory.

SAME STANDARDS.

The announceemnt of the bankers is to the effect that the American company would "have all the advantages of Rolls-Royce design and knowledge," and that the chassis and engines manufactured in this country would be of the "same standards" as those made in Great Britain. The announcement also sets forth that the plant was made necessary by the American demand for Rolls-Royce cars which would not be met from England as the plants there have booked orders that will occupy them for a year and a half.

Ford Motor Company of Canada declared another cash dividend of 10 per cent. the past week, making the total 35 per cent. since January. Balance sheet of the company dated July 31, last, shows cash on hand and in bank, $3,048,441. Surplus amounted to $4,348,098. Added to this were profits for the year of $5,200,899, less $1,970,934 paid for profits, taxes, making the total surplus $7,370,061. Dividens paid in the year amounted to $2,100,000 and total assets are listed at $16,185,291.

PARAMOUNT.

The action of Judge D. C. Westenhaver of the Federal district court in Cleveland in dismissing the case against the A. N. Schraders Sons of New York, indicted on a charge of violating the Sherman anti-trust law is considered of paramount importance to accessory makers and dealers throughout the United States.

In substance the court ruled that auto accessory makers legally may fix the price at which dealers must sell their products. The Schrader company manufacture's values, valve parts, pneumatic pressure gauges and other accessories. It was charged it dictated to dealers the prices at which they must resell Schrader products.

ELECTRICS.

Electric automobiles will have their inning during the closed-car salon which is to be held by the Detroit Auto Dealers' Association next week. During the war manufacturers of this type of motor vehicle were curtailed to an even greater extent than gasoline passenger cars in view of the fact they are used almost exclusively for personal and pleasure purposes. The salon will be marked by the display of at least two entirely new types of electric cars, both of which undoubtedly will meet with approval, as it has been some time since any new departures in the way of electric car bodies have been brought out.

Besides the new electric models the salon will boast of every conceivable type of inclosed gas car. Chauffeur driven types again will be conspicuous. The car with a separate compartment for the driver is gaining steadily in popularity and Detroit motorists seem to feel that a "man on the box" is becoming more and more a necessity on account of traffic congestion and the fact that motor cars are depended on almost entirely for the transportation of the entire household.

BOOST PRODUCTION.

Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company has acquired thirty-one acres of land in Detroit and on the completion of the first building on this property the company will be in a position to increase its production by 125 per cent. in passenger cars alone.

Nash Motors Company of Kenosha will considerably expand its manufacturing activities through the erection of a plant in Milwaukee, where a new four-cylinder moderate-priced car will be turned out.

AUSTRALIA TAKES TO MOTOR RACES.

Automobile racing is the latest Americanized sport to gain popularity in Australia.

Twenty thousand persons witnessed a race meet recently at Sydney, Australia, according to newspaper reports from that city.

The events were held over a new cinder oval measuring nine furlongs, or one and one-eighth miles. American-built cars won four of the six events in competition with several prominent European makes.

A Lexington Minute-Man six, manufactured by the Lexington Motor Company of Connersville, Ind., U.S.A., carried away the honors in the principal stock events of the day. Driven by A. V. Turner of Sydney, the American entry captured the initial heat of a 20-lap race. The winning margin, according to the Sydney Sunday Sun, was sixty yards, which evidently is the Australian way of figuring margins.

COUPE BEST FOR TOURING.

"We went around turns in some of the mountains that were so sharp it seemed we could reach out and turn down the grease cups on the rear springs. It was a great experience, though, and we enjoyed it so well that we now think we shall drive back home."

In this manner, Mrs. David Driscoll of New York City told a representative of Earl V. Armstrong, Inc., the Chandler distributors, of her enjoyment of her tour across the continent in a Chandler coupe.

And Mrs. Driscoll is some enthusiast over the inclosed car. She said: "In Minnesota we encountered heavy rain and thunderstorms, and we felt perfectly safe. We had to make detours through plowed fields and the dust was awful, so it was just heavenly to be in a coupe."

From Minneapolis, Mrs. Driscoll and her son followed the red trail and went to Yellowstone Park. They drove to the top of Mt. Washburn, an elevation of 11,000 feet. "The rest of the cars turned back at the six-mile point, but we went all the way in intermediate gear," the fair driver said. Previous to starting on the long journey, Mrs. Driscoll had driven her car as a first lieutenant in the Motor Corps division of the National League of Women's Service. She is an enthusiast over the Chandler, saying she took particular delight in letting other cars get a big lead on her car and then beating them to the top of the grades."

FOOTBALL ON THE TAPIS.

Olla Podrida of Scrimmages to Give Way to Oxy-Whittier Fracas.

BY PAUL LOWRY.

Footballing ceases this week to be strictly an olla podrida of scrimmages. The big event is to be the Saturday game between the Occidental Tigers and the Whittier Poets, the first on the Southern California conference schedule.

The time was when the lads from Quaker town were a much feared lot, but their stars on the order of "Bull" Finch and Morris Bogue have passed from the Whittier halls of learning, and none has come to take their places. This year only one letter man is on hand, and around him as nucleus Van Cleve must fashion a few former high school players, of whose capabilities little is known.

Occidental, on the other hand while not a team of veterans, has a few good men back from previous elevens and once more has the services of a real coach, W. L. ("Fox") Stanton. The latter came to Oxy in 1916, but has only trained one eleven. The '16 squad he coached to a State championship, but in 1917 and 1918 he was in the army.

Consequently, for two years the Tigers have spent the tanbark season running around in circles without accomplishing any definite results. Occidental seemed unfortunate in obtaining coaches who were unable to pick players, that is, they played the men in the wrong positions. But all that is at an end now, for Stanton is well known in the south for his almost uncanny ability to place a man in the position which he can fill with the most credit to himself and success to his team.

Stanton has already made one change in the pre-season Oxy line-up. He has pulled Bruce Kirkpatrick, left tackle, back of the line to play fullback. The line appeared to be the best part of the eleven and Stanton decided that some of its strength should go to bolster up the back field, which looks weak.

This may be merely one of the customary Stanton ruses. Seeing a potential back-field star in Kirkpatrick he has given out that there must be more rushing strength behind the line, for Kirk is generally believed to be too slow for a back. Had Ed Brooks returned to college this would not have been necessary, nor would have it been so had Pete Varcoe come back to the old stamping grounds. With this classy pair performing for the Orange and Black there would have been no need to pull the line to pieces for backfield material. Stanton is also engaged in the problem of making a quarter-back out of a former center.

According to members of the Oxy varsity squad not all of their troubles are confined to tackling a man around the shoe laces, smearing forward passes, dumping a mass on tackle play, or any of the other and myriad things that may happen on a football field. Stanton has inflicted a set of signals on them that requires, according to report, a slide rule and a log book to fathom out. It seems that while Stanton was coaching at Camp Lewis the soldiers played a sailor team in that neck of the woods that had made it a precaution to swipe the former's signals with the result that they nearly defeated the future members of the A.E.F. Stanton has resolved that such a thing shall never happen again. The Tigers, therefore, get a double dose of mathematics—in the classroom and on the football field.

Followers of football are tremendously interested in this Occidental-Whittier game, for it marks the resumption of college football in Southern California on the pre-war basis for the first time since 1916 and will be the starting point for what promises to be the banner year of football, not only in the south, but in the entire State and the whole country as well.

With the return of Stanford, Santa Clara and practically all of the northern high schools to the American football fold, the last stronghold of the Rugby germ has been taken. President Wilbur of Stanford held out valiantly and held out long against the return of the Cardinal to the good old game, but student sentiment was too strong and with the aid of the alumni, who made it clear to him that there would be no harmony in the university so long as he arbitrarily refused to permit the students to play the game of their choice, he was forced to doff his colors.

There are three colleges and three or four high schools in Southern California that should be commended for keeping football alive when all the other colleges and schools in the State had flopped to the imported brand of play. The colleges are Pomona, Occidental and Whittier. But for their heroic efforts there might not be a single game of football in the whole State today.

But if football followers are interested in the Occidental-Whittier game this coming Saturday they will be doubly so in the game a week from Saturday, when Pomona and U.S.C. tangle in a contest that should have a large bearing on the intercollegiate championship of Southern California.

U.S.C. students are firmly of the belief that if the Trojan athletes can beat the Sage Hens the championship will be theirs, for Occidental is not counted strong enough to offer a great deal of resistance, and Whittier, Redlands and Throop are not even considered.

U.S.C. claims a good line, but Pomona can show one equally as good, if not better, and in the back field there seems to be no comparison at this stage of proceedings. Dean is apparently the most reliable man of the Trojan quartette. "Stringbean" Leadingham is a good man while he lasts, but the trouble is he doesn't last. Both the Galloway brothers left for DePaum, so the Wesleyans are consequently without the services of a competent signal caller. The duties are more than likely to fall to McMillan, whom Coach Henderson has been working in the position.

BILLION FOR GOOD ROADS.

Of all the States voting for big bond issues for good roads building and maintenance only two have turned down their projects. Eleven States have voted a total of $283,000,000 for highway expenditures during the next few years, according to statistics gathered by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company.

Seventeen States will vote on bond issues this year and next to a total of $664,000,000 and at least a dozen more States are contemplating bond issues.

The States which have already approved their highway measures and the amounts are:

Arizona, $4,200,000; Arkansas, $50,000,000; California, $40,000,000; Illinois, $60,000,000; Maine, $10,000,000; Michigan, $50,000,000; Nevada, $1,000,000; New Mexico, $5,000,000; Oregon, $10,000,000; Pennsylvania, $50,000,000; Wyoming, $2,800,000. Total, $283,000,000.

States to vote on highway bond issues follows:

Alabama, $5,000,000; Colorado, $5,000,000; Georgia, $40,000,000; Kansas, $60,000,000; Minnesota, $100,000,000; Mississippi, $20,000,000; Missouri, $60,000,000; Montana, $15,000,000; North Carolina, $25,000,000; North Dakota, $50,000,000; South Carolina, $25,000,000; Tennessee, $50,000,000; Texas, $75,000,000; Utah, $4,000,000; Washington, $30,000,000; West Virginia, $50,000,000; Wisconsin, $50,000,000. Total, $664,000,000.

The people of Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Washington and West Virginia will vote on their bond issues in November, 1920, at the national election. A few of the States mentioned have not actually approved their bond measures, but sentiment is so strong it is predicted the issues will undoubtedly come up for vote.

The only States to reject bond measures were Arizona and Oklahoma, for $30,000,000 and $50,000,000, respectively. In these States, it is said, that State finances were such that the good roads measures would have to be deferred at this time rather than jeopardize more urgent appropriations.

TIRE CARCASS MUST STAND REAL STRAIN.

Although the tread of a tire is a very important part in its construction and upon it depends to a great extent the mileage to be delivered, the carcass must be strong enough to withstand the weight of the load and the hard knocks that tire is bound to receive on the road.

An illustration of the ability of a tire's carcass to withstand the hard knocks of the road has been given to H. F. Miller, sales manager of the Osler-Racine Rubber Company, by Barney Hutchinson, an independent repair man. Mr. Hutchinson repairs tires for the Whiting-Mead Company. On one car brought to him last week, according to the story he told Mr. Miller, he had a Racine fabric tire. The tire, he says, holds a record peculiarly its own.

While not breaking any mileage record, that being impossible on account of the rough usage to which the tire was subjected, the tire had shown remarkable qualities. It had already traveled 19,000 miles, a remarkable record for any tire. Despite this fact, although some of the tread was already gone the fabric and carcass of the tire were in excellent condition—as though they had been cut from a new tire.

PROSPERITY IS AT HIGH MARK.

Demand for Motor Cars Surpasses Possible Production.

Factories Working Overtime in Effort to Keep Up.

Large Plants Being Constructed on Pacific Coast.

"General conditions were never better in California than they are today, and it is to the interest of every banker, every merchant and every laboring man to see that nothing transpires that will interfere with this widespread prosperity of the State." Thus spoke Don Lee, California distributor for the Cadillac, after a trip through his territory. Everywhere he found business very good, not only in the motor-car line, but in all branches of trade.

"Wherever you find building activities you will find a prosperous community," said the Cadillac man. "During the past two weeks I have been in Los Angeles, Pasadena, Sacramento and Fresno, and in all these places there is a great deal of building being done and there would be more were it not for the unsettled conditions in some branches of labor.

LARGE PLANTS.

"In Los Angeles the coming of the new Goodyear tire plant has caused a manufacturing boom and great efforts are being put forth to secure other plants which contemplate building on the Coast. There is talk of another large tire plant to supply the Pacific Coast trade and several other nationally-known manufacturers have the proposition of a factory in California under consideration.

"In the motor-car business conditions are the same in all towns, large and small. The great cry is for cars. We have word from the Cadillac factory that the output is now up to standard, and last week ninety cars a day were being turned out. This means that we will gradually catch up on the many Cadillac orders.

GOOD PROSPECTS.

"The automobile business in California will continue at this high mark and should show little if any let up for a couple of years, if then.

"I visited our new body plant in Los Angeles and believe the custom-built bodies being turned out here are as fine as anything produced anywhere. I know the workmanship and material cannot be surpassed, and in style I have yet to see the equal of the new designs now being put through the plant. The output, of course, is limited, but during the year we should be able to trn out over 150 specially-designed open and closed bodies. Designer Harley Earl has turned out some distinctively new closed jobs that will surpass anything made in the East."

AUTO JOURNAL MAKES ITS BOW.

There's a new automobile publication started in California. Faulkner Flights made its appearance last week, published by the advertising department of the Al G. Faulkner Company, California distributors for Marmon cars. It is more than a house organ, unless the house of Faulkner is understood to include the entire family of Marmon owners in California, Nevada and the Hawaiin Islands, for the new publication is devoted to the interests of Marmon users and the members of the Faulkner organization alike.

MOTOR TRUCKS COMING AHEAD.

High Cost of Distribution to be Reduced.

Ultimate Consumer Gains by Motor Transportation.

Delivery Evolution Making Rapid Strides at Present.

Is the motor truck coming to the aid of the ultimate consumer, who experts declare is paying two-thirds of his dollar to the system of distribution?

Ship by truck advocates answer an emphatic affirmative.

They see in the motor express route a plan to obtain for the farmer a greater share of that which he produces and at the same time to reduce the cost of living for the consumer. They quote no less an authority than Herbert Hoover in pointing out that 50 per cent of the country's perishable products were lost last year through lack of proper rail transportation.

They also see the motor truck reducing the cost of the products of the factory. Manufacturers, they say, are in many instances operating their own fleets of big trucks today. Such factories as cannot afford to await the arrival of slow incoming freights are receiving overnight material that the railroad service would require from four to seven days to deliver. In the same way they are speeding the delivery of their finished product, the consignee benefitting by prompt receipt and the goods arriving in better shape through less handling.

RAPID PROGRESS.

In Los Angeles and surrounding territory the evolution is in its beginning stage, but it is making rapid progress.

The observing Los Angeles automobile driver when he gets out on the country highways cannot help but realize the growing popularity of the motor truck. In increasing numbers it is bringing the farmer's livestock, his grain, his milk, his garden produce into the city. It is making it increasingly evident that the highways are an intergral part of the country's system of transportation.

In like manner the Los Angeles pedestrian readily realizes the enormous development that a few years have brought in the use of the motor truck on the city streets. The big motor carriers of department store and factory make up a goodly portion of the stream of traffice.

Some idea of the growth and extent of the ship by truck movement nationally is shown by the development of the business near New York City, where 104 companies are operating fleets of large trucks, some on schedules that take the trucks 400 miles from the city.

DIRECT DELIVERY.

Heavy machinery is delivered by motor truck direct from the shops and foundries in Connecticut to factories in New York City.

Wholesale grocers in Cleveland deliver by motor truck direct from their warehouses to retailers in dozens of near-by cities and towns. Delivery is completed the same day the order is received.

In Maryland there are twenty farm-to-city routes. They carry supplies into Baltimore and Washington. Their daily capacity is 115,690-ton miles and they haul more than 500 tons a day into these markets, taking back an equal amount of merchandise to farmers and country merchants.

Congressman John J. Esch of Wisconsin, chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, promises action to aid in the development of motor-express routes.

"Development of motor-truck routes as the short-line railroads have been developed," he is quoted as saying recently, "as feeders to the railroads, with through bills of lading and a division of the through rates is well worthy the consideration of Congress. The use of motor-truck routes as an aid in the transportation is in process of evolution, and I believe it will be a big factor in the future.

"I expect to lay this suggestion before the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce when it meets to take up the question of what is to be done with the railroads, as I believe that the motor-truck routes should be encouraged as links in our transportation system, keeping pace with the development of good roads both by the Federal government and the States.

FEEDERS.

"My line of thought is that the motor-truck routes might be treated when established and when the population and volume of traffic warrant just as feeders or short-line railroads are treated, giving the motor-ruck line a division of the through rate, also applying the through bill of lading to traffic originating on the motor-truck routes to be transported by truck-line destination, or applying it in reverse order on traffic originating on trunk lines to be delivered to destination on the motor-truck line.

"I have the utmost confidence in the ultimate development of motor truck service, and believe that we might legislate with regard to this new service."

Convincing figures and facts in favor of motor transportation as against railroad freight rates were given by W. J. L. Bauham, traffic manager of the Otis Elevator Company, in a paper read recently before the Ninth Annual Truck Owners' Conference in New York City.

"I am firmly convinced," he said, "that motor-truck transportation will reduce the shipping costs of the manufacturers considerably and will eliminate a number of transportation evils which are both costly and annoying to shippers and receivers of freight alike."

SALES FORCE GETS A THOROUGH JOLT.

"STARTING FOR RENO," SAYS BOSS, BUT IT INVOLES NOTHING BUT TIRE SALES.

"I'm off for Reno."

The sales force for a few moments entertained visions of the boss involved in divorce proceedings, when F. A. Scott of the Rubber City Clearinghouse Company, early last week grabbed a suitcase and headed for the door after making the above announcement.

Scott cleared up the situation almost instantly, however, by remarking that he was going to Reno and other Nevada towns to settle definitely the matter of Rubber City branches arranged for by his associate, R. O. Jackson.

Scott's departure was followed closely by the return of Jackson, who had gone East on a trip the object of which was to hurry the shipments here of a large quantity of tires recently contracted for at leading factories of Akron and elsewhere.

Jackson returned in time to take personal charge of the annual sale launched by the Rubber City company, which throughout the week kept every one identified with the company on the jump. Sales similar to the one opened here were inaugurated by the company's branches in Phoenix, San Francisco and other places.

The branches already established as a part of the chain of Pacific Coast and mountain States stores are doing a business already, Jackson reported on his return to this city, which quickly absorbs the weekly receipt of a carload of tires by the headquarters concern here.

"If business keeps up the way it has been going for the last three months," Jackson declared, "we will have to manage somehow to increase the shipments to us to a two-carloads-a-week basis. The way tires are moving now shows just how serious the shortage has been."

SPECIAL WORKMEN ARE BIG SUCCESS.

DEAF AND DUMB EMPLOYEES PROVE EFFICIENT IN THE FIRESTONE PLANT.

AKRON (O.) Oct. 2.—Special workmen who neither talk nor hear are finding the word "welcome" on the doormat of the Firestone factories at Akron. Since March of this year approximately 100 have been employed.

B. W. Schowe, whose whole duty it is to employ the deaf and look out for their interests while they are members of the Firestone organization, declares they make excellent workmen.

"The non-speaking deaf," he says, "have long been refused employment by careless employers, who have underestimated their worth in industry. Tire manufacturers were among the first to recognize this worth and to offer them a welcome. At the Firestone factories we find that on the whole they make capable, steady workmen.

"They are well enough educated for most any line of work in which the power of speech and of hearing are not essential, but in the rubber factories they find ideal employment because tire-building operations are highly specialized, and after learning the rudiments of an operation the workman needs no further instruction, but can work along silently in acquiring his skill."

TIRE GIRLS PLAN ATHLETIC CARNIVAL

Girls of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, are making plans for carrying out their usual programme of winter athletics. Indor baseball, basketball, indor tennis, bowling and field hockey are among the games that are being preparted for. The girls of this rubber company go in for athletics as enthusiastically as the men. During the present summer season the girls have had a wonderful baseball team, which has met and defeated the teams of other rubber companies of the city.

MISS CUSTOMBUILT TO TOUR COUNTRY.

SOLVES ADVERTISING PROBLEM FOR COMPANY AND JUST FILLS THE BILL.

A treat for motorists as well as automobile men is in store next week when Marilyn Miller, famous star of the Follies, arrives in Los Angeles in the character by which she has become known to the readers of national magazines in all parts of the country—as Miss Stewart Custombilt. She will visit Harry Ungar, manager of the Stewart products service station.

Miss Miller is known as the year's find in musical comedy circles on Broadway and has jumped from almost obscurity as far as the stage is concerned, to stardom in the last year. She appeared in the "Ziegfield Follies of 1918" and immediately danced her way into the hearts of hundreds of thousands of people who were fortunate enough to attend the theater at which she was appearing.

But Miss Miller's fame does not depend entirely upon her ability to dance her way into popular favor. She has a distinctly different following and a large number of admirers as Miss Stewart Custombilt. She has stolen many a heart as she beamed from all of the national magazines with a manner that has been called the very embodiment of grace, beautiy and genuine youthfulness.

For more than a year the officials of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer corporation have sought artists' creations of fancy or some real live human model who could bring to life the outstanding feature of Stewart products—neatness, trimness and the air of tailor-madeness.

The problem was solved by the very fortunate attendance of C. B. Smith, president of the Stewart company at the Ziegfield Follies. He had found "Miss Stewart Custombilt" in Marilynn Miller, the little dancing star. Miss Miller finally was induced to pose for photographs in the distinctive uniform made for her.

WINDSHIELD WINGS NOT MERE NOVELTY.

HAVE PROVED THEIR VALUE AS PART OF EUIPMENT FOR MOTOR CARS.

Like many other improvements in automobile equipment, wind deflectors when they first appeared attracted considerable attention and were at first considered merely novelties. But as they demonstrated their value to the motorist he began to take them seriously and to consider the deflectors a legitimate part of his machine's equipment.

As a result of this progress and popularity of the devices among motorists, inventors have concentrated on them to make the many needed improvements. They have made various changes until many of the early faults of construction have been eliminated.

Combining all new improvements the National Windshields Wings were introduced on the local market last week. The new wings are a Los Angeles product, being made and distributed by the Hillman-Shaynin Manufacturing Company at their plant at 1005 South Figueroa street.

While serving the same purpose as other wings, the new National Wings, according to E. C. Hillman, president of the manufacturing company, will do away with the cracking and breaking of the glass and the inconvenience that many motorists have experienced. They will also do away with the necessity of using a wrench to change the position of the deflector. They are absolutely adjustable at any angle and do not obstruct the view, and in addition fold back when the use of a side curtain is necessary on the car.

PREPARING MAPS FOR TOUR.

A convenient method of preparing pocket maps for use on a tour is to paste them onto strips of cardboard about three inches wide and eight inches long. This makes a convenient size for ready reference in the car and fits in the pocket.

HARD DRIVING TEST FOR CAR.

Four Times Over Roughest Part of Sierras.

Fall Months Best for Mountain Touring.

Over a Thousand Miles Without Re-filling Radiator.

Betty, the "Geared-to-the-Road" Girl, and her Hudson, are rapidly becoming known all over California because of her strenuous travels by motor car. The latest exploit of this young aspirant for touring honors is in driving four times across the roughest part of the Sierra Nevada Mountains in one trip.

Twice Miss Betty crossed the summit of Tioga Pass, at 10,000 feet above sea level, then over the forty-mile grade and 7630 feet elevation of Placerville Pass, and back again into California over Emigrant Gap, a narrow slit in the Sierras, one and three-fourths miles higher than the Golden Gate.

SIDE TRIPS.

"As though that energetic bit of testing car and tires were not enough, Betty and her party of lady friends took side trips to the Mariposa Grove of Big Trees, Glacier Point and Yosemite Valley. Here is what she says.

"By all means go into the Sierras in the fall months if you can. Most people say June and July when the water is higher in the streams, and that is true for the first timer, but for those who know, September and October beats them all. After the first frost, the fall colors of shrub and tree are wonderful. Then, too, there are no mosquitos, and while the nights are crisp, the mornings are gloriously sharp and invigorating.

WHOOPS!

"We drove our Hudson 1746 miles without touching a tool to the car, and without putting any additional water in the radiator, or changing a tire. Now that is what I call genuine satisfaction, especially when we had nearly 5500 miles on our Miller cords when we left Los Angeles.

"The safety first feature alone of having the combination of a dependable car and geared-to-the-road tires, makes such a trip one to be remembered. We had already driven over 25,000 miles with the Hudson and our splendid expedience with Miller cords on all sorts of mountain grades leads us to believe that the "safety-first" idea is well worth while."

WAR PICTURES TO BE EXHIBITED HERE.

VETERAN MOTORS ACROSS CONTINENT GIVING LECTURES ON ST. MIHIEL.

Carrying government motion pictures of the battle of St. Mihiel, Paul L. Bolin, One Hundred and Sixty-seventh Infantry, Rainbow Division, is on his way to Los Angeles. Bolin saw over a year of active service on the battle front in France, and was seriously wounded by a piece of high explosive shell at the engagement of Chateau Thierry. Handicapped by the loss of one leg, this soldier is braving a trip overland by motor car, and recently left New York in a Saxon six roadster. He plans to give lectures with his pictures at Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Kansas City, Santa Fe, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Sergt. Bolin is an author as well as a lecturer, having published his book of experiences, "Americans Defending Democracy." He has also appeared before the motion-picture camera, and it is said that he has a contract to appear in war pictures with the Fox Corporation when he reaches San Francisco.

Sergt. Bolin wears both the Croix de Guerre and the Alabama State medal for valor. The latter decoration is awarded by the southern State to her sons who have won unusually commendable praise for bravery on the battlefield.

While in Los Angeles, Sergt. Bolin and his wife, who is accompanying him on his transcontinental tour, will be entertained by the James V. B. Baldwin Motor Company

THIRD INNOVATION IN BATTERY GAME.

TIME PAYMENT SYSTEM ADOPTED TO GO WITH GUARANTEE PLAN.

If the third Tobey innovation scores the success of its predecessors, A. J. Tobey of the Western Auto Electric Corporation, distributors for Willard batteries, will surely deserve the distinction of being the livest battery dealer on the Coast. Mr. Tobey has just sprung his third surprise, which promises to again set the pace for Willard dealers in all parts of the country.

The inauguration of a system of time payments on batteries, a system not practiced before by Willard dealers, was made last week. Under the new system, the batteries may be purchased with an initial payment and installments at set periods, thus doing away with the inconvenience of a complete outlay on the batteries at the time of purchase.

AID TO MOTORISTS.

The new system, according to Mr. Tobey, was inaugurated merely to aid the motorist in purchasing a good battery rather than buying a cheap battery or a rebuilt article. Many motorists, through lack of sufficient ready money, are often forced to buy a battery of inferior quality or a second-hand affair that does not please them. Despite their better judgment, the motorists invest in such articles rather than borrow money or ask favors.

To eliminate the necessity of battery users resorting to such methods, Mr. Tobey has installed his time-payment system for batteries. The use of the installment system does not in any way lessen the service that Mr. Tobey has installed. Even with the credit system, every Willard threaded rubber battery will carry an unqualified insurance policy for eighteen months' service, assuring the battery free from all defects.

DEALER ENTHUSIASM ON THE INCREASE.

"We've noticed a decided increase in dealer enthusiasm, since our dealers have had to drive their cars away from the factory instead of shipping by rail," said R. G. Ewell, sales manager of the Allan Motor Company of Columbus, O.

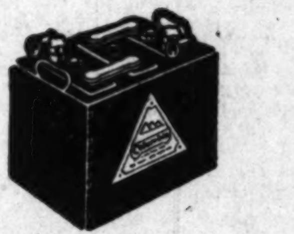
"When first the shortage in shipping facilities was felt motor car makers worried about the lack. They have found, however, that there is no better kind of introduction between the product and the dealer, than the long drive-away experience."

ALL CONVENIENCES IN STAGE TERMINAL.

MANAGEMENT MAKES EVERY EFFORT TO ADD TO PASSENGERS' COMFORT.

Women, whether at home or traveling, appreciate those little attentions and modern conveniences that have today become part of a well-ordered existence and these conditions are not confined to the wealthy or the well-to-do, for they are deemed essential by those who work for a wage or whose means are very limited. That the management of the union stage depot at East Fifth and South Los Angeles streets has overlooked nothing in this respect is shown by the accommodations furnished women and children who travel by stage.

Two maids are on duty during the day and evening in the women's rest room, where there are modern conveniences for travelers of this class that are probably not surpassed in any transportation terminal. All the depot employees have instructions to be particularly courteous and helpful to all women and children.



When a successful merchant decides to go into the battery business he believes in the battery he selects

A Value Unsurpassed

No matter where you drive in the Stephens Salient Six, you will always feel proud of this car, in which beauty of design and mechanical excellence are so well combined. The Stephens survives the acid test of critical inspection and trial in every particular.

California with its widely varied topography and climate, is probably the most severe testing ground for an automobile that can be found. The stamina, power and economy of the Stephens have twice been convincingly demonstrated in the last two annual economy runs to the Yosemite. On both occasions it was the winner in its class.

The perfected overhead-valve engine which develops 57 horsepower, burns the poorest or the best grades of fuel and under all conditions extracts every unit of power. That the Stephens is very economical on tires is well established by thousands of owners.

A feature of extreme convenience is the windshield, which insures absolutely clear vision and full ventilation at all times. By a simple adjustment of the glass, a vacuum is created between the front and rear sections of the shield so that a current of air is drawn from the interior of the car instead of into it.

ALL-SEASON CAR.

The sportosine is an exclusive all-season car that affords every advantage of construction common either to a sedan or limousine, and at the same time possesses those characteristics which give the chummy sport model its distinctive individuality. Designed to carry four passengers in the permanent seats, this model has, also, two cab seats which fold into the back of the solid front seat, giving it a total capacity for six passengers.

MOTOR TRUCK BODY RECEIVES ATTENTION.

The manner of selling a motor truck has undergone a great change in the last few years, says Mr. M. B. Hoagland, sales manager of the Signal Motor Truck Co., Detroit.

A few years ago when motor trucks were a comparatively new venture and their use was limited to a few lines of business for delivery purposes most any kind of a stake body would answer the purpose.

Now when motor trucks are purchased for a myriad of use and are purchased solely because they will save the purchaser money, the type of body with which the truck is equipped may make a great deal of difference in the results and in the saving.

Six Reasons Why National Windshield Wings Are the Best

1. Auxiliary windshield post overcomes all windshield post irregularity, thereby allowing two fasteners and still adjustable to any position at any angle,
2. Two sets of buttons positively hold it in desired position.
3. Clamp around auxiliary post, being one continuous loop, gives positive grip.
4. Bolts through glass well rubber-cushioned, making flexible contact point.
5. Positive stop collar can be set to any positive stop position. This not only keeps wing from striking windshield, but allows you to keep light tension on buttons, permitting free oscillation of wing.
6. Showing that there is no windshield post too irregular for the National.

NOTES AND PROBLEMS.

PUBLICATIONS IN THE REALM OF CHECKERS.

BY JOHN DOUGHERTY.

October 5, 1919.

Chess and Checker Headquarters, 716 Higgins Building. All chess and checker players invited to join. For further information, see or write the secretary, D. H. Bowes, at the clubrooms.

All communications intended for this department should be addressed to John Dougherty, The Times, Los Angeles, Cal.

AMONG THE FANS.

The entries for the tournament mentioned in the last few issues, for which an "angel" donated a $25 prize, will close next Wednesday night. It is suggested that all those entering, if possible, meet at the clubrooms Thursday evening at 8 o'clock and decide on rules governing tourney.

E. H. Payne is due to arrive here most any day. He wrote from Scotia, Cal., that he would leave there for Los Angeles about September 1, but neglected to state mode of transportation. As he has not arrived to date he must be either "counting ties" or swimming down the coast.

H. Lieberman writes that his work at Camp Kearny is very pleasant and he expects to remain on the job for some time.

b—This move is also given to correct published play where 7-11 was given to draw, but failed to materialize.

c—Mr. Stone plays 27-23 at this point and allows the draw, the text wins. This game was copied by the editor of the Chronicle from the Bradford Weekly Chronicle, so it has traveled quite a bit. 31-26 also wins here.

The two following games were played in the first round of the Scottish tournament, and are taken from J. Forrest's column. The annotations are by Mr. Forrest.

24-19	24-19	23-16	7-2

a—Varies from the previous game, and leads to interesting play.

b—24-19 is usually played here, but is not stronger than the text move. The following fine game was contested between A. Jordan and W. K. Campbell in the London championship many years ago:

24-19	8-11	22-18	11-15	31-26
11-15	22-18	13-17	16-12	22-31

1-5	26-19	7-11	27-23	27-31
31-26	8-12	16-7	15-24	Drawn

d—24-19 is best. We think the text move is weak.

e—10-15 is much stronger, and gives Black the better game.

f—9-14 is a sound alternative, but White seems to have a safe draw.

a—The usual reply, and is best.

b—In a game we played recently with a well-known expert we tried 23-19 at this point, and got quite an even game. 25-18 is the most popular move. We played the following variation with Mr. James Wilson, Broxburn:

Black—J. Forrest.			White—Mr. Wilson.
23-18	4-8	27-24	10-17	13-6
15-22	24-20	19-23	19-10	8-11

8-11	22-17	18-23	10-6	Drawn
29-25	15-18g	17-10	2-9

g—In a Scottish tourney, R. Stewart played 6-10 at this stage against H. Henderson, and the play continued: 27-24, 8-11, 17-13, 10-17, 21-14, 19-23, 24-19, 15-24, 28-19, 2-6, 31-27, 23-26, 30-23, 6-10, 14-9, 5-14, 13-9, 11-15, 27-24, 14-18, 23-14, 10-17, 19-10, 7-14, 9-6, drawn.

c—24-19 was played here by W. K. Campbell against J. Alexander in an English tourney:

24-19	27-18	25-21	27-23	30-23
15-24	12-16	16-20	8-12	7-10
22-8	21-17	32-28	23-18	21-17
4-11	16-19	1-6	12-19	6-9
28-19	31-27	17-13	26-23	Drawn
16-23	11-16	3-8	19-26

d—16-19 looks strong, but White seems to have a sound draw by 31-26, 6-9, 23-17, 9-18, 26-23, etc.

e—If 16-19, then 27-23, 19-26, 30-23, draws.

CHESS GAME NO. 143—ENGLISH OPENING.

The lively offhand game played recently between two well-known Yorkshire players:

19—KxB	Q-R5 ch
20—K-Kt1	PxB
21—QxP-f	BxP
22—B-R7 ch	Resigns

a—We have read somewhere a description of this and closely allied positions as the classical music of chess. Tarrasch once so referred to it. Perhaps at the time it did not occur to him that the position is the logical outcome of the English opening. The move played at this point, Q-B2, has nothing much against it, but still we think the preference should be given to Q-K2, as played by Black. If only for the reason that at B2 it is situated for an attack on the king's side, whereas at K2 it can easily support an attack on either wing as opportunity occurs.

b—The impression among chess players that the first to capture one of the center pawns in a queen's side opening is soon at a disadvantage is often proved wrong, as in the present instance.

c—With the intention of P-K4, but the rook is already strongly posted at KB1.

d—A strong move; the attacking point has now shifted to KR6.

e—An ingenious sacrificial combination, which, however, White averts by a threat of mate on his 22nd move.

f—It was probably overlooked that the queen could take the pawn for if White had to play 22—KxB, then Kt checks won the queen.

g—If 22—...., K-R1; 23—B-K6 ch, K-Kt1; 24—Q-R7 ch, and mate next move.

CONCERNING TENNIS "COMET."

Much has been written concerning the meteoric rise to fame of Maurice E. McLoughlin, the California "comet," who twice won the national singles title and was a three-time holder, with Thomas C. Bundy, of the national doubles title. Critics exclaimed over him at the heyday of his career some five or six years ago, and R. M. Kidston, the famous Australian expert, dubbed him the "comet" because of the dash and force and furious energy which he used in his play. Nothing approaching his style had ever before been seen on a tennis court

His spectacular downfall, so called, apparently, is to furnish "copy" for as many stories as in the days when he was conquering the late Anthony Wilding, the Australian star, and his famous partner, Norman Everett Brookes, for many years the terror of Davis cup contests.

Eastern critics class McLoughlin's "downfall" as one of those everlasting mysteries, and profess to find themselves at a loss to explain the fading out of an athlete who possessed so much courage, class and fire while still near his prime.

Perhaps the best reason that has been offered for McLoughlin's "mysterious downfall" is his own simple explanation.

"In the days when I was winning championships," he says, "it was a customary thing for me to devote at least five or six months a year to hard court practice and tournament play. I conditioned myself much as a prize fighter would for a championship battle. Nowadays I get my tennis by fits and starts. My family and my business demand my time."

Figures tell as well, perhaps, as anything else the story of McLoughlin's tumble from the dizzy heights of fame.

On July 26, 1913, Hackett and McLoughlin, the American doubles team, wrested the Davis cup from the hands of the English by beating Barrett and Dixon in a great five-set match at Wimbledon, 5-7, 6-1, 2-6, 7-5, 6-4. The American team average, based on the number of points won and lost, was .398, while that of the Englishmen was .329, the winners scoring sixty-four placements, netting fifty-nine points, outing thirty-seven and double faulting once. Barrett and Dixon scored [illegible] placements, netted [illegible]ty-three and outed thirty-two, and double faulted thrice.

In 1914 when the Australian team lifted the Davis cup after its year's sojourn in America Brookes and Wilding defeated McLoughlin and Bundy, the American defenders, in three straight sets, 6-3, 8-6, 9-7. If each of the four players in that match were represented in averages, based on the number of points won and lost, Wilding would lead with .408, McLoughlin would be represented with .310, and Bundy and Brookes would have .254 and .250, respectively. This match followed McLoughlin's victory of the day before over Brookes, 17-15, 6-3, 6-3, and accounts of the doubles battle described McLoughlin's playing as listless, his smashing as inaccurate, lobbing as weak and his terrific service as without effect. And yet McLoughlin scored twenty-four placements that day and three service aces, while he netted thirty points, outed twenty-two and double faulted once. Team average for the Australians was .312, and for the Americans, .285.

Coming now to the recent doubles match at the Los Angeles Country Club between Brookes and Patterson and McLoughlin and Bundy, almost identically the same foemen that met in 1914 with the exception of Patterson, and he is declared to be a better server and volleyer than Wilding. The Australians won in two straight sets, 7-5, 6-1. Representing the players as before Patterson would have .405, Brookes .375, McLoughlin .244 and Bundy .288. But the contrast is the more obvious when noting the number of placements scored by the "comet" in the 1919 match. Against Brookes and Patterson he was only able to make 10, outing 15 and netting 15 shots.

It would appear, therefore, that McLoughlin has fallen off even more than the sixty-six points difference between his .310 figure of 1914 and his .244 figure of 1919, for the critics said he was in the doldrums the day he and Bundy met Brookes and Wilding.

Accepting his own explanation at its face value it is doubtful if McLoughlin will ever regain the form that made him the champion of them all. Work is what made him a champion. Work would undoubtedly perform wonders for him now, but the inclination without the time is useless.

ADVERTISING IS HIS LONG SUIT.

E. D. Gibbs Accepts Position with Goodrich Company.

Has Comprehensive Experience in Whole Game.

Present Advertising Department Remains the Same.

W. O. Rutherford, second vice-president, in charge of the sales of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, has announced the appointment of E. D. Gibbs to the position of advertising director.

This appointment is made in harmony with the plans of First Vice-President H. E. Raymond, to be relieved of the task of advertising supervision and concentrates full direction of advertising under Mr. Rutherford's personal supervision.

SAME SYSTEM.

Mr. Gibbs's appointment does not disturb the present advertising department, which will be continued under the direction of E. C. Tibbitts as advertising manager.

Coming into the Goodrich organization, Mr. Gibbs brings with him a comprehensive experience covering many years' service in executive advertising capacities.

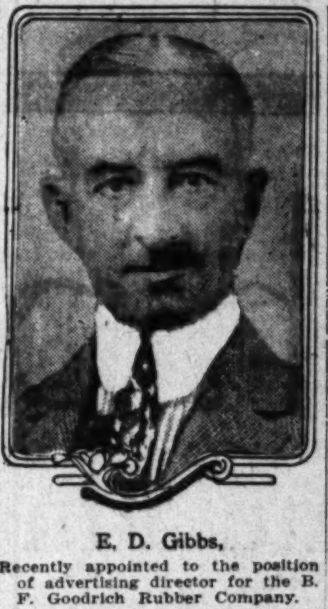
For twelve years Mr. Gibbs was advertising director of the National Cash Register Company of Dayton, in close personal contact with John H. Patterson, president of that company. During this time his activities were extended even into all European countries.

IN BIG WAY.

To Mr. Gibbs goes the credit of having assisted in building up one of the largest individual advertising organizations in the country, that of the National Cash Register Company. That company operates the second largest printing plant in the country owned by a private corporation. One publication alone issued to prospective cash register buyers, reached a distribution of 1,290,000 copies per month. While with the National Cash Register Company Mr. Gibbs gathered about him a staff of experts in every branch of advertising activity and inaugurated many original window displays which were shown throughout the country.

Mr. Gibbs has been prominently identified with the development of advertising, having been president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, president of the Sphinx Club of New York, the oldest and most influential advertising association in the country, and president of the New York Sales Managers' Club. He is also a charter member of the Sphinx Club of London.

As a writer and lecturer on topics of advertising and merchandising, Mr. Gibbs has likewise earned an international reputation.



E. D. Gibbs,
Recently appointed to the position of advertising director for the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company.

MANAGES TO SPEED UP CAR SHIPMENTS.

Three carloads of automobiles a week. This is the good news that James V. Baldwin brings home, after spending three months at the Saxon factory.

The president of the James V. Baldwin Motor Company reports that Detroit is packed and jammed with dealers from all over the country, all clamoring for more merchandise. Manufacturers, on the other hand, delayed by the uncertain supply and exorbitant price of materials, are making every effort to satisfy their distributors.

The Saxon factory is now shipping to the local Saxon distributors a fair quota of cars, and for the first time in many months the James V. Baldwin Motor Company is able to offer a few cars for immediate delivery.

EFFICIENT TIRE SERVICE GIVEN.

POPULARITY OF GIANT PNEUMATICS INCREASING BY LEAPS AND BOUNDS.

To provide efficient tire service for the extraordinarily large number of automobile and truck owners in Los Angeles who use Miller geared-to-the-road tires, the Miller Tire Sales Company, distributor of those tires for this territory, have effected an organization the members of which are well distributed. According to L. S. Utter, the dealers in this wide area have been selected with the view of placing sales and service stations within easy reach of Miller users in every section.

"With the great majority of us time is money today and no matter how small may be the service required, if it is close at hand time is saved Miller users. This feature has particular applications with operators of trucks which use Miller giant pneumatics. Truck owners are beginning to understand the real earning value in giant pneumatics and their use is fast increasing everywhere," stated Utter.

Stimulating Los Angeles Business

There are today in active operation several thousand truck-transportation companies. From every large distributing center, and many small ones, these arteries of express trucking reach out, relieving—even revolutionizing—the older methods of moving freight.

The data collected by the Firestone Ship by Truck Bureau of this city shows that truck lines are in operation all along the roads which radiate in all directions from this center of commerce.

These companies offer you a service you can depend on.

Already the tendency is toward organizations of financial stability and high efficiency of operation.

When you entrust a shipment to one of these forwarders by truck, you have ample assurance of punctual delivery.

The transport company's truck backs up to your shipping platform. Your consignment is loaded and receipt given. The truck rolls out; is shortly moving on its sure, rapid, uninterrupted course to its destination.

Upon its arrival, the truck goes directly to the receiving platform of the consignee.

Your goods are handled only two or three times. Breakage is reduced to the minimum.

By way of contrast, learn from your traffic man the delays and rehandling of the average short haul freight shipment from your plant to a customer. Look into the complications of transfer and redistribution in belt road collections, freight houses, junction points. Consider the many handlings that are necessary, with consequent delay, labor expense and possible damage.

Short haul freight shipments represent a waste both to shipper and the railroad. You probably know these conditions. Correct them. The remedy is at hand.

Ship by Truck.

Get in touch with the Firestone Ship by Truck Bureau, 1165 South Figueroa St. Study the schedules on this page of the truck transportation companies serving this city. You'll discover that short and medium distance freight transportation is being revolutionized through the idea "Ship by Truck."

Every box and case loaded on a truck is not only a matter of better service for you and for your customer, but a contribution to our local and national welfare.

The Garden Beautiful in Southern California.

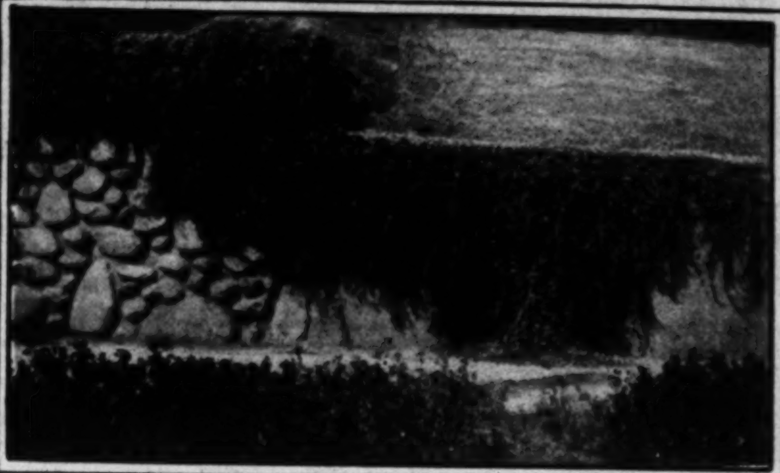
INFORMATION BOTH PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC. BY ERNEST BRAUNTON.

AT SOME conventions of the California Avocado Association much has been said of corkscrew roots on the trees. More has been said outside conventions and some remarks from victims are scarcely printable. Nearly all growers want to play the baby act with avocados and hold them in six-inch pots until budded and the bud has started to grow well. The best trees will never be obtained by this method. Some are held in smaller pots until the corkscrews are well under process of formation. It is then too late to shift to a six-inch pot or anything else, even to the garden. If put into pots at all, they shoud be six-inch at first and unless pushed as fast as food and water will make them grow and budded as soon as possible and got out of the pot, they are not worth a cent each and will never make good trees. The seedlings should be field grown and budded in the field as is done with oranges and all other fruit trees and when of a like size. The writer has not visited a nursery yet that grows them properly and is therefore telling the many who apply to this department that no dealer will be recommended, though all information asked is cheerfully given. The writer also knows whereof he writes and has examined the roots of many dead avocados and found all of them pot-bound. with corkscrew roots. A letter has just been received that strongly appeals to the writer and is timely in answering the warning contained in this department a few weeks ago. We do not know the writer of the letter but he points out the royal road to success with avocados:

"I would like to say just a few words for the benefit of avocado lovers, having made a special study of the avocado for the past twelve years. Have read every thing I could find, have visited all the biggest nurseries and growers, and have seen some very fine trees. In the first place, the open-air or field-grown tree is the best, but I have seen them grown in cans and also in large beds covered with glass, but I do not believe that a nursery pot-grown plant is worth bothering with, and I do not believe you can ever get a first class tree that way. I have seen how some prepare the seeds for planting, and in one case, saw a man with a tub filled with water in which he was soaking the seeds. Follow instructions and you can get results. To get a good first-class tree, you must start with the seed and the seed must be from ripe fruit. Never soak the seed in water, but keep it in a nice, cool, dry place, and when it begins to crack it is ready for planting. Leaf mold is best to start them, and the best time to plant is from about the last of March to the middle of April. Plant the seed out in the open ground with the sprouting end up, covering completely about one-quarter inch below the surface. Keep the top dry but water so that the water gets to the bottom of the seed, and the ground must be kept loose so the seed can expand. Follow this plan and in from fifty to sixty days the seeds will be up, and in two months from the time they are up, they should be from twelve to fourteen inches high and ready to bud, and by the following February, should be ready to transplant. After planting the seeds, do not water for six or seven days, then give them a good watering and keep the ground loose and moist and they will start to make root in about thirty days from planting and in thirty days more they will be up with a tap-root about six or seven inches long and sometimes longer. At the age of ten or eleven months, the tree is ready to transplant, i.e., ten or eleven months from the time the seed is planted. In other words you can plant the seed and get it up in sixty days, and in seventy-five days more bud it, making four months and a half, and in six months more it is ready to plant and by that time you will have a tree about eighteen inches high with a tap-root about fourteen inches long and the other roots coming out nicely. Transplant as soon as possible so as not to affect the tap root as it is necessary for an avocado to have a tap-root. Never keep the tree out of the ground any longer than can be possibly helped, but transplant it at once so as not to give it a shock. I have no trees for sale, but have a few to back up my statements and they are open to the public for inspection.—[W. E. P.

Common Sense Gardening.

There are plenty of good openings for market gardeners in Southern California whether one likes to grow flowers and ornamental plants or prefers to raise vegetables. But little capital is needed, the main equipment being common sense and a willingness to work. One needs a little more technical knowledge to raise flowers, bulbs or ornamental plants than he does if he follows vegetables. But he need not be a scientific horticulturist or have graduated from a university. All these will help and help much, but are not indispensable, or even necessary.



Lippia lawn and wall cover.

It really is pathetic, but a fact, that education (properly but schooling) often unfits one for tackling life's problems. To get down to the concrete, local plant growers will not hire university graduates; some of our largest establishments will not give one an ear and the writer, upon investigation has found it all due to the attitude of the graduate. He presumes he knows more about the work than the unlettered man when the reverse is true. While one was at college the other was learning the business. But the college man should, and could, quickly outstrip the other fellow, but his attitude is apt to be faulty. One young fellow applied to a farmer for special employment and when the farmer asked him how well equipped he was, he answered: "Well, I was graduated from two colleges." The farmer replied: "I once had a calf that sucked two cows and the more it sucked the bigger calf it grew." Still a calf! Education as we generally speak of it is like a good tool; it takes good common sense to make proper use of it. So if you have common sense and know your business, you are well educated in your particular line and that is all one needs to make a success of commercial gardening. The city is crying for more and better cut flowers, bulbs, ornamental shrubs and trees, all sorts of fruit trees and vegetables of every sort. Every year of late prices of all these have rapidly advanced. Here is your opportunity.

Joshua tree, Mojave Desert.

Jack pine on Mt. Rubidoux.

Uses of Yucca.

The western deserts, especially those of Southern California, are plentifully supplied with yuccas, all of which have some economic uses. The split leaves of some species make splendid woven chair bottoms and also are used by the Indians in every way we use string and small ropes, in tying and binding. In Mexico ropes are made from species of similar value as fiber. In the same country coarse bagging is also made from the machine-cleaned fiber. Vegetable soap is made from many species, and in the early stages the inflorescence is either boiled or roasted and used for human food. So, too, are the ripe fruits eaten by the Mexican and Indian children, who call them figs or dates. Seeds of some are ground and eaten either raw or cooked as mush and the pounded roots are used as fish poison. All Californians know how the trunks of our giant species are used for making tree protectors, surgeon's splints, the pith for paper and several other uses, which together will some day cause the extinction of this gigantic species.

Low Price of Living.

We have just happened to find a report made a few years ago by one who loved gardening of all kinds and grew extra vegetables each year until he proudly produced the following, pretty good for an amateur. Note carefully the prices:

"I sold to my neighbors and townspeople near by: Twenty bushels of carrots at 50 cents; twenty-five bushels of turnips at 40 cents; 700 bunches of radishes at one cent; seventy-five bunches of beets at 3 cents; fifteen bushels of onions at 75 cents; five bushels of beans at $1; fifteen bushels of white turnips at 50 cents; twenty-five dozen heads of lettuce at 25 cents a dozen." Can you beat it? How do they do it?

Town Planning.

A leaflet issued by the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association states that: "Town planning is the art of laying out cities to serve the business requirements, convenience, health and comfort of the public. It is guiding the growth of a village or city in conformity with a scientific design. It is adapting the physical form of a city to the peculiar needs of its parts."

Rectangular Street Plan.

The chief excuse for rectangular street platting is that it is easy and may be indefinitely extended. Of course it is also easy to find one's way about a city so planned and it is quite commendable for busy centers as it is the most economic disposition of the land possible. Although this plan is very ancient we alone have so used it everywhere without good reason that Europeans now call it "the American plan." But Los Angeles and other places situated upon hilly lands are only rendered ugly in their residence parts by blind adherence to this plan.

Where are the Myricas?

In the early days of the writer's experience in California horticulture there was introduced a tree named Myrica rubra, for which many favorable claims were made. It was described as an evergreen fruit tree from Japan that attained a height of fifty feet, with foliage similar to that of the magnolia. The fruit was said to resemble a blackberry an inch long, but with a single seed only, and to answer all purposes for which blackberries are used. The Pacific Rural Press of San Francisco in 1889 published a long and glowing account of the tree and its behavior and stated it would grow over the Pacific Coast and eastward through Texas. Trees were sold in Los Angeles, but where are they now?

Chrysanthemum History.

Chrysanthemums were introduced to Europe 130 years ago, for in November, 1889, there was celebrated in England the centenary of their introduction. Three varieties, one white, one purple and the other violet, were imported by a merchant of Versailles, but only the purple one lived and he imported no more. The first seedlings were grown in France in 1826 and the first in England in 1835. Edwin Lansdale, an eminent English horticulturist who died in Los Angeles a few years ago, came to Philadelphia many years ago and at once became leader of all in his line. His memoirs state that the first chrysanthemum show held in Philadelphia was in 1883 and not much was thought of them at that time. But the next year the craze began and we have been at it ever since.

A Saner Taste.

For the past few years there has been a gratifying revolt against monstrosities in flowers and a satisfying tendency to return to single-flowered species. It will be so with chrysanthemums some day in the near future. Some few will continue to admire these gigantic window mops but people of taste will grow them naturally, to obtain natural flowers of reasonable size and artistic form. These freaks of fashion have too long called the best efforts of our gardeners from better plants and nobler achievements. When these abnormal forms are no longer in demand the skillful gardener will give us something worthy of his time and of our attention.

Plant Alkaloids.

Alkaloids in plants are detrimental to animal life as alkaloids or alkalis in the soil is to plant life. They are not of food value but many are used medicinally. Chief of these is strychnin, from the strychnos bean. Morphin, from seeds of poppies (from opium) is another, so is quinin from Peruvian bark and nicotin from tobacco leaves. Alkaloids in the human body are likewise detrimental, the cause of ptomaine poisoning and other ills. So while we have enough already in our systems, do not use any of those derived from plants, even as medicine. No alkaloids are found in cereals or food plants, but they are present in poisonous plants like the water hemlock, also in ergot or grain smut.

Clay Soils.

Those possessed of clay soils have, as a rule, very fertile soils, but those who have pure clay have no soil in an agricultural sense, for pure clay contains no plant food. In the Mississippi Valley the writer has seen plenty of pure clay both blue and yellow, the blue being generally the purest. But in California he has seen none, but a wager will be laid that the best in the State underlies the writer's garden at a depth of three feet. It is nearly white, much lighter than battleship gray. But it contains plant food, doubtless decomposed granite for one thing, and after exposure to the air for a few days is easy to crush. This physical condition is a proof that it is clay soil and far from pure clay. Much of our clay soil in California is good enough for bricks but needs organic matter before being fit for crop production.

Michigan has a law to encourage the planting of fruit and nut trees along State highways.

Migratory Bees and the Spread of Foul Brood.

BY L. W. WELLS, PIONEER VENTURA COUNTY BEE MAN.

IN MANY a green vale of Southern California where a few years ago the landscape was dotted with successful apiaries there is now to be found hardly a trace of the bee man's former occupancy. Perhaps a dilapidated honey house or a few wrecks of hives mark the spot where once the busy little laborers went about their daily tasks.

What I shall have to say here pertains mostly to Ventura county, as I am most familiar with conditions there, but the bee business has suffered, and for the same reasons, elsewhere and my observations have a more or less general application. Bee keeper after bee keeper who has been successfully engaged in producing honey, has turned away in recent years from this occupation because of the hazards that go with it.

In 1913, when I began to familiarize myself with California honey production, most of the bee keepers of the State were of the resident apiarist type. Today we find about one-half of the apiarists at least a part of each year in the migratory bee keeper class. And while bee disease, the cause of the present menace to the industry has existed with us for years, occasioning serious losses, it has wondrously multiplied, in this section at least, in the five years since migratory bee keeping has come into such common practice.

In 1913 American foul brood was existent in Ventura county only in a very few apiaries. European foul brood was much more prevalent, and here and there an isolated case of sack brood appeared. Today we have American foul brood, together with a certain amount of the other two diseases, in its most contagious and destructive form.

When we come to consider bee disease, a close analysis of the means by which it has been spread brings us to an examination of the law governing the handling of these diseases. In the State of California we possibly have as good a law as could have been enacted as early as 1913. In most counties of the State this law has been supplemented by county ordinance. We find that the Code of 1903 provides for inspection of bees, the creation of the office of County Bee Inspector, also defining his duties, and providing a penalty for the violation of the law. In Ventura county the State law was supplemented by a very stringent quarantine law, which, while it had some objectionable features, was designed for the protection of the interests of all apiarists.

The way in which the laws are being evaded is a scandal to the bee business. The Statutes of California speak of contagious bee diseases as such and there is no other way to interpret them. They apply to contagious diseases unnamed as well as those specialized by name.

Apiarists attacked by American foul brood and seeking to evade the law almost invariably try to make out that the trouble is European foul brood and through some excess of agreeableness upon the part of the inspectors, they get away with it. To get away from having even to mention European foul brood by name they have named it "Black Brood."

While the law was intended to be just as applicable to European foul brood as it is to American foul brood, the disease masquerading under the misnomer of Black Brood is dealt with but lightly or not at all when found. The deception is doubly reprehensible all around, of course, when the American foul brood itself is palmed off as the so-called Black Brood and its contagion is allowed to spread through that means.

SPREADING THE DISEASE.

With all the slip-shod, indulgent methods of the inspectors, however, the menace of disease would not be so great were not migratory bee keeping such a fad. There is a provision in the law that before any bees can be removed by common carrier, they must first be inspected by a competent and designated County Bee inspector in the State of California. As long as bee keeping was largely in the hands of resident bee keepers this law was hardly more than an inactive clause on the statutes, for the inspectors were rarely called upon to issue bills of health for migratory bees. Today the resident bee keeper can hardly secure the inspector's services becaus of the demands made upon that official's time for the certification of health for the removal of bees under the demands of migratory bee keeping.

Five years ago when an inspector entered the apiary to inspect bees before issuing a certificate of health, it was the practice to inspect each hive. Today it is a physical impossibility for the inspector to meet the demands of migratory bee keepers for these certificates and to inspect the bees as was previously done. He enters the yard and inspects two or three colonies, possibly does not take even this trouble, and then issues a certificate entitling the bee owner to move without actually knowing whether the colonies are diseased or not. That these methods are not confined to Ventura county alone is more than probable.

A Ventura county apiary.

Same apiary after an attack of foul brood, showing hives being renovated, following treatment for disease.

An all-too-prevalent practice: Foul brood-infected hives piled up and allowed to stand with combs exposed to passing bees, a source of disease to all surrounding apiaries.

An abandoned apiary. Foul brood has been responsible for many such.

MAKE OWNERS RESPONSIBLE.

In my belief the responsibility for inadequate inspection should be put up to the owners as well as the inspectors by county ordinances requiring a sworn certificate that his bees were free of disease from the bee man himself before any health certificate for the removing of the bees could be issued. The Statute of 1903 provided ample funds for the enforcement of the law, and declares that upon ten days' notice, and upon the failure of the owner to destroy the disease (and not necessarily the bees within the apiary,) that the inspector shall do it, at the county expense.

With conditions as they are and with migratory bee keeping being encouraged and talked about, it is small wonder that disease has increased and been spread over the section. In my opinion migratory bee-keeping has been woefully overdone anyhow.

MIGRATION OVERDONE.

In a given district in Los Angeles and in one in Ventura counties, there will be room for forty bee keepers. The orange flow comes on in Los Angeles county prior to the flow in Ventura county. The forty bee-keepers from Ventura county move into the limited district of Los Angeles county. Result—there only can be a half crop of orange honey to each of the eighty bee keepers. In the same way when the sage and bean flow arrives in Ventura county, if the eighty colonies are removed to the pasturage there, they can only obtain a half crop. When you come to consider in addition the expences of moving, I fail to see where the bee keepers have been benefited.

In rare instances where a man can control a location at both ends of his circuit without destroying the productiveness of the apiaries of others it seems to be that migratory bee keeping can be called a rea-

Another objectionable feature of migratory bee keeping, is the injury that experience has taught us comes to the queen from being cooped up in a hot hive without adequate ventilation while moving. The older books taught us that three years was an ordinary period for the life of the queen, but often they attain four years of age. In recent years this has been decried and we have been urged to re-queen as a necessity every year. This, I am sure, is largely due to migratory bee keeping. The bee man is compelled to either re-queen or stand a large loss during the winter season by reason of having no queen, and what the ultimate effect of years of bee keeping along this line will be in deteriorating the health of the bees will not require a vivid imagination to realize.

Upon the other hand, we find today that where the resident bee keepers have been able to retain their locations, they have been able to combat disease, even in a year like this, when drouth and want of pasturage has so sorely tried the bee man. The resident owners have succeeded in many instances in securing good crops, and we hear no complaint about the excessive loss of queens.

In 1913 the treatment of European foul brood was successfully practiced. Today, in conjunction with the prevalence of American foul brood, it offers a positive menace. In fact the majority opinion among our bee keepers is that there is only one safe method to treat bee diseases, and that is by treating all as if it was American foul brood, by the prescribed methods of shaking. The best authorities agree, too, that where shaking is resorted to it should be done while the honey flow is ample for the bees, and when the colonies are strong.

LAW DOES NOT PROTECT.

Our law is supposed to give us protection by declaring that after ten days' notice the inspector shall at the county's expense eradicate contagious disease. In practice today I can point out apiary after apiary in my own territory where the inspectors have actually advised the man with disease in the apiary to make his crop of honey and then shake his bees, for American foul brood when flowers were destitute of nectar.

I fail to see why we should not have the same protection in bee keeping that other departments of agricultural life are getting. As things are going now, disease detrimental to bee life and honey production is permitted to persist year after year instead of being destroyed as required by law.

I have found apiaries, where to my personal knowledge, complaint has been entered, and ten days' notice served, and still two years later I have found the same combs as before rotten with American foul brood still in the hives. And these combs that could have been destroyed and hives that should have been renovated were open to bees from every migratory group that might come into the vicinity.

Poultry Section a Big Feature of Stock Show

FINE DISPLAY PROMISED. BY HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG.

POULTRY, pigeons and rabbit breeders who contemplate exhibiting at the Los Angeles Live stock show (October 18 to 26) will be interested to learn that Walter M. Ross, the director in charge, has extended the time for taking entries from October 1, to October 10, which allows still four days for breeders to enter their best specimens. At this writing the entries give every indication of a splendid showing of chickens, pigeons and rabbits; with an extension of four more days, the management is confident that the number will be greatly augmented, resulting in one of the finest displays ever staged in Southern California.

In the poultry classes the dominant displays in the American classes will probably be Rhode Island Reds, Wyandottes and Plymouth Rocks.

In the Mediterranean there will be a fine array of Anconas, Black Minorcas, Blue Andalusians and the several varieties of Leghorns. In this connection, it is to be hoped that the Single Comb White Leghorn men will "come through" with strong entries. This breed being the leader in California poultry culture, should be dominant in the show room. It occupied a leading position in the industry, hence commands wide attention. For this reason those possessing good breeding stock will find it to their interest to make liberal entries. No place attracts more visitors than a well conducted live stock show, which invariably leads to future business.

In the English class Orpingtons will be strongly in evidence, while the growing popularity of the Cornish fowl will cause it to be well represented. Sussex and Dorkings will be less in evidence.

The Asiatics are "coming back," especially the kingly Light Brahma, of which there will be a good showing; this is also true of the Langshans. The Cochins are somewhat out of favor, and if there are those among our readers who possess a flock covering one or more of the four varieties, we hope they will enter some of their best specimens.

In the eight varieties of Polish we anticipate a small entry. Though a long established breed, it has never gained a following on this Coast.

The same is true of the Hamburgs, which are handled here and there by a few fanciers. Beautiful in color scheme and good layers of medium sized eggs, they have nevertheless not proven over-attractive in this section. If more were exhibited and their good points exploited, we believe that their sterling qualities would bring them a stronger following.

The Campines do not seem to be so popular as they were five or six years ago; still there are some good flocks in the country, hence an exhibit of merit is assured.

Bantams as usual will be an interesting display. Fanciers handling the Game as well as the Ornamental classes are by no means small in numbers in Southern California and many of whom have expressed a determination to enter liberal strings. The Black Breasted Red Games, the Sebrights, Rose Combs, Cochins, Japanese, Polish and Silkies will be represented.

Another division that promises to be interesting will be the display of capons, of which a goodly entry is assured. The capon industry is not without its economic attraction and seems to be a growing factor. A good display of different breeds that have been caponized will certainly be an interesting feature.

A unique feature of the coming show will be the exhibit of breeding yards, which will be judged as other poultry and awarded ribbons, after which the entire class of breeding yards will be judged from the best known standards for their apparent value for egg production, for which special sweepstake prizes will be awarded. It should be unnecessary to dwell on the value to any breeder of a first prize in this class. These will be judged by George W. England, who has specialized along these lines for years.

In the division of rabbits, the entries are liberal. The leading displays will be Flemish Giants, New Zealand Reds and Belgian Hares. The Cony Fur Club will show animals and a line of pelts and fur garments made up of rabbit skins. The rabbit display will be strong both in quality and numbers.

Nothing imparts a stronger educational value to a poultry and pet stock show than a comprehensive display of incubators and brooders, poultrymen's machinery and appliances, feeds and remedies, of which a fine exhibit is assured, covering every essential to the successful prosecution of the poultry, rabbit and pigeon industries.

In pigeons the entries at the present writing have not been so heavy as could be desired, though the number is far from insignificant. The pigeon fancy is a growing division of pet stock, and most of the leading varieties are handled in this section, hence it is to be hoped that fanciers will enter liberally before the time for making entries (October 10) closes.

The interest shown in turkeys and water fowl gives promise of being up to similar displays in the past. In the former the Bronze will be dominant, followed by the White Holland and possibly one or two other varieties. In ducks the Indian Runner and White Pekin will be largely in evidence, with the usual entries of geese.

In conclusion, let us kindly admonish all those of our readers who are interested in fur and feathers and who have not received copies of the premium list, to secure one at once. They are to be had of C. R. Thomas, manager of the Los Angeles Live Stock Show, Chamber of Commerce building, Los Angeles.

Individual Variations.

Allowing for the fact that no two leaves are exactly alike in the vegetable kingdom and no two bipeds or quadrupeds, in the animal kingdom, it is not at all strange that chickens do vary in production and in appearance. Nature often produces objects that are very much alike, but they are never exact duplicates. It is well to bear this in mind when producing "like begets like" in the breeding pen. The two-hundred-egg hen, even when mated to a cock from a prolific strain, does not produce a brood of 200 layers; if she did, hen fruit would soon be lower in price. Besides, it would take away the joy of breeding poultry, and the game would possess no incentive. Some years ago The Rural New Yorker started what was called a "favorite hen" contest. Thirty different hens of various breeds were entered by thirty women, each bird being taken from a farm flock after being selected as the best specimen in that flock. As was to have been expected, these hens varied greatly in their egg laying capacity. At least three of them were so superior that a study of the flocks from which they came showed that the owners had really developed a superior strain without perhaps knowing exactly how they did it. After some years of work at these poultry contests at least some of the breeders seem to have learned how to breed for superior laying quality very much as the cattle men have learned how to breed superior cows. The problem has not been solved by any means, but we are coming closer and closer to it each year, and we shall probably learn that a superior laying hen is a product of breeding and also of selection.

Unquestionably the pullets from parents with trap-nested records behind them have a better chance to develop into superior layers, but we know from experience that sisters will vary greatly in their capacity, and that selection for shape and vitality must also be made. Indeed, a brood of chicks from a fecund dam may even "throw" non-producers, or some that produce so lightly as to be unprofitable.

Some of the differences in a given flock and strain of hens are nothing less than remarkable. For instance, some do not lay during the molt, while others do; some produce offspring that resemble their dams in performance and appearance, while others will vary greatly; some are nervous and irritable during the molt while others are serene; some hens are even averse to their male companion, which (to the close observer) suggests its own remedy. All of which means that hens must to a large extent be treated individually; it also emphasizes the importance of intelligent culling and the study of individual characteristics. In spite of all our knowledge of breeding and selection, the perfect flock still remains to be developed. Until it is, we are just a trifle suspicious that the success of poultry culture still has problems for its devotees to solve, and that the room for development is still spacious and full of possibilities and problems. How does it stike you Mr. Specialty Breeder?

Plea for Fancier-spirit.

In the strife for economic values in poultry culture; in the incessant demand for so-called utility fowl; in the strenuous efforts for the 250-egg hen, we sometimes wonder if the fancier-spirit is not being neglected, or is not, at least, suffering a decline. Is not a decline more or less manifested in the indifferent attendance at the meetings of poultry associations? Now we do not disparage economic values; far from it, indeed, we allow no one to challenge our admiration for the man who knows his business and makes his poultry operations pay. And yet, we have a hankering for the fancier-spirit, for the gallant people who handle pure-blooded fowl for the love of it; who get a spiritual value out of their labors in beauty of plumage and symmetry of form that is beyond material considerations. It is this spirit that maintains the American Poultry Association and is responsible for the existence of the "American Standard of Perfection"; it constitutes the element that keeps the specialty clubs alive and is the chief maintenance of the regular winter poultry shows. To admit that it is not so pronounced and virulent as formerly is tantamount to a confession that the commercial spirit is negative to that of the fancier. For ourselves we should like to see more fanciers, people who would take up some of the breeds and varieties that are not a pronounced feature of our landscape. To the fancier his hobby becomes a devotion; his efforts and labors a joy for the doing. By all means let us have more fanciers—the industry needs them as a stimulant to higher and better things in web and feather.

Charter and Life Members.

Late reports from the Chicago convention of the American Poultry Association will relieve some anxiety on the part of the members in regard to their standing under the new constitution that has been adopted. The increase in the life membership fees in no way affects the present members; they will in future be recognized as "Charter" members, while those coming in under the new ruling will be known as "Life" and "Annual" members—the life paying a fee of $25 flat, and the annual an initiation of $5 with annual dues of $2. The Annual Association of Awards at poultry shows is held under its jurisdiction and the show rules remain substantially as they now stand, with the exception that in place of "best bird in the show," it was recommended to establish a show rule providing prizes for best bird in a breed or variety. There is no iron-clad rule that will fit into every show, but the point system was discouraged and each winning will share in the specials. The A.P.A. opposes any such thing as "best bird in show," because it is wrong in principle. Prizes to be awarded on basis of competition and not on points scored by the "quantity" exhibitors

There are some changes in the show rules and other matters, which will not become operative until the new constitution is promulgated and in the hands of the membership.

State Fair Poultry Catalogue.

For the first time in the writer's recollection, the State Fair at Sacramento has issued a catalogue of the poultry, pigeon, rabbit and pet stock entries, showing who the exhibitors were and their stock together with all the winnings. The exhibits were quite up to the usual numerical strength, though the number from south of the Tehachepi was smaller than at any fair within our memory, partly due undoubtedly to the railway strike and consequent difficulties in transportation. The awards were made by the following judges: Poultry, by R. V. Moore and C. G. Hinds; Pigeons, by William J. Heal and Pet Stock by Hale Prather. President George C. Roeding and the State Agricultural Society and Director E. F. Mitchell, who took the poultry exhibit under his wing, are to be congratulated on their enterprise in the publication of this initial catalogue.

Exploitation of New Breeds.

Those who are imbued with the fancier spirit will be interested to learn that Judge E. V. Moore, of Haywards, is preparing to go to Europe to assemble a collection of oddities in the feathered line. Being a thorough poultry fancier who loves the game for the sake of itself, he is planning on establishing a breeding farm which he will call, "The Feathered World." During his travels he will visit many of the leading ornamental game and Polish poultry farms in the United States, Canada and Europe. He also will call on the pigeon breeders and select foundation stock for his farm.

Kale as a Green Food

In the northern coastal counties kale is largely grown as a green food for poultry, the climate and soil being much to its liking. In Conoma county it is the main green food crop, and finds exceptional favor. Possibly this is due to the fact that it seems to thrive without irrigation, for it has not the nutritive value of green alfalfa, which under general conditions in this State requires some irrigation to do well as green food for poultry, it being a food as well as a roughage. Touching on the advantage of kale, a writer in the Petaluma Poultry Journal says that "it is impossible to feed too much of it, and the most inexperienced person may therefore give it to a flock without fear of injury." There are but few plants that will give as large returns for the room occupied. It has been estimated by some persons that two kale plants will yield sufficient green feed for one hen for a year, although the writer is of the opinion that it would be better to set three. Kale will withstand dry weather as few other plants will; this is a feature that particularly commends it. Kale is not at all hard to harvest for the flock after it is grown. Bear this all in mind and get "some into the ground" this coming planting season.

When feeding wet mashes to fowls, be sure that they are crumbly and not sticky. Plenty of exercise increases the egg yield.

FARM AND TRACTOR SECTION.

Devoted to the multiform agricultural interests of the great Southwest and issued every week with the world's biggest Sunday newspaper.

EDITED BY HAROLD M. FINLEY.

Communications from practical farmers, ranchers, stock raisers, poultrymen, gardeners and others engaged either in a large or small way in the vital work of food production are gladly received.

Good clear photographs of interesting farm and garden activities are always welcomed. The Los Angeles Times Farm and Tractor Section is the only farm journal in the west printing illustrations in the incomparable rotogravure process.

Making Honesty Pay.

HORTICULTURAL COMMISSIONER RYAN of Los Angeles county has commenced vigorous prosecution of producers and dealers who violate the new Standardization law. Several offenders have been haled into court, and one had the temerity to begin a test of the law in a Los Angeles police court. Every farmer, wholesaler and groceryman who believes in agricultural and business progress is behind the State officials who are enforcing this law. Heretofore, consumers have become disgusted with deceptive packs of fruit and vegetables on the markets and in the stores, and at having wormy or scaly fruit foisted upon them. Offering for sale products which pretend to be of good size and good quality, but which, when brought to the household are found to be inferior to what is anticipated; small potatoes and tomatoes hidden under the big ones on top; large berries covering mean, little ones in the box, is a process which gives a bad name to producer and dealer alike. The new law also gives an impetus to the better agriculture movement. Orchardists will spray more and fumigate more thoroughly, to rid their fruit of pest attacks. Vegetable growers will endeavor to raise better products. The small fruits and vegetables, instead of being hidden under large ones, must now be packed separately, and sold to the canner when they cannot find a ready or profitable sale on the open market.

Farm Tenantry.

FARM tenantry is becoming more common in California each year. In the great producing districts of this State rental of land from year to year from nonresident owners is now quite common and has become part of the economic scheme in raising the great crops for which the State is famous.

This system is all well and good provided the welfare of the man and the welfare of the land are considered. Neglect of either will be fatal, and the responsibility and consequence for any neglect will fall upon the owner, who must take it upon himself to lease to the right kind of a tenant, and see that his soil is not impoverished.

The criminal practice of some tenants of selling manure off the land when it is badly needed on the place should be exposed, and brought to an end. In some sections manure is used to fill up holes in the roads because it is easier to handle than dirt. Then again, crop after crop of the same kind is taken from the soil without any attempt to rotate or green manure. Nations which have neglected their land have fallen into agricultural meanness.

Good quarters should be provided the tenant. If the farm house is a real home with home conveniences, and he is treated right, the first step in conservation of the fertility of the soil is taken, for a satisfied tenant is a good worker and gives thought to the owner's interest.

CO-OPERATIVE SHIPPING PAYS.

Members of the farm bureau of Jasper county, Indiana, who have formed a live stock shipping association, shipped their first load of live stock the first week of June. The load consisted of seventy-four hogs, consigned by eighteen different farmers. The hogs netted them $19.74 home weights. One of the shippers with twenty-one hogs was offered $18.50 a hundredweight for his hogs by a local buyer, or $60 less than he received.

NOTABLE ANIMALS ENTERED FOR LOS ANGELES LIVE STOCK SHOW.

WITH late entries of noted herds swelling an already extensive list at the eleventh hour, it is indicated that the number and quality of animals to be seen at the Los Angeles Live Stock Show, to be held October 18 to 26 at Exposition Park, will greatly surpass any other like aggregation of animals ever seen in the Southwest. The Southland's new interest in the raising of meat and milk animals of high degree will be reflected by the appearance of hundreds of stars of the stall and pasture from every county south of the Tehachepi. That the country generally knows Southern California has awakened to the importance of livestock raising will be shown by the coming of noted herds from several States and from Northern California.

Manager C. R. Thomas of the show has superintended the erection of fifteen barns for cattle, swine, sheep and goats, and 250 stalls for horses, and is seeing to the erection of more barns, as the original space is all taken and there is clamor for more. The number of animals entered far surpasses that of the Liberty Fair last fall. Many animals winning grand championships at the State Fair will appear. Most of the best animals at the Southern California Fair at Riverside will be seen at the show.

More than seventy persons and firms have made entries in the several divisions of cattle, horses, swine, sheep and goats, and there are numerous entries in the poultry and pet stock divisions, which will be one of the greatest features of the show.

The competition in the dairy cattle and swine divisions will be especially spirited because of the large number of entries.

THE DAIRY CATTLE.

In the Jersey class, J. E. Thorpe of Lockeford, Cal., will show three bulls, thirteen cows and one calf, including Jolly Senator Raleigh, grand champion at the State Fair this year. Judges of good livestock will be much interested in the competition of this herd with that of J. E. Wherrell of Riverside, who will send nine animals. Other entries are those of Grant A. Brown of El Monte, entering a bull and seven cows; E. L. Hass of Downey; the University of California, and the Winsor Ranch, Bonita, Cal.

Among the Guernseys will be seen the noted herd of W. H. Dupee of Santee, San Diego county. There will be thirty-one Edgemoor entries in the judges' ring. Dupee's herd captured more prizes at the Liberty Fair than any other. On account of the railroad strike he was unable to ship his show stock to Sacramento this year. Two fine bulls, Inspiration of Edgemoor and Chesterfield of Edgemoor, will be seen for the first time in a show ring. Dupee will compete with the herd of A. B. Humphrey, Escalon, Cal., including five bulls and nine cows, some of which won firsts at the State Fair. James Marwick of the Braemer Ranch, Santa Barbara, has entered a bull, Mysie's Linden Boy.

There are seven entries in the Holstein class. A. J. Stalder of Riverside will come to the show with nineteen cattle, four bulls, seven cows and six heifers. Mrs. Anita Baldwin has entered twenty-two, led by a fine bull, Merci Lad Korndyke Burke, bred by Harry Lee Martin, Modesto. Frampton Bros., Artesia, will have at the show five animals, including the grand champion Holstein bull at the Liberty Fair, Segis Pontiac DeKol Burke Clyde, and the Los Angeles County Farm will again show Belle Juliana de Kol, grand champion cow at the same show. The California George Junior Republic has entered two bulls, a cow and three heifers; the Burr farm of Los Angeles has entered fourteen animals, and the University of California will show three cattle, including Korndyke Senorita Boy.

The fine Ayreshire herd of J. Henry Meyer, Watsonville, Cal., including five bulls, fourteen cows and five calves, among them Holehouse Secretary, grand champion at this year's State Fair, will be shown. The only competition which Meyer will have is that from a herd of three bulls and eight cows to be sent by A. MacMinn of Phoenix, Ariz., and one calf bred by the University Farm, Davis.

THE BEEF CATTLE.

There will be an excellent showing of Shorthorns at the livestock show. In this class there will be five large herds and

UNCLE SAM ENTERED IN BIG DAIRY SHOW.

The United States Department of Agriculture will participate in the National Dairy Show at Chicago, October 6 to 12, not only to honor the dairy cow, but also to further the principles and practices of good dairying and to transmit to the thousands of dairymen and farmers expected to assemble there the most recent results of cow handling, milk-producing and dairy management investigations of the dairy division of the Bureau of Animal Industry. Other branches of the department also will show their work for the dairy industry.

One of the most interesting of the dairy division exhibits will show the exact amount and kinds of food required to keep a cow for one year. An extremely interesting and valuable exhibit from an educational standpoint will be that of the products of a Pennsylvania creamery, which form the connecting link between the laboratory and the commercial creamery. These products are all made by processes worked out in the dairy division laboratories and applied to actual factory conditions. Chief among them are various American-made cheeses of foreign type, such as Swiss, Camembert, Roquefort and Ricotta. Exhibits of butter packed for shipment to the tropics, cottage cheese, the manufacture of casein for commercial purposes, condensed skim milk in bulk and also a creamery laboratory in operation, demonstrating the actual tests of butter, milk and cream used in commercial concerns also will be shown.

A special booth will circulate information about the "Better Sires—Better Stock" drive which the United States Department of Agriculture is now conducting in co-operation with the State agricultural colleges and other agencies.

The Bureau of Markets will have an exhibit of demonstration on grading butter, according to market demands, as well as a complete exhibit of business practices for the creamery and milk plant. This bureau will also show how it gathers market news reports by the use of telegraph and tickers.

The Bureau of Plant Industry will exhibit forage crops which are adapted to dairying, as well as various kinds of silage which can be profitably converted into milk. The Bureau of Farm Management will be in charge of a demonstration of accounting systems suitable for use on the average dairy farm and it will also show the results of survey work on dairy farms in different sections, demonstrating the relation between the high and low producing cow and farm profits.

A booth will be devoted to dairy statistics which will show by charts and models the imports and exports of dairy products as well as the consumption per capita of these commodities not only in the United States, but also in foreign countries. Other booths will show how dairy utensils may be sterilized under actual farm conditions and demonstrate the value of milk as a food, utilizing electric devices to show the energy supplied by various foods.

THE "CHININ" AVOCADO.

A group of avocados (Persea gratissima) was obtained from the State of Tabasco, Mexico, the fruit of which differs so much from the ordinary avocados that that group has been given the name "Chinin." The "Chinin" is distinguished from the avocado by its wrinkled skin, by the constitution of the endocarp, which is always thick and resistant, and by the texture and flavor of the pulp. The most common type is very elongated, pear-shaped in form and often resembles a calabash in appearance.

A TIMELY SUGGESTION.

People with back yard family flocks who use open vessels as water containers for their fowls, often find it difficult to keep them free from dirt and litter. To overcome this try placing the vessels on a box about a foot high with a slatted top. The fowls will jump up, take a drink, and then resume their scratching on the ground. In this way the hens cannot scratch objectionable matter into the drinking water. The plan is not only cheap, but serviceable and gives the desired results.

The yield of tame hay this year in California will be 4,257,000 tons, or 1.81 tons per acre. Both tame and wild hay production will be larger than usual.

FAMOUS TOGGENBURG CHANGES OWNERSHIP.

Sold for a record price.

Allesandro 1101, Toggenburg buck, which has just changed hands. Elmer E. McInturff, the seller, reports the consideration at $1500.

Allesandro 1101, the Toggenburg buck which has headed the collection of goats of this breed owned by Elmer E. McInturff of the Pasadena Goat Ranch at La Manda Park and which is one of the famous animals of the breed, has changed ownership, having been purchased by J. T. Gordon of Azusa. Mr. McInturff reports the consideration received at $1500, which he declares is, so far as his knowledge goes, a record price for a goat. Mr. Gordon already had several of Allesandro's daughters, which, he states, have given four to five quarts of milk at their first kidding.

Mr. Gordon has what is declared to be the largest herd of pure-bred Toggenburg goats in the country and the addition of Allesandro 1101 gives him one of the outstanding individuals of the goat world.

BATHING BIDDY FOR THE LIVE-STOCK FAIR.

All white fowls must be washed, and most fowls of other colors can be improved in appearance by washing, fluffing, and grooming before the show.

For white fowls have three tubs, one filled with warm, soft or rain water, another with warm, soft or rain water, and the third with warm, soft or rain water colored the proper shade to rinse and blue white goods. Use a bar of good white or castile soap, a large sponge, and a nail brush. Have the temperature of the room 80 or 85 deg. and bring the birds in clean exhibition coops, the floors of which should be covered with fresh, dry shaving.

Wash the males first. Clean the shanks and feet with the nail brush, soap and water. Insert the bird in the first tub and push it down under the water several times until the plumage is wet through; make a heavy lather with the sponge and soap, and thoroughly wash the plumage with the sponge; open the wings and sponge them in the direction of the feathers. Always wash the length of the feather, from the quill to the tip and not across it.

Keep the bird's head out of the soapy water if possible; sponge the soap off the bird and remove to the second tub. Press it under the water several times, allow it to stand and drip for a few seconds, and then dip it twice in the tub containing the bluing water. Remove the bird from the water, hold its legs firmly and raise it up and down quickly, so that it will flap and expand its wings and tail, and shake out the water.

Do not use a towel to dry a white bird. Move the exhibition coop near the fire or some heat so that the bird will dry. Lifting up the plumage of the breast and opening the feathers of the fluff while drying has a tendency to increase the apparent size of these sections. It is necessary to examine the white birds frequently if the coops are near a stove to guard against overheating them or scorching or curling their feathers.

BORAX IN POTASH.

The United States Department of Agriculture announces that many complaints that too large a proportion of borax has been found in Searles Lake potash seems to have foundation in fact, after investigation. Although borax was found in some cases to have a beneficial effect on crops, in some instances this potash was found to have as high as 23 per cent. borax.

DIPPING FOWLS NOW A GENERAL PRACTICE.

Dip that chick! Dipping chickens is likely to become more general than dipping cattle, because the chicken louse is a more widely-distributed insect than the cuttle tick. The "dip" consists of one ounce of sodium fluoride to the gallon of water, which should be at a temperature of 70 to 85 deg. The dipping should be done on a clear, warm day—never on a cold day. The old way of getting rid of chicken lice was by dusting with dry sodium fluoride. It was effective, but in the case of large flocks it was slow and wasteful, a great deal of the dusting material being inevitably lost. Experiments in dipping were begun by the United States Department of Agriculture in the laboratory of the Office of Insects Injurious to Domestic Animals, Bureau of Entomology, at Dallas, Tex. The experiments proved successful, and the results promise a sure and speedy means of getting rid of one of the worst pests of poultry.

Farm News of the Great Southwest
DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.

RIVERSIDE.—One of the greatest exhibitions of high-bred goats ever held in this country will be seen at the Southern California fair at Riverside, October 7 to 11. Over 300 specimens of the best of breeding are now being prepared for this big show. The building which housed the exhibit at the fair last year has been remodeled and a fine new structure is now completed.

Many features of vital interest to the ranchers, breeders and dairymen of the southern part of the State are being offered this year by the fair. The display of agricultural and horticultural products will be large and complete and will have many educational features. Some of the best judges of farm and orchard products in the State will make the awards and will also be present during the entire week in demonstration work. The committee selected to make these awards is composed of Prof. John W. Gilmore, of the State College of Agriculture; Prof. George P. Weldon, formerly first assistant State horticultural commissioner and now in charge of the agricultural department at Chaffee Union High School at Ontario, and Hardy W. Campbell, farm adviser for the Southern Pacific Railway.

PEPPER CROP LARGE.

SANTA ANA.—This season Santa Ana is handling much of the pepper canning business which has formerly gone to Los Angeles. The California Canners' Corporation with its canning plant on East First street, began some weeks since to handle the chilis and has put up around 1000 tons. Now the pimientos are going into cans at the rate of about fifty tons daily. Between five and six thousand tons of these will be handled in this way. The pepper crop comes chiefly from Talbert, where the Von Schritlz ranch is one of the chief producers; and from Stanton and Garden Grove. The latter section is the principle one of Orange county. The grower gets $25 a ton for the chilis and $35 for the pimientos. The acreage given over to the pepper this year is greater than last season when there were around 1500 acres in. Two years ago there was close to 1000 acres. At Garden Grove last year F. B. Kealither erected a new brick warehouse in which to handle his specialty, which is chili powders, which are used as condiments, and for which there seems to be a growing demand. Buena Park has a new warehouse which handles the crop from that section. Los Angeles is a steady market for the growers and many peppers are shipped by truck to the dealers there. The demand for this product is good and much is shipped to eastern points. Texas also receives large shipments. The Mexicans make more uses of the pepper than do the Americans and know many ways to eat them. The modern way of drying beats the old method of hanging them in the sun or putting them out on trays for old sol to take his time at getting them in condition to ship. In a modern drying house the green product can be dried for the market in three days' time. Here gas burners keep the trays in a high temperature till the moisture is evaporated. The Orange county crop this year will bring the growers over $1,000,000.

PLANT SAVES FRUIT.

ORANGE.—Several thousand dollars were saved Orange county citrus growers during the recent railroad strike by the big precooling plant of the Santiago Orange Growers' Association here. Fruit, picked and unshipped at the time of the strike, was stored in the plant for six other associations affiliated with the Orange County Fruit Exchange, and that it was shipped in good condition after the strike amply demonstrates the efficiency of the plant. Several packing-houses of this vicinity have been working night shifts in order to catch up with the orange harvest following the strike.

MONSTER MELON.

TALBERT.—A. F. Swift has just harvested a twenty-four-pound muskmelon from a vine on his ranch east of Talbert. It is of the round, yellow-meated variety, and was grown from seed saved from an ordinary-appearing melon last year. The monster grew on the only vine on the Swift ranch and other melons on the same vine were not of unusual size.

FUMIGATION HIGHER.

REDLANDS.—The work of fumigating the orange trees of this district which needed it is about finished now and it is planned to have all the work done before the heavy rains begin. Several thousand dollars were spent in taking care of the tents alone by the companies and the acids used ran far up into the thousands in cost. The expense of fumigating has increased because labor is higher than in the "good old days," but the growers have found that it pays and pays well to keep the trees as free from scale as it is possible to do. There are two sections in the Redlands district that were effected this year. The sandy soil on the south side of the district and the groves of the hill district both had scale this year. The hot weather two years ago cooked the scale in many of the groves, especially those where there was clean cultivation, and in some groves it has not appeared since that time. But where it gets a start it spreads rapidly and unless fumigating is done every three or four years a great loss of fruit is felt. The crews have been working hard every night since the crop was picked from the trees and although there were several accidents in the south through workers inhaling the fumes of the gas, there were none here.

A FAMOUS TREE.

MONROVIA.—This city is the home of one of the most famous trees in the section, yet it is probably true that few Monrovia citizens know of its existence. Annually botanists from universities, the United States Department of Agriculture and well-known nurserymen make their pilgrimage here to see the tree and in season taste and examine the fruit. The tree is a species of Zapote Blanco, or white sapota, and is said to be the finest specimen, as regards fruit production, in this country. The tree was brought to this country more than twenty years ago by G. L. Coleman, who set it out upon his property at the corner of Olive and California avenues. It flourished and in due time produced a delicious fruit. The zapote is a native of Mexico and is a near relative of the zapote sapodillo, or zapote chicle, known here as the chicle tree or chewing gum tree. W. A. Spinks, avocado and semi-tropic fruit expert of this city, has been interested in the zapote tree here and at one time made arrangements with Mr. Coleman to remove it to his country place above Duarte. He finally decided against doing so, however, for fear that a tree of that age would not stand transplanting.

AN EXCELLENT CROP.

YUCAIPA.—George P. Weldon, formerly State horticultural inspector, now pomologist at the Chaffey Union High School, was in the valley recently inspecting the apple orchards. He took many specimens of the fruit and made a careful inspection of the new packing-house, which is one of the finest in the country. Mr. Weldon says that the Yucaipa district gives evidence of the value of careful inspection of the nursery stock and also of continued inspection of the trees and careful "house cleaning." He says that a finer lot of fruit could not be grown than the valley has had this year, it being almost entirely free from imperfections. He says that it proves conclusively that the coddling moth cannot only be controlled, but that it can almost be exterminated. The lack of wormy fruit is the strongest possible argument for correct spraying, the use of sufficient material and application of the spray at the right time. Mr. Weldon says that now the growers of apples should see that there is only one standard pack of apples, that if this is done "U-Ki-Pa" apples are assured of a welcome whenever they are shipped. Mr. Weldon says that the trees are in good healthy condition throughout the valley.

The rice crop in California this year will amount to 924,000 bushels, a record production.

Boys, when I took this place it was a wreck—old, worn out fruit trees and land as tight as your fist. Not fifty boxes of fruit in the whole shooting match. Mostly runts at that. EVERYTHING SET FOR RIVERSIDE'S FAIR.

RIVERSIDE.—Tuesday, October 7, is opening day of the Southern California Fair at Riverside and everything is in readiness for a wonderfully complete exposition. It can safely be said that no fair in the country has a wider range from which to draw its agricultural and horticultural exhibits than the one at Riverside. In the district directly covered by this fair the entire horticultural gamut from apples to dates can be run with practically every fruit known to the pomologist produced successfully within its borders The range of agricultural possibilities is equally wide and the big agricultural exhibit at the Southern California Fair this year is probably as comprehensive as any ever shown in this section of the State.

But the point of special pride in the fair at Riverside this year seems to rest in its wonderful live stock show. Southern California is answering a call for better and broader lines of live stock breeding and the fair is representing the result of the wonderful advancement in this industry. The prominent breeders of live stock who will show at Riverside this season include the Merritt Bowers Company of Tulare; Palo Alto Stock Farm, Palo Alto; George A. Smith & Son, Corcoran; Elliott-Brant and J. C. Craig, Owensmouth; A. J. Stalder, Riverside; Diamond Bar Ranch, Spadra; Winsor Ranch, Bonita; Michael Creamer, Los Angeles; Arden Dairy, El Monte; Burr Farm, Los Angeles; Grant A. Brown, El Monte; Fontana Ranch, Fontana; George Junior Republic, Chino; H. S. White, Chino; Charnock Ranch, Hemet; F. L. Hall, Falfadale Farm, F. A. Langdon and George I. Lytle, Perris; H. B. Peake, San Bernardino; Fairbanks Ranch and J. J. Prendergast, Redlands; Roy Bradley and W. M. Taylor, San Bernardino; Frampton Bros., Artesia; C. J. Gilbert, Lancaster; E. R. Stalder, Nuevo; W. B. Hewett, Van Nuys; F. H. Van Derpoel, J. E. Cook, George W. Thomas & Sons, W. H. Rough, Main & Mammer and H. Christiansen, Arlington; E. T. Myers, Lankershim; J. E. Wherrell, Riverside; Italian Vineyard Co., Guasti; Hollow Hill Farm, Colton.

The race programme this year ranks with the strongest that has ever been witnessed on that well known track. Many of the best known drivers on the Coast have entered their speediest thoroughbreds in these races and we look for much excitement around that track.

The goat show promises to be the largest ever held, according to the secretary, W. W. Van Pelt. Many of the best bred goats in Southern California will be shown. The poultry and the rabbit shows will each outrank any previous exhibit at Riverside and the most prominent fanciers of the several southern counties are showing.

One of the most interesting features of the fair will be the auction sale of pure bred live stock which will be held next Friday and Saturday. The high grade of stock which has been consigned to this sale should guarantee its success. Only the very best animals have been accepted and the catalogue of both the cattle and swine contain some wonderful specimens of the different breeds. The sale of cattle begins promptly at 9 o'clock Friday morning, October 8 and will continue until the list has been closed. Hogs will be sold on Saturday, beginning at the same hour. Standard bred horses and high-bred goats, which have been exhibited at the fair, will be sold.

The demonstrational course given by the farm bureau in a large tent devoted to this purpose, is a feature of marked interest. Specialists from the State university and from other institutions of agricultural training will assist the farm advisers of the southern counties to make this effort a successful one.

LIVE-STOCK BULLETIN.

BY H. S. HOARD.

The auction sale of pure-bred live stock which will be held on the two last days of the Southern California fair at Riverside, is a feature of wonderful interest and of advantage to ranchers and dairymen in this part of the State. The stock which will be offered at this sale has been, in practically every case, personally selected by the Live-stock Committee of the fair. They come from some of the very best herds in the State and include animals of intense breeding and of great individual merit. This is the initial sale in the fair's history and the committee is bending every effort to make it a successful one. Pure-bred stock of all breeds and kinds are included and one of the greatest sales ever held in this part of the State is sure to be staged at Riverside on Friday and Saturday, October 10 and 11.

B. H. Williamson, manager of the Falfadale Ranch at Perris, writes the Rarm and Tractor Section live stock department as follows: "On my recent trip East I purchased the under-year boar Great Orion Sensation Jr. for $2000. He was sired by Great Orion Sensation and his measurements are length 66½ in.; bone, 8½, height, 35½; weight, 475 pounds. He is out of the record-breaking litter John Bader sold for $9500 and one of his litter mates was Junior Champion at the last Missouri State fair. I also bought a junior yearling son sired by Grand Model Supreme, and two spring gilts sired by High Orion (Grand Champion Missouri, 1918) and out of a Pathfinder dam."

The management of the Live Stock Show have had so many goat entries that they have not found time to assemble all the entries, but in this important division are foun dthe following entrants: S. H. Bowman, Shellville, Toggenburgs; J. M. Burdick, Glendale, Saanens; A. E. Ford, Hawthorne, Nubians; J. T. Huggins, Fullerton, Toggenburgs; Minnie B. Kiggins, El Monte, Toggenburgs; Emma Kraft, Los Angeles, Anglo-Nubians; John M. Luden, Los Angeles, Toggenburgs; C. D. Miller, La Crescenta, Nubians; Mrs. L. O. Rhodes, Pasadena, Toggenburgs; W. B. Wilson, Lankershim, Toggenburgs.

The saddle horse class is filled with good entries, among them being those of Robert H. Gudgeon, Santa Barbara; Thaddeus Lowe, South Pasadena; John E. Marble, South Pasadena; Merritt & Bowers, Margaret E. Rock, Santa Barbara and Charles W. Winter, Alhambra.

EVEN DISTRIBUTION OF SILAGE A SAVING.

Air pockets and soft places result from uneven distribution of silage in the silo. No farm operation is neglected more than the even pack of the silage, which is so necessary in order to produce the maximum amount of good feed.

It frequently is the case that the blower has no distributor attachment and the silage therefore has a tendency to fall into one place in the silo, and the lighter portions of the cut feed are blown to the sides. This forms a hard core in the center of the silo and air pockets at the side. The entire surface should be well packed.

Sometimes the silo is filled too quickly, and the feed has little time to settle. If the farmer has a silage cutter that feeds rapidly, it is a good plan to cease filling after a two day period, beginning again after two or three days. Woven wire may be extended above the top of the silo, thus increasing the capacity of the silo until the silage settles.

Oklahoma raises over half the broom corn in the United States, the total output of which is 58,000 tons.

PERUVIAN ALFALFA SUCCESSFUL IN WARMER WINTER CLIMATES.

WHETHER or not Southern California farmers have definitely established that hairy Peruvian alfalfa is better than any other kind, it is certain that more of this variety will be sown this fall than ever before, as the fame of the forage has spread in the past year.

In regions of relatively warm winter temperatures, at elevations of less than 4000 feet, the Peruvian generally produces more hay to the acre than any other kind, and one or two more cuttings may be made in the fall than of any other variety. However, a heavier stand of hairy Peruvian must be secured than of the other kinds, and in lands not suited to the most successful alfalfa culture it is said by experts to be best not to try it. The Peruvian is less branching in habits and produces fewer stems than other varieties and it is necessary to plant twenty pounds of seed to the acre instead of from twelve to fifteen pounds of the Chilean kind.

Peruvian recovers very quickly after cutting, and does not leave low branching stems as do other varieties. In tests conducted by the University of Arizona of eight varieties of alfalfa, the hairy Peruvian produced 15,676 pounds of hay per acre per year, the average total yield of the seven other kinds being 14,371 pounds.

Officers of Southern California Beekeepers' Association.

Where the pasturing of alfalfa is desired, it is better to seed the land to some other variety, for Peruvian, it has been noted by experts, is not as hardy for pasturage as is the common or Chilean variety. Large numbers of farmers in the great interior valleys, however, have abandoned Chilean alfalfa pasture for hairy Peruvian hay, cut for stock.

Land which has too much fall always produces a lower yield of any kind of alfalfa than flatter lands. In planting alfalfa between borders, whatever slope the borders have lengthwise, they should be perfectly level crosswise, because this condition permits the water to spread uniformly over the entire border.

The seed should be planted from October 1 to December 1, if possible, because evaporation is less during these months, and little irrigation will be needed while the plants are young, provided the land is well irrigated before the seed is sown. When planted in the fall, the plants have time to make a good growth before hot weather. If a good stand is not secured, unoccupied space will be taken up with weeds which will give trouble later on.

In selecting seeds for germination, secure those which are plump, and of a bright olive green in color. A brownish color usually indicates old seed. A test may be made as follows:

Place one or two hundred seeds between moist cloths or blotting papers, and keep them at a temperature of about 70 deg. until they germinate, which will be at the end of about six days. Then count the number of seeds which have sprouted. Frequently at the close of such a test there are a number of seeds which have failed to germinate, although appearing plump and fresh. These are called "hard" seeds, and will not germinate as soon as the others because they have a harder coat. They will finally germinate, it is found, if left a few days longer between the blotters. For this reason seed analysts usually add one-third the number of these hard seeds to the number which have actually germinated.

Be careful to examine the seed for weed seeds. When an alfalfa field once becomes infested with weeds, especially of the kind that do not readily separate from the alfalfa seed, the product is usually rejected in the open market for a better grade, and fields thus infested are often ploughed up in favor of other crops.

SWAP EXPERIENCES IN BEE-KEEPING.

Southern California apiarists held the best attended and one of the most important meetings yet staged, in Hollywood, on September 19 and 20, more than 800 apiarists attending the two-day session. The programme was one of talks on bee keeping and kindred subjects, interspersed with musical numbers and readings.

It was reported that members sold their honey for 20 cents a pound, ½ cent per pound being deducted for marketing through the Southern California Bee-keepers' Association. Members congratulated themselves on the defeat of four obnoxious bills aimed at beekeeping which went down and under in the last Legislature as a result of organized lobbying by the bee men.

The association is buying auto tires, handling auto repairs, and other labor and incidentals not in the usual beekeeping line for its members, and they appreciate the benefits of organization.

SPRAYING CITRUS IN FALL.

Because of the success which attended spraying of orange groves in the late spring months as a protection against orange thrips, many of the Porterville orchard owners are now preparing for a fall treatment along the same lines, to protect the new September growth which this year promises to be the heaviest known for some seasons. Start of this work will probably be made on the property of J. P. Firth. Mr. Firth was one of the pioneers in the use of lime-sulphur on orange trees, and, he says, the value of the treatment is shown by the heavy crop of fruit now on the trees in his grove.

THE FINE ART OF FEEDING FOR CONSISTENT MILK PRODUCTION.

BY F. H. SCRIBNER.

EVERY dairyman knows that when cows are turned out on luxuriant pasture the herd usually reaches the maximum production of milk for the year, and this teaches us that to secure the largest yield of milk the producer thereof should imitate these ideal summer conditions as closely as possible. These conditions which bring about the maximum production of milk and butterfat are, first, an abundance of feed; second, a balanced ration; third, succulent feed and, fourth, palatable feed. Upon the ability of the dairyman to maintain these favorable conditions for his herd throughout the year depends in a large measure the profits he will receive.

The properly-bred and properly-fed dairy cow is one of the most efficient machines for converting the products of the field into properties for human consumption and yet many dairymen make the serious mistake of failing to supply the raw material in the shape of feed to insure the most economical returns. Since it requires about half of all the feed that even the good cow will eat merely to maintain her body, if she is given but little beyond the maintenance ration, it is only reasonable to expect that only a small portion will be available for milk production. Theoretically, the 1000-pound cow requires approximately 7.9 pounds digestible nutrients for her daily maintenance. When fed only the 7.9 pounds it would (again theoretically) require the whole amount for the upkeep [illegible] a time to yield some milk on this meager allowance, the returns would be at the expense of her own body tissues.

When a cow is fed three-fourths of a ration she can utilize an added fourth for milk production, while, if given a full ration, one-half her ration is then available for milk production. It has been proven that a ration containing only alfalfa hay and good corn silage will produce a fair production of milk, but a cow of good dairy type and temperament will nearly always pay for a reasonable amount of concentrates. It helps materially to maintain her bodily condition, which, in turn, is a good factor in the maintaining of the milk flow and makes the cow more persistent.

The wise dairyman will hold in mind that a good dairy cow in full flow of milk is expending as much energy as a horse at hard work. We all know that the harder a horse works the more grain and less roughage he must have, and the same rule holds true with the cow. In feeding, the aim should be to supply as much good roughage as the cow will readily consume and to add to this sufficient concentrates to keep the digestible matter up to the proper standard. In no case, however, should the protein allowance fall far below the minimum amount.

FEED INDIVIDUALLY.

The tendency of cows of marked dairy temperament, in spite of the most liberal feeding, is rarely to lay on flesh when in full flow of milk. On the other hand, cows or ordinary capacity may easily be overfed and in such case store the surplus nutrients into body fat rather than utilizing it in an increase of milk flow, and this is where the eye of the master proves of worth. The condition of the cow should in a sense be his thermometer to go by, and the ratio of his feeds should be varied according to the ability of the cow to digest and assimilate.

A partition between the cow mangers is almost a necessity in order to feed individually, as it is always wise to feed a more nitrogenous concentrate allowance to cows which show a tendency to fatten, while animals which are losing flesh should receive a larger proportion of the carbonaceous concentrates. The concentrate feeds should be composed of a reasonable number of feeds, for a mixture is relished better than a single kind of grain and roughage, and cows are much less apt to get off feed if so fed. When once a satisfactory balanced ration has been provided it is best to make as few changes as possible, as a radical change in feeds is particularly noticeable to those who follow the milk sheet system closely.

AS TO GRAIN FEEDING.

A very marked instance of the result of the feeding of grain is given in the Tillamook (Wash.) Cowtesting Association by [illegible] named Ruby were producing heavily up until July 1, but were dropping in flesh and at that time were dropping rapidly in milk. Starting the middle of July these two cows were fed eight pounds of rolled barley each per day for the rest of the summer. Goldie was five years old that year and made 560.1 pounds fat against the average 348.4 pounds fat for the other three years she had been in the testing association with no grain. This is a gain of 211.7 pounds fat in favor of grain feeding. Figures at that time show that the grain cost $24.44. Fat sold for 36.6 cents per pound. This gave a return of $3.17 for every dollar's worth of grain. The heifer named Ruby, as a 2-year-old, made 424.5 pounds fat with grain. These two cows, won in the record test which was held in 1914.

Mr. Durrer was well pleased with the results at that time, but was not fully convinced of the economy of feeding grain. He fed no more grain to cows on pasture until in 1917, when he fed three cows and was so well pleased that he continued feeding through 1918. The average yearly production of these three cows for the two years with grain was 505.3 pounds of fat. The two previous years without grain it was 384.4 pounds of fat. This was an increase of 120.9 pounds of fat per cow for $38.09 worth of grain. This fat at 65 cents, the average price for those two years, was worth $78.59, or $2.07 for every dollar spent for grain. In 1918 Mr. Durrer fed 11 cows in addition to the above and they averaged 421.3 pounds fat at a grain cost of $24.30. During 1917, without grain, the same cows averaged 346.4 pounds fat, showing an increase due to grain of 74.9 pounds fat worth 80 cents per pound, or $52.43, a return of $2.15 for every dollar spent for grain.

Mr. Durrer is convinced that it pays to feed grain to good cows while on pasture. This year he is feeding all of his good producing cows in this way. Mr. Durrer also believes it pays to feed a cow well when she is dry. When this is done she starts out at a higher level and he keeps her going at a higher level throughout the whole lactation period.

SYSTEMS OF FEEDING POULTRY.

There are two systems in use for the feeding of fowls, in one of which all the feed is given dry and in the other of which one or more of the daily feeds consists of a moistened mash. For convenience they may be termed the "dry-feed" and the "mash" systems, although in the dry-feed system a dry mash is often fed. Dry feeding is used by many where it is not convenient to make and feed a moistened mash. The greatest advantages to be derived from the dry system are the saving of labor and the lessened danger of bowel trouble resulting from sloppy or soured mashes.

THE SALAD PLANTS.

BY LUCY BENDER.

A space is always reserved in my garden for special salad plants and greens. Every day of the year I can go there and get together an unusual salad. That adds to the beauty of my table and to the health and appetite of my family. For the benefit of those who do not know them, I am describing a few of the best, hardy, salad plants that may be had the year around in California.

Witloof, a Belgian chicory, is one of the most important and is used in many of the has a rich, nutty flavor and forms in golden yellow cones about four to six inches long and is served with any of the usual salad dressings. It is not difficult to grow. Sow the seeds thinly in drills twelve inches apart. When the plants are two inches high, dig them up carefully and cover the bottom and sides of a trench two feet deep well with straw and cut all of the leaves and growth of the plants back to within an inch of the roots. Place these roots in rows with layers of soil between and over each layer. Then when all roots are covered with six inches of straw and the same of soil they can be put in boxes in cool places. Let them lay for about a month this way, then take several boxes one and apart on this surface. Cut some of the root ends off if they are too long. Then cover this with eight inches of clean, loose sand. Put in a very dark place. If outdoors place boxes over it and a gunny sack. Sprinkle lightly each day. The crowns will appear in about three weeks. Remove the sand back to an inch of the root and recover. They will produce three crops. Do not use any manure in the soil—it will cause must spots. I plant a box every week, a few at a time, this assures a constant supply. They are well worth the labor and time involved.

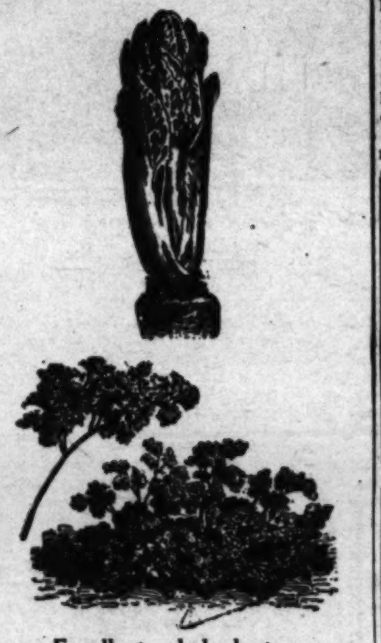
There is no prettier salad plant than Endive or Escarolle. The leaves are finely fringed and have a pungent flavor a little similar to dandelion. They are valuable in the treatment of indigestion. And there are several varieties, all of them good. They are planted and given much the same treatment as lettuce. About ten days before you wish to use them gather the heads closely together and tie them well. I usually use strips of cloth. The centers will blanch out almost white.

Ice plants make a unique salad. They must not be cut until a few moments before serving. It is a creeping plant, having oak-shaped leaves covered with silvery fur. Serve with light dressing. They will melt on the tongue just like icicles, are a novelty and delicious.



Excellent salad plants.
Witloof chicory (above) and curled chervil.

Corn salad seeds should be sown thinly in October or November and used as lettuce would be. It can also be cooked as greens. It is much used in the South as an addition to potato salad.

I know of several families who welcome the dandelion in their lawns. They take a whisp of hay or straw, just enough to cover the dandelion plant and place over it, and in three weeks they find the leaves a golden yellow and not a bit bitter. These are cut and served with the usual salad dressing. If there are none in your lawn, of course add a row in your salad garden. Treat them in the same way. After you get tired of them use them as greens. But keep them cut and do not let any of them go to seed.

Chervil is one of the easiest of all vegetables to grow. And is widely used in Europe as an addition to salads and soups. Many returned soldiers remark on the importance of salads in France. The leaves resemble those of parsley, but are more tender and lighter in color. It must be cut back continually in order to keep the plant young, but grows rapidly. Use the outside leaves. Do not injure the crowns. Seeds should be soaked before sowing and should have light sand soil and sunny location.

I grow chives for the small leaves. They are onion flavored, but much more delicate. They do not leave the strong flavor onions do and are an improvement to any salad.

Water cress and mint are fine salad been started under the water spout. The box should be two-thirds full of sandy soil. The plants run all over the box to the ground and are always ready for a good salad.

Chufas or earth almonds are relished by my children almost as much as the almond. And they are easily grown and very prolific. Cut up and add to the chicken feed. They serve to brighten the plumage of the fowls.

Of course, everyone knows mustard, but there are some improved sorts now that are really wonderful. I use them in both salads and as greens.

Pe-tsai or Chinese cabbage is quickly grown from seed. Use the leaves for greens and the stalks finely cut for salads.

AMMONIA SALT.

Among the recent proposals for new fertilizers we find potassium ammonium nitrate to be used as a top dressing for sugar beets. This fertilizer is prepared from the nitrate of ammonia and muriate of potash. It is easily distributed over the soil, and contains about 13 per cent. nitrogen, 25 per cent. potassium oxide, 3 per cent. to 4 per cent. water, and 27 per cent. to 30 per cent. chlorine. Small experiments have shown it to be successful, with an advantage over the nitrate of ammonia, which is more explosive. Sodium ammonium nitrate has been proposed, but very little experimental work has been done with it. Chloride of ammonia, or sal ammoniac, is now on the market. This contains about 23 per cent nitrogen and has an effect similar to the sulphate of ammonia. The chloride is limited in its use because certain plants are sensitive to chlorine.

William Henn of Kansas City will show his Cumberland Goods, two other aged bulls and two junior bulls. The Hereford Corporation of Cheyenne, Wyo., will again be here with an excellent herd of Herefords, to compete with the herd of William Henn of Kansas City, who will show eighteen bulls. The easterners will not have it all their own way probably, for the Conejo Ranch, Newbury Park, has entered nine good cows, and D. H. Ogden of Alpine, San Diego county, will show four bulls and three heifers. The Kern County Land Company, Bakersfield, will exhibit a carload of grade Hereford steers.

Congdon & Battles, Yakima, Wash., who were at the Liberty Fair last year, will exhibit the only herd of Aberdeen Angus cattle. This firm will bring eight bulls, seven cows and two steers to the show, including Quality Lad of Rosemere II, grand champion at the Liberty Fair. There is great interest among cattle men of the Coast in Aberdeen Angus.

MANY DUROC ENTRIES.

It is probable that the exhibit of Duroc swine will be the finest and best in point of numbers ever seen in California. Seventeen breeders have entered 140 fine animals, and the judging will be worth while seeing. The Duroc entrymen are: Keystone Ranch, Lenkershim; E. Avery Newton, Los Angeles; C. T. Thompson, Bishop; J. E. Thorpe, Lockeford, Cal.; Winsor Ranch, Bonita; Diamond Bar Ranch, Spadra; California George Junior Republic, Chino; Conejo Ranch, Newberry Park; Mrs. F. M. Connor, Pasadena; Elliott-Brant Rancho, Owensmouth; Falfaldale Farms, Perris; Donald H. Graham, Lancaster; Hewitt Bros., Van Nuys; Ireland Ranch, Owensmouth; L. Leest, Van Nuys; E. F. Thompson's Pilot Defender, grand champion boar at the Liberty Fair, will be seen in the Thompson herd. The Winsor Ranch will show Model Defender Lady, grand champion sow at the 1919 State Fair.

In the Hampshire swine division the Conejo Ranch will show five boars, thirteen sows and three pigs. The Denker Ranch, Saugus, has entered ten boars, fourteen sows, twenty-eight barrows and one carload of fat Hampshire swine, by far the largest single entry in the show. The Fairbanks Ranch, Redlands, has entered three boars, eight sows and a pen of barrows. C. J. Gilbert, Lancaster, will show three boars and five sows; and Gordon & Langdon of the Llano Vista Ranch, Perris, have entered six boars and twenty sows. George I. Lyle six pigs, and Mrs. M. F. O'Connor of Pasadena will show a boar and a sow from Santa Anita Rancho stock.

M. and A. L. Bassett of Hanford will show the largest herd of Poland-China swine at the show. This firm will exhibit for prizes six boars, nine sows and three barrows, including the fine boar Golden Model. J. L. Hall of Lomita, Cal., will show the boar Hall's Meddler; M. J. Montgomery of Simi has entered three boars and three sows; E. Avery Newton of Los Angeles will show a boar and four sows, and the University of California a barrow and a 2-year-old sow.

HORSE ENTRIES NUMEROUS.

Both in the draft horse division and in the driving horse section, the entries are numerous and imposing. A half dozen State fair grand champions will show, among the Percheron, Shire, Belgian and Clydesdale draft horse herds of Easton & Ward, Diablo; Fred H. Bixby, Long Beach; O. H. Brandt, Shellville; Merritt and Bowers, Tulare; Santa Anita Ranch, Santa Anita; James Marwick, Santa Barbara, and the Dibblee Estate, Santa Barbara.

Three or four noted herds of sheep will be here, among them being the herds of the Calla Grove Farm, Manteca, Cal., showing Hampshires, and the University of California herd from Davis, Corriedales.

CONTEST EXPECTED.

There will be spirited competition in the Berkshire classes, with five herds entered, including some prize winners at the State fair. F. L. Hall, Perris, will show six boars, six sows, and barrows. A. B. Humphrey, Escalon, has entered seven boars, twelve sows and six pigs. Grape Wild Emblem, a winner at the State fair, is in this herd. The Italian Vineyard Company, Guasti, Cal., comes forward with five boars and eight sows, including some Choice Goods stock. J. Francis O'Connor of Santa Rosa has entered three boars, six sows and

IDENTIFYING HAIRY PERUVIAN ALFALFA.

Many persons purchasing Hairy Peruvian alfalfa seed have been more or less puzzled after a satisfactory stand has been obtained in distinguishing between this variety and the ordinary variety commercially grown in this part of the State. In fact, there have been some complaints regarding the distinction of the type of seed in question. So many complaints regarding this difficulty have been brought to the attention of Farm Adviser Robert W. Hodgson that he requested a statement regarding this matter from Roland McKee, agrostologist of the United States Department of Agriculture, who is considered one of the nation's experts on alfalfa varieties. Mr. McKee writes as follows:

"Peruvian alfalfa, known also commercially as "hairy Peruvian" cannot be told with certainty from individual or even several specimens, even should these be typical. This is due to the fact that other alfalfas have occasional plants that approach in general characteristics the Peruvian variety. At certain seasons of the year these characteristics are more pronounced than at others, which makes the task of identification even more difficult. Peruvian alfalfa cannot be told from seed characters, and it is difficult to be certain of the identity of plants in the mature state, even when one may have material in abundance. A field of Peruvian alfalfa in its younger stages of growth, that is up to the time of bloom, can be distinguished with little difficulty if one sees the plants en masse. The more elongated leaf, heavy pubescence, and more upright and less heavily stooling crowns are the characters that most readily distinguish the Peruvian variety from all others. While Peruvian alfalfa has more or less distinct characteristics, it really is impossible even for one familiar with alfalfa varieties to say for certainty regarding specific identification of plantings without being immediately present in the fields."

FRUIT GROWERS TO MEET IN THE NORTH.

At a meeting of the committee called at Chico, September 16, it was decided to hold the fifty-second State fruit growers' convention the second week in November. The county horticultural commissioners will hold their meeting during the first two days, November 10 and 11. On the afternoon of the 11th a visit will be made to the United States Plant Introduction Gardens located southeast of Chico on Butte Creek. The convention proper will commence on Wednesday, November 12, and continue until Saturday afternoon, November 15.

Wednesday will be occupied with a consideration of co-operation and standardization. Thursday the meeting will be at Oroville and the subject will be citrus and olives. Friday the meeting will be at Chico again and the subject will be deciduous fruits. Saturday the convention will meet at Durham, the morning being devoted to an inspection of the State land settlement there, and the afternoon to a general farming discussion.

BIG INCREASE IN LETTUCE ACREAGE.

BRAWLEY.—There will be a greatly-increased acreage of lettuce in Imperial Valley next season. Conservative estimates at this time place the acreage at between 7000 and 8000 as compared with a grand total last season of 3366 acres. Enthusiastic ones even assert that the acreage will go as high as 10,000.

The reason given for the increase is the large profit made last season by lettuce growers. At the close of the season the secretary of the Japanese Farmers' Association, an organization which controls a large share of the lettuce acreage in the valley, reported that the members had averaged more than $600 gross for each acre planted. The net profit on this would be in excess of $400.

Lettuce growers in the valley have had many ups and downs within the past two years. Two years ago the bulk of the lettuce crop was harvested at the time of the height of the coal shortage and refrigerator cars were nearly impossible to secure. Many of the cars when secured were refused priority ratings when they reached the congested district and the usual shipping time of eleven days between the Imperial Valley and the East was in many cases stretched out to thirty days and even more. As a result, many of the growers lost heavily and lettuce growing received a black eye.

Last year conditions were very favorable and high prices were received. The growers cut the heads while small in order to get the high figures. Although the yield per acre was cut down from this practice, the growers felt the gross returns were better.

Growers for several weeks have been preparing land for lettuce. It was their intention this year to plant the seeds just as soon as possible and obtain an early yield. The hot weather of September interfered with this plan and a large portion of the acreage will be planted between now and October 15.

If the plans of the growers materialize the first heavy shipments will leave the valley this year shortly after the first of December. Usually it is the first week in January before shipments go out in carload lots.

Heavy shipments will continue until the fore part of April. The peak of the shipping season is usually reached along the latter part of February. Many of the growers this year are planning on planting lettuce and after harvesting it raising a crop of cantaloupes.

NEW STORAGE HOUSE.

HIGHLANDS.—This city is to have a new lemon curing and storage house. The all Highlands Lemon Association recently formed has purchased the Brookings property of fourteen and half acres, and work is well under way on the storage house, which will be provided with rock and concrete basement ten feet high, and will have a complete system of ventilating pipes. The very latest type of lemon washers will be provided. Hitherto lemons grown in this section have been handled in the ornage packing-houses, with the result that during the rush season, the lemons have not received the extreme care which is necessary in the proper curing of the fruit. The new building will be ready for use november 1, and %the best grade for lemons under the Sunkist brand will be packed and handled through the California Fruit Growers, Exchange. It is understood that the East Highland Orange Company is largely interested in the new enterprise.

MILKING MACHINES SAVE TIME ON FARM.

A few of the advantages of milking machines are that they are ready for business when the hired man quits; they end the tedious time wasting, back-breaking hand milking, and the driving shaft of the milker can be hooked up to many farm machines, such as grindstones, feed cutters and clippers.

A dairyman with a good string of cows to milk finds that he has little time or inclination for other work by the time he has cramped himself on the stool for four or five hours a day, milking. On cold mornings this milking stunt is doubly distasteful. The cows must be milked at a time of day best for the doing of other farm chores. The dairyman who has milking machines finds in them a great relief from physicial discomfort; they do the job quickly, and in a more sanitary and cleanly manner than in hand milking.

SHIPS MILK EXHIBIT.

Dr. Maynard Rosenberger, Los Angeles city veterinarian, has shipped thirty-six samples of raw and pasturized milk and cream, to the National Dairy Show which opens in Chicago, October 6. These samples are from the Arden, Elliott-Brant, Adohr, Crescent, Los Angeles, Burr and Sanitary Gold Seal dairies, and from a number of individual farm dairies.

Pig Clubs for Boys.

liked her, it was because if I did not take her I might not get any at all. Green pastures are very good for pigs, it gives them a quick growth and makes them long and lengthy, but doesn't make them fat. It is a cheap food. When you want to make them fat, give them corn, barley, wheat, milo, rye and kaffir. My pig drinks lots of water. Each day I keep her trough full or half full all the time. The County Club leader brought some scales and we weighed her in a sack. I feed my pig three times a day and fed her apricots, sour milk and bran My pig was not a pet because the boys came and hit her with sticks and stones. The County Club leader looked at it and told me about it. I thought I would join next year if there is a club. A boy makes a good pig club member if he tends to it and takes good care of it."—[Roy Francis, Pomona, age 14.

"BOB" IS CHUNKY.

"I am a pig club member because I want to learn about pig raising and raise some more pigs. I got my pig in a sack and I brought him home in an automobile. He was little when I got him. I named my pig Bob because he is chunky and is a nice pet. I selected this breed because I thought this breed was the best. In raising pigs and fattening them, pastures and green feeds are good for pigs in helping and making them grow fast. My pig drank lots of water on hot days and sometimes he did not drink any. I had a large pair of scales and a box on it and I weighed him in the box. I fed my pig in a trough out of a bucket and fed him in that way all the time. I fed my pig in the morning, at noon and at evening. I spent my time in taking care of my pig, cleaning his pen out and feeding him. My pig became a pet and I rubbed him and he would lay down. Well bred pigs are better than scrubs because the wellbred pigs have a big frame and have the hams on them and also the fat A scrub pig takes longer to grow because they are sort of stunted. I have learned that to make nice pigs they must have very good care and must be fed well and to fatten them they must have grain. Corn seems to be the best to make them grow and to fatten them. A smart boy makes a good club member, one that will work for his pig."—[Ralph E. Gish, Los Nietos, age 14.

"TOO BUSY" TO NAME 'EM.

"I joined the pig club principally because I had, or rather my father had, lots of feed. Corn and beans mostly. I bought my pigs at Downey purposely for the contest. I did not name my pigs as I was too busy in the field working. Never having heard of any other kind, I got this breed, and then these were hardier looking than any of the others the man at Downey had. I did not use any pasture and very little green feed. I should think it would be good for the pigs though, as a kind of tonic. It seemed to me that I could not keep the pigs' trough full of water. They mixed their swill from the house in it and they either ate or drank it all. When I first got the pigs I could and did weight them in a sack, but after the first month I weighed them in a crate. I fed my pigs the potatoes and beans in the morning and then at night I gave them the grain. The chickens got the grain if I fed it in the daytime. After feeding my pigs a good share of the time I would take an old brush that had the bristles worn short and curry them. They liked it very well and if one thought I curried the other any more than I did him he would squeal for [illegible] me. My pigs did not become pets but they were not afraid of me in the least. The County Club leader was out about once a month to see how they were coming on. I did not go to any pig shows, but we went where they had some first and second prize sows. There sure was some size to them. The sows I saw that had taken first and second prizes convinced me that purebreds are better than scrubs. Next year I am planning to get a pure bred gilt and try litter raising. I have learned one thing about pigs and that is that they are like everything else and must have a certain amount of care. A boy that likes animals and is not lazy is the best kind of a club member, I think."—[Robert L. Tindall, Puente, age 14.

ARE HEAVY DRINKERS.

"I am a pig club member because the Country Club leader visited us and wanted some of the boys to start a club and as my father was going to get a pig I joined and got the pig instead. The boys made a trip to Downey and we bought some pigs there. I selected this breed because I thought they would grow and fatten quicker than some of the other breeds. Pasture or green feeds are important in pig raising, because this keeps the pigs healthy and in a better condition. My pigs drank much water especially when it was mixed with milk. I fed my pigs in troughs. I had a trough for grain and one for water and fed them three times a day. I fed them mostly rolled barley, milk and garbage, and spent about twenty minutes a day with my pigs. My pigs became great pets and would come up to the fence to be scratched every time I would go near the pen and one of them would drink out of the hose by holding the end of the hose in his mouth. The County Club leader visited us and told us how to take care of our pigs and also took us to some large pig ranches to show us the fine pigs. We learned many things about the care of pigs at these places. I also learned many things from the bulletins sent us. Well bred pigs are better than scrubs because they grow faster and make better pigs. A boy that has spare time and likes horses, cows and pigs makes the best pig club member."—[Everett Koontz Santa Fe Springs, age 16.

THE PREPARATION OF THE SOIL FOR WHEAT.

The problem of growing wheat in California is not so much one of soil fertility as it is of soil preparation.

There are several factors that influence wheat yields. Probably the most successful California method of rendering the insoluble ingredients of the soil available for wheat is by summer fallowing. The land should be plowed in the fall after the first rains and allowed to stand rough through the winter. In the spring it should again be plowed and also harrowed to make a covering to retain the moisture.

If in the following fall there are early rains it is best to allow the weed seeds, etc., to germinate and get a good start and then plow these under and seed before November 15 if possible. If no early rains come, then the seed should be drilled in the dry ground so that it will be ready to germinate when the rains do come and thus have a chance to get ahead of the weeds.

There are no practical methods of crop rotation that have worked to advantage in California. However, there have been marked improvements in the yield and quality of wheat grown on lands which have had two or more crops of beans or alfalfa on them. In fact, old alfalfa land could in most cases be advantageously planted to wheat for a couple of years. Twenty sacks of wheat is no unusual harvest from an acre of good alfalfa land.

The principles of dry farming are very applicable to California wheat production. The conservation of moisture by so plowing the soil that it will hold the moisture and by so harrowing and sometimes mulching the top dirt that the moisture will be retained is of vital importance. Plowing loosens up the soil so that it becomes like a sponge and retains great quantities of water. Then by forming a blanket or covering of finely-pulverized dirt over this reservoir sufficient moisture is retained to assure plant growth during the months of April and May, which are so often without rainfall.

Certain clay soils have a tendency to form hard top crusts when this blanket is too finely divided. Especially is this true when the winter rains are very heavy. In such cases it is necessary to harrow the land in the early spring, and even if some of the wheat plants three or four inches high are destroyed the remainder of the plants are so much benefited that the yield is very materially increased.

A hard crust not only keeps out the air which is just as essential as water for plant growth, but it also acts as a capillary evaporator and removes the moisture much more rapidly than otherwise.

On many farms the plow sole, formed by plowing at the same depth for several years, becomes such an established condition that one does not realize the damage it does to his land. Practically all the plant food and moisture that the grain receives must be obtained from the soil above this pan—neither the plant roots nor water will readily penetrate it. The proper procedure is to break this plow sole up so that a larger reservoir of moisture can be formed and more plant food become available.

This has been successfully done with a cultivator which is made up of a number of chisel-shaped teeth set at an angle of 45 deg. and which can be run at any depth desired.

By this means the pan is broken up without being brought to the top where it would interfere with the formation of a covering that would effectively hold the moisture.

Too little attention is given the subject of drainage in California. Large open ditches should be provided to quickly relieve flood conditions. The repeated flooding of any wheat lands means the loss of that much wheat. Drain tile are almost, if not entirely, unknown to the wheat rancher, yet in these times of high-priced grains every low spot should be properly drained so that a maximum yield could be obtained.

To eliminate most weeds—black oats, sweet clover and morning glory—requires continued and earnest effort.

(1.) Seed wheat must be thoroughly cleaned.

(2.) The method of summer fallowing outlined above is helpful, especially the spring plowing and harrowing.

(3.) Pasturing summer fallowed land with sheep so that the undesirable plants never develop beyond the blossom stage is often very necessary. With morning glory and some weeds this must be continued for two years before the land is in good shape.

(4.) Black oats can be plowed under when they have grown three or four inches high in loose soil after the fall rains.

(5.) Cutting the wheat with a binder often makes it possible to also cut the weeds before their seeds are mature and thus prevent the infection that is caused by late cutting with a combined harvester.

(6.) Every precaution should be taken to see that the combined harvester deposits none of the weed seeds that go into the machine, back onto the land

Finally, weeds not only increase the cost of bags, freight, storage and milling expense, but they also require more moisture and more plant food than does wheat, and therefore seriously affect the yield of wheat.—[Sperry Flour Company Bulletin.

STEAM HAY PRESS NOW THING OF PAST.

One-horse, perpetual hay presses, made by reliable concerns, are capable of turning out the same kind of bales as are made by the regulation two-horse presses. They are designed for the farmer who has a small acreage of hay, and they can be especially recommended for the small hay grower if he is in a section where little hay is grown and where hay presses are scarce and hard to hire. The only objection to this type of press is its small production a day.

As power to drive hay presses, the steam engine, portable or self-propelling, has been entirely superseded by the gasoline erosene tractor or stationary engine. With a gas engine there is no need for an engineer and a water hauler. A few owners employ an engineer when doing custom baling with a fast-working crew, because he keeps the engine going and saves expensive loss of time on the part of the press crew. When the crew is hired by the ton the men are not paid for time lost on account of a breakdown, and in such cases engineers are not often employed. Usually one of the press crew looks after the engine when it requires attention. On farms where tractors are used, if the tractor is not used for other essential work when it is time to bale hay, the belt-power press should ordinarily be used, since it costs less than the motor press and since it would not be good business to use a motor press while a tractor stands idle.

MONUMENT TO FIRST PLOWMAN.

Exercises of an unusual nature were held at a recent picnic of the Cascade county, Montana farm bureau. It was the dedication of a monument to commenorate Robert Vaughn, who, in 1868, plowed the first furrow in the county. The monument, which is made of cobblestones and is about six feet high, contains a brass plate inscribed: The first plowing in Cascade county was done by Robert Vaughn in 1868, in whose memory this monument was erected in 1919 by the farm bureau."

TRACTOR OPERATORS MORE PROFICIENT.

The owner of a large San Fernando Valley ranch where six tractors are being opeated in cultivating and plowing, states that there are twice as many competent tractor operators seeking positions this year as at the same time last year. Some of the best men he has were recently graduated from the California College of Agriculture's tractor course given at Davis. Others are farmers of long service who spent some weeks in care and repair of tractors in city service stations, and not a few come from good tractor schools.

NEW DISTRIBUTORS.

Spencer, Morris and Mang, Inc., 231-233 North Los Angeles street, have taken over for Los Angeles county distribution the Case tractors, Grand Detour plows, and farm machinery and tools manufactured by the J. I. Case Threshing Machine Company. Messrs. Spencer and Morris are well known along automobile row as former distributors of Selden trucks.

It is poor policy doing custom work with your tractor when there is work to do on your own farm.

TRACTOR TRACTION

The very words are so closely related that you can see the more traction it has, the better it is. Traction is what counts. Every detail of construction on a MONARCH Tractor is directed toward the ultimate purpose of the machine—to give traction.

There is only one way to get proper traction on a tractor—and that is the MONARCH way—by means of the endless MONARCH tread. It grips the ground with an unfailing creep to which hills, grades and loads are no obstacle.

The Monarch Tractor

with the track that laughs at grades and hills

There is no secret to MONARCH success. The cause is self-evident as soon as you look at a MONARCH Tractor. It is built to perform—to give traction and it looks the part. It has a combination of mechanical features all designed to give that brand of continuous, reliable service that makes tractor farming an economy.

Let us send you our catalogs and literature explaining the different construction features of the MONARCH Tractor. This will prove to you that it is the logical tractor. No one can afford to buy a tractor without seeing a MONARCH demonstrated. They are now made in the following sizes:

16-9 H. P.—The right size tractor for the average farm. Small enough to be handy for such work as orchard cultivation, powerfull enough to pull from two to three bottoms.

30-18 H. P.—A big brute of a tractor—able to tackle heavy farm and road work. 18 H. P. at drawbar, 30 H. P. on belt pulley.

Do not confuse MONARCH Tractors with the so-called "track-laying" types. The track on the MONARCH is made of wear resisting manganese steel. We guarantee to duplicate for MONARCH Tractors any written warranty put out by any other responsible tractor manufacturer.

FARM TRADES ARE LEARNED IN ARMY.

is serving Uncle Sam. Recently, Lieut. Harvey Meeden, stationed at Camp Kearny, took a detachment of his men of the utilities division to San Diego, where a temporary camp was made near the Santa Fe depot, and for three days the work of the division was explained to prospective enlisted men.

Among the features demonstrated were tractors of several types, the operation of blacksmith shops, the installation of electricity for farm or home use, horseshoeing, and other trades. Lieut. Meeden stated, when the camp closed, that he had been far more successful than he had anticipated in securing recruits for his branch of the service. A parade of the various displays was made as a concluding phase of the exhibit.

SAVE OLD OIL FOR SPRINGS AND BOLTS.

Drain the oil from the tractor crank case often and flush out the bearing parts with kerosene to thoroughly cleanse them from carbon deposit. Before putting in the kerosene remove the can containing the used oil. The thick, black oil can be used to advantage on springs, bolts and nuts showing signs of rusting, on creaky hinges and many implements. The used oil is sometimes strained through a piece of cloth and used on oil stones. Be sure to fill the crank case to the proper level with oil again before operating it.

TRACTOR LEVELING WIND-SWEPT LANDS.

Hundreds of acres of desert land near Muroc, Antelope Valley, are being leveled with tractors and land levelers adapted to tractors by Rice Bros., owners of a large tract of desert land which they will put into alfalfa this fall. Winds make leveling with horses precarious and slow, but with tractors great progress is being made. Next month 200 acres of the tract will be seeded to Hairy Peruvian alfalfa. Plenty of water has been developed for this acreage.

LARGE OUTLAY FOR AUXILLIARY PLANT.

PHOENIX (Ariz.)—The Salt River Valley Water Users' Association will spend $600,000 in the installation of an auxiliary steam power plant, at a point between Tempe and Mesa, to equalize its electric service during the slack water summer periods. The plant is to generate [illegible] kilowatts, considered enough, when added to the hydroelectric current generated at slack periods, to supply the contracts with the Inspiration Company of Miami and the public utilities and manufacturing plants of the Salt River Valley. The added income would far more than defray the expense of operating the new equipment. At present the Inspiration Company is getting very little current and is compelled to operate its own power plant. It is understood that it is willing to pay much more than its present meter rate if guaranteed constant service at all seasons of the year. There also is consideration of the necessity f[illegible] power to the many pumping plants that are being established by the association at valley points where the water level has raised to the point of possible danger to agriculture.

raised steadily during the summer, now standing at 172 feet. In view of this, the association board of governors has extended full water rights to an additional 16,000 acres omitted by a governmental survey board from the main irrigation project.

The association's membership will be called upon to vote on the purchase of the old cement plant east of Phoenix, for operation in conjunction with the Maricopa County Highway Commission. The latter will build several hundred miles of concrete base roads, while the association is preparing for the erection, on the Verde, of a second storage dam, for which thousands of barrels of cement will be needed.

BUDDING FROM ONE TREE.

A. D. Shamel, government citrus expert, examined a forty-acre Lisbon lemon orchard near Porterville, Cal., set out in 1907, with trees all grown from buds of a very productive and valuable parent tree. Not one off-strain tree was found in this orchard, whereas in neighboring Lisbon lemon orchards, where no bud selection based on performance records and intimate tree knowledge has been practiced in propagation, it was found that from 10 to 70 per cent. of the trees were of variable or off-type strains.

California ranks fifth among the States in apple production.

TAKING BETTER CARE OF FARM MACHINERY.

Build an implement shed for the farm tools. Do not allow the drills, mowers, bean cutters, beet plows and other implements to rust out in the open while the tractor is under shelter. It pays to invest $300 or $400 in an implement shed.

It has been figured that general farm implements depreciate eight per cent. or even ten per cent. a year, the rate being higher for harvesters, mowers, and threshing machines. When the machines are left out in the open, exposed to the elements, the farmer may as well calculate the life of such machines as half what they would have been if put in sheds.

Even in Southern California, fog, dew and dust help the deterioration of the machines and the occasional rain does great damage. Rusty machinery must be limbered up before using, and thus there is a loss of time. Build the shed of good lumber. A cheap shed is a costly investment.

In tests of a large series of insecticides conducted by entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture, it was found that a few thorough applications of crude petroleum to the interior of poultry houses will completely destroy mites.

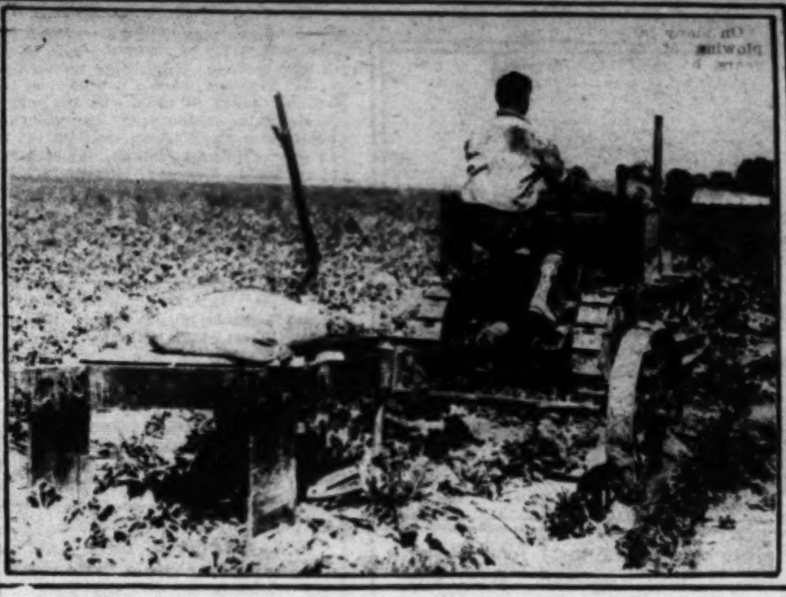
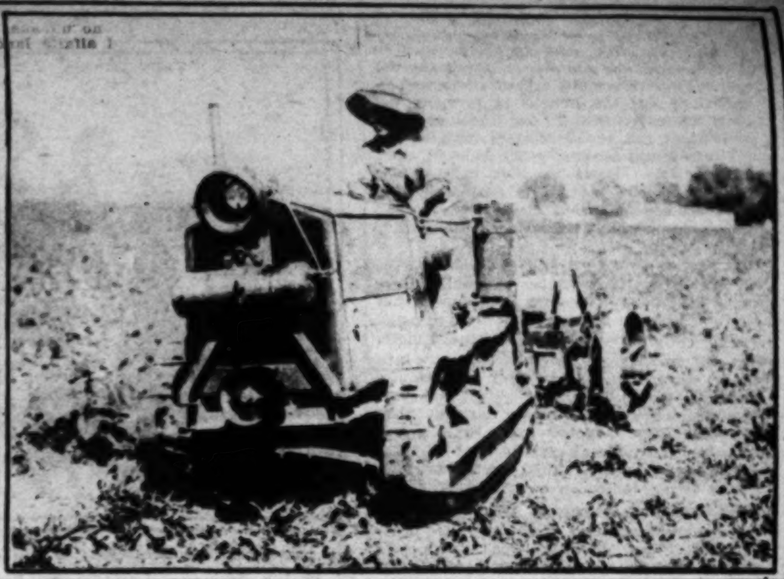
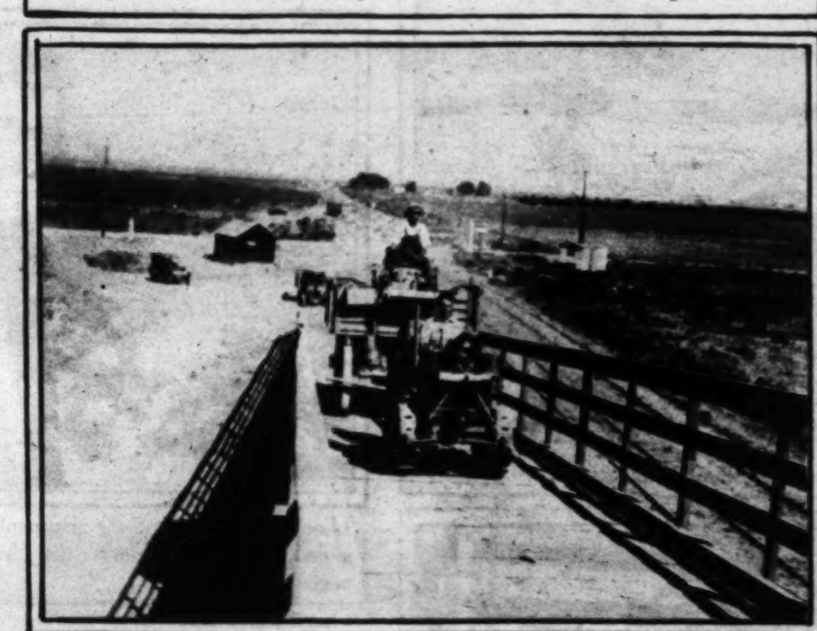
A San Fernando Valley Man and His Steel Farm Horse.



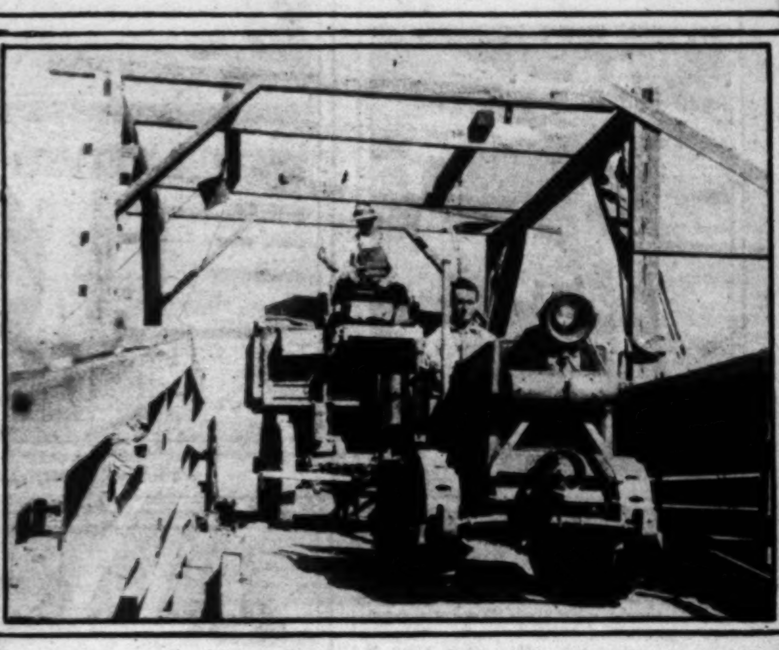
J. N. Pike of Marion, San Fernando Valley, is much in demand as a beet-plowing contractor because he does the work quickly and well with his tractor. He is plowing seven acres every ten hours at a cost of 64 cents a tractor hour. Four horses can plow three acres in ten hours.



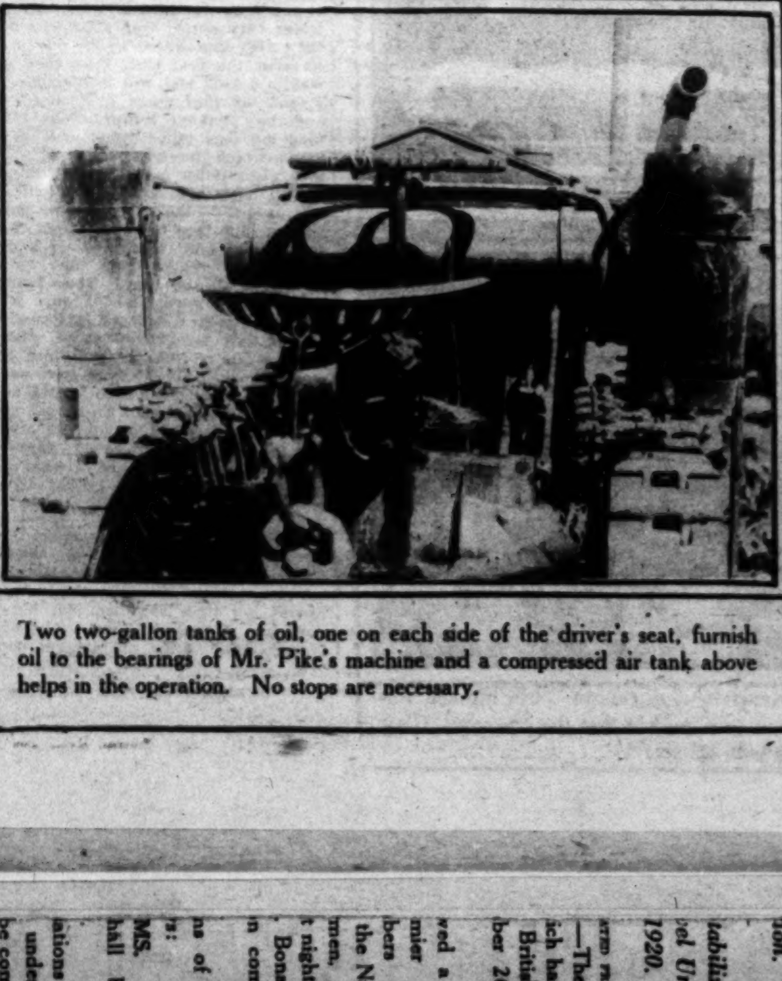
Mr. Pike has rigged up an acetylene light, which enables him to plow fourteen hours a day. The quality of work done after sunset is fully equal to that done during daylight hours.



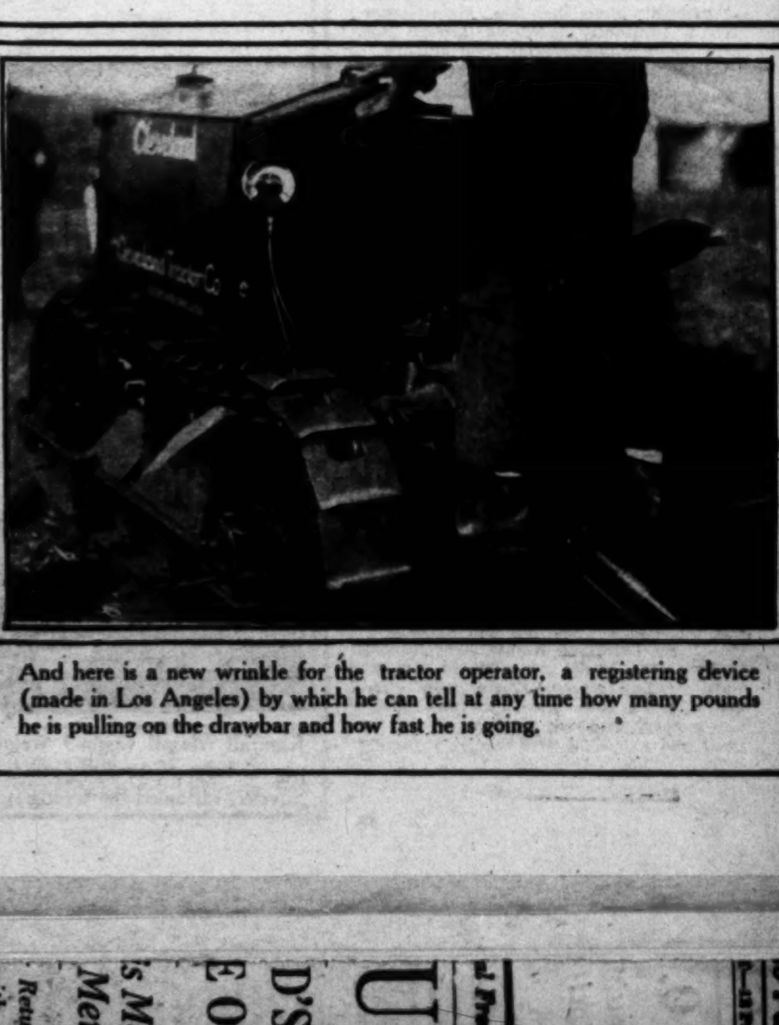
Mr. Pike occasionally hauls heavily loaded beet wagons to the top of the dump near Marion. A four-ton load goes up easily and smoothly behind the iron steed



Pulling up to the dumping platform.



Two two-gallon tanks of oil, one on each side of the driver's seat, furnish oil to the bearings of Mr. Pike's machine and a compressed air tank above helps in the operation. No stops are necessary.



And here is a new wrinkle for the tractor operator, a registering device (made in Los Angeles) by which he can tell at any time how many pounds he is pulling on the drawbar and how fast he is going.

THE PREPARATION OF THE SOIL FOR WHEAT.

The problem of growing wheat in California is not so much one of soil fertility as it is of soil preparation.

There are several factors that influence wheat yields. Probably the most successful California method of rendering the insoluble ingredients of the soil available for wheat is by summer fallowing. The land should be plowed in the fall after the first rains and allowed to stand rough through the winter. In the spring it should again be plowed and also harrowed to make a covering to retain the moisture.

If in the following fall there are early have had two or more crops of beans or alfalfa on them. In fact, old alfalfa land could in most cases be advantageously planted to wheat for a couple of years. Twenty sacks of wheat is no unusual harvest from an acre of good alfalfa land.

The principles of dry farming are very applicable to California wheat production. The conservation of moisture by so plowing the soil that it will hold the moisture and by so harrowing and sometimes mulching the top dirt that the moisture will be retained is of vital importance. Plowing loosens up the soil so that it becomes like a sponge and retains great quantities of water. Then by forming a blanket or covering of finely-pulverized dirt over this reservoir sufficient moisture is retained to assure plant growth during the months of which is just as essential as water for plant growth, but it also acts as a capillary evaporator and removes the moisture much more rapidly than otherwise.

On many farms the plow sole, formed by plowing at the same depth for several years, becomes such an established condition that one does not realize the damage it does to his land. Practically all the plant food and moisture that the grain receives must be obtained from the soil above this pan—neither the plant roots nor water will readily penetrate it. The proper procedure is to break this plow sole up so that a larger reservoir of moisture can be formed and more plant food become available.

This has been successfully done with a cultivator which is made up of a number of chisel-shaped teeth set at an angle of

The "Milk Is Milk" Theory Doesn't Go at This Dairy.

BY H. G. HOARD.

A FEW years ago, and only a few years ago, the average person held to the belief that "milk is milk." That is to say, it was commonly supposed that all milk was alike.

In the past few years scientists have learned that there are a great many grades of milk, and have established a scale whereby milk may be classified and graded. These grades are certified, guaranteed, grade A raw, Grade A pasteurized and so on down to unsalable milk.

The pioneer dairy to go in for the production of certified milk for Los Angeles consumption was the Arden Dairy near El Monte. It is well worth a visit to this dairy to see with what care the milk is handled from the time it is drawn from the cow until it is delivered to the customer in order that the product may come up to the rigid standards set for certified milk in Los Angeles.

Herd of Jersey cattle at Arden Dairy, El Monte.

Washing the cows before milking is a regular practice at the Arden Dairy. The cement floor of the stalls is also kept clean at all times.

The bottling house. The milk is carried up the screened stairway to the tower where it is placed in receptacles leading down to the cooling room.

To prevent the accumulation of litter or dirt in the milking barn, the cows are driven to a separate barn for feeding. As soon as the animals are driven into the milking barn, two men start with brushes and running water and thoroughly wash the hind quarters of each. The floors are thoroughly flushed and the cows dried off with towels.

The milkers then come into the barns dressed in fresh clean white suits, and after washing their hands thoroughly, draw the milk into hooded pails. As soon as the milk is drawn, it is weighed and carried up a screened stairway to the top of the milk house, being then poured through sterilized gauze into receptacles that lead down to the cooling room. Every sanitary precaution is observed in getting the fluid ready for bottling.

Racks containing clean bottles is put into a steam sterilizing oven and a temperature of 220 deg. is maintained for twenty minutes. When the bottles are ready to be filled they are as clear as crystal and as sanitary as it is possible to make them.

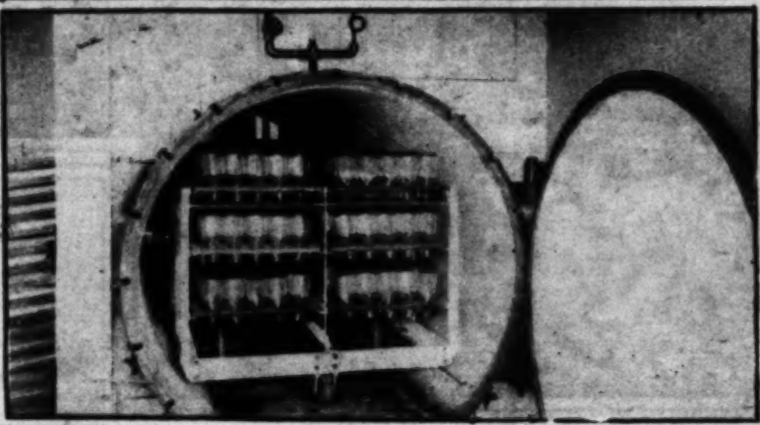
NEW MANAGEMENT.

The Arden Dairy, although the oldest certified dairy in the vicinity, has been under the management of the new owners, Fred S. Kenfield and Frederick B. Carter, Jr., but four months.

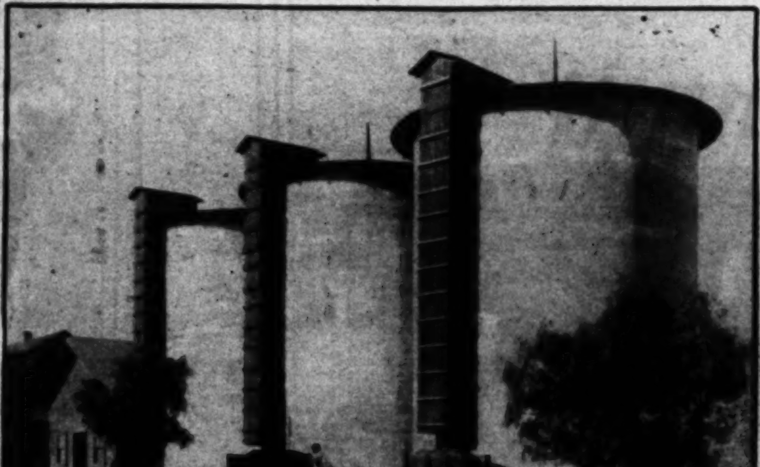
Mr. Kenfield was formerly the owner of Long Beach Farms at Kalamazoo, Mich., where he maintained a large herd of pure bred cattle. Mr. Carter was formerly the managing partner of the Cold Spring Certified Dairy at Pasadena.

Since taking over the Arden Dairy, the new owners have made a large number of improvements. One of these was the recent purchase of 150 head of pure bred Jersey cattle. Another was the installation of duplicate boiler and power equipments for the plant. If for any reason the power plant or boiler plants have to be shut down, the auxiliary outfits can be put into immediate use. This is most important, as steam is a very essential factor in keeping milk utensils clean and sterilized, and power is necessary to operate the ice plant and other machinery. To be without steam or ice even for a few hours, would be very detrimental in the production of high quality milk.

Modern machinery has been installed in the creamery and extra provision made for using great amounts of fresh clean water for flushing the walls and floors.



The sterilizing oven for milk bottles.



The Arden Dairy's battery of silos.

Great care is used in selecting the feed for the cows, and only good grain, silage and alfalfa hay are used. Three concrete silos, holding 300 tons each, are used to store silage, and these hold a year's supply.

FEED CONDITIONS.

One of the largest contracts for alfalfa hay ever made in Southern California was recently closed by the Arden Dairy. This contract calls for 750 tons of baled alfalfa and 300 tons of chopped alfalfa.

The feeds used include bran, cottonseed meal, oil meal, ground barley and beet pulp. The grain and silage are fed in the feeding bran, and the alfalfa hay in movable racks in the corrals.

The Arden Dairy herd of Jersey cattle is one of the best on the Pacific Coast, both from the standpoint of breeding, and individual merit. The cows are uniformly heavy producers with well developed udders and teats, and the milk which they produce is rich and of a good color.

The herd is headed by Kathies Eminent 115265 and Nobles Mayfair Hero 122139. Kathies Eminent is a son of the noted bull Lillie's Fair Boy 95061 and is out of the heavy producing cow Eminents Kathie 271870. Nobles Mayfair is a son of Expectation Noble 86786 and is out of the cow Imported Belle of Mayfair 231683.

A visit at the Arden Dairy is a liberal education in live stock breeding, and the proper handling of milk.

HANDS DRINK MORE MILK.

Milk either sweet or as buttermilk, bids fair to become the favorite soft drink of the factory employee. Dairy specialists, sent out by the Department of Agriculture this year, have been giving talks, in which the value of milk is stressed, to representative groups of workers in various trades. In Worcester, Mass., short talks on milk as a food have been given in eleven factories. Exhibits have been set up in some of the factories, visited by the specialists. After each lecture about 2,000 pamphlets were distributed. In Worcester fourteen factories are now selling milk to their employees during the morning or noon hour.

OPERATING TABLE FOR HOGS.

The chief difficulty encountered in administering anticholera serum to hogs—that of holding the animal while the fluid is injected—has been overcome, it is asserted, by an operating table recently invented by a Kansas veterinary surgeon, and described with illustration in the October Popular Mechanics Magazine. Besides holding a porker in the proper position for inoculation, the contrivance weighs the hog. It consists of a V-shaped trough, held in an inclined position by a collapsible steel frame; weighs forty pounds and can be folded and carried on the running board of an automobile.

An important function of live stock on the farm is to furnish a market for the crops grown, enabling farmers to convert the grasses, forage crops, legumes, and so on, into higher-priced finished products and to return to the soil the plant food taken from it.

The forecast for barley in California this year is 31,151,000 bushels, a drop of 3,000,000 bushels from last year's production.

Pig Clubs—A Serious Effort to Keep Boys on the Farm.

BY W. G. WATERHOUSE, LOS ANGELES COUNTY CLUB LEADER.

ONE of the most important and yet one of the most neglected crops that we have in Los Angeles county is the boy crop. There are many organizations and associations for the benefit of farmers, but there are comparatively few whose object is to prevent the young farmers from leaving the farms and seeking other lines of work in the cities. There has been considerable talk about back-to-the-farm movement, but what is more important than that is to keep the young people on the farm where they really belong.

A partial solution to this problem is found in the agricultural clubs. Through these clubs the boys and girls are shown that there are opportunities on the farm to make money. They also find that improved methods pay and that keeping accurate accounts is the surest way to become a successful farmer. These agricultural clubs are part of a national club movement carried on by boys and girls in almost every State in the Union. The different clubs do not all raise pigs, as some people think, but all the boys in the same club raise the same crop at the same time. Last year in this State there were something over 2700 boys and girls enrolled. They produced crops worth over $67.000, making a net profit of over $31,000. They raised 1855 pigs, 3785 birds (including both incubation and egg laying projects,) 453 sheep, 28 calves, 248 acres of beans, 130 acres of potatoes, 529 acres of grain sorghum and 59 acres of vegetables.

The object of these clubs is to make money and if a club does not make profits, it is considered a failure. There are many other advantages to club work. Through being in competition with other boys in the community, the spirit of rivalry creates an interest in agriculture that oftentimes causes a boy to become so interested in pig raising, for example, that he develops into an authority along that line. Rural leadership is frequently developed through club work, along with many other advantages.

The winning Poland China of Roy Francis of Pomona. Roy brought him from 94 to 210 pounds.

PLAN OF OPERATION.

Agricultural clubs are organized by the members, the boys electing their officers and carrying on the club as their own. They hold meetings twice a month, one meeting being an indoor meeting and the other in the form of a trip to some ranch where improved methods are being practiced.

The club decides on the contest which it wishes to enter and then on the day set all the pigs are weighed,if it is a pig-fattening contest, and the four months fattening contest is started. At the end of the conest all the porkers are brought to a central place and the judging takes place. The basis on which the winners are determined is: the value of the hog in regard to weight 30 per cent.; net profit made, 50 per cent.; method and accuracy of keeping records, 10 per cent. and 10 per cent. on an essay as to how the boy raised his pig.

The club work in Los Angeles this fall will be carried on under the direction of the county club leader and four district leaders: C. J. Zinn, Inglewood; J. E. Gore, Van Nuys; C. L. Schufeldt, Owensmouth, and C. B. Heryford, Antelope Valley.

The club work in the county last spring was hindered by the "flu," but in spite of this, some gratifying results were accomplished. Ten of the pig fattening contests have already closed. There were fifty-seven boys in these clubs who raised sixty-seven hogs, weighing 2577 pounds at the start and valued at $4[illegible]9.50. Their weight at the finish was 9592½ pounds, and their valuation $1819.88, making a gain in weight of 6949 pounds. They were fed an average of 119 days and made a net profit of $575.95.

Henry Carter, Artesia Agricultural Club winner.

Chris Poyorena, Los Nietos club, winner. He secured a two-weeks'-old Poland China and fed it for four months.

Kendall Magill (right,) winner Ranchito club contest. He brought this pig up from 35 to 208 pounds. It is very evident that the other lad, Clint Snyder, followed the wrong system with his pig.

The winners of clubs who are entitled to be delegates to the State Agricultural Club conference at Davis on October 16, 17 and 18 are: Herbert Hollins, Frances Willars and Harold Mounsey, Monrovia; Wesley Burgess, Wayne Miller, Charles Trowbridge, Wesley Herbert, Vernon Walk, Mary A Smith and Fay W. Overton, San Fernando; Theo Chegwidden, Warren Chase, Ward Campbell, George Drake, Harold Morrison, Paul Whitsett, Gilbert Leslie, Edwin Angier, Thaddeus Waterbury, Kenneth Wheeler, James Allen Robinson, Harold Gilbert, Kenneth Gilbert, Lenn Martin, Harlan Smith and Glenn Marter, Van Nuys; John Burch, Owensmouth; Henry Carter, Artesia; Chris Poyorena, Los Nietos; Robert Zangle, Bellflower; Harold Comber, Burbank; Donald Johnston, El Monte; Clyde Wertz, Newhall; Roy Francis, Pomona; Kendall Magill, Ranchito; Benny Haworth, Baldwin Park; Evert Koontz, Chester Irish and Aldys Heath, Norwalk; George Schurr, Rob Tindall and Otto Worthy, Puente.

WHAT THE BOYS SAY.

Following are some of the stories in their own words, of pig club members:

"I joined the pig club on March 26, 1919, and there are twelve members in the club now. The same day we started the pig club I was elected president of the pig club. I joined the club to make money and also to learn lots that we did not know about pigs.

Hiosha Wataniki of the Burbank club, who sadly admits that he neglected his pig.

Before I joined the pig club, I had two pigs, one was given to me by my father and the other was given to me by one of our best neighbors. I liked my pigs very well and so I gave them the names of Rose and Peggy. I did not select any certain kind of pig because they were given to me as a present and they were Poland-China. I feed my pigs lots of green feed because they like it and it is very good for pigs. My pigs like water very much, they drink lots of it and they also like water to lay in. I can remember the first time I weighed my pigs was in a sack and now it will take a crate. I feed my pigs green feed on the ground and the tankage I feed in the trough. I feed my pigs green beets and slop of all kinds, which they are very fond of. I feed them three times a day and all they care to eat. I feed them green feed, milk, barley and cocoanut meal. I always play with my pigs and they are very tame. I scratch their backs and they roll over and grunt. My pigs are regular pets, they want to be scratched all the time. The County Club leader came around about once a month and took us to different pig farms and we learned all we could about pigs. We learned lots of things about pigs that we never knew before. Pigs that are purebreds are lots larger than scrubs and they always are better pigs. To have a good pig club all boys should be jolly in everything and do what all want to do. Boys should not swear or smoke and always tell the truth."—[Robert Zangle, Bellflower, age 13

GOT HIS IN SACK.

"I joined the pig club because I was interested in pigs and liked to take care of them. I took a sack and walked about a mile for my pig. The man that owned them caught her in a barn and put her in my sack and I took it home. My pig is a Poland China. I did not get her because I

LOS ANGELES' ADMINISTRATIVE CIVIC CENTER.

In the development of the "Dodge" plan for the improvement of the present Courthouse site as the proposed administrative Civic Center of Los Angeles city and county, an examination of the accompanying block plan showing the revised streets, proposed buildings and the park space will be self-explanatory.

CITY HALL—The proposed City Hall, opposite to the Courthouse, and having a facade of similar length and general outlines, as far as practicable.

Exclusive of the Water Board, or Public Utilities building, the total present city requirements for ALL DEPARTMENTS of the city government amount to about 131,224 square feet.

The total gross floor area of a single floor, as shown by the block plan, for the proposed City Hall, amounts to about 29,350 square feet.

A seven-story, reinforced concrete building, having an exterior wall surface of terra cotta, including proper and suitable "specifications" for the balance of the construction of such a building could be well and properly built for about $1,200,000.

WATER DEPARTMENT BUILDING—To the south of the new City Hall building, as shown on block plan, is located the proposed Water Department building. This plan shows an approximate gross area, for a single floor, of about 20,900 square feet, and deducting for walls, partitions and corridors, would leave a net office floor area per each floor of about 14,500 square feet.

The estimated cost: $588,000.

CITY AND COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION BUILDING—This proposed building is shown to west of Water Board building and gives about 11,500 square feet of gross floor area, which, after deducting for exterior walls, all partitions and liberal allowance for public corridors, etc., would leave a net office floor area per each story of about 8000 square feet. Cost about $322,000.

Nucoa—The Butter That's Better

Of course, you like choice creamery butter—but how do you like its price? If you can buy something more delicious than the average cow butter—cleaner than some of it; therefore in every way better for less money—isn't it worth trying?

Nucoa Nut Butter is the absolutely pure and creamy churning of coconuts and milk. It is made clean, wrapped in parchment and sold in sanitary cartons.

Costs less because coconuts are more plentiful than cows.

Instead of Cow Butter—

NUCOA

The Original Nut Butter

"Nucoa is just plain wonderful". It stretches the spending power of your dollar, and it's the highest grade nut butter ever churned. Made of coconuts but with the creamery butter taste. Buy a pound of Nucoa on our recommendation. You will never regret it.

Branded "Oleomargarine" to comply with the Federal law of 1886. Nut butter was then unknown. Nucoa contains no animal fat. You buy it white and color it yourself in a minute. Capsules containing the same color as used in cow butter are free. Directions surround each print. We are denied the right to color Nucoa at the churn. Work with your Congressmen against this discrimination.

Under Searching Eyes—

Do you ever wince inwardly?

AN unexpected meeting—a battery of eyes focused on your face—Can you meet it with composure? Is your skin flawless? Clear, lovely in coloring?

Or is there some blemish that stands out mercilessly in your own consciousness? Some fault in your complexion that you know observant eyes must take notice of?

There is nothing that so destroys a man's or woman's poise and self-confidence as the consciousness of a complexion at fault. Even a little blemish in some conspicuous place makes you miserably embarrassed. You want to shrink into the background. You lose your confidence, your gayety. Your very personality is dimmed just when you are most anxious to appear at your best.

Yet this suffering is entirely needless. You need never be miserable and tongue-tied from such self-consciousness. Almost anyone, by simple, regular hygienic care of the skin, can free her complexion of the defects that so commonly mar an otherwise lovely face.

Blackheads are such a disfigurement. Enlarged nose pores. A skin that will get shiny. These things can be corrected.

Take care of the new skin that is forming every day as old skin dies. Give it every night the right treatment for your particular trouble, and within a week or ten days you will notice a marked improvement.

How to Remove Skin Blemishes.

Take one of the most common skin troubles. Perhaps your skin is constantly being marred by unsightly little blemishes. No doubt you attribute them to something wrong in your blood—but authorities on the skin now agree that in the great majority of cases, these blemishes are caused by bacteria and parasites that are carried into the pores from outside, through dust and fine particles in the air.

By using the Woodbury method of cleansing your skin, you can free it from such blemishes.

Just before retiring, wash in your usual way with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap, finishing with a dash of cold water. Then dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes. Then rinse very carefully with clear hot water, then with cold.

Use this treatment regularly and the blemishes will gradually disappear. Also, you will find that the regular use of Woodbury's will give the new skin power to resist the most common cause of skin blemishes.

The Famous Treatment for Conspicuous Nose Pores.

Do you know what it is that causes conspicuous nose pores?

The pores of the face are not as fine as on other parts of the body. On the nose, especially, there are more fat glands than elsewhere, and there is more activity of the pores. These pores, if not properly stimulated and kept free from dirt, clog up and become enlarged.

Try this special treatment for this trouble, and supplement it with the steady, general use of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Wring a soft cloth from very hot water, lather it with Woodbury's Facial Soap, then hold it to your face. When the heat has expanded the pores, rub in very gently a fresh lather of Woodbury's. Repeat this hot water and lather application several times, stopping at once if your nose feels sensitive. Then finish by rubbing the nose for thirty seconds with a piece of ice. Always dry your skin carefully.

Before long you will notice how this gradually reduces the enlarged pores until they are inconspicuous. But do not expect to change completely in a week a condition resulting from long-continued exposure and neglect.

You will find Woodbury's Facial Soap on sale at any drug store or toilet goods counter in the United States or Canada. The booklet containing full directions for all the famous Woodbury treatments is wrapped around each cake. Get a cake today and begin using it tonight. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks.

Would You Like to Have a Trial Size Cake?

For 6 cents we will send you the trial size cake (enough for a week of any Woodbury facial treatment) together with the booklet of treatments. Or for 15 cents we will send you the treatment booklet and samples of Woodbury's Facial Soap, Facial Powder, Facial Cream and Cold Cream. THE TIMES ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE

One Left.

WE HAVE often wondered why Theodore Roosevelt never attempted to explore Lower California—that mysterious peninsula lying just south of us. Why did he go all the way to Africa to look for places where white men never were, or from which they never came back, when he could have satisfied the same desire more fully and with more adventure by starting out from San Diego with an outfit?

It is a weird, mysterious land, indeed, that old Baja California. There is an island in the gulf ruled over by fierce Amazonian women, and it is said that no white man who ventured into the fastnesses of that island ever came back to tell the tale. There is a Roman road on that island—a road built of concrete, but who built it no one knows. Were the legions of Caesar once there? It seems impossible. Yet there is the road.

But this is only one little item in the mysteries of Lower California. A man can run into more ghosts down there in a night than he could scare up anywhere else in a year.

We hear it said that the age of adventure is spent. Surely it is a mistake to say it while this wild, death-dealing strip of land lies basking in the sun south of San Diego.

There must be gold down there, and pearls, and maybe diamonds. Yet nobody appears daring enough to go and find out about it.

The strangest thing of all, however, is that story writers who are hard up for material do not explore Lower California. And heaven knows there are many of them hard-up. If you do not believe it, buy a copy of any American magazine and try to read the stories in it.

The dullest things in the world just now are our American magazines, and yonder lies the land of mystery waiting for the least of the pot-boilers who has the courage to take his life in his hands.

Let us insist that all the story-writers go at once into Lower California.

Poor Devils.

IN BOTH New York and Chicago there are clubs known as "California Societies." Their membership is composed of Californians compelled by business and other reasons to live in the East.

A man who was lately in New York and Chicago says that these poor devils are the most pathetic persons he has ever seen.

Now, if a man who lives in the East never saw California and doesn't know what it is like, of course he is saved from despair by his ignorance. What he doesn't know doesn't worry him. But, to the man who has lived here, or who perhaps was born here, it must be a dreary fate for him to be condemned to live in the East.

And why do they do it? Is it business? If so, they deserve their fate. If a man's business interferes with his happiness, he should cut out his business, and he should do it without the slightest hesitation or delay.

Unless a man is in jail in the East, there is no real reason for him to stay there.

Suppose We Skid?

THESE fellows who are pumping all the gas out of the earth, and digging the coal and the iron and gold and silver out of it, and sucking all the oil out of it, better look out what they're doing.

Supposing the "scientists" say that it doesn't make any difference. What do they know about it? They don't know any more about it than we do, and that isn't very much. These smart Alecs that tell us one thing today and another thing tomorrow are not to be depended on. They change their minds too often, and the reason they do so is that they are simply guessing all the time.

Now, it stands to reason that if we take the whole insides out of the earth it is bound to be a whole lot lighter than it was before. Any kind of an idiot knows that. We take out the insides and we never put anything back in its place. If we played fair, like trade rats, it wouldn't be so bad; but we don't play fair.

We take out coal and burn it up in smoke; the same way with oil; the gas blows away in the air.

Now, by ginger, to our way of thinking, the next thing we know this old ball is going to skid. It is bound to do so, being relieved of all its ballast. It is going to skid, and then something is going to happen to everybody who is thinking about something else and hasn't got a good hold on a tree or something.

Suppose you are walking along the road, or sitting carelessly in a chair, and the earth skids like that. Why, dear man, you will fly off like a man standing up on a spring wagon when the horse gets scared.

We have no desire to unnecessarily alarm anybody, but this thing of taking everything out of the insides of the earth but the acoustics ought to be looked into.

The Desert's Voice

GRAND FALLS OF THE LITTLE COLORADO RIVER IN THE PAINTED DESERT OF ARIZONA.

Tremendous organ booming Titan note
Adown cathedral vault of desert skies;
Thy thunderous, giant symphonies uprise
In Gothic gloom of starry night, and float
At noontide hour across the miraged moat
Of beetling cliffs; but soft to murmur dies
Thy peal as smile of morning glorifies,
Or vesper purple veils the hills remote.

The desert's voice art thou—a voice of song
Eternal' mid eternal peace. Perchance
Life stilled its humming surge to list alone
To melody of waters whirled along
The painted plains in glad, mysterious dance—
The joy entrancing souls of conscious stone.

BLANCH METZ RIORDAN.

More Preachers.

WE ARE glad to note that we are to have more preachers. The way it has been for several years past, all the churches were short of men willing to devote their lives to the Christian ministry.

Of course, being a preacher isn't what the world calls a "good job." A preacher doesn't stand a very big chance to become a millionaire. He will have to walk a lot unless he falls into a rich parish. And there are a lot of things that he must do without.

But, if he has the right stuff in him, he will be the happiest and the most respected man in the world. He will have ten chances to any other man's one to do good. Peace and the blessing of God will fall upon his roof tree like sunshine and the singing rain.

When we say "preacher" we mean ministers—Jew and gentile, Protestant, Catholic and all.

Arrogance.

A LAW was supposed to be put into effect lately by which the nights on streets and roads were to be made safer for travel. This law says that no automobile shall appear henceforth at night with bared lights. The lights must now be "dimmed."

Of course, it is just the same now as it was before. The automobiles were all made to conform to the spirit of the law, but the letter of it passed for a joke, as the case almost always is. If you are out on the road at night now you will not be able to see any difference in the situation. The big juggernauts come bearing down on you, blinding and dismaying you and bewildering you just as before.

All there is to it is that we have to make a record of another law that is nothing more than a farce, and file the record of it along with ten thousand other laws in the same class.

All of which leads us to reflect upon the arrogance of people who find themselves able to "hog" things, and forthwith set out to do so. No law has any effect on them. To arrest and fine them merely serves their vanity. They boast of the numbers of times they have been arrested and fined.

These people, either by fair means or foul, put themselves in possession of high-powered automobiles. Thereupon they are seized with an arrogance beyond the ability of words to describe. They take the middle of the road, and at night they speed along streets and roads in menacing danger to whoever else is abroad. They are responsible for many deaths, and consequently, they should be classed as common murderers, which they are.

There is only one way to deal with these ignorant brutes, and that way is to drag them out of their juggernauts and put them in the penitentiaries for the terms of their natural lives. They should be herded with their fellow-murderers, and a penitentiary is really too good for them.

The Provincial East.

A FRIEND recently mailed us a copy of an advertisement in which an eastern manufacturer stated that his goods could be purchased at $6 the article in the United States, but that "west of the Rockies the price is $7."

By the beard of Mahomet, that's just what he said. He printed it right out in the paper and paid the paper for the privilege. And so we learn that in the East they regard the country west of the Rocky Mountains as a foreign land.

Well, there is nothing new about it. Every westerner knows how hopelessly provincial the East is. The folks back there are as narrow as the little boundary lines that close them in.

In the East they think that California is at the end of the world. They think we all carry sawed-off shotguns to this day to protect ourselves against the attacks of wild Indians. It would be laughable to think how little they know about the West if it were not that it is so pathetic.

Back yonder—and oh, dear, we do get homesick to see it again, just every so often—they think Los Angeles and San Francisco are separated only by a small stream, and that a stone can be thrown from one into the other. And when we tell them that San Francisco is as far from Los Angeles as Boston is from Charleston, S. C., they call us liars.

Really something should be done about it. It is nonsense to be sending missionaries to Africa when there is so much to be done in our own country.

Argument.

WE HAVE come to believe that the one thing, above all other things, that keeps the world from perishing of monotony is argument. If there were nothing to argue over there would be only one church in each town, there would be only one political party in the nation, there would be no divorces, no wars, no editorials in the newspapers, only one woman's club; there would be no orators. There would be no two of any kind except poets.

And then the world would shrivel up in its shell and you wouldn't hear a peep out of it.

So, instead of letting this business of a League of Nations get on our nerves as it seems to be doing, let us view it in the light of a blessing. Is it not the best little argument-factory that was ever started up? Well, then, let us be thankful for it.

It is everywhere. It is the subject of the most heated differences of opinion anywhere you have a mind to go. It has invaded whist parties, ten-pin alleys, churches, back streets and high roads, secret societies and dog fights.

It has even invaded our own quiet retreat in the heart of the green Verdugo hills in sound of the running waters of the Tejunga. On our front stoop there is nothing discussed any more except the League of Nations, and no two men who have come have been able to agree on the thing.

We tried to get President Wilson out to sit with the neighbors on our front stoop when he was in Los Angeles. He sent word he couldn't spare the time. And that's where he missed it. If he had come he would find out things about the League of Nations that he never dreamed of.

He has only himself to blame. We gave him the chance, and it is his own fault that he didn't take it.

They Hold On.

IF YOU will prowl around the bookstores you will be surprised to learn how steadily the old writers hold on; how steadfast the public is to them although the years and the centuries have passed over their quiet graves.

Dickens is read more widely now than he was ever read during his lifetime, and so is Thackeray, Dumas, Balzac, Stevenson and all the other masters. "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Ramona" and all the other books that ever once caught the soul of the world are more alive today than they ever were.

All of which goes to prove that the thing that is worth while and well done, can never die.

Jap Criticizes Our Methods.

This Japanese showed Californians how light and frequent irrigations first germinate the seed, and then how to continually submerge the rice plant when it has attained a height of from four to six inches and until it is matured. This first successful California rice crop was grown in 1912 and in 1916 there were 67,000 acres of rice land under irrigation, the water supply coming from the Sacramento and Feather rivers. You see the Japanese agriculturist in America has not an entirely selfish interest. He perhaps has given more than he himself will ever take away.

Boston is not the only world authority on beans. The soya bean of Manchuria, China, has come into great prominence in the last few years and Japanese steamers are bringing them to America and Japanese agriculturists are showing Americans how to plant and grow them. Many southern lands in the United States can no longer be used for cotton production because the insidious boll weevil has made it unprofitable. The soya bean is a splendid substitute crop.

In the Orient, we press the bean to extract the oil, which is suitable for cookng and salad oil. The oil cake or meal left after the oil has been pressed out is a splendid food for live stock. We also make a sort of cheese out of it and the soya bean in its original state is a nourishing human food as it contains protein, oil, fat and starch. The Japanese have only begun to show Americans how to grow this bean and press it for oil and in a few years it will become a tremendous industry. Large plants for pressing the oil will soon be constructed in San Francisco and Seattle.

American Farmer Learning Much From the Japanese.

ALTHOUGH the American farmer fusses because the Japanese are more painstaking and work longer hours, he is getting same valuable points himself on our skill in carefully watching changes in the weather, in covering our plants from heat and cold as tenderly as we would protect one of our babies, and in irrigation, fertilizing, cultivating and spraying with more minute care.

He is learning that one cannot raise choice foods by simply planting things and just letting them grow while he entertains himself on visits to the city or tours in his Ford car. And the Americans are imitating us by using more crops than before; lettuce in the early spring, then potatoes, spinach following and then tomatoes with cabbage thriving on the same ground during the late fall. If it happens we have land bearing a few fruit trees, we put rows and rows of tomatoes or strawberries between the trees, making every inch of available land yield something.

A very few Japanese in America have made it possible to grow on a large scale. George Shima of Stockton is called the "Potato King." He uses a great tract of river delta land and has had a ditch dug around it so that it is a real island. He employs large numbers of Mexicans and Hindus and it is reported that he is the only Japanese in this country who has made over a million by farming. The largest tomato field in the world is leased by a Japanese and is at Mayfield, Cal., near San Francisco.

The Japanese Farmers Have Never Raised Cattle.

NOT a single Japanese owns a cattle ranch. Our people do not understand the breeding and raising of cattle as well as you Americans. You see in Japan our territory is very restricted. Raising cattle takes much land. Our people in Japan cannot live without their gardens so they have never had time or opportunity to go in for stock raising.

In both China and Japan though, foreigners are impressed by the great amount of poultry in every dooryard. We realize the food value of eggs and chickens grow and thrive in small spaces so they are suited to our crowded conditions in Japan. Some of the rice farmers in the Sacramento River Valley have become independently well off in the past few years and a few strawberry growers in the San Gabriel Valley are prosperous, but on the whole among the Japanese farmers in America there are very few fortunes of even a fair amount.

Japan is growing into a manufacturing country like England. Although both the Japanese and English are restricted by their islands, the English people have been allowed, because they were a white race, to expand to other colonial countries. The Japanese are still restricted to their own islands. Australia does not want the Japanese immigrants, neither does India nor the Malay Peninsula, the Philippines, the United States or the Dutch Indies. We might possibly expand to Siberia or China but the Siberian climate would be very severe for our Japanese people long used to a warm land, and also either move might embarrass the United States and involve us in international difficulty which we wish to avoid.

Four Hundred People to Square Mile in Japan.

A SERIOUS condition confronts our people for there are so many of us on our islands. In the United States you have thirty-two people to the square mile, but in Japan we have 400 to a square mile. If we can keep our factories busy and sell our manufactured materials we may be able to buy our food products elsewhere rather than raise them at home.

One of the most serious questions confronting Japan is the ability to supply raw cotton to our cotton spinners. Mr. Ito of our Bureau of Agricultural Affairs says the growth of upland cotton in the last few years has been striking for the cotton acreage of 70,000 chobu shows an increase of 63,500 chobu over 1912. We are now procuring much cotton from India and China and Mitsui & Co. have arranged with certain Texas growers for their entire output.

Why are American farms so very ugly? Many American farms have expansive lands and neat buildings and they are equipped with the latest farming machinery but they do not look like happy places in which to live. And some of them are a mixture of everything with brick walks and round circles full of pansies, Roman marble garden seats and sunflowers. I don't see where they find such dreadful styles.

Our Japanese farm certainly excels in points of artistry. Our Japanese farmer loves nature and beautifies his home no matter how tiny it may be. Every Japanese is by instinct an experienced landscape gardener. He can turn the tiny inner court of his shop or home into a charming nook by means of a tiny forest, dwarf trees, a diminutive waterfall and a few rocks or a hand wrought lantern. The Japanese are artistic in their ability to make a small space seem vast. It is all done by a clever method of building banks of soil at a certain angle and by introducing a pool of water and its mirrored reflections of trees or azaleas or passing clouds. Many times we build a tiny balcony outside the windows overlooking the garden and if the little pool or stream is run beneath the house, one may stand on the balcony and looking below dream of great vast spaces.

On account of our great shortage of land all our hills are artistically terraced in beautiful gardens. Kobori Enshiu, the famous Japanese artist, says his ideal of a garden is "A sweet solitude of a landscape in clouded moonlight with a half gloom between the trees." This vague bit of description conveys the Japanese love of quiet and seclusion. A few American artists in New York City's Bohemian quarter, where space is sold at a premium, have created some of the same sort of tiny gardens on their roofs and tried to keep close to the spirit of nature even in crowded quarters.

In 1917 there was considerable agitation concerning the need for more farm labor in California. Thirty-nine county farm agents acting for the State Council of Defense made a careful investigation and when the matter was boiled down could not find evidence of a great shortage of labor except in the jobs of monotonous regularity that Americans hate to do like thinning onions, asparagus cutting, sugar beet work, picking fruit and gathering the hemp harvests. Orientals who are willing to do this work and who can also solve the household help problem are not allowed to come into the country.

Americans and Japanese can help each other a great deal in exchanging their knowledge of farming methods. The Americans can show us how to use farming machinery, tractors, harvesters and electrical milk equipment, as these are all out of our line of manufacture and we must buy these from you. We can learn, too, from America new methods of sanitation. Now in Japan and China foreigners are unable to eat our fresh vegetables and fruit. They must first be boiled as our cities are not yet equipped with fine sewer systems as yours are and our methods of fertilization are not modern. We have much to learn in the use of fertilizing chemicals.

Ou rJapanese farmers, too, are not as yet as clever marketers of goods as yours are. Two women in Oregon wrap their packages of asparagus in oiled papers and tie them with colored twine and an attractive label. You put up your boxes of raisins, apples and other produce in attractive boxes as well and add a few pennies to the selling price for this very reason. We Japanese have not yet learned to do these things or put by enough capital to carry out such plans. We do feel assured, however, that the Japanese people know more of the real value of ground and how to get the greatest amount of produce from it than the Americans do, so we can help you with all the farm knowledge which our people have been accumulating for centuries past.

The Everyday Life of a Deep Sea Sailor.

BY CARL CLAUSEN.

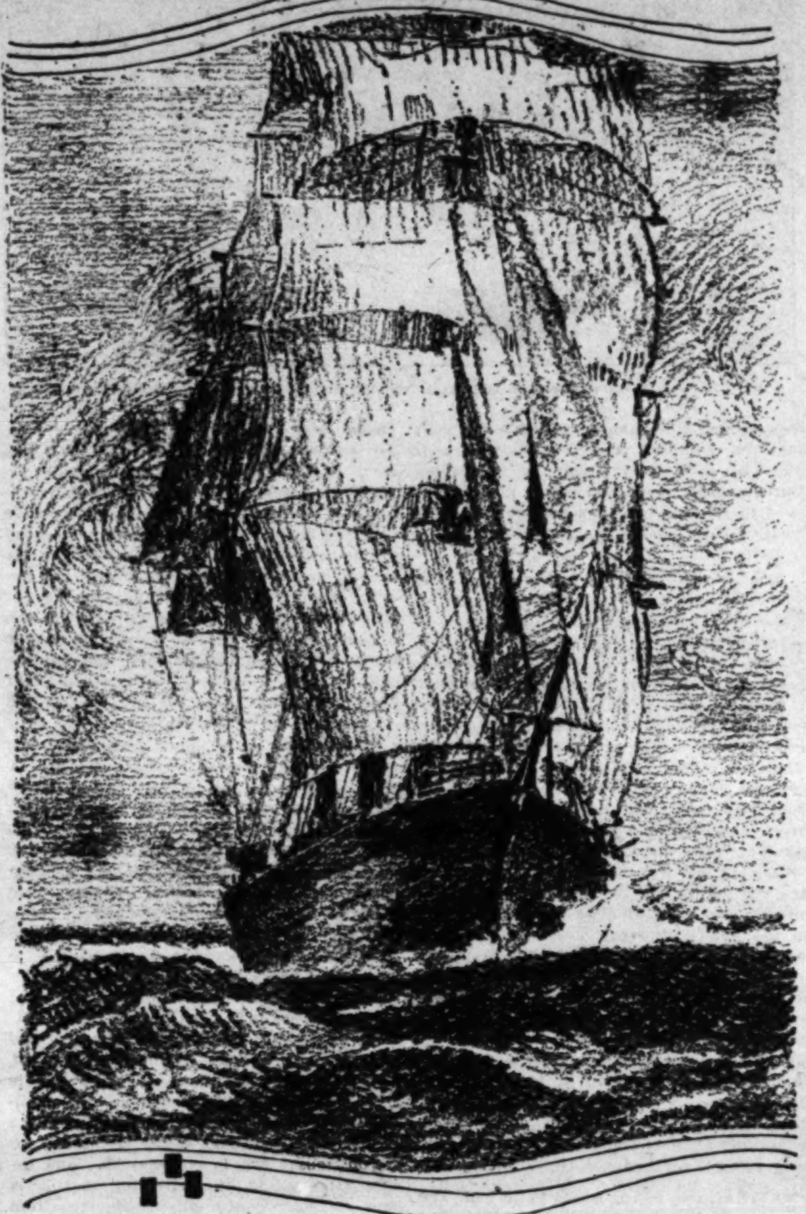
TO MOST people the life of a sailor is a vague, romantic sort of an existence; a combination of a Cook's tour and a Coster's holiday. When they think "sailor" they have in mind a rosy-cheeked youth in immaculate white duck sitting in the crow's-nest singing "A Life on the Ocean Wave, Ye Ho."

This erroneous notion has been fostered by the flaming placards and advertisements of the United States government in its bid for material to man its warship. But, the sailor's life I am going to tell you about is without benefit of Uncle Sam.

It is the life of the merchant sailor—the windjammer variety. There is as much difference between the man-of-war's man and the man who lies along the top'sl yard of a windjammer in a gale, as there is between a dogcatcher and a detective. One is a mere seaman, the other is a sailor.

The man-of-war's man, or the steamboat sailor, spends his time in drill, scrubbing paint and general farm chores. The man on the windjammer has no time to spend. He's too busy splicing ropes, mending sails and overhauling the running gear and rigging to bother much about the personal appearance of his ship. Half an hour each morning washing down the deck and his chores are done, and the real work of the day begins.

The man-of-war sailor does not even steer his ship. Quartermasters are provided for that purpose. The windjammer sailor takes his trick at the wheel from one to three hours in every twenty-four. Also he must take his turn as lookout on the foc'sle-head at night and on foggy days.



What a Sailor on a Windjammer Has to Do.

THE routine of a sailor on a windjammer bound from say San Francisco to Melbourne, Australia, is as follows.

The Golden Gate is cleared. The tug has slipped the hawser. For half an hour all hands are busy hauling the four-inch hemp cable aboard, and coiling it along the deck to dry before it is finally stowed away, not to be used again until Kangaroo Island, Australia, is sighted two months later.

One by one the sails are set. The men work swiftly. Clearing the land before dark is an important matter. Give a windjammer searoom, and gales hold no terrors for her. It is the lee shore that is dangerous.

After an hour's hard work all sails are set, royals, stay-sails and jibs. The last sails to be run up are the sky-sails and the flying jib if the wind is fairly moderate. Our ship is a full-rigger with sky-sails in all three tops. She's a sight to bring joy to the heart of a sailor, all sails set, bowling southward at an eight-knot gait with every stitch of canvas drawing.

All hands are on the foc'sle head taking in the anchors. A man goes down over the bow of the ship with a line which he runs through the ring of the anchor. It is no easy task. The anchor is swinging by its chain from the yawning hawse-pipe, its flues dipping in the water as the ship rolls. But, the man knows his business. He passes the line back to the mate. The mate runs the line through the cat-head, and takes three turns around the capstan with it.

"All right, boys," the mate yells, "haul 'er home."

The capstan clicks. It is music to the sailor's ears. Inch by inch the two-ton anchor is hauled tight under the cat-head. Another line is passed around the dripping flue, and hooked to a block and tackle swinging from the fore truck. In fifteen minutes the anchor is swung aboard and lashed securely to the ringbolts in the deck.

The mate looks aloft. The wind has veered a little.

"Port braces," he sings out.

All hands scramble down on deck. The mate eases out the starboard braces. The crew pulls in the slack on the port. Our ship is picking up speed. The log-line says nine knots. The land is a mere shadowy outline astern.

"All right, boys. Coil up."

Brandy is Given the Crew as a Bracer.

HALF hour later the ropes are coiled up and the deck in order. We are called aft for a drink of brandy. It has been a hard two hours' work. We are tired. A bracer of brandy feels good.

The first and second mates select their watches. The first mate has first choice. I edge close to the second mate, my favorite officer, hoping he'll choose me. He does, I'm elated. Fifteen minutes later the ceremony is completed. There are eight men on each watch. I'm a member of the port watch. Our watch takes its first turn on deck. The first mate tells the starboard watch to go below. Sea routine is established.

From now on until we sight Kangaroo Island, Australia, it is four hours on and four hours off, with an interchange of these hours on the "dogwatch." This interchange serves to alternate the hours of the night and day, so that neither watch is on deck the same hours in any consecutive twenty-four.

The Life of a Sailor Makes Perfect Health.

YOU ask how we sleep on such short notice. You think that this routine of short, interrupted sleep is ruinous to the nervous system. Let me reply that a sailor has no nervous system. If he has one, he'll have it working on ball bearings before he has been out of port a week. The healthy outdoor life, the sea air, the simple food do the trick. A trip to Australia and back in a windjammer has got Carlsbad, Murietta and Mr. Muldoon beat a mile for health restoring qualities. Tired business men please note.

It is odd how quickly time passes under this four-hour routine. You sleep at least ten hours out of the twenty-four if you are normal and healthy—if you're not, you will be before the end of the trip—and the hours on deck pass swiftly too. Your tasks are diversified. Never monotonous. There are sails to patch, spars to slush down, running gear to overhaul, your trick at the wheel, braces to pull and a hundred other things that must be attended to in the upkeep of a ship.

You never lack for something to do. But best of all you are never under any circumstances in a hurry. The first thing you must learn as a sailor is to do a thing well. The reason is obvious. The safety of the ship and crew depend upon the staunchness of her rigging. A chafed rope, an inferior piece of workmanship in a splice may spell disaster. Therefore take your time. Do it right. That is the motto of the sailor.

There is only one time when you're in a hurry. When a squall strikes. Then you cannot be quick enough in answering to the command:

"All hands on deck."

Sometimes you don't even have time to dress. In a gale in the North Sea in the depth of winter, I was called with my watch on deck in such a hurry that I had barely time to slip on my pants. A north-wester had struck us. When I crawled on deck the old ship was lying on her beamends with the lee yard—arms and bulwarks buried in water.

In a January Storm of Sleet and Snow.

WE WERE ordered aloft to take in the foresail. The huntlines and clewlines had carried away. The sail filled with wind stood in the air like a balloon. For four hours, nineteen men—both mates and the cook were aloft with us, the skipper had taken the wheel himself—lay along the foreyard trying to make the thrashing sail fast.

The month was January. Squall after squall of hailstorms and snow struck us. I was barefooted and bareheaded and soon barebacked, for my shirt blew out of my pants and wound itself around my neck. The snow lay in drifts under my armpits. The hail beat upon my bare back like a fusillade from a battery of gatlings. It was rather unpleasant, and not a little chilly.

For four hours we clawed at that frozen sail with bleeding fingernails. Numberless times we had the sail in our grasp only to lose it again in the next blast of wind. At the end of that time, the mate bawled out to cut the lashings. We did. The sail went out with the roar of a cannon shot and blew into a thousand pieces, some of them no larger than a dime.

We slid on deck—I say slid because we were too stiff to climb down—and found that the ship had righted itself somewhat. Our purpose had been accomplished.

A Foresail Costs Too Much to Sacrifice Needlessly.

OF COURSE you'll ask why we did not cut the sail adrift sooner? The reason was that the foresail of a full-rigger is next to the largest canvas on the ship. The cost of a new one is somewhere around $500. Only the most desperate situation could cause an officer to sacrifice his foresail. That our situation had been critical was soon made clear. The ship did not right itself, entirely. That was queer, because we were running before the wind now, under bare poles.

We soon found what the matter was. The cargo had shifted. We had a load of gas coal from Hull, England, to Delagoa Bay, South Africa. After we had thawed ourselves out in the cook's galley and drunk about a barrel of hot coffee, we were given a shovel apiece and ordered below. For six hours we shoveled coal in the bowels of that pitching ship with only one hatch open for ventilation, and the coal dust so thick that you could cut it with a knife.

"A life on the ocean wave, for me—"

Romantic, was it not? It was—not.

When I rolled into my bunk on my next watch below, I felt as if I was being roasted on a red hot block of ice. You know what I mean?

I might mention another little pleasant experience when the schooner Eliza Firth struck the Sixty Mile Beach in New Zealand. We had been poking through a thick fog all evening in a half gale, when all of a sudden we found ourselves in the breakers. The schooner was heavily loaded with totara wood railroad ties—sleepers they call 'em down there. We had about a thousand of them lashed on deck

Before we had time to think, the old Eliza struck the sand. Wave after wave broke over her from stern to bow.

We had struck the beach head on, but on account of the heavy load we had stuck on a sand bar two hundred yards from shore. Between us and land lay about a block and a half of very agitated water.

A Cargo of Sleepers that Were Very Much Awake.

IN ABOUT two minutes the deck cargo began to go. It went without much ceremony. They call them sleepers down there but I can vouch for it, that not a single one of those railroad ties lived up to its name. I never saw a less sleepy bunch of inanimate objects than those totara railroad ties. They swept the deck of the schooner from stem to stern, carrying everything with them.

Those who have been in at the breaking of a log jam in a river will have a pretty good idea of what happened to the Eliza Firth for the next fifteen minutes. The durned things even followed us aloft when we scrambled up the rigging to get out of their way.

When the last tie had gone over the side—and pretty near every thing else including bulwarks, lifeboats, compasses and deck-house—the hull began to break up. Just before dark the mainmast went overboard. At 9 o'clock the foremast followed suit. All seven of us—five sailors, the skipper and the cook—crawled out on the jibboom and tied ourselves to the stays to keep from being washed overboard.

When daylight broke, about forty feet of the Eliza still stuck in the sand. The rest of her was strewn along the beach two hundred yards distant. We were nearly frozen to death, but not quite, and we watched with much interest a gang of men

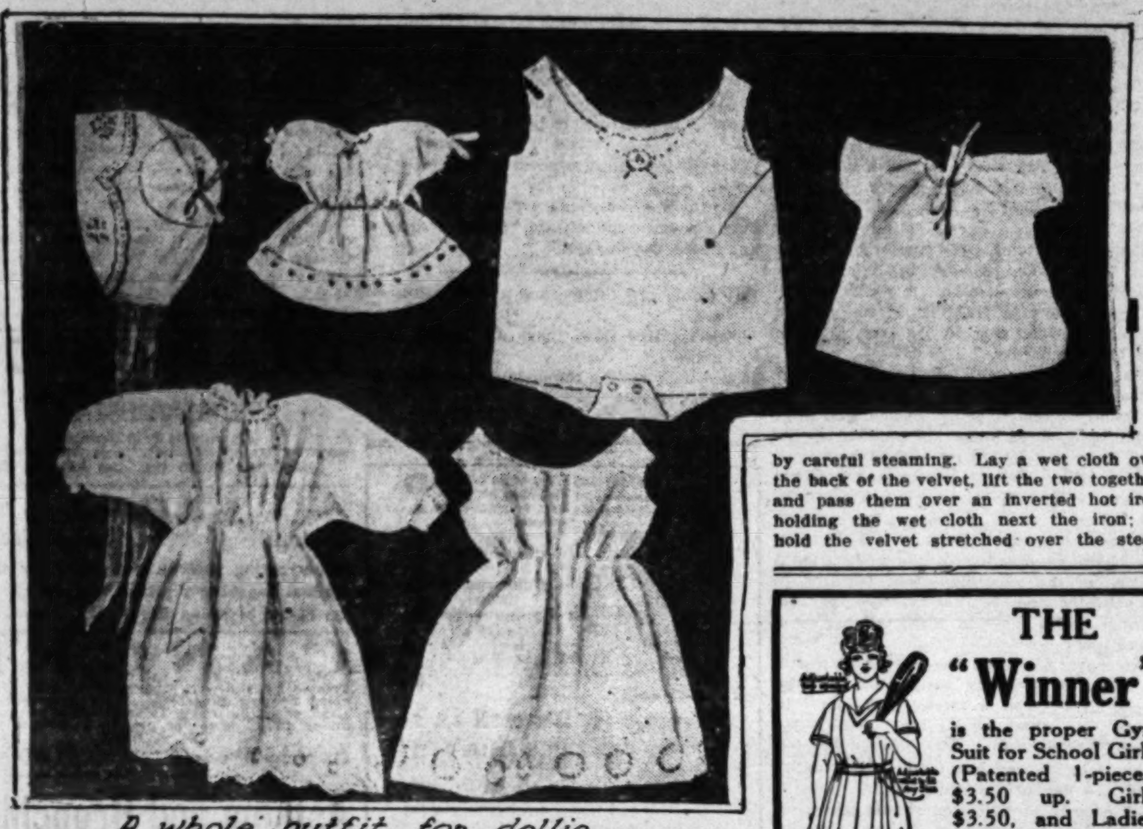
THINGS FOR EVERY HOUSEKEEPER.

BY RETTA BADGER.

[Any information regarding things illustrated or described on this page gladly given. Suggestions from readers are always welcome. Address all communications for this department to Retta Badger, The Times, Los Angeles.]

THE little folks should be busy right now getting ready for Christmas. There are such a lot of things for the children to make both for their little friends and for the grown-ups. In the stores I have seen some very clever stamped things that require very little work to make into a finished article. There are the bean bags with the fascinating cross stitch designs of funny bunnies and roosters and all sorts of animals. These are so easy to make and every child that receives one will be glad.



A whole outfit for dollie.

Is there a baby sister or brother in the house? Then make her or him the bibs for every day in the week, seven of them in the set with the name of a different day done in cross stitch on each one. They will make a lovely gift. And there's the marble bag for your brother or someone else's brother; there are hot dish holders for mother; necktie holders for dad.

In one store I saw a clever doll set. This consisted of a doll and all her clothes, stamped and all ready for some little girl to make up. The doll was to be sewed up and stuffed, and the little clothes are ready to cut out and sew up the seams. The hemstitching and picoting are done on them and they are stamped with simple designs for embroidery and featherstitching. Among other things in the set there is the cutest little envelope chemise.

Then there are all sorts of things with the gingham dog and the calico cat on them; bed sets, and bibs and aprons and other things with this well known friendly pair done in patchwork. A child's room done in the design of the gingham dog and the calico cat is a happy place.

AN IDEAL DINNER.

Cheese souffle, creamed or buttered potatoes garnished with bits of parsley, pimento salad or tomato salad and gelatin dessert. The yellow of the souffle, green and white of the potatoes and red of the salad make a charming color arrangement—which really means much to a successful dinner.

SOUFFLE FOR FOUR PEOPLE.—Three tablespoons butter, four level tablespoons flour, one cup milk, one-half cup cheese, cut in very thin pieces, three eggs, salt, dash of cayenne. Melt butter and take from stove; put in flour and work to smooth paste, add milk, salt, pepper and cheese. Then cook, stirring constantly, until the cheese melts. Take from stove and beat in the yolks. While the mixture is cooling, beat the whites stiff and fold in. Bake in a moderate oven, in a pan of hot water, until it is nicely browned—about twenty minutes.

DON'T BE LOCKED OUT.

Several times we have had the tragic experience of being locked out! Keys mislaid or left in the house. It just occurred to me that one of the three keys that come with every lock could be hidden outside. I found a beautifully safe place for ours and I do not now fear having to break out screens and pry open windows.

TO FRESHEN VELVET.

Velvets get defaced by having the pile or nap crushed. It can often be raised again by careful steaming. Lay a wet cloth over the back of the velvet, lift the two together, and pass them over an inverted hot iron, holding the wet cloth next the iron; or hold the velvet stretched over the steam from a vessel of hot water or a steam spreader on the spout of a teakettle, with the back of the velvet toward the steam

Dust may be removed from velvet by brushing, then sponging carefully and steaming.

The Magic Hospital

Did you know that Los Angeles has a magic hospital in charge of a real magician—one where lost limbs are regrown, old blotched skins renewed to satin beauty, where scanty hair is changed to Mary Pickford curls and broken crowns are made as good as new. The work is magic work, the surgeon in charge Mrs. E. C. Ince. (All the Inces are wizards.) There is no suffering and no big bills. This sounds like a fairy tale, but we'll vouch for its truth. This hospital is the only one of its kind in the country. Visitors are welcome. Go to 245 S. Hill St. and see for yourself. The sign reads THE DOLL HOSPITAL.

A JAP CRITICIZES OUR METHODS.

(As told to Helen Starr by a Japanese farmer.)

He has the infinite patience required for the successful growing of small plants.

I THINK the main reason why the Americans and Japanese differ in their success at farming is because we love farming and the majority of Americans dislike it. Until half a century ago, Japan was secluded from the rest of the world and we raised everything we ate on our own islands. Our Knights of the Sumurai were land barons and allotted the land to the peasants who paid rent for it in the products they raised. This system was only discarded sixty years ago so you see our fathers and the majority of our people were raised to be farmers. It is a high and noble calling in Japan while trade and trading is detested and considered by us very degrading.

Now in America your idea is to make money on the farm in big lots and get away from the country and into a city as soon as possible. You think farm life is very slow and tame and you Americans want to go to the movies and drink soda water and be near crowds of people every day. You like lives of excitement while we Japanese love quiet solitude.

A Japanese farmer only goes to the city once a year and then he travels for several weeks. Even here, our Japanese residents only go to the stores and the moving pictures on rare occasions.

Another reason why the American farmer becomes discontented is because the members of his family all pull in opposite directions. One daughter wants to go away and study music in a city, the boys may want to learn trades and the mother often complains of loneliness. In Japanese families every member is a partner in the business of farming. When the little ones are old enough they go out in the fields to weed or pick and they are quite content to stay near their parents and work with them until they marry and have farms of their own.

The Jap is a wonderful berry grower.

Americans do Not Really Want to Do Truck Farming.

NOW many Americans, especially in California, raise a great cry because they say the Japanese have taken over all the truck farming, the raising of small ground vegetables and fruits. The truth of the matter is the Americans do not want to do truck farming and would avoid it even if the Japanese did not do it. Vegetable growing is too small and confining a business to suit ambitious Americans of large vision. It takes infinite care, which you do not like, and a tall Vermonter is much more physically adapted to picking apples from a high tree than he would be in bending and stooping which is necessary to pick and thin small fruits and vegetables. Our Japanese people, small of stature and used to bending over close ground, work in small spaces, easily adapt themselves to truck farming.

Americans all want to do big things. The modern American farmer wants 500 or 1000 acres in hay, wheat, cotton or alfalfa. A severe winter may kill his wheat. If he takes a loss it is a big one. If he makes a profit he is only satisfied with large numbers. Your American cotton planter too takes big chances each year of overproduction. There is no exact way of estimating what all others will plant and the world demand cannot be learned in advance. A man who keeps big herds of cattle must erect expensive silos so that his animals can have fresh green food the year around.

Considering that you American farmers are not organized like your producers of oil and steel and lumber, the latter being in the hands of a few large companies, I think your individual farmers take the riskiest sort of chances. We Japanese are so conservative that we would be afraid to attempt large scale production involving such a gamble for loss, but we would also be unable to get leases on such large tracts of land, either in Japan or in the United States.

Impossible to Start Big Projects on a Three Year Lease.

CAPITAL too, for us is not to be had. The Americans can get financial help. The Bank of Italy helps the Italian farmers and they are allowed to own land in the United States. In the Philippines the natives can get credit at their local banks, operated by United States bankers. Our Yokohama Specie Bank with branches in many American cities is purely a commercial bank. They naturally think that backing a Japanese farmer in the United States is a bad investment, for the Japanese, being unable by law to own land here, has no more security to offer than a lease which is only good for three years. Raising tree fruits by the Japanese, is, for the same reason, out of the question as an orchard of prunes, apricots or oranges does not mature and bear fruit for about eight years.

In the Sacramento Valley a very few landowners have leased land to the Japanese for several periods of three years in succession but there is no absolute assurance of its renewal when a lease is up, so the majority of my people do not dare start an orchard on such a basis. How foolish of the Americans to raise even a small protest against the truck farming we do?

We orientals are much more careful and economical farmers than you Americans. The Chinese know that the garden food required to produce one pound of beef will make more mutton and twice as much pork. Crop rotation originated in China years ago and they have taught my Japanese people to cultivate the soil with so much care and skill that we get three or four crops a year. We do not know the phrase "Worn out soil." When our first crops are well along the second are sown or planted in the intervals between the ridges and it is very common to see the two crops in the field at the same time.

We take advantage of every inch of space too, for our valleys, and plains are cultivated, irrigated and fertilized and even our hills and mountains are all terraced in gardens. Many Americans refuse to practice crop rotation because they have so much land and because they are too lazy to put in the necessary work. We orientals have a positive passion for cultivating the soil. Even our barbers save shavings of hair to enrich our soil and Chinese coolies, because they are patient enough to remove every particle of broken shell and sift the soil by hand, were sent to France to clear away the debris of battle and replant the gardens of the peasants there.

The success of a small fruit ranch depends entirely on the care given it. A horse and plow can lighten the labor of turning over the ground in orchards but with small plants near together, hand hoeing is necessary. Americans hate such work and also the irksome task of keeping down the weeds. Planting, pruning and trellising require more hand work. I think tree fruit growing is more suited to the American disposition for the trees can be allowed to grow rather haphazardly and an utter lack of pruning and spraying may not show bad results for several years.

Berries, which are largely a product of Japanese labor on the Pacific Coast, cannot be neglected a single year. The soil is very carefully prepared before first planting, first by a deep plowing so that the weeds will decompose before the plants go in. Then the soil is made as fine and friable as possible by harrowing and it is kept mellow continually and free from lumps. Manure too is carefully applied and after the planting the berry farmer must watch continually for disease and insects which he combats with sprays.

Irrigating Strawberries Very Touchy Work.

STRAWBERRIES are shallow rooted and available water must be found so that they can never wilt. The Japanese have made a special study of irrigating strawberries. They usually make a ditch between the rows. It is important to apply the water at certain times of the day and for certain lengths of time. The Americans have a tendency to let their ditch water flow carelessly, giving the plants more than they need and creating watery fruit. Water has to be stored and given at just the right time and the Japanese cultivates all the while the water is turned on so as to get the full value of the water as it is used. This careful cultivation has everything to do with our getting splendid strawberries. In February when the American farmer is taking a winter trip to San Francisco or New York you may see the Japanese putting out strawberry plants. He has learned that more plants survive in the long run than if he left his planting until April.

"See the Japanese working in the fields at this hour," I've often heard automobile parties cry out as they whisk by my farm in the moonlight. And later, up in the market places I've heard people complain, "You Japanese work both night and day. How can an American farmer who isn't used to it possibly keep up with you?"

Attention in the Night Will Save Young Plants.

NOW, our Japanese farmers do not make a practice of working at night. When you are out enjoying yourselves and happen to see a group of my people in their gardens it is just another proof of our constant attention to the hourly needs of the green things. There are a certain few days for instance in the growth of young tomato plants when night irrigation puts them on their feet as it were. In the Imperial Valley it is usually so hot that the people say they have to feed ice to the chickens to keep them from hatching hard boiled eggs, yet there is a late frost down there in the spring that plays havoc if we do not watch for it.

When our Japanese farmers suspect it is about time for the sneaking frost to do its damage, they go out every night, sometimes for days in succession, and cover the growing cantaloupe plants with large V-shaped pieces of paper. This added care on our part makes it possible for you to order cantaloupes at your hotel a few months sooner than you used to be able to do. And it is an added wonder to your eastern tourist friends, a sort of trick proof that your climate is always summer.

Japanese Not Piling up Riches in America.

I WANT to disillusion you right now as to the riches that Japanese farmers are said to be piling up in America. In the first place there are no riches in garden truck and, as I have pointed out before, it is impossible for many Japanese to raise fruit or other products on anything like a large scale. The profiteers in America who are causing the high prices of the necessities of life are the men who deal in kinds of food that can be hidden and kept until prices soar, and the same men who can afford to build big cold storage plants where meats, eggs, and certain fruits can be kept for some length of time. The Japanese is handicapped because he is dealing entirely in perishable foods that must be disposed of quickly and at any price the daily market affords.

In Seattle and in a few other cities, the Japanese farmer can drive into town at dawn at a public market, sell his produce direct to the consumer. In the majority of cases though our people must consign the produce to a broker and ship the goods on the railroad in his name. The farmer has to take the low price the broker offers and he cannot get any information from the railroad as to where it is going or control the final high price that the broker gets for the stuff in the cities. Naturally, too, the broker being an American takes advantage of our yellow foreign folk, many of whom cannot speak enough English to drive a better bargain.

The Broker, Not the Farmer, Responsible for Prices.

DO NOT blame the Japanese farmer in America for the high price of vegetables for it is not justified by the facts. The Japanese farmer would much prefer to sell direct to the housekeepers if some system better than the present brokerage plan could be devised. It would give the Japanese farmer a higher price and the housekeeper a lower one than she is now paying.

I think one of the greatest evidences of our lack of wealth and capital is shown in the sort of garden truck our farmers set out. Vegetable seeds are cheap and we get our small fruit and berry plants from the older plantations as they sell at low prices. Our people cannot afford to set out any plants which call for a large initial outlay of money. We even have to sell our beautiful flowers at a low price for we cannot demand the high class social patronage of your downtown American florists.

Does the American know the possibilities of farming in his own country? I do not think so. He is too typically careless and extravagant. It is a popular notion that the white races are the smartest, most advanced people in the world but in many lines, including farming, the centuries old oriental people can teach them much. A Japanese working for the United States Department of Agriculture first experimented and showed you that rice could be grown profitably in the Sacramento River Valley on land that formerly served as a scanty pasture and was considered too poor for grain.

plate was placed before him. "You serve this every day?"

"No, sir, only on Tuesdays. Wednesday we have pigeon pie, Thursday toad in hole, Friday stewed eels, Saturday tripe and onions, and Monday lark pudding. Just a moment, sir. I'll get you some sauce. Walnut sauce goes very nice with that."

"What huge portions!" dismayed Helen. "Dear, you can't eat all that—it'll make you sick."

"I'll take a chance on that. Shove over the salt."

It was a delicious old-time English dinner. Everything was freshly cooked and piping hot. For dessert they had black currant tart, Cheddar cheese and watercress.

"Well, guess that's enough nourishment till morning," was Warren's satisfied comment, as he leaned back against the wooden stall. Then taking out a cigar, "That's a corking good waiter—he deserves two bob."

"Yes, he really took an interest. Most of the English waiters do. It makes you wild to think of the impudent waiters we have in New York."

"Hello, what's all this?" Feeling in his pocket for matches, he had dragged out the samples from the tailor.

Helen drew back. The charm of the old tavern had dispelled her grievance and her assumed reserve; but now the samples too poignantly recalled Warren's humiliating rudeness, and the tailor's glance of surprise and commiseration.

"Might as well decide this thing now. Take a look at those," tossing them toward her as he struck a match under the wooden bench.

"There's no need for me to look at them," coldly. "You know what you want."

"That's a good piece of cloth—the second one," between contented puffs.

The second piece was gray! A rough, mixed gray that she always liked. She fingered it without looking up.

"Think that'd be proof against talcum—and the feline moulting season? All right, just stick a pin in that, will you?"

And as Helen marked the gray sample with a pin, she realized that it was another exhibition of the masculine temperament—before and after feeding.

Eats a Thousand Bugs.

A cliff swallow will eat a thousand flies, mosquitoes, wheat-midgets or beetles that injure fruit trees in a day and therefore is to be encouraged. This bird is also known as the cave swallow because it plasters its nest on the outside of a barn or other building up under the eaves. Colonies of several thousand will build their nests together on the side of a cliff. These nests shaped like a flattened gourd or water-bottle are made of bits of clay rolled into pellets and lined with straw or feathers. This bird winters in the tropics.

The Call of the Infinite.

Awake! Awake! Oh man, and know thy power,
Thou art one with Me and hour by hour
My Spirit calls thee by the still small voice—
All strength of heart, or soul, or brain, or brawn,
Is thine if thou but make of Me thy choice.
Thou art My like and from Creation's dawn
Hath been My choicest flower.

Why dost thou sleep, oh man? Awake! Awake!
Unleash thy Soul that it may rise and slake
Its thirst at fountains of Eternal strength.
If thou but set it free with Me to plan—
Whate'er ye will or hope of breadth or length
Is thine. There are no seas thou could not span,
Nor heights thou could not take.

Awake! Oh man, no halt or limit thine,
Except as thou ignore this strength of Mine,
And Mine is thine, for thou of Me a part.
Of Spirit and of Truth wast thou conceived—
Thou art My thought, thy birth was from My heart.
My all is thine when once thou hath believed
And in My Spirit shine.

Awake! Oh man, nor longer let the Night
Of ignorance obscure the Living Light;
Nor fence thyself around with man-made creeds.
My law for thee from dim traditions past
Is naught but love and faith and noble deeds.
Draw nigh to Me and ever hold it fast—
Within thee is My might.

Then hear My call, oh man. Awake! Awake!
The Earth may be consumed and Heaven shake;
But My law is to the end of Time.
What hath been said is said! nor fire, nor sword
Can change one precept or wipe out a line.
That "Ye are Gods" is written in My Word—
The power is thine to take.

Care of the Body.

trees, or you my place it over a door, and pull yourself up occasionally. This all helps to keep the spine limber, which is the main thing in exercise.

Put your soul into the exercise, or it will not do you much good. Mrs. Eddy declares that exercise does not increase the size of the blacksmith's arms, because if it did, it would increase the size of the hammer he wields. That is going to an extreme, but there is some basis of truth in the argument.

Aim at health rather than great strength. Those big bunches of muscles you see in physical culture publications are neither handsome nor wholesome. Compare these monstrosities with the graceful Greek athletes, their satin skin not showing a trace of the muscles that lurk beneath. It is notorious that over-muscled men are short lived. After once accumulating these big bunches of muscles, they cannot be thrown off. A man has to keep up exercise, or suffer from heart disease. A recent examination of boys in training, in an eastern academy showed that 60 per cent. of them had heart murmurs.

There are two ages when it is most important to exercise—in youth—when the muscular system is being formed, and after middle age, when many are inclined to become lazy, and to put on excessive weight. It is a crime against youth that physical training should be so much neglected in our schools, where so many unnecessary branches of mental learning are taught. The thorough training of the body should be one of the most important features of the school course, so that children may acquire a sound body in which to harbor a sound mind.

The physical training of youths in Northern Europe is chiefly responsible for the sturdy men those countries turn out. In Sweden so thorough is the system of physical training that even the condemned prisoner in his cell has to do his "stunts" up to the day of his execution.

Our boards of education should see to it that a thorough system of physical training is introduced into the schools before more money is expended on less necessary things. It need not be military training.

Doctors and Diet.

WHEN a physician of the regular school leaves the safe ground of "Eat what you please" or "Eat what seems to agree with you," the results are often surprising and alarming. Some of the letters I get from consultants and correspondents, telling of the dietetic advice given them by physicians, are almost unbelievable.

As I have heretofore asked, can it be a matter of surprise that recovery is slow, and that relapse is frequent, and the death rate high, under such abominable diet? For healing is through the blood, and how can the blood heal while it is constantly poisoned by a surplus of acid and mucus forming food?

Physicians who really seek to heal, and not merely to make money, should learn the simple facts about the building of the body by food. This cannot be learned in laboratories. The human stomach is not a test tube.

Menstruation.

MUCH flow of blood at the monthly period, when the ovum is expelled, is abnormal, unnecessary and avoidable. It is an ailment of civilization—of over-feeding and under-exercising. Nature takes this painful method of expelling superfluous waste, that should not be there. Observe the animals.

Some years ago, in Physical Culture, a woman told how she became normal in this respect. She had been in the habit of suffering severely every month, for seven or eight days. By rational diet and exercise she diminished the period to three days. She took short fasts, alternating with the one-meal-a-day plan, eating only cereals, fruits and raw vegetables. Finally, to hasten the process, she ate raw foods only. In two years the menstrual flow ceased entirely. Once she went back to an ordinary non-flesh diet for a day, and next month the flow reappeared.

Twenty-four eminent physicians doubted her statements. Of course. When Tanner fasted forty days, eminent physicians declared he was a fake, and that no man could live more than five days and live. "Medical authorities" had not mentioned such things. Therefore, they could not be.

What this woman did others may do if they have the will power. They need not adopt quite so radical a dietary, but the nearer they get to it the less they will notice any monthly disurbance.

It is as unnecessary for women to suffer in menstruation as it is for them to suffer severely in childbirth.

Disease.

A NEWSPAPER item informs us that the human body is subject to 2400 diseases. The drugging fraternity is good at naming diseases; but slow in curing them.

All disease is one, due to breaking the laws of nature, resulting in the accumulation of waste matter in the blood, and auto-intoxication from foulness of the colon.

As there is only one disease, so there is only one cure, namely, to "cease to do evil and learn to do well."

But words are things, and a small drop of ink,
Falling, like dew, upon a thought, produces
That which makes thousands, perhaps millions think.

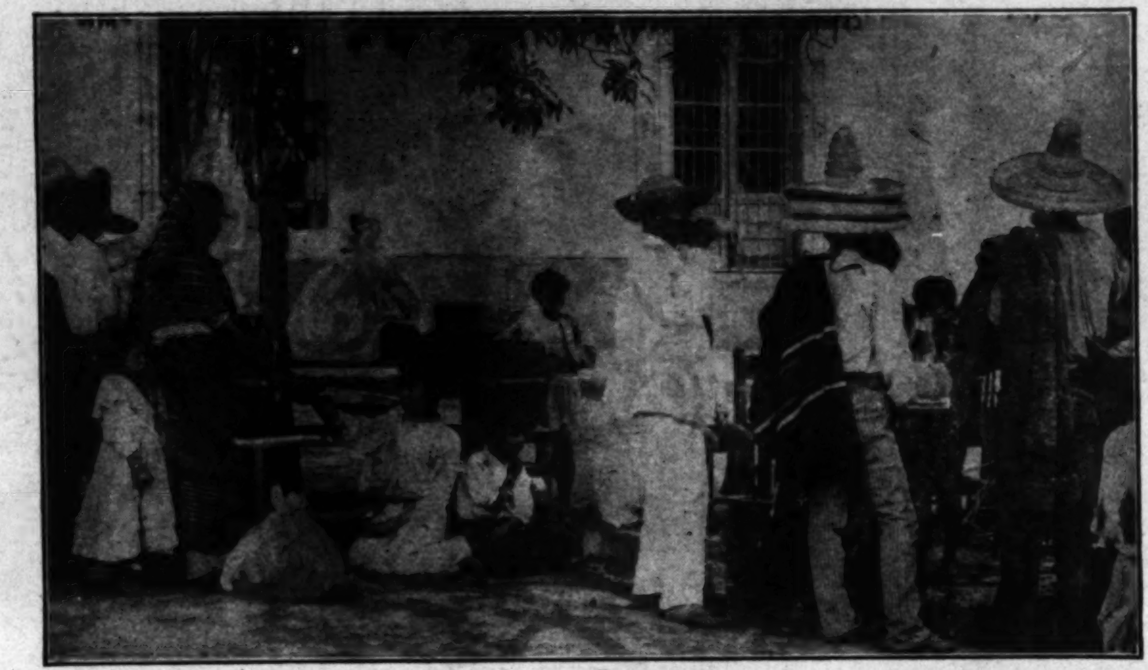
THE SUPERSTITIOUS MEXICAN PEON.

BY W. D. HORNADAY.

IN FORMER times superstition practically controlled the daily lives of the masses of the people of Mexico. To a large extent this is still true. Many interesting things are brought to light by a study of the beliefs and practices of the ancient Mexicans.

If a person came across grains of corn which had fallen to the ground, he was obliged to pick them up, for he who did not do so offended the corn, and it complained about him to God, saying, "Lord, punish this person who saw me lying upon the ground and did not pick me up; let him feel the pangs of hunger, so that he will learn not to despise me."

It was necessary to breathe strongly upon corn which was about to be put into the pot to be boiled, the idea being that this gave it courage, and removed its dread of being cooked.



An eating place in the Plaza.

In a house in which a birth had recently taken place, corn cobs were not thrown into the fire to be burned as usual. It was said that if this was done the face of the new born babe would become pitted and pocked, like the corn cob, unless the precaution was taken to pass the cobs, before burning them, over the face of the child without touching it.

A current belief was that if persons ate green corn at night they would suffer from toothache. In order to prevent this evil it was customary to warm the ears of corn before eating them after dark.

If a corn cake or tortilla doubled over when thrown upon the comal or clay pan to bake, it was considered a sure sign that some one was coming towards the house. If her husband happened to be out, the woman to whom this happened while cooking believed it to be a sign that he was on his way home, and said, "It was he who had kicked the tortilla and made it double up."

When sparks flew out of the fire, the persons close to it said in fear: "Aquin Yeuitz?" which means, "Who is it that is coming?" for a shower of sparks announced a disturber, or unwelcome visitor.

When a person sneezed in ancient Mexico, it was considered a sign that some one was speaking evil about him, or that one or more persons were talking about him.

A Subtle Bit of Wisdom Tucked in a Tamale.

WHEN tamales stuck fast to the pot in which they were being boiled, they exerted an unlucky influence on those who ate them. A man would not be able to shoot his arrows well in warfare; a woman would never have children, or would bear them with great difficulty. It is interesting to note that a properly constituted tamale should be so closely tied in its wrapper made of corn husks, that none of it should be able to ooze out and cause the little bundle to adhere to the pot; therefore it is probable that the above was a saying which was most frequently employed as an awful warning to the careless cook.

When an Aztec mother told her boy that if he served himself with his hands from the olla or earthern pot containing food for the whole family, or if he dipped sops of bread into it, he would be unlucky in warfare when he grew up and would probably fall into the hands of his enemies, it is probable that the remoteness of the retribution somewhat counteracted the effect of the threat, which seems to have been a habitual one, since it was also uttered when children stepped over the hearth, and thus exposed themselves to the danger of falling and hurting themselves on the hearthstones. Its employment certainly reveals at what an early age the desire for success in warfare was awakened and developed in the minds of Mexican youths.

Mothers forbade their daughters to eat while standing, because a young girl who did so would not marry in her native village, but would settle in a neighboring locality.

Superstition Taught Politeness in the Family.

THE existence of a peculiar etiquette observed in the family is shown by the superstition, that if brothers and sisters were drinking together and the youngest drank first, the oldest exclaimed: "Do not drink before me, for if you do so you will stop growing."

It was also the custom when persons ate or drank in the presence of an infant in its cradle, to place a particle of their food or drink in its mouth, saying that this would prevent its having the hiccough.

Some Sense to This Rule for Children.

A RECOGNITION of the dangers of idleness underlies the curious statement, that parents forbade their children to lean against posts, because persons who did so habitually became liars, "for the posts themselves were untruthful."

It was said that naughty children who licked the grinding stone on which their mothers prepared the corn for food would quickly lose their front and back teeth.

The breaking of this metlatl or grinding stone corresponded to the breaking of a looking glass in present times, and was an omen of the death of its owner or of some member of the household, just as the displacement or breaking of one of the beams of a house also betokened illness or death.

The metlatl, indeed, played a prominent role in household superstitions. When a man was about to take part in the national game of ball, he took care to place on the floor, up side down, the metlatl and the comal or earthen pan on which the tortillas were baked. He also took the metlapil or pestle and hung it in a corner of the room. Having done this, he felt convinced that he would win instead of being beaten.

Women Were Willing to Have Their Cooking Postponed.

AS THIS precautionary measure meant the suspension of the confining and arduous labor of making the native bread, the tortilla, it may be surmised that this superstition was warmly encouraged by the women of the household, who were thus left free to enjoy a look at the game, which was played in large courts specially built for this form of pastime and was the favorite national sport.

A strange relationship was believed to exist between the metlapil, or stone pestle, and rats. Whenever a house was infested by the rodents, and attempts were being made to exterminate them, it was customary to place the pestle outside of the dwelling, for if kept within it had a way of warning rats to fall or trip, and thus run the risk of being caught and killed.

The presence of rats was viewed with much awe and dread, for it was believed that they possessed the faculty of knowing whenever a member of the household had been guilty of immorality, in which case they immediately put in an appearance and gnawed at the mats, baskets, etc. They denounced marital infidelity by gnawing holes in the petticoat of the wife, or in the cloak of the guilty husband.

It was believed that if a person ate a piece of any food which had been gnawed at or been left over by rats, he would be falsely accused of theft or of some other crime, a serious misfortune, considering that theft was punished by death.

When a child lost a milk tooth, its parents took care to throw the tooth into a rat hole, for if this was not attended to, the child would not grow any second teeth, and remain toothless.

It was likewise customary to carefully cast the parings of one's nails into the water as an offering to the Ahuizotl, the fabulous aquatic monster which plays such an important role in Mexican folklore. As a reward for this acceptable offering, which formed one of its favorite articles of food, the Ahuizotl caused the donor's nails to grow satisfactorily.

The Ceremony of Teizcalanaliztli Was Important.

AT THE beginning of the native year a festival was held, in which certain ceremonies were performed for the purpose of furthering the growth of food plants, and also of children. The people went out into the fields at daybreak, and lightly pulled at some of the young shoots in their plantations, or plucked them with their roots, and offered them, in bunches, in certain temples.

At the conclusion of this ceremony, and before the children had partaken of any food, "their parents pulled at, or stretched their body separately, and also lifted it several times from the ground, holding them by the sides of their heads above their ears." It was believed that this ceremony, which was named "Teizcalanaliztli," was indispensable, as it alone endowed the children with the power to grow during the new year.

It was also performed after or during an earthquake, so as to prevent the sudden stoppage of a child's growth, or its "being carried away or killed by the earthquake." Another ancient superstition taught that any person who stepped over a child which was lying on the ground deprived it at once of its power to grow, and condemned it to remain small always. Fortunately there was a possibility of counteracting this disaster by stepping over the child a second time, in the reverse direction.

The superstitious observance called Neeipiliztli, which means "the care about a child," was resorted to when a child was ill or delicate. The parents consulted an astrologer, as he is termed in the text, who, choosing a day of a special sign, tied certain cords, made of loose cotton thread, around the child's neck, wrists and ankles. A small ball of copal gum was also attached to the cord worn about the neck. When the cords had been worn for the number of days, determined in advance by the astrologer, he removed and burned them in the capulco, a small temple where only such minor ceremonies were performed.

One of the Twins Had to be Killed.

WHEN twins were born, which happened frequently in Mexico, it was considered a sign of the approaching death of one of the parents. In order to avert this one of the twins was immediately put to death. The name for twins was cocoau, which is also the name of serpents. According to an ancient tradition the first woman who bore twins was named Coatl or Serpent, and therefore twins were also named serpents. When both were allowed to live, one of them surely killed or devoured one of its parents.

The surviving twin was supposed to exert a series of strange and powerful influences by its mere presence. For instance, if it apprached the temazcalli or sweat house while it was being heated, its temperature grew cold, even if it had been quite hot previously. This was especially the case when a twin happened to be among the bathers. To remedy this it was imperative that the twin should dip its hands into water and sprinkle the interior of the sweat house four times, after which it ceased to grow cold and became even hotter than before.

If a twin entered a house when tochimitl or rabbit's wool was being dyed, the dye became spoiled at once and the stuff covered with spots, especially if the dye was red in color.

It was also said that when a twin entered a dwelling where tamales or corn cakes were being cooked, it cast an evil spell upon them and on the olla or pot. This prevented their cooking, even if they remained over the fire all day long, and they became brass colored or half cooked and half burned.

Fortunately, in each case the twin was equal to the emergency, and promptly remedied the evils caused by its presence. In this case it suffered that the twin should kindle a fresh fire under the pot. If it happened, however, that tamales were put into the pot in its presence, it was obliged to throw one of them in also, or else none of them could be made to cook.

MARRIED LIFE OF HELEN AND WARREN

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER.

A Dinner at "Ye Old Cock" Tavern Leaves Warren in a Pliant Mood.

HELEN reached the sidewalk, her heart in her throat. An irate driver who had pulled up his horse glared back at her. She could never remember that in London all traffic goes to the left instead of the right as at home.

Her wrist watch indisposed after several tub baths, she scanned the shop windows for a clock as she hurried down the Strand. She was to meet Warren at the tailor's at 5:30, and a blocked crossing had delayed her.

As the London shopkeeper crowds most of his stock into his window, there is no room for a friendly clock, and it was not until she reached a jeweler's that Helen found she had still ten minutes.

Past the Cecil and the Savoy, familiar landmarks, on to a hanging sign,

HARDING & GOFF,
Est. 1806. First Floor.
—bespoke tailors.

Up steep dusky stairs and she entered a long narrow room, overlooking an old church graveyard in the rear. Shelves with bolts of cloth lined the walls and a center table was strewn with samples.

In a mirrored alcove, Warren was submitting to the ordeal of being fitted. It was a gray sack suit, called in America a "business" suit, and in England a "lounge" suit —expressive of the relative industry.

"Hello, Kitten," Warren's brief greeting was addressed to the mirror.

"Is this Mrs. Curtis? Won't you be seated?" the solicitous tailor swept some samples from a chair.

"Seems pretty tight across the chest," Warren's attention not diverted from the coat.

"We can ease that a bit, sir. But they're wearing them snug."

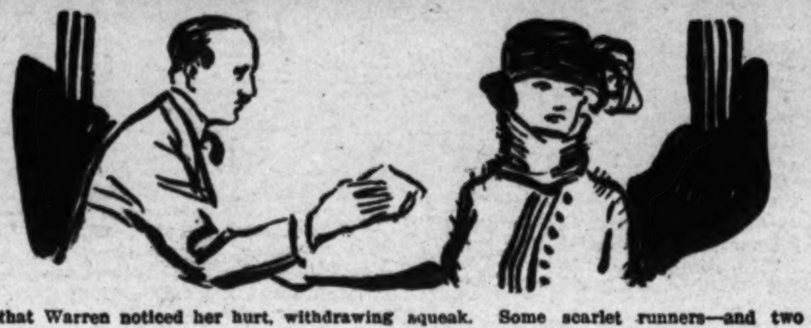
"Don't give a darn how they're wearing 'em. I want my clothes big enough. How about these sleeves?" bending his arms. "Too short. Better lengthen them an inch. Now let's have the overcoat."

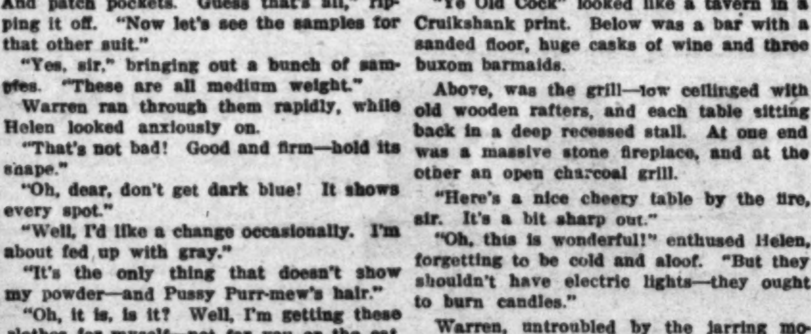
With his usual dispatch, he shrugged on a rough ulster, and gave brisk, concise directions as to a few alterations.

"Dear, you want it to set close around the neck—that's so important," ventured Helen.

"Eh? Does this stand out?" sharply, viewing the back of the collar.

"That's just basted, sir," chalking around the neck. "And pressing will draw that in. Now did you say four or five buttons, sir?"





"Four, and I want them to come through. And patch pockets. Guess that's all," ripping it off. "Now let's see the samples for that other suit."

"Yes, sir," bringing out a bunch of samples. "These are all medium weight."

Warren ran through them rapidly, while Helen looked anxiously on.

"That's not bad! Good and firm—hold its shape."

"Oh, dear, don't get dark blue! It shows every spot."

"Well, I'd like a change occasionally. I'm about fed up with gray."

"It's the only thing that doesn't show my powder—and Pussy Purr-mew's hair."

"Oh, it is, is it? Well, I'm getting these clothes for myself—not for you or the cat. And I'm not asking your opinion."

It was so needlessly rude. Helen felt her face grow hot at the tailor's surprised glance.

"You needn't decide now, sir," hastily. "You can take those patterns with you and look them over."

"All right, but I'm pretty sure that blue's what I want."

It was not until they were on the street that Warren noticed her hurt, withdrawing silence.

"Eh? What's the matter now? Sulking because I won't get another gray suit? Guess I've got some say about my own clothes."

"You needn't have been so rude before that man. If you'd seen how he looked! Englishmen are so courteous—he'd never speak to his wife like that.

"Maybe she isn't fool enough to expect him to get his clothes to match her powder and the cat's hairs."

Helen's flush deepened. What had possessed her to say that? She might have known he would take it up.

"Where're we going to feed?" abruptly, as he paused at a crossing. "The Criterion? Princes?"

"Wherever you wish," coldly.

"There's a place right down here on Fleet street—'The Old Cock.' Want to try that?"

She did want to try it. Both the Criterion and Princes' were big modern restaurants —the type one finds the world over. But The Old Cock sounded quaint and distinctively old English. However she was still too hurt to express any preference, so she only murmured a reserved,

"It makes no difference to me."

"Well, since we're down here, we might as well look it over." Intent on the prospect of food, Warren was impervious to her aloofness.

Ten minutes walk brought them to Temple Bar at the head of Fleet street, where once had stood the gate of the old City of London.

Fleet street had always a charm for Helen. It is London's great "Newspaper Row." Every paper of the British Empire has offices here, yet without modernizing the quaint old-world buildings.

"Ye Old Cock" looked like a tavern in a Cruikshank print. Below was a bar with a sanded floor, huge casks of wine and three buxom barmaids.

Above, was the grill—low ceilinged with old wooden rafters, and each table sitting back in a deep recessed stall. At one end was a massive stone fireplace, and at the other an open charcoal grill.

"Here's a nice cheery table by the fire, sir. It's a bit sharp out."

"Oh, this is wonderful!" enthused Helen, forgetting to be cold and aloof. "But they shouldn't have electric lights—they ought to burn candles."

Warren, untroubled by the jarring modernity of the lighting, was scrutinizing a huge meat pie, being served in the next stall.

"What's that they're having there?" when the waiter approached.

"Steak and kidney pie, sir. It's very nice tonight."

"Fine, we'll have a try at that. Some of that cabbage and potatoes cooked together —what'd you call it? Oh, yes, bubble and squeak. Some scarlet runners—and two bitters."

"Dear, read that over the fireplace," pointing to a brass plate with the inscription,

"Ye Old Cock Tavern built in 1632. Restored 1864. Favorite haunt of Dr. Johnson, Goldsmith and Charles Dickens. Mentioned in Pepys' Dairy."

"Huh, that's bunk for the tourists. Hope they serve good food—that's a darn sight more important."

"And look at the ceiling—how those oak rafters sag. That shows how old it is. Dear, this is just as interesting as the Cheshire Cheese!"

"Two bitters, sir," the waiter placed before them two foaming pints.

Helen was still admiring the old glass-bottomed pewter mug, when Warren put down his, half emptied, with an approving, "Mighty good ale!"

"Oh, you're lovely!" Helen turned to pet a sleek gray cat that had jumped up on the long bench beside her.

"Yes, miss, that's a good faithful cat," beamed the passing waiter.

"Just what constitutes faithfulness in a cat?" grunted Warren.

"Did you notice how pleased he was when I petted her? The English are so good to their animals—I love them for that! Yesterday I saw a cat meat man. He carried a sign and a big basket—the meat in bits of paper. Imagine any one making a living in New York selling cat meat!"

But apparently the subject of cat meat was not one in which Warren felt a lively interest. His attention was centered strictly on a fresh, steaming steak and kidney pie which their waiter was now carving at a side table.

"Jove, that looks great!" when a heaping same distressing symptoms for the relief of which they consented to submit themselves to a mutilating surgical procedure."

A large part of the book is devoted to the milk diet, fruit diet and fasting. Dr. Kellogg shows, as I have often said, that milk is deficient in iron, and must be supplemented by fruit and vegetable juice. The author says that in fasting the body consumes itself. Yes, but it first consumes all the waste matter that you want to get rid of. He also says that during a fast one is constipated. That is also true, but at the beginning of a fast the bowels should always be thoroughly cleansed by means of copious enemas.

An interesting and valuable book, from which I shall publish extracts.

Now, the Teeth.

AN ACQUAINTANCE had fairly good eyesight. An M.D. looked him over, and, strange to say, could find nothing the matter with his body. Then another did the same, with the same result. However, this doctor suggested that perhaps he had better have his teeth taken out. He had them taken out. He was no better. Then he went to another physician, who began injecting something into his arm. He asked him what that was for. The physician said he was taking a blood test. "Nothing doing," said the man, who was a reader of the Care of the Body.

The latest fad of the "regulars"—who seem to have a mania for destruction—is the removal of the teeth. They are apparently standing in with the dentists, who have hitherto confined themselves to constructive operations. Lots of foolish people are losing perfectly good teeth.

The doctors even say that defective teeth cause rheumatism. What rot! The same causes that produces defective teeth produce rheumatism. That is all.

I received a circular from a "tooth specialist." Here is an extract:

"The public naturally inquires: 'Why do we have such bad teeth today when our parents and grandparents did not have these conditions, or, at least, did not have these fatal diseases?' There are several reasons for this. In the first place, our forefathers did not bother with dentists except to have an offending tooth extracted. In the second place, modern dentistry had not developed to the point of expensive repair and preservation of the teeth as we know it today. It has been estimated that 80 per cent. of the people who have had repair work done, even in the most expensive and latest manner, have infected teeth which may become a menace to their health at any time."

As usual, they tell us nothing of the cause. The cause is blood full of waste matter, a foul colon and an inflamed lining of the stomach. The same cause produces neuralgia, earache, tumors and other ailments. How can extirpation of these symptoms possibly cure, while the cause remains?

How can you expect to cure these ailments by cutting or pulling out the effects, while leaving the cause?

If your teeth are sound, hold on to them. If they are rotten have them taken out. If they are ulcerated, purify your blood by ceasing to fill it with waste matter and the ulcers will disappear. Otherwise they will surely break out again in some other and probably more dangerous form.

Lime.

FOLLOWING is from "Autointoxication" by J. H. Kellogg, M.D.:

"The rapid decay of the teeth, frequently observed in tuberculosis of the lungs, is an evidence of a deficiency of lime, a condition that, in fact, is almost universal in this country, on account of the general restriction of the dietary to foods which contain only minute quantities of lime salts. For example, fine flour bread, potatoes, bacon, beefsteak, tea and coffee, sugar, molasses and breakfast cakes contain practically no lime, yet these articles constitute the substantial part of the breakfast meal in most families. The amount of lime supplied by the dinner and supper menus is not much greater. The average intake of lime is only about one-third the amount actually required by the body. Hence, it is safe to assume that every consumptive is in need of an increased intake of assimilable lime. Lime in mineral form, such as chalk, gypsum, mineral phosphates, etc., can be utilized by the body only in very minutes quantities. Lime taken into the body in these forms in [illegible] eral substance."

To this I add that on the other hand, milk contains a surplus of lime, it being needed for the bones of the growing infant. You can get all the lime you need in whole grain and raw green stuff.

Prosecuted for Advertising.

E. B. HUBLEY, chiropractor, of Los Angeles, who was recently acquitted by a jury, has again been arrested, ostensibly for practicing without a license, but really for daring to advertise, thus threatening to take away business from the "regulars."

Dr. Hubley writes that the "detekative" of the State Board of Health who served the warrant on him said: "Dr. Hubley, it isn't a question of a license, and had you not advertised, you would never have been arrested."

The "regulars" are determined to endeavor to maintain the closed shop in medicine, not for the benefit of the public but for their own profit.

Dr. Hubley is a fighter. He promises to make things interesting for the political doctors, and before they get through with him they may discover that they have caught a Tartar.

Exercise.

SEVERAL months ago I wrote a short article on exercise. Correspondents have asked for more on the subject.

The best time for exercise is in the morning. At night a man is usually tired, and exercise at that time will often prevent sleep. Also, everybody can occasionally find opportunity for a few minutes exercise during the day. The main thing is to keep the spine in a correct position during the day—to keep the back of the neck against the collar. This will be hard at first, but it will gradually become a habit. Practice doing your daily tasks in correct positions. Develop a backbone.

There are simple "exercisers" that you may affix to a wall, and if you have a garden, you may fix a parallel bar between two

OVERTON'S CHIROPRACTORS.

Some Good Short Stories from Everywhere.

Compiled for The Times Illustrated Magazine.

Wings for Mrs. Vanderbilt.

MRS. W. K. VANDERBILT tells this story on herself:

She was doing canteen work in France during the recent misunderstanding in that vicinity, and devoted considerable time to entertaining American soldiers in one of the hostess houses. Being an excellent dancer and attractive, she was in much demand among the boys. One evening, she danced several times with a tall tow-haired doughboy who showed symptoms of great loneliness and talked volubly about things in Michigan.

When the evening was ended, the tow-haired one came over to Mrs. Vanderbilt.

"I've had a bully time," he said, "and I want to keep track of you. We're moving out of here tomorrow, for the front. But if we get back, I'd like to look you up over in the States. My name is Albert Bridgeman, from Grand Rapids. What's yours?"

"I'm Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt," she replied.

The doughboy scanned her from head to foot.

"That's right, chicken," he said, "fly high!"

Bigger Than the Jersey Variety.

"I WAS brought up in the South," said George McDaniel, at the Fox Studios, the other day, "and I know that the nigger is highly imaginative. His inventive faculties are greater than Jonah's. Nothing is impossible for him.

"When we were on location in 'The Heritage of Eden,' we brought thirty darkies with us to Little Tejunga Canyon, which you are begged to suppose is a desert waste in Africa. There were some stagnant pools in the river wash. The natives of the place—mosquitos and gnats—were most unpleasantly active, and the next to naked darkies were kept mighty busy fighting them off.

"One of them exclaimed, rolling his eyes: 'Dey 'minds me ob de days when I worked on a fahm in Gawgia. Laws, dem gnats down dere was lahge—yes, sah, dey suttinly was lahge. Dey was so big dat when dey got satisfied wid feedin' dey useter sit on de fence an' pick de bones outer deir teeth wid one ob de rails. Yes, sah, dey suah did!'"

Not Cheese, But a Doughboy.

A RETURNED soldier tells these:

The doctors were holding a consultation beside his bed prior to having an operation.

"I believe," said one of the surgeons softly, "that we should wait and let him get a little stronger before cutting into him."

Before the other surgeon could reply, the patient, who had overheard, turned to the nurse with a grin and remarked, "What do they take me for—a cheese?"

Another time he observed two small boys looking intently at his spiral leggings: "Say, Jimmie," said one, "let's ask him how he screws his legs into those twisted pants."

New Language.

A RETURNED officer who was the butt of much fun at the Alexandria for saying "lift" instead of "elevator," declares that English and American are two different languages, adding:

"You cannot miss the overhanging sign of the tobacco shop at 14 New Oxford street, reading:

'American Spoken Here.'

"What? It was too much of a challenge to pass by. A rather old man with the ring of cockneydom's bow bells in his voice asks,

"'What can I do for you, sir?'

"'Where's the guy that slings the American lingo?'

"'I regret sir,' he seems to pale, 'that the gentleman who has been in some of the United States is at present away.

"'Well, what's the large idea of the sign?'

"'Oh, don't be offended, sir. That was put up for trade, not only to catch the eye of Americans, but to interest our own people as well. We make a specialty of American cigars, cigarettes and—'

"'Slip 'em to me quick, kid. Oh, boy! Co-o-me to me, baby. Maybe I'm not glad I busted in. And say, old hoss, you haven't been losing your way any following my palaver. I'll bet you're the American translator here yourself.'

"'No, really, sir.'

"'Aw, feed that stuff to Heinie. Now mark me and mark me well. I can talk English, too, and with a zestful fluency that would knock your eye out if you'd give me half a chance, but confess, old bean, if yuo get what I mean, that there's no other clerk—clark I should say—in this establishment who bites off the merry talk but your own little self.'

"'Well since you put it so engagingly I will own up. You are really the first American who has asked for the translator. That frightened me at first. I wondered if the native speech had more devious forms than I found in George Ade and O. Henry. I was afraid for a minute I might get in deep water. But I followed you quite readily.'"

Glad to go Back?

A LARGE draft of negroes came into one of the replacement camps in this country. The exasperated personnel staff was having its troubles, and one of the men whose duty it was to find out the men's home addresses, asked:

"Where did you come from?"

"Oh," was the reply, "Ah just got off'n the train out hyer."

"Dam it all, I know you just came in, but where from?"

"Does y'all mean where is Ah was before Ah come hyer?"

"Yes, that's what I mean."

"Oh, Ah was in jail, in Pine Bluff, doing time."

Chew Your Drinks.

WHAT is a beverage anyway, and what is the meaning of the term "Beverage purposes" as used in the law now before Congress providing for prohibition? Representative Denison of Illinois asked that question in the course of the prohibition debate in the House one day. He was serious about it, but nobody appeared to be in the mood to give him a serious answer. The particular point that bothered him was whether cider was a beverage in the meaning of the law.

Representative Walsh of Massachusetts was of opinion that if the cider contained more than one-half of 1 per cent. alcohol it was exiled.

Mr. Denison: If he (a farmer) makes it for his own table use, is that made for use as a "beverage" or not?

Mr. Walsh: They do not wash in it; they drink it.

Mr. Denison: Then is water a "beverage?"

Mr. Walsh: Yes.

Mr. Denison: Is milk a "beverage?"

Mr. Walsh: Yes.

Mr. Denison: Then we understand that anything we swallow as a liquid and do not have to chew is a "beverage?" Do I not understand my friend from Massachusetts correctly?

Mr. Walsh: Under the provisions of this bill that might include soup.

Mr. Denison: I was going to ask the gentleman from Massachusetts whether soup is a "beverage."

Mr. Fitzgerald (Mass.:) Some people eat soup.

Representative Gard of Ohio interrupted to ask the "gentleman from the Cape Cod district," Mr. Walsh, whether clam chowder was a beverage.

"Well that depends upon whether it is made in Ohio or Massachusetts," replied Mr. Walsh.

Finally Representative Longworth of Ohio entered the debate with the suggestion that "anything you can eat with a sponge" was a beverage, which is the best information Mr. Denison could get.

The Shavetail and the Boss.

ONE big, square shouldered, bronzed young doughboy was watching some of the officers embarking at Brest. He was eyeing very sharply and cynically a jaunty little second lieutenant who was crossing the gang plank.

"Do you see that little snipe of an officer?"

"Well, let me tell you about him. He is a go-day hick. He was a grocer's clerk; and I was the grocer. Now look at him. Wouldn't speak to the President. They say the Germans don't know they're licked. Maybe that is true; but you can rest assured that when I get that boy back in California and get out of this uniform he'll know he's licked all right."

Then a Post Mortem.

IN ONE of the southern training camps, a profane and perspiring infantry sergeant was doing his best to pound into the heads of a squad exceedingly raw "rookies" the rudiments of military science.

When the sergeant gave an order, each willing recruit of the squad made a commendable effort to execute it, but every little rookie had a moveemnt all his own, with highly unsatisfactory results.

"As you were!" bawled the sergeant.

At this point, the proceedings were interrupted by a recruit from Boston, who before enlisting had been a Harvard student.

"Beg pawdon, sergeant," said he, "but wouldn't it be moah propah to say, "You will restah the status quo ante?"

Every Little Movement.

THE artistic temperament will manifest itself, no matter what sordid kind of work the owner of the artistic temperament may be engaged in.

A Los Angeles business man was having his shooes shined, and the young negro wielding the brush and polishing rag was putting a high degree of jazz into his labor. Especially with the shining rag was he able to fetch forth an alluring combination of sounds. But the material-minded business man noted that the jazzy manipulations of the rag resulted in a lowered efficiency in the matter of the shine.

About two-thirds of the negro's operation went into the production of jazz, leaving only a rather unsatisfactory one-third for the production of a glossy shine.

"A little less jazz and little more shine would be better, boy," advised the business man.

"Ah can't change mah movements, mistah," was the reply, "'cause Ah've got a melodious soul."

EVERETT and Evelyn were twins. On their fifth birthday their father brought them home a small dog, telling them they could own it together. On being petted the dog growled, but finally wagged its tail. Noting this, Evelyn exclaimed: "Everett can have the head and I'll take the tail—it's the most friendly end."

Why Ludy Lost.

"LUDENDORFF," said Representative Shouse, "is telling the world the reason why he lost the war. Ludendorff's excuse reminds me of the Irishman.

"An Irishman and a Yankee rowed a race one day. The Yankee was so easily the Irishman's superior that every little while he'd stop rowing and wait for Mike to catch up.

"Well, Mike was beaten. Of course, but he said afterwards:

"'Faith, Oi'd have bested the bhoy aisy if Oi'd shtopped an took the long rests he did.'"

Everyday Life of a Sailor.

launching a lifeboat on a spit of sand a quarter of a mile below us.

Pulled Through the Water to Safety.

THE boat pulled through the breakers and stood off the wreck a hundred feet. A line was thrown us. One by one we tied the end of the line around our waists, dropped off the jibboom into the water and were hauled into the boat.

They took us ashore and into a barn where a roaring fire had been lit on the earthen floor, rolled us into blankets beside the fire and poured hot water and whisky into us. I think I slept for forty-eight hours straight. When I woke up, I ate one whole loaf of bread and quite a distance into another; also half a leg of cold mutton. Then I had another glass of hot whisky and turned over on the other side and told 'em to call me in time for breakfast.

These instances are just to show that a life on the ocean wave has its thorns. But it has the roses as well. These are the long languorous nights in the tropics with the sea as placid as a mirror, all agleam with phosphorescent life. The moonlit nights when you sit and swap stories on the main hatch with the soft trade winds singing through the rigging. The fierce exhilaration of watching your ship, from the lookout post, plough its way down the seas in a shower of warm, glistening spray.

Going After the Dolphin and the Shark.

THEN there are days when you sit watching on the jibboom, harpoon in hand for the gold-and-blue dolphin. There's good sport, too, fishing for the man-eater shark with a two-pound steel hook and a five-pound hunk of salt pork. You land the shark, haul him over the bulwarks with the stern davit tackle and cut him open on deck. You sometimes find an interesting collection of knick-knacks in his interior; anything from a ten penny nail to a buckled kerosene can. He's not particular about his diet.

When you're fishing south of the equator, another sport is added to break the monotony of the thousand miles of sea before and behind. Catching albatross. It's some sport. In a piece of brass plate you cut a triangle. You bait the point of the triangle with salt pork, tie the triangle to a logline and drag it in the wake of the ship.

Now, the beak of the albatross is long, and curved at the point like an eagle's talon. The birds flock around the baited triangle snapping at it. One of them gets his curved beak caught in the point of the triangle. Then, the fun begins. Mr. Albatross sits back on his hindquarters and backs water with his webbed feet. It takes two or three men to pull him in, for he is the king of birds. I measured one of them myself. He was over thirteen feet from wingtip to wingtip.

Once on deck the albatross is perfectly helpless and as docile as a lamb. He squats down on deck and sits looking at you hurt and reproachful like. You can pick him up and handle him without much danger, as long as you keep clear of his wings. With those six foot wings of his he can hand you a wallop that would make Jim Corbett quit in disgust and peddle peanuts.

The Treasures of the Deep Lie Open to Your Gaze.

SOMETIMES you lie for weeks in the doldrums. Not a breath of air stirs. You look over the side. Far, down—as far as your eye can see, the ocean is alive with myriads of tiny lives. Bright sparkling little fellows from pinhead size to the circumference of your hand. Beautiful transparent jellyfish, lace-gowned and filmy, tiny darting things and long sinuous, garlandlike creatures. The water is very blue, deep blue. It is like a casket lined with purple where you may put forth your hand and snatch treasures at will.

This is one of the deepest places in the ocean. You're some thousand miles off shore on all sides. And yet the nearest land is only five miles away—straight down.

Then, one day a breeze comes up. You're off again. The doldrums are left behind. At night you see the Southern Cross in the sky. You are nearing your destination. You begin to plan how you're going to spend your two-months' pay day. You grow indignant when somebody suggests cynically that it will join all other pay days before it. You're vehement in your virtuous protestations. This pay day is not going to be spent. You're getting old—22 last birthday—time you saved something.

Then, one day, the lookout hollers land. You climb the rigging. The land is low, bathed in sunlight. It is golden, promising, that strange land. There's joy, girls, music, green trees there. You guess you'll have another fling before you put the lid on.

CARE OF THE BODY

CONDUCTED BY HARRY ELLINGTON BROOK, N. D.

A Blue Outlook.

"HARK from the tombs, a doleful sound."

Evidently, the word has been passed around among the political doctors to prepare the people for another influenza epidemic.

Can it be that the wish is father to the suggestion? At any rate, it might help their effort to get $5,000,000 of the people's hard earned money, for "experiments" in influenza control. Senator France of Maryland who introduced this bill, appropriating $5,000,000, is a physician and a member of the A.M.A. He is quoted as saying:

"What the nation needs is a national department of health, with branches in every city and State in the Union, with almost unlimited funds at its disposal to combat contagious diseases."

Yes, and bankrupt the nation, physically and financially, while furnishing fat jobs for political doctors.

"Health officials" are telling us now that the coming attack will be "milder." May we perhaps hope that medical assaults on our pocketbooks will also display less savage ferocity?

The hope is dispelled when we read that the Red Cross, on advice from the A.M.A. —by which it is practically controlled—has purchased large stocks of vaccines and other materials.

Last week I referred to a prediction by the Health Commissioner of New York. Now it is Rupert Blue, M.D., Surgeon-General in the United States Public Health Service. Dr. Blue is also an ex-president of the American Medical Association. That accounts, in part, for the close affiliation between the Medical Trust and the United States government and explains why, during the war, no physician who desired to serve his country had a "look in," unless he was an M.D., and belonged to the A.M.A.

When Henry Gage was Governor of California, Blue was in charge of pernicious "Public Health" activities in San Francisco. He tried to start a bubonic plague scare, with quarantine, and all the trimmings. Gage told him to quit the foolishness. He quit.

Blue says there are "indications" of a mild epidemic this winter. How does he know? What indications? More spots on the sun? Or more bedbugs in Washington lodging houses? Or an itching in the palms of the doctors?

The New York health officer told us the influenza would attack persons of other ages than those attacked before. Dr. Blue says those previously attacked are immune. He does not say why. So eminent a medical official surely should know. And if he knows, it is his duty to tell the people.

As I said last week, it is because the waste matter in the blood of these people is burned up by the housecleaning process, so far as medical malpractice has permitted nature to do her beneficient work. When the cleansing process has been thoroughly suppressed by drugs, or food, or serums, there is quite likely to be another attack of this, or some other effort of nature to cast forth impurities, which efforts we call disease.

Why wait for an epidemic to become immune? That is like the Chinese, who burned their pig styes for 2000 years, to get roast pork. Why not purify your blood, and become immune to this and all other diseases, by ceasing to store up waste matter, through overeating of mucous-forming foods?

Dr. Blue tells us "it is not yet certain whether the germ of influenza has been isolated or discovered."

Why, then, all these expensive germicides, we were advised to accept?

Dr. Blue tells us that the only thing to do is to "enforce rigid rules of sanitation, and to avoid personal contact."

Yes, but what rules of sanitation? Cleansing the colon by enemas, and eating in moderation of wholesome food, or smothering the face in filthy masks, and poisoning the blood with serums?

As for "avoiding personal contact" that is rot. He might as well tell us to get off the earth. Influenza is no more contagious than toothache.

Remember, that in the epidemic of last winter the mortality, under regular treatment, ran from 10 to 40 per cent., with slow recoveries and pneumonia and other "complications" and after-effects, while the mortality under drugless treatment, or when the patients took no treatment, but simply went to bed and stopped eating, did not average over one per cent.

We shall, of course, have cases of grip and "colds" this winter, as we do every winter, and the political doctors will try to magnify them into an epidemic of influenza, as they try to magnify a few cases of chicken pox into an epidemic of smallpox. Acting under instructions from headquarters, health officers in charge are already reporting cases of influenza. They are rushing the season.

If you are wise, and avoid doctors and hospitals, and trained nurses and cleanse yourself inside and out, and eat abstemiously, and don't try to suppress the waste that comes out of you, you need have no fear of a "cold," common or uncommon, epidemic or otherwise.

A correspondent of The Times recently suggested that the newspapers should refuse to publish these alarmist reports sent out by the American Medical Association and its satellites. It is a good suggestion.

Beer and Hypocrisy.

A KENTUCKY court has decided that "near-beer" may not be shipped under that name, but that if it is called "cereal beverage" shipments are permitted.

This confirms what I recently said, that extreme prohibition laws are making of the American people a nation of hypocrites.

Compulsory Inspection Illegal.

REPLYING to a complaint from the Public School Protective League, that the school authorities at Coronado had given tentative permission to the Red Cross to carry on health inspection among pupils and give treatments, Will C. Wood, superintendent of public instruction, said that such inspection can be done only by people who are certificated according to law, and that the law does not give the school board power to force parents to have pupils treated.

"No regulations should be adopted," he said in his letter, "except in strictly school matters, as will cause parents to be reluctant to send their children to the public schools. If uncertificated persons operating under one private organization can treat pupils of the public schools, any organization can claim the same right. Within a short time we would have chiropodists, drugless healers, faith healers and many other professions and organizations using the public schools in this manner."

The Red Cross is practically controlled by the American Medical Association.

It would not be a calamity if rational methods of aiding nature to restore health were permitted. However, all the public asks is that political medical organizations keep their hands off the bodies of our children, and give them a chance to grow up healthy.

Auto-intoxication.

INTELLIGENT physicians, who are not obsessed by the germ superstition, now recognize auto-intoxication, from foulness of the colon, as a leading cause of disease. An unclean colon is always accompanied by waste matter in the blood—"pathogen."

"Auto-intoxication or Intestinal Toxemia" is the title of a book of 340 pages, by J. H. Kellogg, M.D., medical director of the Battle Creek Sanatorium.

Regarding Metchnikoff's absurd suggestion about cutting out the colon—which is about equivalent to cutting off the nose when it has a pimple on it—the author says:

"Very few surgeons are as yet convinced that the elimination of the colon from human beings would be an improvement on the Creator's handiwork; and it is a notorious fact that most of those who have submitted themselves to short-circuiting, and even more radical surgical operations, for relief of intestinal stasis, sooner or later, usually within a year after the operation, find themselves suffering from the

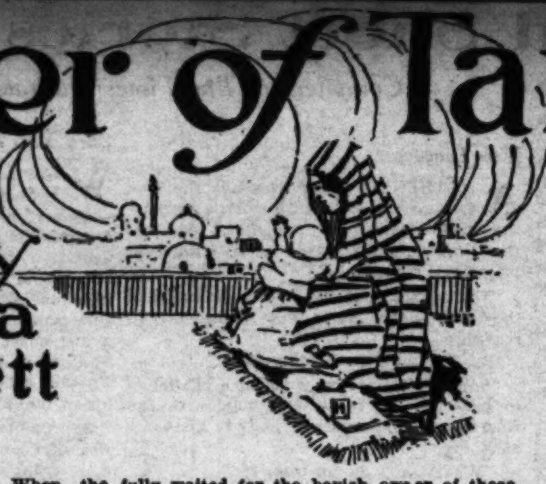
The Mother of Tangier

by Pansy Edna Bartlett



MY SISTER Eugenia looked pathetically tired that night, her delicate oval face framed in the deepest of mourning, but in spite of her husband's gentle entreaties, that she remain in the hotel and rest, she insisted on accompanying us on our expedition to the coffee house.

As we made our way, led by Mustapha, our guide, in and out of filthy dark alleys, we heard no sounds but the mumbled petitions of an occasional blind beggar crouching in a corner. Our only light, a large medieval lantern, was held by our brown-skinned Moorish guide and its rays falling across his dark-blue burnouse showed that its hood shadowed all of his face except his heavy protruding lips.

When we reached the entrance of the coffee house and ascended a pair of rickety stairs, a heavy curtain barred our way. I whispered to Bob, my sister Eugenia's husband, that I was for making a quick retreat, but Mustapha had lifted the curtain and sitting on the floor we saw a circle of natives playing on instruments whose tones were like human sighs and moans.

After we were ushered in our guide motioned us to be seated on small tabourets which were arranged behind the musicians. For an hour we sipped the thick, nauseating Turkish coffee and listened to the monotonous chanting of the "Musicians Maures." The incense-laden air became stifling at last and Eugenia signaled Mustapha that we wanted to leave. As Bob was dropping a coin into the dirty hands of the chief musician, we heard a plaintive cry, the cry of a neglected child. Eugenia put a restraining hand on Mustapha and we looked toward the partition of heavy carved wood from behind which the sounds had come. In answer to Eugenia's anxious inquiry Mustapha said in broken English, "That is rich coffee house man's child, the mother was favorite wife until he buy younger, prettier lady." And we knew that back of that carved wooden barrier dwelt a world-old tragedy.

Retracing our steps to our rooms, which were in an old hostelry in the heart of this ancient city, we were ushered in by a one-eyed Zouave guard, through a low wooden entrance, into a dismal looking blue and white tiled hall lighted only by several little oil lamps stuck in sockets on the wall. After we had made our way up the stone stairs, on which the sacred dust of ages lay undisturbed, I bade goodnight to Bob and Eugenia and swung wide open the long French windows in my room to let in the blue oriental moonlight. As I stood looking out into an Arabian Nights picture I heard Eugenia's gentle rap on my door. If I have one love, it is my adored sister—to me she is like a perfectly carved cameo—the polished stone of her lovely character brings out in high relief her almost faultless self. With a cry she threw herself into my arms and I knew she was hearing again the sobs of that neglected child. I knew she was remembering the cries she had hushed in the past; remembering the great house in America—full of all that wealth can buy—that house forever empty and silent; I knew she was hearing again the little voice that was still. Drying her tears she lifted a locket from her breast and kissed the picture of her beautiful baby girl.

The next morning we looked out on a story-book world. Reaching way to the horizon, huddled together like toy doll houses, were housetops glistening in the sunshine. In these houses lived the Moorish householders with their wives, each house telling of its owner's station and wealth. The graceful spires of the minarets stood out against the sky, marking the mosques, the temples of the Faithful. On some housetops, the lord and master sat among his women, lazily inhaling an aromatically scented nargile. On other square roofs, women with bare necks and arms were hanging out clothes to dry. On one flat roof, from the center of which rose a blue dome, sat a woman hugging a little child in her arms. The mother's face was bared, for her veil was thrown back, and we noticed it was a wistfully beautiful one. Between the pauses in a low lullaby she was singing we heard her cough frequently, and after every fit of coughing she seemed to gather her child closer to her breast. When the woman saw she was being gazed at by foreigners she instantly lowered her veil. As she turned away Eugenia said she believed it was somewhere in the vicinity of the woman's house that we had visited the the night before—the coffee house.

Several mornings later Bob suggested we spend an hour in visiting the bazaars. My sister's dignified husband positively refused to mount one of the stupid little donkeys, but Eugenia and I, preferring them to the slimy streets, selected two whose unresponsive attitude toward the numerous kicks they received from our little Arab drivers proved them to be not easily stampeded. In and out narrow, smelly, slimy cobble-stone alleys we went, passing shops where freshly killed pigs hung. From every shop was wafted the odor of fish.

We stopped at one particularly attractive bazaar from which we finally emerged with a spangled scarf. In the purchase of that scarf we had spent enough time in haggling and barter to have bought a house and lot at home. Mustapha was about to direct us to the hotel when we heard a noise of tom-toms and saw a crowd of natives pressing down the narrow thoroughfare. They were following a heavily veiled woman, who rode a donkey, while walking by her side were black Nubian women servants. Mustapha, who was a veritable walking encyclopedia of Arabian gossip, smiled and shrugged his shoulders, saying, "That is new, 16-year-old girl bride going to her husband's home." Joining the eager throng, we were pushed and jostled along until we came to the entrance of the coffee house we had visited the night before. Adjoining the entrance of the rickety stairs to the right was a great heavy door, studded with black-headed nails and adorned with three immense brass knockers. This door swung open and the new bride and retinue were ushered in. As we were about to return to the hotel, we heard a cough and looking up over the door we saw a small latticed window, behind which stood an unveiled woman with a child in her arms. Eugenia and I looked at each other in quick understanding of this glimpse of tragedy.

Opposite the window of our little English hotel, in a street not quite six feet wide, was a two-storied, narrow plastered building, the dirty faded front telling of the ages it had stood there. It leaned against an equally begrimed arch through which men in heavy hooded burnouses passed, stopping to speak in whispers to their friends, and through which silent, veiled women passed, shrinking against the finger-marked wall as though they dared not claim their right to live. A low chanting was heard from the hole in the low building which served as a door and window, for within the Koran was being taught to Arab boys—girls, possessing no souls and no claim to a future life, do not need the Koran!

Each day in front of the little door stood a row of heelless, pointed slippers, taken off by their owners before entering. Among them showed conspicuously a pair of red leather ones heavily embroidered in gold, looking oddly imposing there among their dirty, yellow companions. A Moor in the dress of a slave came each day and respectfully waited for the boyish owner of these gorgeous slippers, and a splendid looking boy he was with his clean shaven head and his picturesque costume of baggy trousers and loose blouse. After the boy had put the red slippers on his feet he always nodded to the servant and they disappeared through the archway next door. Eugenia's curiosity was aroused after watching this performance for several days and she inquired from Mustapha about the boy. His answer was, "That rich coffee house man's son. The one that now get a new mamma!" So this handsome boy was the son of the deserted wife!

The weeks passed quickly and the day approached when the French steamer was to carry us to Spain. Eugenia had become so interested in that housetop and that woman who coughed and sang to her baby that she was saddened at the thought of leaving her. The woman never veiled her face now, but looked at Eugenia as though she understood! No word had ever passed between the woman of the East and the woman of the West, but there was a bond between them that they could neither of them have explained. Always at nightfall, before the big stars came out, the woman appeared on her housetop and she always lifted up her baby for Eugenia to see.

On that final evening Eugenia came to my room and gazed out for the last time over the housetops. The air was intoxicating, the sky was moonless, but the stars shone with a radiance bewildering to those accustomed to the dim star shine of another land. The city lay shrouded in a silence broken only by the occasional baying of one of the many Kabyle dogs and the plaintive note of love-lute. Suddenly a figure appeared on the roof of the coffee house, wildly waving its arms and hands, and my sister recognized the familiar figure of the woman. She took her candle and holding it at the window, signalled. Again, the woman beckoned and pointed downward as though entreating her to come to the entrance of the coffee house.

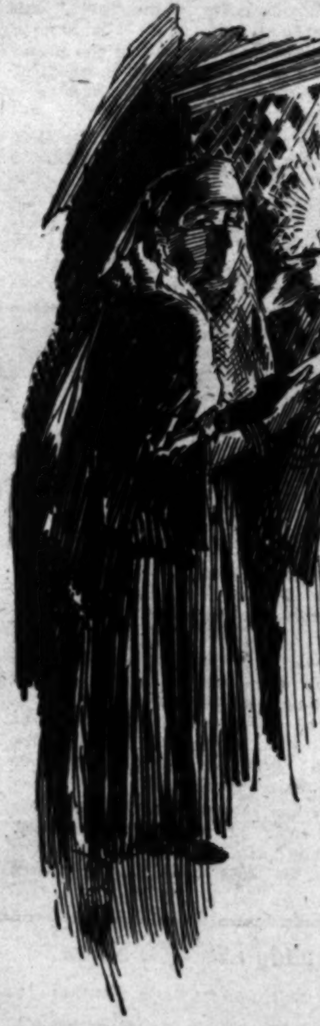
We talked the situation over. It would be unwise to trust Mustapha, so Bob decided to rouse the English proprietor of our hotel, and under his escort go to the coffee house. No telltale lantern guided the impatient "Effendis" through intricate alleys this time, as up and down, over crumbling steps in the middle of some uncertain sidewalk, stumbling over baskets, forgotten by some street vendor, we cautiously made our way to the entrance of the coffee house, where the noise of late revellers could be heard upstairs. A cough made us look up to the tiny window over the carved door and there stood the woman of the housetop holding a small, blue lamp. A moment later she was gone and a note fluttered down to Eugenia's feet.

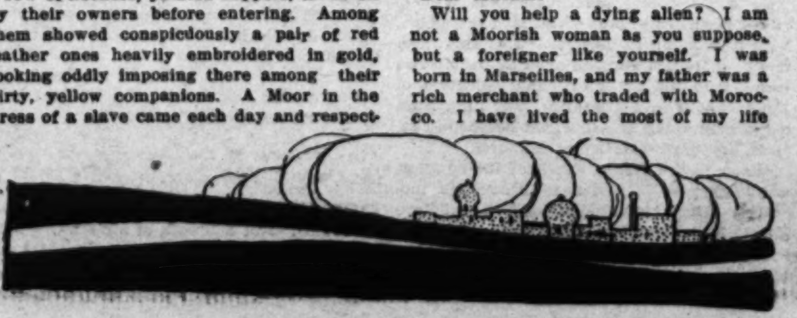
We hurried back to the hotel with the note, which was written in French on paper scented with a heavy oriental perfume, and this is what we read:

"Dear Madam:

Will you help a dying alien? I am not a Moorish woman as you suppose, but a foreigner like yourself. I was born in Marseilles, and my father was a rich merchant who traded with Morocco. I have lived the most of my life in Northern Africa and I married a native, El Sa Gal, whom I thought I loved. I am not free as the women of your land and mine are. I have a beautiful baby girl, whom her father despises. She is all I have in this world to love. I have only a few more months to live. Who will take care of my darling? Surely not this 16-year-old bride of a week! My boy is the adored child of his father. You look as if you were, or had been, a mother. Will you take my child? Teach her to remember her dead mother, teach her that I gave her away so she would never become the wife of a Moorish master. If you will do this, meet my slave at the east gate that leads out on the road to Fez, at midnight."

The next morning as the French steamer drew away from shore the squalid mass of humanity screaming for baksheesh became a faint sound, and the line of lumber-laden camels along the shore grew smaller and smaller. Eugenia sat in her stateroom holding in her arms a precious burden. As she pressed it against her hungry heart two little hands grasped a locket on her neck, the locket shrining the picture of a little girl, the tender memory of whom had saved the baby of the Mother of Tangier.





A Cheerful Happy Singer.

The brown thrasher is a beautiful bird both in the coloring of his body and in his song. On the upper parts, that is on head and back, the bird is of a delicate and refined reddish brown, and below white with black spots. But it is the song of the bird that is particularly pleasing and musical. Unlike some other birds, he does not seem to care whether he is being watched or not as he sits on the topmost branch of a tree in the meadow and pours forth his energetic and fervent song, which as if he were telling the farmer to "hurry up, hurry up; plow it, plow it; harrow it, harrow it; hoe it, hoe it, hoe it;" and so on through a list of similar happy instructions.

THE WHITE MAN OF THE JUNGLES.

BY PROF. RICHARD L. GARNER.

BECAUSE the chimpanzee is the highest known type of animal, I made a special study of it. I have devoted years to watching this highest of the apes. I studied him wild and in a kind of jungle captivity and in captivity in civilization. All my work convinced me that he is indeed, as the natives call him, the "white man of the jungle," that he utterly outclasses every other beast i nhis humanlike atirtbutes. Living in the upland forests and the low basin lands of equatorialy Africa, the chimpanzee, of which theer are many types, is very numerous. One of them the natives call "Kulukamba," another "Ntyigo." This latter has a longer face and a more prominent nose than the kulu.

Another type, called Komga Ntyigo, is a pygmy ape. Like the gorilla, the animal's hair is quite black, but as age comes on he assumes a dingy gray color. Unlike the common ntyigo, the kulu has no hair on the frontal portion of his head, his forehead is quite bare.

As he Grows Older he Grows a Beard.

LIKE human beings, their face in youth is quite free from hairs, but in the adult state there is a tendency to grow a light down on parts of the face. The kulu has a short round face, very much like that of a human being; his eyes are darker than those of the ntyigo. Also, he is slightly more intelligent, and displays the faculty of reason almost like a human being. But the difference in those degrees of intelligence only an expert can tell. One might say that the kulu is the patrician of the chimpanzees and that the ntyigo is the plebeian. The kulu is the best-bred animal of the jungle.

His physical resemblance to man is striking. Imagine an animal, the model and structure of whose ears are like those of man. Very sensitive to sounds, the chimpanzee's ear is dull to the touch, indicating that it is not well provided with nerves. Like man, he cannot erect his ears as do other animals. There are a few exceptions in both.

His hand is long and narrow. In proportion to their size the fingerbones are longer than those of the human hands, and because the tendons inside the hand are relatively short, he does not straighten his fingers. His thumb is not well developed. His finger nails are thick, dark in color and not quite so flat as those of man. Instead of his great toe being in line, like the toe of man, it projects, something after the manner of the human thumb.

But anatomically the chimpanzee's is distinctly a foot. When he walks, he generally uses his hands, but he does not place the palms on the ground. He uses the backs of the fingers, sometimes only the first fingerjoints, which shows that the weight of the body is kept on the feet and that he merely uses his hands to balance.

He Walks Like a Human Baby Just Learning.

THE chimpanzee does not walk like a man nor does he walk like a quadruped. His gait appears to be a transition between that of quadruped and man. It is significant to observe that when a man walks his arms alternate in motion with his legs. This suggests the way of locomotion of a chimpanzee. Observe infants. Like chimpanzees, babies invariably press most of their weight on the outer edge of the foot and curve the toes inward as if to grasp the surface on which they tread. This tendency is vastly more pronounced in negro than in white infants. The resemblance to the chimpanzee's walk becomes closer as one goes down the scale of humanity. Like a human baby, the chimpanzee is awkward when he attempts to run.

The chimpanzee does not sleep on a perch. He sleeps the same as a human being when possible. He lies down on his back or side and as a rule uses his arms for a pillow. Often he sleeps with his face downward. A little chimpanzee named Moses whom I studied in the jungle demonstrated this fact to me. Moses would be in a tree, eating; when he felt tired, he invariably climbed down to lie on the ground to take his nap.

A treetop is no more the normal place for a chimpanzee than the crow's nest on a ship is for a sailor. Apes venture into trees for food or to make their escape, and sometimes they sleep on platforms built on the limbs. Trees are not their proper abode. I believe that the reason why apes do not build themselves houses is because they live in the tropics. Even animals that have the habit of burrowing in other climates do not appear to do so in the tropics. This is, no doubt, due to the warm climate in which they are in no need of shelter. Moreover, if the chimpanzee built himself a permanent home, the natives would soon discover it. Self-preservation tells him to be a nomad. Like the gorilla, he seldom if ever passes two nights in the same place.

Their average life appears to be more uniform than that of man. Most of them probably do not live to be much over twenty years of age. There have been a few cases where apes lived to be possibly forty. The boy ape becomes a man from 8 to 10 years, the female maturing about two years younger.

From the social point of view, the chimpanzee is evidently of a higher caste than the other apes. He is polygamous, but is in a certain degree loyal to his family. The parental instinct of the race appears to be more refined in him than in other simians.

He Recognizes His Children and Plays With Them.

THEY seem to appreciate more the relationship of parent and child and retain it longer than others do. Most other male animals discard their young and become estranged from them at a very early age. The chimpanzee, though, keeps his children with him until they are old enough to go away and rear a family of their own. The father often plays with his children and appears to be fond of them.

It was among the chimpanzee that I observed the fact that a form of patriarchal government appears to prevail. There came to my notice cases where three adult males were seen in the same group, each one appearing to have his own wives and children. Among them there was one male who was supreme, nor did the others appear to question his authority or ever rebel against it.

There is a universal error which in justice to truth I wish to correct. It is the common idea that animals are so strongly possessed of the parental instinct that they nobly sacrifice their own lives in defense of their young. It is true that many animals have lost their lives in apparently such actions, but they were not voluntary sacrifices. They were cases of self-defense or lack of judgment.

Time and again apes have been frightened away, leaving their young to be captured. If a foe appears that seems to come within a measure of their own power they do defend their young and this sometimes results in the loss of their own lives. They blundered in their judgment of the foe's power. But if they are confronted with a foe whose aspect is such that he would suggest invincibility to any but an idiot, they promptly take to their heels; leaving their young to their fate. In this they do not differ from human beings. Observation of natives and of mankind in primitive conditions of life has made me very skeptical of the idea of "greater love has no man than that he lays down his life for his friends."

The fact of the ape deserting his offspring under certain conditions may be taken as an evidence of its superior intelligence to other animals, rather than of his cowardice. It shows an appreciation of life and of danger rather than a low, brutish impulse. It is the exercise of superior judgment, the same thing that causes man to act with more prudence than other animals.

The Ape Respects the Right of Possession.

WITH apes possession is the right of ownership. Things do not belong to the strong. When an ape procures a certain article of food the others do not often try to take it away from him. It is the same principle amplified by which nations hold the right of territory. Nations often violate this right and so do chimpanzees when not held in check by something more potent than a mere abstract sense of justice. But from observing chimpanzees in their daily life, I do not believe that they abuse the rights of ownership by urging their claims beyond their real needs. In this they differ from mankind.

Apes possess in a small degree the passion of sympathy. If a member of a chimpanzee's family becomes ill, the others are quite conscious of it and show a certain amount of solicitude. So far as I have been able to observe, they do not attempt any treatment for the sufferer except to sooth and comfort him.

They have a definite idea of what death is and in their language possibly have a name for it. They do not readily abandon their sick and when one of them is unable to travel, the others rove about him for some days within call. The natives tell me that if a chimpanzee is wounded the others will rescue it if possible and convey it to a place of safety.

It Prefers the Pines.

If you are out bird hunting and are looking for that member of the warbler known as the pine warbler, you will be most likely to find it, as the name implies, in a pine grove. In fact it is seldom found outside of such localities. This bird is rather quiet in its manners and does not move about from one spot to another with as much fuss as do many birds. Like the creeper, it has the habit of creeping about among the branches of the trees. It is greenish yellow above and brighter below, with two white wing bars and with white spots on its outer tail feathers.
